After hearings, the board must decide whether to order registration. Failure to comply with the order calls for fines and imprisonment. The communist party has said it will fight registration through the courts on the ground that it is a violation of the civil liberties clause of the Constitution.

Such a legal battle might take years.

The Attorney General's office has about 100 organizations described as communist on its "subversive list." None has appeared to register voluntarily.

2 Puerto Ricans, Brains of Truman Plot, Arrested

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)—Two Puerto Rican radical leaders, suspected of being plotters in the attempt to assassinate President Truman, were held in separate New York jails today under heavy guard.

The men seized late yesterday by Secret Service agents, are Julio Pinto Gandia, 42, veteran terrorist and president of the New York unit of the Puerto Rican Nationalist party, and Juan Bernardo Lebron, 28, secretary of the New York unit.

More arrests were believed in the offing.

The wives of two men who attempted to kill the president in Washington — Oscatellazo and Griselio Torresola—were arrested here on conspiracy charges shortly after the Nov. 1 gun battle outside Blair House.

Frederick H. Block, assistant United States Attorney, said a federal grand jury has evidence of "the possible existence of an organized plot" to kill the president, with the gunmen "having been guided in their mission by Gandia and Lebron and the gunmen's wives."

Torresola was killed by a Blair House Guard. Collazo, wounded by the guards, is awaiting trial in Washington.

The two would-be assassins, both New York city residents, were active in the Puerto Rican Nationalist party — a radical group which demands complete independence of the island from the United States. The party recently staged an armed uprising in the island.

The couple against Gandia and Lebron is that they conspired with the two wives—Mrs. Rosa Collazo, 42, and Mrs. Carmen Torresola, 22—against the safety of the president. They were held in $50,000 bail each for hearing Dec. 6, the same day the two women are to appear.

Disperse Pupils' Demonstration In Alexandria

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 23 (Reuters)—Steel-helmeted police used nightsticks to disperse high school pupils who demonstrated outside the British consulate in Alexandria today. Several students were arrested.

Fuad Serageldin Pasha, Egyptian Minister of the Interior, a few hours earlier had forbidden all demonstrations throughout Egypt after two days of anti-British student marches.

The minister said the government had learned that "subversive elements" were working among the demonstrators to carry out acts of violence.

The state of alert proclaimed throughout Egypt yesterday is to last "until further notice," he said.

Czechs Display Athletic Talents At Collegiate

A group of people from Batawa and Czechoslovakia, the Sokol Gymnastic Association, who are "very proud to be part of this great country," gave an exhibition of their talents last night in the Collegiate auditorium.

The display was given to commemorate the 32nd anniversary of Czechoslovakia's Independence Day. Frank Follwell, M.P. for South Hastings, welcomed the audience and told them that it was "very fortunate for Canada that the Bata interests decided to come to Canada in 1939, when more than 850 people are employed at the Batawa plant, and they are making no small contribution to the economy of our community."

Mr. Follwell also told of the trip made two weeks ago by Czechs in Ontario and Quebec to see Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and the Minister of Immigration, Hon. Walter Harris, at Ottawa. "The biggest group," he said, "came from Batawa to re-affirm their Canadian allegiance."

Behind Iron Curtain

"Their old land is now behind the Iron Curtain," Mr. Follwell said. "No longer are the people of Czechoslovakia free." Mr. Follwell said that the Prime Minister had asked him to tell the Czechs from his constituency how much he had appreciated their gesture, and that "he is proud that they have come to Canada and become Canadian citizens."

Mr. Follwell said that the Czechs have brought many of their old customs with them, and that Canada will be enriched by them. "We of Belleville and the whole community are honored that you have come to Canada, and we wish for you a long stay," he said.

Girls and boys, and women and men of all ages gave displays of calisthenic drills, balance, work on the parallel bars and jumping vault, folk dances and Indian clubs drills. The audience got the most kick out of the smaller tots who showed utmost confidence in themselves and their instructors in their drills.

Such exercises emphasized team play as the children grow up, and eliminate competition to a certain extent. Master of ceremonies last night was Arthur Duncan.

Shaw's Ashes Are Mingled With Those of His Wife and Scattered Over His Garden

Ayott St. Lawrence, England, Nov. 23—(Reuters)—George Bernard Shaw's ashes were mingled with his wife's today and then scattered over the garden of his home here

The simple, private ceremony was carried out in accordance with Shaw's expressed wish by his doctor, C. T. Probyn, who attended him until he died three weeks ago.

The ashes were not buried in historic Westminster Abbey, London, or any other church because of declarations in Shaw's will and possible offence to the feelings of churchmen, according to F. Wyndham Hurst, the public trustee, who was responsible for a decision on Shaw's burial.

Abbey Burial Was Considered

"The whole question of a Westminster Abbey burial had been carefully considered," Hurst said today.

"In view of the declarations in Mr. Shaw's will and the views expressed in many of his writings it was thought that the feelings of churchmen would be offended if the ecclesiastical authorities made any move to allow the burial of his ashes in any religious national shrine."

The scattering of the ashes was carried out in accordance with a clause of Shaw's will made known today. In it he said he wanted his ashes to be mingled with his wife's and be scattered over the garden of his home—"where we lived together for 35 years, unless some other disposal of them should be in the opinion of the trustees more eligible."

"Personally I prefer the garden to the cloister."

In another clause Shaw asked that no memorials to him should suggest that he accepted the tenets of any particular church.

He specifically asked that no memorial should be in the form of a cross.

"As my religious convictions and scientific views cannot at present be more specifically defined than as those of a believer in creative evolution, I desire that no public monument or work of art or inscription or sermon or ritual service commemorating me shall suggest that accepted the tenets peculiar to any established church or denomination nor take the form of a cross or any other instrument of torture or symbol of blood sacrifice," the clause said.

Only six persons were present as Dr. Probyn scattered the ashes of the great playwright and his wife over the trim garden under leaden winter sky.

They were Hurst and two of his officers; E. W. Pierce, the executor of Shaw's will; Mrs. Alice Laden, Shaw's Scottish housekeeper; and one reporter representing the public.

Culver City, Calif, Nov. 23—AP —It's going to be a great weekend for Culver City kids. They'll have a creek loaded with bass all to themselves.

Recently the city of Los Angeles began draining a reservoir. Bass and blue gill, stocked in the reservoir, ran down storm drains and then into Ballona Creek, which empties into the ocean.

Members of the Rod and Gun club and the Chamber of Commerce erected a temporary dam to keep the fish from going into the ocean. Then they cooked up a weekend fishing contest for kids under 16.

Shipment of 16 New-Type Tanks to Egypt Postponed Following Protests in House

London, Nov. 23—(CP)—Shipment of 16 new-type British tanks bought by Egypt was postponed last night following protests from both Labor and Conservative members of parliament.

Members from both sides of the House of Commons had protested that the tanks and other British weapons might be used by Egypt in an attempt to drive Britain's troops out of the Suez Canal zone.

Foreign Undersecretary Ernest Davies soothed rebellious Labor members by assuring them no tanks will be sent to Egypt until Foreign Secretary Bevin has completed talks with the Egyptian Foreign Minister on the Anglo-Egyptian question.

The tanks—which are almost paid for—were ordered some time ago and there would be a serious breach of contract if the deal were called off, Davies said.

The quarrel between Britain and Egypt was started by King Farouk's demand for revision of the 1936 treaty under which Britain is authorized to maintain troops in the Suez Canal zone until 1956. Egypt also asked cancellation of the 1899 agreement under which the two countries share the rule of the Sudan. Negotiations over the Egyptian demands are expected to take place next week.

Mollon Censures Sales

Before Davies' statement, Winston Churchill, conservative leader, had moved a motion of censure on the sale of arms to Egypt. If such a motion passed the Commons, where the government has a slim majority of five, it would force the Labor government to resign.

However, political observers said it now is likely that the opposition leader will withdraw the motion.

During the debate, stormy at some points, Labor member Sidney Silverman asked Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell:

"Wouldn't it be a reasonable precaution not to deliver much more of our much-needed defence equipment to Egypt until it's quite clear that it won't be used to drive our forces out of the Suez Canal?"

Shinwell termed the question "very hypothetical" and repeated a pledge made by Bevin last Monday to fill the contract which "includes a very small number of new type 52-ton centurion tanks." But, he said, Britain does not intend to export arms in the future outside Atlantic Pact countries "unless it is in our strategic interests."

West Oil Scouts Now Staid Group

Edmonton—(CP)—"Spies" are operating over Alberta—oil spies, that is.

Some 25 of these undercover agents are ferreting out information for their rival oil companies on the latest developments in Alberta's mushrooming oil industry.

But some of the older scouts who recall the wild and woolly days of oil development in the United States complain their trade has lost its glamor. They say that Alberta oilmen are too friendly. They'll gladly exchange information that formerly took weeks to obtain.

Most of the operators, or scouts as they prefer to be called, are university-trained geologists who can piece together fragments of information into a picture which will indicate to their companies whether or not a designated area is "hot".

Now, they've formed the Western Canada Oil Scouts Association. Their organization meets every Wednesday in a Red Deer hotel to swap information.

In early days of Texas oil development, there was a more exciting existence. He spent much time peering through binoculars at "enemy" oscillators and ran the risk of getting his head bloodied. Sometimes he did a little bloodying himself.

In Alberta the scout finds himself collecting a good deal of information direct from the head offices of oppsition companies—a degrading experience for a spy.

And the modern scout never uses binoculars to get his material.

Said one scout: "Glasses you drink out of will get you a lot more information than the kind you look through."

Prelate Slams Newspapers for Trifling Headlines

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 23 — (Reuters) — Newspaper headlines do more damage than any other single thing to modern life, claims the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher.

People should pray for newspapers to regain their ability to make people discriminate in the things they read, he said at a state banquet Tuesday night.

The primate, head of the Anglican Church, said people were not happy about the press. Those responsible for great newspapers were trying to do their best, but they suffered from two big limitations—that they could not resist the headline, and the other their reporters' inadequate education.

"On every page every day there must be big headlines which means that when there's nothing important they have to make some triviality important," he said.

"Think of the effect of that on the public mind. It doesn't matter whether it's something of terrific importance in Korea or some actress who has divorced her husband. . .

"There are some newspapers where you can still tell which pages to look at if you want to find the important things, and which pages to look at for unimportant things. But to run these things all together is no good for anyone.

"Newspapers should try to raise the standard of education of their reporters.

"Newspapers should teach reporters the difficult art of reporting a speech. I know it isn't easy. Any speech that is worth reporting has an argument, and any faithful reporter should report the argument."

Wild-Eyed Man Goes on Rampage At Queenston

St. Catharines, Nov. 23 (CP) — Swinging a heavy wrench in each hand, a wild-eyed man Tuesday smashed valves, telephones and fuse boxes in the main generator room of the Queenston power plant. He was subdued after a struggle with hydro employees and tied down to a stretcher.

Today Roland McIntee, 33, of Sidgewyn pleaded guilty to wilful damage amounting to $500 and was remanded to Nov. 29 for sentence. He was first charged with being drunk, but the damage charge was substituted today.

Water flooded the floor of the generating room as McIntee broke glass water indicators and turned on a local sprinkler system. Hydro employees chased after McIntee as he ran about on his orgy of destruction.

Provincial Constable Wally Green rushed to the scene on receiving a radio call. He found McIntee trussed to a stretcher in the first aid room with about 20 feet of thick rope.

Police say that McIntee got into the plant area by jumping a fence near the river bank.

Power on the lines supplied by the big Queenston generating plant was not interrupted and was not seriously threatened said Ross Robertson, manager of the generating station. All damage was reported repaired this afternoon.

Damage was estimated at $500.

Dwarf Horses In B. C. Have Unique History

Victoria, B.C. —(CP)— Five fully-grown horses the size of Great Dane dogs, two of them born in captivity, browse quietly on an up-island farm.

They are true horses, not ponies, the only ones in Canada and among the few in the world. Only difference between their type and an ordinary horse, except for size, is that the head is slightly larger in proportion.

Their history is unique. Many years ago three horses strayed and became trapped in a cul-de-sac in the Grand Canyon of the Colorado River. They survived and multiplied, but through years of inbreeding and shortage of food they gradually became stunted in size.

It is understood they are considered a national rarity, and can no longer be exported from the United States.

Ponies are fairly common in Canada, especially in the East where they are widely used in sleigh teams, but as far as is known there are no other little horses in this country.

Why Farmers Retire to Cities

By JOHN EASTON
(In The Calgary Herald)

Farmers are baffling. They work thirty or forty years on a farm, working industriously to feed the hungry and raise a respectable family; they listen to farm programs on the radio, read farm papers and organize farm friendships with other farmers and talk farm matters morning, noon and night. Then all at once they pack up and move to the nearest, busiest, suffering guillotine) only while seated on a gardening tractor. Horticulture is a sheer waste of time; its returns are almost entirely aesthetic, and we can do without that kind of thing, thanks! So I guess we cannot say that untidy farms are the farm's reason for hustling off to the city when he reaches sixty-five.

Perhaps the lack of material comforts so often prevailing in the country helps speed these migrations. When people get old, they feel they need conveniences, and in the city there is hot and cold running water. Yet I hardly think this is entirely the reason for this present-day exodus of the aged. More and more farmers are installing plumbing and electricity, yet their owners escape to the delights of urban dissipations as often as they can.

Perhaps the country is lacking in color and gaiety. The entertainments seem to point this out. They paint wonderfully glowing pictures of the charms and benefits of neon lighting, air-conditioned theatres, drive-ins and cafes featuring Chinese and Italian cuisine. Then the poor old wife begin to think they've been missing something all these years; now is their chance to get right away from the farm and really enjoy themselves. They seldom think, until it is too late, that they are unsuited to urban life and are old to readjust themselves.

They buy their four-room bungalow in a quiet section of the city, and for a month or two are perfectly happy getting settled. Then, gradually, they find once novel becomes commonplace. They are accustomed now to hopping on to the bus and going down town—strange how little there is to do down town once one gets there! The stores have lost their air of glamour, while the historic accomplishments of Esther Williams and Lana Turner are less dazzling than they once seemed to be.

It is at this point that the arrival of the mailman becomes as important an event as the rural mail carrier's semi-weekly arrival back on the farm. The daily paper is eagerly anticipated and as eagerly read. There are still the farm magazines and the visits from other retired farmers; but even all this is hardly enough to occupy seven full days a week. The farmer misses his crop, he frets about conditions back on the farm, and give up the heavy work —an admirable solution that has been done and proved remarkably successful—for many is the pasture village among people they have known for many years and whose interests they share. For although superficially Alberta's towns and villages are becoming increasingly up-to-date, basically they remain rural in tone and outlook. Conversation still centres round th e weather; but the weather is not discussed in relation to its disastrous effects on the season's crop, or specially, but what it is going to do to the crops and livestock. The tempo of village life is slow, soothing and relaxing.

Then too, there is the matter of money. We often hear that living is much cheaper in the country than it is in the city, and this is perfectly true. There may not be the bargain basements, the markets and the five-and-ten cent stores where for low price we receive should-be goods but rents are cheaper, entertainment cheaper still, transportation no problem, and there is less temptation to squander money on trifles in the country than there is in the city. Poverty in the country is far more comfortable than urban poverty.

GET BY ON CREDIT

Washington, Nov. 23.—(AP)—More than one-third of American families spent more than they took in last year, managing to get by chiefly on credit, the federal reserve board reported yesterday. Most of them were in lower income brackets, the board said, adding that families in the top 10th in income piled up more savings than all other families put together.

Music Festivals Help German Bid for Tourists

Heidelberg — (Reuters) —With an eye to the tourist trade committees are working to change the "romantic Germany" of 1950 into the "musical Germany" of 1951.

Large numbers of tourists came to West Germany this year looking for and finding something better than bomb ruins and vestiges of nazism. Many were attracted by a pamphlet entitled "Romantic Germany," containing pictures of castles rich in history and legend, mountain sports centres, and quaint little towns and villages.

The German tourist Association was encouraged and now has many committees planning festivals and concerts to fit the 1951 theme of "Musical Germany."

Several cities and spas are planning open-air operatic performances next year. Many castles will be the background for nightly operettas.

Opera companies from several European capitals are expected for summer festivals at Wiesbaden and Munich. Lovers of modern music will meet at Darmstadt for holiday courses and concerts.

There will be a Mozart festival at Wurzburg, while Bonn, the West German capital, will pay tribute to one of its greatest sons — Beethoven.

At Heidelberg, nightly serenades will be held near the ruins of the castle overlooking Neckar River, but, as this year, the main attraction will be the old university, the picturesque streets —and the large wine barrel in the cellar of the castle. The barrel can hold 133,036 quarts.

Greatest event in the musical field next year, however, is expected to be the Richard Wagner festivals at Bayreuth, from July 29 to Aug. 19. This will open with Beethoven's Ninth Symphony followed by Wagner's Parsifal, Siegfried, Gotterdammerung. The conductors will be Hans Knappertsbusch and Herbert van Karajan, Wieland Wagner, a grandson of the great German composer, will be responsible for staging Parsifal and the Ring.

Wild Animals Menace This Rhodesian Road

Chipinga, Northern Rhodesia—(CP)—Motoring his parish in this still half-wild corner of Africa, Rev. A. M. De V. Esterhuyzen, has become accustomed to wild animals holding up his car.

Recently he had trouble clearing a big Koodoo cow — a variety of large buck — out of the road.

The next day he met a Koodoo bull, which stalked slowly away only after Mr. Esterhuyzen had sounded the horn on his car several times.

Some months ago Mr. Esterhuyzen had to stop to avoid running down two lions and a leopard. The leopard cat-footed right up to the car and then rolled over like a kitten. All in the day's work are long lashing pythons and deadly Black Mambas.

Mr. Esterhuyzen regrets one accident in which he ran down and killed a huge, bronze eagle.

Greek Parents Still Search For Children

Athens, (Reuters) — Red-eyed Greek mothers in mourning, in every village and hamlet along Greece's borders, ask the same question: "Do you know where our children are?"

Their children were taken from them three years ago by communists who marched them in thousands across the frontier, scattering them in communist countries whose names mean nothing to these poor, illiterate peasants.

The parents have no doubt that, whatever the communist may say, their children were taken to build a future core of fanatic servants of the communist cause.

According to the Greek Red Cross, 23,304 Greek children between the ages of four and 18 were carried off behind the Iron Curtain, more than 7,000 applications for the return of some 10,000 children have been submitted by relatives to the International Red Cross; a few of these requests were collected during October by Greek Red Cross nurses touring the villages of Western Macedonia.

So far, despite two United Nations resolutions, the communists have not sent a single child back to its family.

Organized Plan

The Greek army general staff claims to have proof that these children were kidnapped for the sole purpose of converting them into convinced communists, and for using them later to carry out a plan to make Greece a Soviet satellite.

Many of the older boys and girls, for example, have already returned to Greece to fight with the communist guerrilla bands after receiving a brief military training.

Most of them surrendered or were captured by the Greek troops. They have been sent for vocational training and national re-education.

Some foreign correspondents travelling in the Balkans have also had the opportunity of visiting Greek children in their camps, mainly in Yugoslavia.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

Generally, they report that the children are well-disciplined and well-fed, but also intensively educated in communist theories. Usually they have Greek schoolteachers who have been communist guerrillas.

COAL OUTPUT UP

Glace Bay, N.S., (CP)— The Dominion Coal Company's nine collieries in the Glace Bay-New Waterford field produced 352,735 tons of coal in October, an increase of 20,920 over the same month last year.

Shoemaker Not Worried as Lead Cut to One

Inglewood, Calif., Nov. 18 (AP) Jockey Willie Shoemaker apparently is the least perturbed of anyone over his dwindling lead rival Joe Culmone in their long-range duel for national riding honors.

The slight 19-year-old saddlesmith headed into today's card at Hollywood Park with only a one-win margin over Culmone, who was to ride at Bowie this afternoon.

Shoemaker went winless in six trips around the big oval yesterday while Culmone was scoring two victories at Pimlico. That left race count: Shoemaker 329, Culmone 328.

Shoemaker had eight mounts on tap today but only one, Lazy Jo in the first, shaped up as the probable favorite at post time.

It takes quite a bit of prodding to get Willie to say anything. He is known as the "silent shoe". But pressed for observations anent his race with Culmone, Willie thought it over and answered:

"If I win, I win. If I don't, I don't."

That settled that for a moment. Diligent quizzing produced the reply that, nope, he isn't particularly excited about the race, and the definite quote: "Nope, I'm not losing any sleep over it. It just got cold and ride and try to win. If I don't, I don't."

Wordless Willie has never met Culmone but figured "he must be doing some good riding back there." And with disarming honesty, he said, "I wish him a lot of luck," or words to that effect.

Pretty well run out of words by this time, the youngster got ready to continue his chores against the top American reinsmen out here—Gordon Glisson, the 1949 riding champ, former king Johnny Longden, Johnny Adams, Jackie Westrope, Sheve Brooks, Bobby Permane and others.

Kids Admitted for Tax Money Cheer Rangers to First Win In 15 Games, Toronto Wins

(By The Canadian Press)

New York Rangers have tried just about everything imaginable—including hypnosis—to snap them out of a winless streak. Last night they came up with something else: children's night. It worked.

Kids under 16 accompanied by a parent were admitted on payment of federal tax only. With the enthusiastic youngsters cheering them on, the Rangers rallied up their second victory of the National Hockey League season.

They lifted themselves out of the league cellar on a 3-2 win over the 3rd-place Montreal Canadiens.

At Toronto, the Maple Leafs notched their fourth home game. Three In Second

The New Yorkers scored all their goals in the second period with Zellio Toppazzini, 20-year-old winger acquired from Boston last week starting them on their way. Pentti Lund combined with Lynn Sinclair and Buddy O'Connor to notch the second, the veteran Edgar Laprade the third. With less than a minute of the second period to go, rookie Vern Mosienko tallied for Montreal. Defenseman Doug Harvey scored his other goal in the third period with an end-to-end rush.

Rookie Tod Sloan paced the Leafs with a two-goal effort before 12,876 Toronto fans. His first goal was of the flukey variety, the puck going in on a shot off goalie Harry Lumley's skate on a corner passout. But his second early in the third period went in on a blazing shot.

Max Bentley, Harry Watson and Johnny McCormack collected the other Toronto goals, while Bep Guidolin and Rod Morrison connected for Chicago.

In tonight's games, the Leafs travel to Detroit while the Bruins journey to Chicago.

Hazardous Trip Is Scheduled For Sunday

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 23 — (CP) — Lesley Sander, a New Yorker who hopes to go over Niagara Falls in a barrel, is expected here today to talk over plans for his hazardous trip, scheduled for Sunday.

Anthony (Jiggs) Rufrano, Niagara Falls welder who is building a steel barrel for the 57-year-old interior decorator, said yesterday he will try to persuade Sander to postpone the venture until Spring.

Rufrano said he will argue for postponement on grounds that the weather these days is cold and changeable and chances of drawing a good crowd of spectators unfavorable.

Two days' more work will be required to weld together the 1,000-pound barrel.

ARMY EDGES BLACK HAWKS

Ottawa, Nov. 23 — (CP) Army edged out a 3-2 decision over North Bay Black Hawks last night in an Eastern Canada Hockey League fixture.

Pete Leichnitz opened Army's scoring in the third period and put Army ahead a bit later after Ringler had tied it up. Morland tallied at 12:39, but Army's Blondin, in the last minute of play, came through with the deciding marker.

Campbell Against Sudden-Death Overtime Periods

(By The Canadian Press)

President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League doesn't think sudden - death overtime periods are what fans want to spice up the game.

Why? Because they "don't produce the wanted results."

Commenting on a story by Barney Kremenko, New York Journal - American sports writer, Campbell said the fans are satisfied if their team has managed to stave off attacks and finish a game in a deadlock. "Some of the most exciting games end in ties," he said.

"Furthermore, the majority of those extra periods end up in a tie. During the last five years when overtime periods were permitted, only 30 per cent resulted in a different decision."

On Kremenko's report that fans were deserting the lowly New York Rangers, Campbell said "It's a known fact that people will root louder for a winning team in any sport. It's just human nature."

The Eastern Canada Intercollegiate bowling championships will be held at McGill University in February with the University of Toronto team as defending titlists, it was announced yesterday.

Paul Collins of Wolfville, N. S. Bob McFarlane of London, Ont., and Bill Parnell of Victoria, B.C., have been nominated for the J. W. Davies Trophy, awarded annually to Canada's outstanding track and field star of the year. Tom Lord, National Track and Field Committee chairman said the winner will be announced after balloting by committee officials.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has turned down an appeal by the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association against award of two Quebec hockey players to the Western Canada Senior Hockey League. The announcement was made last night by George Dudley, secretary of the C.A.H.A. The dispute started last October when the C. A. H. A. awarded two Quebec players to Saskatoon Quakers of the western league although the players did not have team releases from Q. A. H. A. branch transfers. The two players involved are defenseman Bill Heindl of Sherbrooke Saints and Larry Zeidel of Quebec Aces.

Shortstop Eddie Mikels said yesterday that seven years with Brooklyn Dodgers was enough. "I'm tired of riding the bench," Mikels, back in his New Jersey hometown of Burlington said he wanted to be traded to some team where he could play regularly. "Sure I want to be traded," Mikels said in an interview, "if they want me to ride the bench, then let them play me a regular player's salary for doing so."

Assault, the terror of the three-year-olds in 1946, hit the comeback trail yesterday and did it in winning fashion. The seven-year-old veteran, racing under silors for the first time in 13 months, seemingly toyed for a while with six rivals in the day's feature at Hollywood Park, the $4,000 Hyde Park purse, and then left them far behind in an easy roll down the stretch. Assault and his old saddle associate, Eddie Arcaro, won by two lengths, with a South American horse, Repulso, running second to overhaul Bernbrook, who finished third, in the last few strides.

An aerial preview of next-west football rivalry will take place in the skies over Toronto Friday, the day before Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Toronto Argonauts meet in the Grey Cup football final. Early in the day three blue vampire fighters from No. 402 City of Winnipeg squadron will climb to 30,000 feet and streak toward Toronto on a non-stop flight. Thirty minutes from the city they'll radio their position ahead. That will be the signal for three vampires of the No. 400 City of Toronto squadron to take off to intercept the raiders. The evening dogfight should be about as noisy as the game and the 27,000 fans the next afternoon at Varsity Stadium.

Cincinnati Reds announced yesterday they had asked waivers on veteran outfielder Danny Litwhiler with a view of signing him again as a coach. The Reds' management said that if all clubs waive on Litwhiler he will be given his unconditional release and then will be re-signed to a Cincinnati contract. Litwhiler, who broke into the major leagues with Philadelphia in 1941, came to the Reds in 1948 in a trade with the Boston Braves. Last season he was used only in a utility role and hit .259 in 54 games.

Although floored twice in the fifth round for counts of eight, Piet Strydom outpointed George Hunter in a 12-round bout last night to win the South African heavyweight boxing championship. He succeeded to the title vacated by Johnny Ralph.

Winnipeg Holds Hefty Weight Over Argonauts

Toronto, Nov. 23 (CP) — From the standpoint of weight, Winnipeg Blue Bombers hold a hefty edge for the Dominion football final here Saturday. The Western Canada champions' starting lineup outweighs Toronto Argonauts by an average of 11 pounds a man.

Winnipeg's 12 first-stringers average out to 207 pounds a player, if you take vital statistics issued by the clubs as accurate. On the same basis, the Argos average 196 pounds.

The Bombers all lighter in the backfield with their five starting ball-carriers averaging 171 1-3 pounds to 176 for the eastern Canada champions. It's the Winnipeg wingline, bolstered by a couple of giant 260 pounders, Ies, here's how the starting teams that tips the scales in Bombers' favor by averaging 222 1-3 pounds, compared with 211 for Argos.

You can't pick a Grey Cup winner just from those figures, of course, because there's any other considerations—speed, ability and fight to name a few. But should the weather come up heavy, weight could work in Winnipeg's favor.

There's another important factor. Argo coach Frank Clair says he intends to stick to his platoon system of offensive and defensive teams whereas Winnipeg's Frank Larson plans to use a number of his first-stringers in iron-man, 60-minute roles if necessary.

That shouldn't make much difference in relative weights because the Argo defensive team averages about the same as the other 12. But it may answer one question. Is it more tiring to stay on full-time or to trot on and off the field every two or three plays?

Starting Teams

Winnipeg's five regular backfielders are: Quarterback Jack Dekdebrun (175); flying wing Rod Smylie (187); left half Ulysses Curtis (170); right half Ted Toogood (165) and fullback Billy Bass (190), recently recovered from a back injury, may be reserved mostly for defensive duty with Bob Westlake (201) used offensively.

Both teams use their imports in their first strings. Argos' are Curtis, Bass, Dekdebrun, Hirsch, McCormick, Kerns and Whaley. Winnipeg's are Casey, Jacobs, Brown, Johnson, Tinsley, Henke and Aguirre.

Larson told newspaper men at London, Ont., where Bombers are training for the game, that all his imports have played 60 minutes in a number of the team's 17 games to date, and all are prepared to do it again. On the other hand, Clair usually changes 10 at a time, with Whaley, Dekdebrun, Hirsch, Bass, Curtis or Toogood often doing double duty.

When the Bombers have their starting 12 on the field, they weigh a total of 2,485 pounds. The Argo offensive team totals 2,355. That means there'll be just short of 2 1-2 tons of bone and sinew shaking Varsity Stadium Saturday.

Ivan Coaches Windsor Spits To 6-3 Victory

(By The Canadian Press)

When Windsor Spitfires went looking for a coach to fill in for suspended Jimmy Skinner they wound up with nothing but the best.

The success of their quest was indicated last night when Tommy Ivan, coach of Detroit Red Wings, took over the Windsor reins and directed them to a 6-3 Ontario Hockey Association Junior 'A' victory over Oshawa Generals.

Ivan, whose Red Wings were idle, was subbing for Skinner who was suspended last week after being charged with assaulting an usher at Barrie in a game there.

There's nothing surprising about Ivan taking the job. Windsor is a Detroit farm club. So are the Generals, for that matter.

The game was one of three played in the junior league. Waterloo Hurricanes maintained their winning record at Barrie where they dropped a lopsided 11-5 verdict to the league-leading Flyers.

At Stratford, the Kroehlers moved into sole possession of 3rd place behind Toronto Marlboros by shutting out the eighth — place Guelph Biltmores 2-0.

A single game in the O. H. A. major circuit, at Hamilton, saw Kitchener — Waterloo Dutchmen step over Toronto Marlboros into a second - place tie with Hamilton by defeating the Tigers 5-4.

Second Provides Winner

A goal by Billy Flick, his second of the game, with less than four minutes left provided the winning margin after the Tigers had roared back with four goals in the last period to tie the score.

Ab Conick, with two, Murray Comfort and Carl Liscombe were the Hamilton scorers. Dinny Flanagan, Jack Nerduas, Art Hurst tallied for Kitchener - Waterloo as well as Flick.

The Windsor junior victory before 3,200 fans raised the Spits from sixth to four position in the 10-team league. Oshawa remains seventh.

After a scoreless first period, Harry Sinden sent the Generals into a lead, But Jim Anderson, Elmer Skov, Al Arbour and Martin Zorica scored in quick succession for Windsor before Lou Jackson ski got Oshawa's second goal. Elmer Thomas and John Oldfield got the two tallies in the last period for the Spits while Alec Delvecchio scored for Oshawa.

Lengthen Lead

The win for Barrie lengthened the Flyers' first-place lead to four points ahead of the surging Marlboros. The game was a rout as Flyers outscored the cellar-dwellers in every period.

Jerry Toppazzini, Don Emms, Lionel Barber and Real Chevrefils got two each for the winners. Doug Towers, Danny O'Connor and Leo Labine getting the others.

Chuck MacDonald led the Hurricanes with two goals and an assist while Paul Oliver, Charlie Brooker and Warren Godfrey got one apiece.

Goalie Al Bennett got a lot of credit for the Stratford shutout victory over the defending OHA Junior A champions. He was especially good in the second period when the Kroehlers were two men short for a spell.

Bob Armstrong and Guy Henri were the goal getters, scoring just 25 seconds apart in the middle frame.

Rooens as Hard To Get as Grey Cup Tickets

Toronto, Nov. 23—CP—Know what makes hotel clerks prematurely grey? Its things like Grey Cup finals.

There's only one thing as tough to get in Toronto this week as a ticket to the east-west football final between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Argonauts. It's a hotel room.

A check indicates that room clerks in Toronto's 150 hotels are tired of saying "no" to football fans seeking reservations. The clerks' big worry is how they're going to honor even confirmed reservations.

Hotel managers say that the rush is worse than last year when 2 teams rom outside Toronto-Montreal Alouettes and Calgary Stampeders—met in the big game.

"Very rugged," was the comment of the manager of the Royal York, largest hotel in the commonwealth. The 1,200 rooms will be filled largely by visitors coming from the west.

At the King Edward, next in size with about 1,000 rooms, about the only ones who can be positive of their reservations are the members of the Blue Bombers, who will arrive in Toronto Friday.

No one section of the country has a monopoly on visitors, although a large group will be from Winnipeg. Telegrams for the weekend have come from as far as Saint John, N. B., and Vancouver.

Note to football fans from out of town: If you think it will be easy to get a room in a tourist home or heated cabin on the outskirts of town, don't think you're the only one with the idea.

The room situation in the city of 750,000-odd population has been tied in knots by a football game attracting 27,000 persons.

HEAVY FINE

Toronto, Nov. 23 — (CP) — Mrs. Thelma Clark was fined $150 yesterday for leaving her three-year-old daughter in a parked automobile while she spent an hour in a beverage room drinking five glasses of beer "to get rid of a headache."

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto players are having quite a battle of it among themselves for top spots in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Max Bentley is setting the pace in the field of assists with 18 which, added to his six goals, gave him a 24-point total for first place.

Ted Sloan joined teammate Sid Smith and Montreal's Maurice Richard in first spot of the snipper's division, picking up two goals last night to bring his total to 10.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	P.
M. Bentley, Toronto	6	18	24
Kennedy, Toronto	6	14	20
Sloan, Toronto	10	9	19
Gardner, Toronto	6	10	16
Howe, Detroit	7	8	15
Smith, Toronto	10	5	15
Richard, Montreal	10	4	14
Curry, Montreal	7	7	14

AWARDED $16,000

Toronto, Nov. 23 — (CP) Betty Ross, 17-year-old girl who lost her power to concentrate because of a motor accident two years ago, was awarded $16,000 damages by an Assize Court jury last night. Her father, David Ross of Toronto, was granted $1,494 for hospital expenses. The court directed that the award to the girl be kept in trust until she is 21.

U.S. WINS TROPHY

Toronto, Nov. 23—(CP)—The United States won the International team challenge trophy with a victory in the premier international jumping competition as the Royal Winter Fair ended last night.

It was the first U.S. victory in eight nights of international contests. Britain and Mexico, winner last year, tied for second place. The Republic of Ireland was third and Canada fourth.

Britain and Mexico each won first place three times and Canada once in horse jumping meetings during the Fair.

Anxiety to bid again does not mean you should. Remember that each raise by you promises one trick more than you showed before. This applies as well to a takeout doubler.

A takeout double shows a hand as good as an opening one bid; a minimum of five tricks. With only five tricks you have no future raises in that deal. No raises whatever.

With more than five tricks you have one raise for each trick in excess of your promised minimum of five. Subject, however, to having a biddable suit if you bid a suit; support if you assist a suit.

With no more tricks, suppose you have a biddable suit that you can big without a raise. This you can do. But not if it is necessary to raise the last partnership contract in order to show it.

With no more tricks, suppose you have very good support for the suit your partner has bid. To show it will require you to raise the number. Therefore, you must not assist.

South opens with one spade when you have this hand:

♠A Q
♥K 7 4
♣9 7 3

Double for a takeout. You have as good as an opening one bid. But you have a minimum of only five tricks. Whatever else you may do later, you lack any additional tricks for a raise.

Suppose your next opponent passes and your partner takes out your double with a bid of two hearts. You have adequate support for hearts. The temptation is to raise his heart takeout.

Despite your heart support, however, your hand counts only five tricks. You already showed five tricks by your double. Therefore, you have no raise. You should pass the two heart bid by your partner.

Give me no argument as to what you should do in a masquerve. Only rule is what I tell you. It does not matter how these advices because you like to gamble. If you prefer, shoot the moon.

Royal Winter Fair Closed By Minister

Toronto, Nov. 23 — (CP) — They packed up the 1950 Royal Winter Fair last night. Ontario Agriculture Minister Kennedy put the finishing touches to the 1950 agricultural show by declaring it officially closed.

Most of the 17,000 entries are en route home by truck and freight but eight freight cars loaded with livestock carry the hopes of exhibitors to the international Livestock Exposition in Chicago.

The six world champion seed-growers named at the Winter Fair — including 13-year-old Ricky Sharpe of Munson, Alta., who won the wheat championship — will be competing for "King" titles at Chicago's International Hay and Grain Show.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was in her room sewing, and I was standing at the window looking at the sky getting all dark trying to rain, and I said, Honestly, ma, did you hear that? That was thunder, and I bet it's going to lightning any second, I said.

Let it injoy itself, ma said. Thank goodness I'm not one of those silly women that crawl under the bed at the first inkling of a thunder storm, she said, and I said, Do you meen I can stand rite here without any danger of being struck by lightning?

Well certainly, ma said. The lightning has a million places to strike if it wasn't safe to stand, and you think you're going to be one in a million, you must consider yourself pretty important, she said, and I said, Okay, I bet a million to one I won't get struck. I defy all the lightning in the sky. Come on, you big cowards, come on and strike me, I said.

Hush sutch talk, ma said. There's such a thing as using a little discretion, she said, and I said, Do you meen the lightning can actually tell who I am?

Of course not, I hope you dont think I'm that superstitious, ma said, and I said, Then I bet 2 million to one. Here I am, I double dare you to strike me. I'll even get a buntch of keys and wave them in your face just to attract you, you big sissies, I said.

Benny, come away from that window immeedilly, and stay away, ma said, and I said, Aw, why, ma?

First because I say so and 2nd because you'll get a good sound slap if I have to say so again, ma said.

The result being I came away, berat on account of ma sounding serious about the slap, and 2nd on account of not wanting to give the lightning too mutch chance to think it over.

Horse and Dogs Earn Easy Life

Winnipeg — CP — Two shaggy dogs and an old horse are living a life of leisure here.

Shep and Bounce, the collies, and Rock, a 17-year-old horse, inherited a $5,160 estate when their mistress, Mrs. Elinor Scott, died at Fisher Branch, Man.

Friends of Mrs. Scott, who have been taking care of the animals, said the elderly farm woman lived alone with her pets for many years. When they die, the estate will go to the Fisher Branch Hospital.

27 Wounded U.S. Prisoners Are Released

Yongbyon, Korea, Nov. 24—(Reuters)—Twenty-seven wounded American prisoners were released Wednesday by Chinese communists three miles from American lines. The Americans brought back the message: "Chinese do not want to fight Americans."

The men reported they had been well fed and well treated.

The release of the prisoners started widespread reports in Tokyo that the communist Peiping regime is seeking a negotiated peace.

Many observers believed the Chinese action was a genuine attempt to convince the world they are interested only in maintaining a buffer zone to keep the Yalu River power stations out of the reach of the west.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

"Don't have another like it, child! you are driving please. To return to the last painting. I'll confess that until Blake went into the air, I had had a mean suspicion that he knew something about its disappearance. Now, I am sure he doesn't.

"So am I, darn sure. That washes up the subject for the present. When I would you like to eat, Miss Phillips?"

In a cotton frock as softly pink as the Perfection rose she had tucked in her hair, Fran sat on the stone wall in front of the gallery watching Betsy Digby weed the flower border.

"Small the petunias. See that lady."

Fran gently touched an outsize violet specimen with the tip of her putter.

"Aren't they fragrant this morning?" Her enthusiasm was addressed to the top of an enormous hat in the hayfield yonder.

Betsy Digby's blue and white striped cotton dress ballooned as she sank back on her heels.

"They smell real nice, dearie Handsome now, aren't they, so big and ruffled. Time was when I wouldn't grow petunias, they're so — what's-it-calling." She chuckled. "Like some folks I know, only the flowers have long memory and the human's haven't. Comin' on to be a terrible hot day, I don't see how you can sit there without a hat. I'd be afraid of a sunstroke. Good you got in your pittin' an' I started weedin' early." She wiped her face with her sleeve. "Guess there won't be many visitors to the gallery today." Fran glanced at the watch on her wrist.

"Too early to tell yet. We do not open till nine-thirty. Not snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom of night stays our patrons from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

"Pity sake, dearie, what you runnin' on about?"

"I was adapting the inscription on the New York Post Office, which applies to mail carriers, to our clientele."

"You mentioned snow, rain, heat an' gloom of night—that was New York, guess it'd had been New England, they'd have to reckon with fog."

"Do you have much here?"

"Haven't you ever summered in Maine?"

"Just happens that this is my first season here."

"Then you haven't seen anything. Some years when fog rolls in it gets into the house and everything you touch is wet; it drips from eaves like rain; you can't see a house from the road and the lighted lamp in the foghorn keeps up a terrible muffled blaring, an' the bell buoy off in front there keeps a tolling."

"What a visitation! Does the fog demon give warning of his approach?"

Mrs. Betsy frowned at the horizon.

"Sure, when it's coming you can see a purplish back off there. Sometimes it's a false alarm, it drifts out to sea without landing. I've known summers when we haven't had a wisp of it. Must be terrible for the airplanes when it comes, though."

"They've found something to beat it that was used in wartime in England when airfields were fogged in. FIDO it is called."

"That's a dog's name."

"It stands for Fog—Intensive—Dispersal—Of."

"Does it now. Something to beat the fog, you said? Now I think of it, Myles and Nat gave the airfield some sort of equipment for fightin' fog as a memorial to the boys of our country who didn't come back. Amazing what folks are learnin' all the time. Instead of wishin' here moralizing I'd better pay attention to my knittin'."

Fran glanced at her watch again. She had ten minutes before it would be time to open the galleries. She could see the entrance and would dash for the house the moment she heard Henry Sargent's car— he had been on the job early and late since the breakin. This was the first chance she had had to really talk with Mrs. Digby since the terrific thunderstorm, days ago. When she had served the meals she had appeared to be in a hurry. Was she avoiding the subject? Did she know more of what had happened that day than Mr. Sargent suspected?

"How is Si Pond?"

Fran's question set Mrs. Betsy back on her heels. She pushed up the hat, started to wipe her hot face with her sleeves, substituted a large bandana handkerchief she took from the capacious pocket of her striped dress.

"This sure is goin' to be a sizzler. You askin' about Si Pond? Dearie, he's got us guessin'. Hasn't all how he keeps kinder peaked when he eats like a field horse, his wife, Martsy says. Won't set anybody, won't talk with nobody, an' him always talkin' his head off with folks—just sits chewin' gum Don't seem's though a bump could change him like that."

Had Henry Sargent imposed silence for fear of reprisal if a certain person— or persons — knew Si was talking of his accident?

"Have you heard how he acquired the bump, Mrs. Betsy?"

"Folks say a branch must have broken in the storm and knocked him off his bike when he was on his way here; he don't remember what happened."

"Could be. The wind was fierce enough to blow down a whole tree, to say nothing of a branch. You and Mr. Dig had your troubles that same day hadn't you? Have you discovered who sent a faked message that your mother-in-law was ill?"

"Not for certain, but we have our suspicions, Lem's havin' that call traced. I've been wanting to talk it over with Myles, but Lem said, 'Not yet. Wait till we're sure. We might be haled into court, if we're wrong.' He's been reading in the papers 'bout folks being sued for libel. We don't want to be defendants in that sort of mess."

"Have you thought of any reason why the person you suspect would try to get you away fro..a the gallery?"

"That's what stumps us. We came home the next noon expecting to find the place looted. Nothing gone, we could see. Do you know anything about it?"

There was a flash in the keen blue eyes after the quick question. Fran felt her cheeks redden.

"I see you do, dearie," Mrs. Betsy answered herself as Fran resumed weeding. "Lem and I aren't so dumb as Mr. Sargent thinks."

What do I say next, Fran wondered. Go all out for the name of the suspect? Ask Mrs. Digby if she did you think sent the message that Mr. Lem's mother was having one of her spells, please tell me, Mrs. Betsy?" she wheedled.

Mrs. Digby viciously plunged her towel around a stubborn root and considered.

"Don't know why I shouldn't," she conceded. "You look as if you could keep a secret—keeping one of your own, so close ; ou don't know it yourself—aren't you?" Laughter twinkled in her eyes as she looked up. "I don't mean by that you can't tell Myles what he's going to say. I want you to, then we'll know if he thinks Lem and I are crazy. Lean down. This breeze isn't strong but it could carry. We're sure it was—"

"Miss Phillips! Miss Phillips!"

The shout snapped Betsy Digby's lips shut with the name she had been about to whisper behind them.

"Mercy on us, what's happened? Fire?"

"No, the call to duty. I was so interested in what you were saying I forgot to watch the time—and the door; that will mean trouble plenty. Tell me the rest when you bring up my dinner, Mrs. Betsy. Don't let Lem frighten you dumb."

She dashed across the lawn, up the steps, dropped the putter on the porch and arrived a trifle breathless in the small gallery beside Henry Sargent, who in a Chinese-gray seersucker with dark red cummerbund and matching bow tie was standing before the Louis XV cabinet.

"Loot—" His voice failed him. He pointed.

Fran's eyes followed his index finger, saw nothing incredulously, came back to him.

"The missing enamel box," she said softly, "or am I just seeing things?"

He nodded, pulled at the soft collar of his white shirt as if that were cutting off his voice and nodded again.

"When did you discover it?" she whispered.

"When I came in five minutes ago." The answer was hoarse from excitement.

"I didn't hear you come."

"I know that. You and Betsy were gossiping by the stone wall. His voice increased in volume with his grievance. "I'm surprised that you would leave this place unguarded after what happened."

"Sorry, Mr. Sargent. From where I was sitting I could see and hear anyone approaching the gallery."

"Didn't see or hear me, did you?"

"No."

She couldn't tell him she had forgotten to look or listen in her eagerness to hear the name of the person the Digby's suspected had sent the faked message.

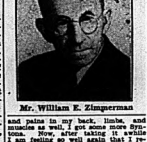
"Not that I think it was returned this morning, must have been in the night." To Fran's relief he had abandoned the subject of her neglect. "Except for time out to go home for lunch yesterday, I was here all day. I, Gene off a little before five, she was anxious to hear about until six and locked up."

"Did Gene go to Rocky Point with you at noon?"

"No, Betsy Digby served a lunch for her in your office."

"Does she know the box has been returned?"

You forget that Gene didn't know it was missing. She would not take time to check on the contents of the cabinet. She doesn't care what happens to my treasures. You'd think she would take more interest in what provides her bread and butter."



"This gallery takes care of the frills like marmalade and jam, and—plenty of each, doesn't it, lot of bread and butter?" In spite of being puzzled and disturbed Fran managed to keep her voice light in the hope of lifting the cloud of bitterness from his spirit. Gene's lack of interest in his pet project was an oft-told tale. She made no attempt to disguise her boredom at being obliged to spend summe. after summer at the same place because of what she called her father's senseless devotion to

The best proof of the wide satisfaction given by Syntona Herbal Compound is found in the reports of many users of same who have used it repeatedly. Many people have turned to Syntona time and again for relief from common disorders of the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels and say it has given the best results they ever had. "I have suffered from recurring stomach troubles for years with disagreeable, heartburn, gassy pains, and every time I got a cold it settled on my stomach. I found that I got the best relief from this trouble by taking Syntona. It cleared up the distressing symptoms and made me feel better for a long time.

"So recently when I began to have this trouble again accompanied by aches and pains in my back, limbs, and muscles and I also had some sore Syntona. Now, after taking it awhile I am feeling so well again that I recently put in a large garden which all my friends think quite a show for my age.

"I feel that I can thank Syntona for this and don't know how I'd get along without it."

COLUMBUS WAS RIGHT

HISTORY BOOKS ARE WRONG. Columbus was NOT trying to discover a new route to India. He WASN'T trying to prove that the earth was round.

This may come as a bitter disappointment to many, but the truth of the matter was that Columbus had been sailing the seas for years trying to deal off a broken-down tub called the Santa Maria. He had bought this relic years before at a used car lot called "Mad Man Manuel's", who guaranteed everything except that the boat would float.

And so Columbus set forth to look for a reliable car dealer (who had been in business for at least a couple of hundred years) that he might be able to deal in this refugee from a termite luncheon.

When the moment looked the blackest, Columbus finally caught sight of West End Motors through his spy glass. (Sure, Columbus came up the Bay of Quinte!)

"Gentlemen," he exclaimed. "Our troubles are over. I see where we can make a deal."

And sure enough, he found that the Santa Maria made a good down payment on a 1474 Durant, and the balance was spread over 18 months at $35.21 per month.

Incidentally, now you know why we call it WEST End Motors—Columbus called it "WEST End Motors."

You can discover West End Motors for yourself. They're easy to find, easy to talk to, and easy to deal with. It means SO much to them to have satisfied customers.

FIVE NOMINATED TO CONTEST MAYORALTY

U.N. Forces Drive to End Korean War

MacArthur Takes Personal Charge Of Drive to Yalu

Says Boys Can Go Home When They Reach River

Tokyo, Nov. 24. (AP)—A 100,000-man United Nations army drove forward on a broad front today in its all-out offensive to end the Korean war before Christmas. The first thrusts carried up to eight miles.

The attack is moving "according to schedule," Gen. MacArthur announced tonight 12 hours after flying to the northwest front to direct the all-out assault.

Elsewhere allied divisions forged ahead in a giant pincer movement.

The assault along the 80-mile northwest front was moving ahead against "stubborn but failing resistance," MacArthur said.

U. N. losses were "extraordinarily light."

The attack was in the frozen northwest, where Gen. MacArthur said new communist armies have built an estimated 100,000 North Korean and Chinese red troops. It came after a prolonged lull and rumors of peace.

The U.N. commander flew to the front in supreme air drive toward the Yalu river border of Manchuria. He added:

"Tell the boys when they reach the Yalu they are going home, we are not looking for any statement that they are going to eat Christmas dinner at home."

Later MacArthur flew over enemy lines and along the winding Yalu. Then he returned to Tokyo. He was escorted by jet fighters.

Combat troops of three Allied corps jumped off in freezing weather this morning along an 80-mile front. The U.S. 2nd and 25th Divisions and a U.N. marine brigade quickly moved up to take over a 25-mile sector in the middle of the line.

The advance, covered by Allied planes, met little opposition. There were gains also on the northeast Korean front. The northwest push began from a line 40 to 60 miles south of the Manchurian border.

A tank-led U.S. 24th Division Task force drove eight miles west on the road to Sinuiju, turnpike for Chinese communist armies in the extreme northwest. Sinuiju was in flames today, presumably from Allied air attacks. Over Sunan Airfield

The 24th Division reached Naechongchong, one of some roads it travelled four weeks ago to within 14 miles of the Manchurian border before Red counter-attacks forced its withdrawal.

On the right flank, two columns of the South Korean 1st Division marched unopposed on Tanchon, major communist supply road junction on highways leading to the Fusen hydro-electric development. The columns were seven miles south and southeast of Tanchon.

A 25th Division task force of the 24th Corps reported 26 American prisoner-of-war during a seven-mile advance north of Yongbong. Most of the prisoners were wounded and suffering from frost bite. The rescue was in the general area where Chinese reds released 27 other American prisoners two days ago.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Nov. 24—(CP)—Synopsis: The cold wave from the Prairies has pushed its way eastward to cover all central United States and eastward to the Great Lakes region. Arctic weather brought some spectacular drops in temperature. During the night at Toronto and Windsor the temperature dropped 16 degrees in the first two hours after the arrival of the cold air. At Fort Worth Texas the temperature dropped 40 degrees to the centre of a few hours on Thursday afternoon.

Temperatures in southwestern Ontario on Saturday morning are forecast to be 15 to 20 degrees lower than they have been at any time in the past week. Indications are for some moderation of the current cold wave on Sunday.

Govt. Has Not Set Pattern for Future Projects

London, Ont., Nov. 24 (CP) — Resources Minister Winters said Thursday the federal government has not set a pattern for future flood control projects in Canada by granting aid to the $3,000,000 Fanshawe dam here.

The government will consider each proposed project on its merits, he told 200 persons at a sod-turning ceremony.

Co-operation between the three levels of government — municipal, provincial and federal —was stressed in speeches by Mr. Winters, Premier Frost and Planning Minister Griesinger, of Ontario.

All three handled shovels in sharing the sod-turning chores with representatives of the city, township and county while bulldozers started to remove earth along the Thames River bed six miles north of here.

Mr. Winters reminded the gathering that Canada's natural resources were not expanding and "even if mankind has inherited the earth, he must not live too much on his capital."

Premier Frost said the necessity for curbing expenditure to prevent inflation and the troubled international situation now stood in the way of realizing to the full conservation plans.

Also in attendance were E. B. Phillips, leader of the CCF opposition in the Ontario Legislature, and Dr. J. Cameron Wilson, chairman of the Upper Thames Valley Conservation Authority which has charge of the dam building.

The project is being financed by the federal government, which agreed to pay 37 1-2 percent of the cost; the provincial government, 37 1-2 percent, and the Upper Thames Valley Conservation Authority, 25 percent.

CHINESE REDS ARRIVE FOR FIRST HEARING AT U.N.

Group Met by Russian Delegate Malik

By STANLEY JOHNSON

Lake Success, N.Y., Nov. 24—(AP)—A nine-member Chinese communist delegation arrived in New York today to press red China's charge of American aggression before the United Nations Security Council.

The group, which was met by Russian delegate Jacob A. Malik and representatives of iron curtain countries, refused to speak to reporters as it alighted from a British Overseas Airways plane. The Chinese arrived with the permission of the United States government, despite the fact that communist Chinese soldiers are fighting United States troops in Korea.

U.N. officials do not expect an immediate council meeting on the Peiping charges. Instead they look for several days of private conversations among the Chinese, Russians, British and Indians, and perhaps among other delegations.

Communist China's premier and foreign minister, Chou En-Lai, already has served notice that the delegation will not discuss Gen. MacArthur's charges that Chinese communists have intervened in the Korean war.

Chou accepted a council invitation, extended Sept. 29, to send a group here to argue his charges that aggression was committed when President Truman ordered the U.S. Seventh Fleet to protect Formosa.

But diplomats expect that the Peiping delegation will be called on to talk about—privately, if not in a council session— what their government is up to in Korea.

Rumors circulated in diplomatic circles yesterday that a disastrous red military development had been reached at the fighting front by which the Chinese would retire from the Korean battle in return for certain unspecified political gains.

There was no definite word, but the rumors gained credence from reports that the Chinese reds had released 27 wounded Americans who had been well treated during captivity. In press interviews the soldiers said the Chinese ordered the prisoners they did not want to fight the Americans.

Simultaneously the arrival of the Peiping delegation, the 60-member U.N. political committee today begins deliberations on Russian charges of American aggression against Formosa.

'HUMAN FAILURE' INDICATED CAUSE OF LONG IS. WRECK

Gov. Dewey Refers To Preliminary Probe

New York, Nov. 24. (AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York said today that preliminary evidence indicates "human failure" was the cause of the Thanksgiving-eve Long Island railroad wreck which took 77 lives.

Dewey, who cut short a vacation to look over the scene of the investigations of the wreck started today, made the statement after a meeting with the State Public Service Commission.

The governor spoke there were demands for quick action by National, State and City officials to put an end to the carnage on Long Island. It was the second major disaster in a year on the railroad.

Dewey said commission findings showed the express which plowed into the rear of a stalled train had passed through one warning signal and one stop signal at full speed of between 60 and 65 miles an hour.

The warning signal was 1 1-2 miles from the scene of the accident.

The toll stood today at 77 dead and 328 injured. Only three more victims still in hospitals, 75 of them in critical condition, appeared the death list would increase.

Dewey and Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri cut short post-election vacations and flew home.

Express Horror and Grief

Both expressed horror and grief over the crash of two crowded Long Island rail road commuter trains.

One electric train plowed into the rear of another, which was standing almost 25 miles from Times Square. With a deafening roar and a blinding flash from the third rail, the front and rear cars of the two 12-car trains telescoped.

Death and terror struck the 2,100 passengers, many of them crowded in the cars.

Vast rescue forces were on the scene minutes after the crash, but it was nine hours to get the last mangled body out of the sickening tangle of twisted steel.

The motorman of the second train was killed, and the cause of the accident still uncertain.

Wednesday night's rush - hour crash was the nine-hours of darkness disaster in seven years — killed more than twice as many persons as the Long Island rail road collision nine months ago at Rockville Centre.

Thirty-three were killed and 125 injured in the Feb. 17 head on collision at Rockville Centre — mile Centre — 10 miles east of the Thanksgiving - Eve wreck near New Canaan, Conn.

The second disaster on the bankrupt road touched off a rising tide of public indignation, which had not died down since the Rockville Centre tragedy.

Dewey ordered the State Public Service Commission to investigate the wreck and "the entire management of the railroad."

Mayor O'Dwyer of Brooklyn demanded "drastic action" to protect the people's 200,000 daily riders.

Before leaving Cuba, Impellitteri ordered appointment of a three-man city committee to investigate.

45 Are Proposed For Other Civic Posts at City Hall

Largest Nomination Assembly in Some Years

Five candidates for the office of mayor and a total of 32 persons, including one woman were nominated for council at an enthusiastic and well attended nomination meeting held this morning at the city hall council chamber.

Three candidates were nominated for the office of Public Utilities Commission while ten were nominated for school trustees. In all, 50 persons were nominated to run for the various public offices at the municipal elections on December 4th.

His Worship, H. Jack Allin will again contest the mayoralty with other nominees for the office of first magistrate being Alderman Dr. Richard T. Potter; Alderman Donald Thomas; Glencoe E. Thompson and J. J. Trudeau. Nominees have until Saturday evening at 9 o'clock to qualify.

All Aldermen Nominated

All members of city council who have served in office since this year, were again nominated, with seven aldermen to be elected establishing a precedent in this city one woman Mrs. Ethel McCabe, was nominated for a run for council. It is many years since a member of the fair sex had held the nomination for the post of an alderman, although this is not unusual for the Board of Education.

Chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, Joseph Bell, was well was nominated to again contest the position. Other nominees for the non-controversial office elected were Bertram Docter, and W. Harry Rollins.

Ten were nominated for school trustee with five to be elected. Mrs. A. C. Hicks, Board of Education whose terms expired this year, with the exception of W. A. Cowan, who is not nominated, while five others, including one woman, Dr. Lily B. Mathison, were also nominated.

Steady Stream

From the time nominations were declared open at 11 o'clock by City Clerk Wilfred Holmes until 12 noon a steady stream of nominations were received. As the meeting progressed, however, it was a slight flurry to get papers in.

There was no speech making by any of the aspiring candidates and when nominations were declared closed at noon the council chambers quickly emptied.

Several of the candidates lost no time in presenting their qualifications, apparently deciding to get the news over and be done with before they left the building.

Deny U.K. Will Forego Further Marshall Aid

London, Nov. 24. (Reuters)— A Treasury official today denied Ottawa report that Britain has decided to forego further Marshall Plan Aid rather than ease dollar trade restrictions.

The official said no such deal had ever been suggested by either side.

The United States had never offered to continue Marshall Aid if Britain would relax the restrictions, Britain had never offered to relax them if the United States would continue the aid.

The official said the position was simply that the United States and British governments were reviewing Britain's overall position, in an effort to reach agreement on what Britain's future aid needs are.

Informed officials said in Ottawa yesterday that Britain had decided to forego further aid rather than ease dollar trade restrictions. This, they said, was not expected to bring any worsening in Canada's export position but it would have been more favorable if Britain had taken a different course.

Churchill Tries to Solve Crisis Of Top Hat Shortage for Eton Boys

Harrow, England, Nov. 24 — (Reuters)—Winston Churchill has directed his powerful personality to the solution of a new crisis which now is (gently) rocking Britain: The shortage of top hats for Eton, the rival school.

Churchill addressed a gathering of members of his old school, Harrow, here last night and shed considerable tears for the boys of Eton's rival school.

"At present," he said, "they go about like shock-headed Peters. They have my deepest sympathy. The situation is desperate. Harrow "boater" was "very fine" because it kept off excessive sunshine and would also, on the whole, stand up to rain.

"But look at our friends from Eton," said Churchill, wringing his hands in anguish. "They have not been able to get hats at all."

The top hats they were accustomed to wear are made now? No wonder some old Etonian does not endow a factory to make top hats for them."

Series of Motor Accidents Due To Slippery Road

Slippery road conditions resulting from yesterday's light fall of snow were responsible Thursday afternoon for a series of motor accidents in the city with damage ranging all the way from dented fenders to smashed front ends and caved in auto bodies. Fortunately no personal injuries reported.

Despite slippery road conditions prevailing police did not report any highway accidents.

What may easily have been a serious accident occurred at mid-afternoon on Dundas Street, East, when a gasoline truck and a highway transport collided and effectively blocked street traffic until the two vehicles were moved.

A Texaco gasoline truck driven by Frederick Pirie, 214 George Street, was proceeding west when Charles Transport driven by William Doherty of Orillia jackknifed on the slippery pavement, the cab being struck by the gasoline truck.

Gas Spills Out

The force of the impact swung the transport cab sharply around to the left spinning one of the saddle tanks on the transport and allowing gasoline to run onto the pavement. The cab door was jammed tight and the driver had to wait for outside help before he could get out. Fortunately the spilled gasoline did not catch fire but firemen were called as a precautionary measure before the vehicles were moved.

Another accident on Highland Ave., saw a southbound car driven by C. W. Wheeler, 14 Burton Street, skid across the street into the path of a truck driven by Stephen Lawrence R.R. 1 Port Hope. Damage amounting to approximately $300 resulted to the Wheeler car.

Other mishaps occurring were not more serious than fender crashes with damage for the most part being under $100.

Redmen Ready To "Take on" Pete's Eagles

"This is the one we have to win," said Wally Bent as the Redmen trooped into the dressing room last night after a strenuous hour of practice at the arena. The Belleville squad meets the high-flying Peterborough Eagles at the ice igloo tonight. The Peterborough squad has yet to taste defeat in the group schedule but the locals think they have the answer to break the winning streak and also pull themselves up into contention for group honors.

There will be some changes made in the lineup but nothing startling is proposed. Two or three new men were out with a player from the Barrie Flyers looking the best. He is a defenseman and a good defence player is badly needed. Maurice LaForte will start in goal despite his injury in Kingston on Monday night. He will wear a special protection for his injured nose. Vern Goyer and Tim Williams will form one defence pair with Schreider and Schmidt spelling them off. Bent, Wardhaugh and Green will be the starting front line, while Jones, MacDonald and Hall will be another attacking force. The third line will be composed of Fred Graham, Jud Smart, Basteo will likely be the extra man.

Despite the loss in Kingston, the Redmen think that will be the last poor game they will play all season. Everything that the Nylons did was right, while the Redmen missed on every play but the coach has been busy all week perfecting a combination that they hope will here should be a different story to tell. The Eagles have been on a tough spot for this tussle and the fans will be missing a real good game if they stay away. The faceoff will be at 8.30 sharp.

MARMORA

Hunter Home With Thrilling Story of Hunt

Marmora—On his recent return from his annual hunting trip, Robert Meyer of Marmora, a bear story of the thrilling type. The Marmora hunter met up with a gang from Frankford, who were hunting at the wood camp on the Baker Road in Tudor township.

A member of that party recounted this experience to Bob as he is familiarly known as.

He was watching the runway and had kindled a small fire to keep himself warm and waiting to look over his right shoulder, he found that a large she bear with two cubs was about 40 feet to his rear.

Having his gun alongside him, he was not long in aiming at the bear and felled her. He then shot at one of the cubs which leaped a good four feet into the air. It commenced to squeal arousing its mother who rose to her feet and advanced toward the Frankford man in menacing attitude. She was only ten feet away when he fired the fatal shot.

In the meantime both cubs had disappeared. The carcass of the wounded cub was found two days later.

TEACHER'S TROUBLES

Palmerston, Ont. (CP)—Teacher Shirley D'Alton has a billygoat in her one-room country school near here. A few days ago she removed a herd of cows, and boys removed a group of fattening pigs. But the goat won't be driven away. He sleeps through most of the lessons.

BANCROFT

Education Costs Nearly Doubled In Four Years

Bancroft Educational costs in Bancroft have risen from $11,-638.94 in 1945 to $22,953.66 in 1949, stated Reeve Thyodore Tryon at the monthly meeting of Bancroft Home and School Association on Tuesday night. With the increased provincial grants though, the speaker showed that the net cost to the village taxpayers had decreased on account of the increased government grants.

In a speech packed with figures from the municipal audits of the village for the past five years, Mr. Tryon showed the Father's night audience how their educational tax dollars were spent. As a parent and a municipal officer, he stated that every dollar spent was worthwhile and that Ontario prided itself that it could boast of an educational system second to none in the world.

Bancroft appreciated all that the Province of Ontario had done stated the reeve. Using the modern village kindergarten room as an example, he showed how cleanliness and spotlessness in the school would be reflected in the homes. This recent improvement and others were made possible through how the province paid approximately 90 percent of the educational cost and the municipality about 10 percent.

As a practical gesture of citizenship and as an example to their children, the reeve, in his closing remarks, requested all his listeners to vote in the forthcoming civic election.

The musical portion of the program was a sing-song under the direction of Reg Blatherwick and Al Hewitt.

A social hour followed when refreshments were served.

US Thanksgiving Total Fatalities Record-Breaking

Chicago, Nov. 24—AP—The United States today counted a record-breaking number of accidental deaths for a Thanksgiving holiday.

A check of the Long Island railroad Thanksgiving eve, killing 77 persons, was the main factor in boosting the toll to a high over the holiday.

A survey showed the death toll of 188, surpassing last year's record high of 181.

Traffic accidents this year took the lives of 83 persons—as compared with a record 100 Thanksgiving day last year. In addition, there were 23 other fatalities listed under miscellaneous causes —shootings, fires, drownings and others.

The survey covered a period from 6 p. m. Wednesday to midnight Thursday, local time. It included only persons killed or dying of injuries suffered in accidents during those hours.

United States traffic deaths for the first nine months this year totalled 24,580—or 90 every 24 hours.

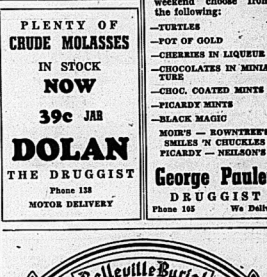
Reason for Motion For Divorce: How Chicken is Cooked

Detroit, Nov. 24—(Reuters)—Abraham Stanley gave one reason for wanting to divorce his wife.

"I like roast chicken but my wife gives me only cold boiled chicken."

An indignant judge refused Stanley's force petition.



"I have never known a case which was so lazy," snapped the judge. "To seriously put forward this matter (of roast chicken) seems utterly ridiculous to me."

London Exchange Cheered by Words Of MacArthur

London, Nov. 24. (Reuters)—The London Stock Exchange ended the week on a cheerful note with sentiment assisted by Gen. MacArthur's "end-the-war" attack in Korea.

Improvements were fairly widespread but were most marked in Far Eastern bonds. Leading industrials and commodity shares were slightly higher where changed.

In the foreign section gains of up to 2 1-2 points were shown by Japanese bonds and there were improvements of a half-point in Chinese issues. Canadian loans were fractionally higher where changed.

British funds improved by 1-16 and there were advances of a few points in many of the industrial groups. Hudson Bay shares were again outstanding.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 24—CP—Industrials turned mixed as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Following two days of strong gains to new high ground they opened firm but profit-taking started late yesterday, picked up speed to slow the board to a standstill. Papers, reversing shows and manufacturing companies showed a majority of gains in the closing groupings.

Base metals also turned mixed. Consolidated Smelters, Labrador, Quemont and Waite Amulet gained up to 25 cents, while Hudson Bay, International Nickel, Noranda and Steep Rock dipped up to 50 cents. Calgary was a feature, trading strongly for a 26-cent gain.

Golds were mixed and narrow. In the senior group, Dome, and Giant Yellowknife added fractions. Junior producers were fairly quiet.

Western oils advanced with small gains.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,647,000 shares.

Over-Falls Trip Off Until 1951

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 24 — (AP) — Lesley Sander, the New York City interior decorator who wants to go over Niagara Falls in a barrel, said last night that his trip is off until next spring or summer.

Cold weather and the incomplete fixing of the padded steel barrel were the reasons.

Sander, 37, said the purpose of the project still must was to bring attention to his hobby—the making of complicated models out of such things as toothpicks and matches.

NAME'S ORIGIN

The game of badminton was named after Badminton House, seat of the Duke of Beaufort in England.

Biggest Pipeline in World Will be Operating in Dec.

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 24—(AP)—Crude oil, life-blood of the modern age, will begin pulsing across the Arabian desert through the biggest pipeline in the world early in December, the Arabian-American oil (Aramco) says.

The first of what soon will be a daily flow of 3,000,000 barrels of oil a day is to push through the 31-inch steel pipeline, from Saudi Arabia through Jordan, Syria and Lebanon, into a tanker off the ancient Phoenician city of Sidon on Lebanon's Mediterranean shore.

No longer will it be necessary for slow ships to tote the "black gold" around the 7,000-mile route from the Persian gulf through the Suez Canal.

The trans-Arabian Pipeline Company (tapline), formed by Aramco to build and operate the pipeline, started construction at the Saudi Arabian end of the line in 1947. The project cost more than $250,000,000.

Arabian-American, owned by the Standard Oil Company of California, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Oil Company and Socony-Vacuum, has a long-term agreement with King Ibn Saud which gives it control of the rich oil fields in the Moslem king's country.

Step Up Production

With the help of the new pipeline, Arabian-American expects to step up its daily record rate of production from nearly 800,000 barrels to 900,000 barrels.

Trade sources say the United States navy gets more than 50 per cent of the company's output; most of the oil reaching Sidon is expected to go to western Europe.

Construction of the biggest line homes as oil production throughout the Middle East is soaring daily to new records. By the end of the year, the entire Middle East expects to surpass a daily output of 2,000,000 barrels daily—more than double the production of two years ago.

The biggest producer in the Middle East at present is the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, whose output in Iran is more than 700,000 barrels a day. But the American-controlled Persian Gulf oil fields have the biggest known reserves in the world. In Kuwait—with its resultant new orders and stockpiling is credited with a 25 per cent increase in Middle East oil sales since last Spring. Current production is valued at nearly $3,400,000 a day at Persian Gulf F.O.B. prices.

Canadian Destroyers in Korea Will Not be Home For Christmas

Ottawa, Nov. 24—(CP)—Canada's three destroyers in Korean waters won't be home for Christmas, but their officers and men will sit down to yuletide turkey dinners just the same.

Christmas dinner aboard the destroyers will consist of soup, turkey with all the trimmings, pickles, pumpkin pie, ice cream and candy.

The 300 officers and men will have their own personal Christmas boxes, Arrangements have been made to get Christmas parcels and mail for the three ships flownyet

Bomber Fans All Keyed Up On Arrival

Toronto, Nov. 24 CP—Brimming with confidence, some 420 football fans from Winnipeg hit Toronto today chanting, to the tune of "John Brown's Body," "We are Going to Win the Grey Cup."

Another 500 are due tomorrow to root for their line Bombers when they take Toronto Argonauts in the east-west football classic.

Some of today's arrivals were still looking for tickets, reporting that a scalper who boarded the train at Sudbury asked $50 a pair.

Frank Hannibal, past president of the Blue Bombers, reflected the general feeling of confidence: "We've got a good club and you can say goodbye to the Grey Cup. This team of ours is undoubtedly the greatest to come out of the west."

They'll probably get the hard field. The weatherman forecast a low of five degrees for tonight.

Secession Meeting Attended by 32 In Sub-Zero Cold

Fort William, Nov. 24 — (CP) —Thirty-two persons braved sub-zero temperatures last night to continue a secession campaign for the part of Ontario north and west of Sault Ste. Marie.

Political patronage was charged against the Toronto seat of provincial government by four speakers, including Ald. J. J. Spooner who heads the Secession movement.

The new province would be called Aurora, the meeting was told.

Toronto is "sitting smugly oft the taxes we pay," members of the group said.

Hubert Limbrick, tourist camp operator, said the federal government let a prairie pipeline be diverted from a lakehead terminal then "tried to satisfy us with an 'Ithanks for the crumbs," he said of the tanker, launched Saturday at adjacent Port Arthur.

Acclamations At Bancroft

Bancroft — (Special) — Nominations for reeveship and councillors in Faraday township this morning showed just enough to fill the posts for 1951.

20-Year-Old Youth is Held, Second Sought

Detroit, Nov. 24 (CP) —Police are holding a 20-year-old Detroit youth and are seeking a second youth in connection with the Monday night shooting in London, Ont., of Clare Galbraith, 30-year-old Public Utilities worker. Galbraith died Wednesday from a bullet in his stomach.

Russell J. Bechard was arrested at his home here yesterday. Police said they are now seeking Walter E. Rowe, 20, who lives with Bechard. Both are employees of the Chrysler Corporation here.

Detective Martin Blank of the Detroit Police said Bechard confessed that he and Rowe were the two men involved in the shooting of Galbraith at a London service station. Blank said Rowe's union card was found at the scene of the shooting by London police.

Police said is reported to have said that his companion did the shooting.

The detective said Bechard admitted he and Rowe took three automatic pistols and a revolver in a Windsor home after tying up Mrs. Trevelyn Brown and then hired a taxi to take them to London.

The driver, John Jolly of Windsor, said they gave a London address which he did not know and he pulled into a service station to ask the way. He became suspicious when he found there was no such address, and tried to call police.

One of the men then pulled a gun and ordered them into the station, where the gunmen fired a shot at him. He missed and left Galbraith, instead.

Bechard is reported to have signed extradition waivers this morning and will be turned over to Windsor police sometime today

Early Start Will Be Made on Generating Station

Toronto, Nov. 24. (CP)—The Ontario Government is expected soon to approve plans for an early start on the first of a series of new hydro developments at Niagara Falls.

Hydro chairman, Robert H. Saunders said today the matter will be considered before the Cabinet within a day or two, with a possibility that the go-ahead will be given Monday.

Earlier this week, it was learned the Hydro Commission authorized an early start in the St. Lawrence River power development station No. 2 at an estimated cost of $157,000,000. The station, named after the "father" of Ontario hydro, will be part of hydro developments on both the Canadian and U.S. sides of the Niagara river.

Authority for the necessary increased water diversion was given the Ontario Hydro and the New York State power authority in an agreement reached this year by the federal governments of each country.

Meanwhile, the Ontario Commission is proceeding with the establishment of camps for construction workers to be based at Niagara Falls. Mr. Saunders said this work is well under way, with bunkhouses and other camp buildings being brought from other hydro developments in Northern Ontario and on the Ottawa river.

New Rates of Pay For Services Are Considered

Fort Lewis, Wash., Nov. 24 (CP) — Defence Minister Claxton said yesterday new rates of pay for Canada's armed services are under "active consideration" in Ottawa.

Men of Canada's Special Brigade formed for service in Korea or elsewhere, seek pay increases and allowances equal to those Wednesday, Claxton has been questioned closely on the question by officers and men here.

Special Brigade units in training here have been granted special allowances of $41.50 monthly for officers and $27.50 for other ranks to compensate for the difference in prices between the United States and Canada. But the men lose the allowance when they go to Korea.

Claxton said yesterday the Fort Lewis bonus was set up to "correct the inequities and things that soldiers have to get here." Asked whether some form of incentive for overseas duty might be paid, he said:

"We are against that sort of thing during the war. It certainly remains to be seen whether there could be anything like it."

A trained private in the Special Brigade receives a basic pay of $70 a month and subsistence allowance of $30. If married, he receives an additional $30.

A YOUNG WHEAT KING

Boyhood and youth across Canada must have opened its eyes and ears with the coming of the news that a twelve-year-old boy had won the world championship with his Marquis wheat shown at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

Such a victory for one so young in years cannot fail to have an influence for good upon the boys of Canada, especially those lads who are privileged to have been born and raised on farms which produce the wherewithal with which all of us, young, middle aged and old, find it possible to subsist.

To find a boy so young in years so deeply interested in agriculture, the oldest industry which was developed by man, speaks well for the ideals that are planted or develop in the minds of the boys and girls of this great agricultural country.

What Ricky Sharp has done will inspire others of his own age, his elders and especially those who are his juniors.

Ricky has achieved a triumph in being the first boy to bring so great an honor to boyhood in this land of opportunity in farming in all its branches and in fact to those who are looking forward to a lifework in any of the many occupations or callings open to bright boys and girls.

TRAGEDY

For many life has been made sad as they think of the two railroad tragedies which have claimed this week so heavy a toll in human life, one the accident in the Rockies in Alberta and the other the disaster which struck down between seventy and eighty persons in a collision of commuter trains in Kew Gardens, New York City. This tragedy was rendered the more poignant by the fact that it occurred on the eve of the Thanksgiving Day and many aboard the trains were travelling homeward for the American holiday.

Grief is rendered poignant in view of the conditions under which these fatalities occurred to Canadian soldiers and to American holidayers.

This continent and other parts of the globe feel the shock of such disasters. People the world over have not recovered from the shock of the record loss of so many pilgrims bound from Rome to their homes in Canada and making the trip by airplane.

FIRST TOUCH OF WINTER

However accustomed to past winters and snow one may be, the first real touch of the winter and the fall of snow rather strike with surprise because it is a new condition which is when, women and children are suddenly brought to face and to which they must acclimatize themselves.

But that mood does not last for the young especially, the middle aged and even the older people become accustomed to the situation and soon the winter appears normal. It is the first cold touch that makes felt the change in conditions of weather from what has been familiar for the past months, to the cold Arctic aspect of winter.

Now having experienced snow the first shock is over and the remaining weeks and months of the cold season will be borne with more or less appreciation that snow and cold are two facts of life which have to be noticed during the period from November to April.

"MR. RAMSHAW"

A $12 visitor from Britain just arrived in Canada, aims a "fly high" during his forthcoming Canadian tour. He is Alden eagle "Mr. Ramshaw" — the first ever to be trained falconry — and he made the Transatlantic crossing on the Cunard White Star liner Media on a $12 ticket with his owner, Captain Charles W. R. Knight.

Mr. Ramshaw and Captain Knight are off on a seven months' lecture tour of Canada and the U.S.A. Captain Knight will lecture on "Rural England," using a color-film which he and Mr. Ramshaw play leading parts.

During lectures, Mr. Ramshaw will be allowed to fly right over the heads of audience, and give "practical demonstrations of his sagacity."

This is the pair's 21st Transatlantic crossing. On a previous visit to New York, Mr. Ramshaw flew over the Empire State Building and despite his 6-foot wing span, picked no bigger than a pigeon.

Mr. Ramshaw got his odd name 22 years ago when eight-first took him home to show him to 3-year-old Jean Knight. She insisted that the eagle resembled her nurse as Ramshaw of whom she was a bit afraid.

THE OLD BASEBURNER

here was a stove we fed with coal,
Windowed with little mica squares
Formed with many a metal scroll.
Nearby were dad's and mother's chairs,
At stove gave out, it seems to me, warmth we could both feel and see.

had a rail around its beam,
Where coming from the snow-lined street
ntantment, stamped upon his face,
My father used to warm his feet,
d always at the close of day:
'good to be at home," he'd say.

Such stoves to furnaces gave way,
Their little windows glowed no more.
We'd bartered charm and space, I'd say
When registers broke every floor.
We drew the warmth from fire below,
But lost its cheery, friendly glow.

I do not view with grim alarm
The modern methods that we learn
Nor to that old baseburner's charm
When winter comes would I return.
But it was pleasant, I repeat,
To watch my father "warm his feet."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Nov. 24, 1930

Seven men have been nominated to run in the mayoralty campaign this year — George A. Reid, Gilbert H. French, Frank R. Wiltsie, George O. Tice, Wm. A. Woodley, C. L. Young and G. A. Bensey.

Searchers are anxiously scanning the shore lines and grappling operations are being carried on for the body of Charles Biddell, 16-year-old youth of Bloomfield, who disappeared into the cold depths of Lake Ontario three days ago. Biddell, who had gone out into the lake to set fish nets with a companion, Wm. Aitken, was a nephew of Chief of Police Biddell of Picton, and had been attending high school there.

Nov. 24, 1920

Mr. G. A. Bennett, who recently resigned his position as superintendent of the Public Anne Quarries, Limited, to accept a position in Montreal, was the guest of honor at the luncheon of the Belleville Rotary Club of which he is an honored member. Much regret was expressed at the departure of Mr. Bennett from the city.

The members of the G. W. V. A. are preparing for the annual Christmas tree for the children of soldiers. The Christmas entertainment will be held in Griffin's Theatre.

Mr. John Elliott of this city was elected president of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce.

The collections of the Penny Bay Road for the month of November amounted to $146.46.

40 YEARS AGO

Nov. 24, 1910

Dr. Harper, ex-Mayor of Meaford Village, has left for the Old Country where he will take a post graduate course in London and Edinburgh hospitals.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Real Property Owners' Association which was held in the police courtroom in the city building and the following officers were elected: president, Col. S. B. Lazier; first vice president, H. Corby; second vice president, Fred H. Leighton; secretary, F. Wills, K. C.; treasurer, Peter McL. Forin; executive committee — Messrs. George Wallbridge, J. Caldwell, James Roy, C. J. Bowell, Richard Arnott, William J. Hudson, P. J. Wims, J. J. B. Flint, W. B. Riggs and Dr. Clinton.

Mr. H. H. Gildersleeve, manager of the Lake Ontario and Bay of Quinte Navigation Company, will probably buy a large new steamer to operate on the Bay of Quinte route next summer.

A movement is on foot to reorganize the local hockey team. A committee has been formed to interview Mr. Sewell, and learn what terms can be made regarding the use of the skating rink.

OUR TOWN

THE CAMP LIFE

Life in the trailer camps is really quite interesting. For those of you who may contemplating trying it out a some future date, here are a few notes that might be of value:

Most of the camps — or "villages" as they call themselves — charge a flat rate of a dollar a day for the transient trade. All the year rates are long term rates ranging from $12 a month to $30 a month. For this the trailer-owner gets electricity and water, a hook-up for drainage, showers and rest-rooms.

Some of the trailer parks in Florida and Southern California are quite fancy, have club houses, swimming pools, individual patios, gardens for each trailer. One in Miami advertises an Olympic polo field. The ritzier places have a "no children" rule.

You start making friends the moment you hit camp because of the age-old song, "birds of a feather, flocking together." There's nearly always a small delegation to approach a new arrival and give him your technique in getting the caravan attached, level and levelled up. Always reminds me of bringing a small boat alongside a wharf. You get the same kind of critical audience and the same kind of volunteers who let it be understood that they are old hands at docking, they are the voice of experience.

This task completed, there then ensues a conversation about road conditions, trailer equipment and the relative merits of camps throughout America. Somebody always has a pot of coffee on and beer. The kids have found playmates their own age. Right away you have that warm feeling of belonging.

You meet a lot of interesting people of widely different types in these camps.

The permanent residents are usually young couples with small families who have bought a trailer on wheels because they could get no other kind. The extent of their travelling has been from the trailer sales lot to the court. Most trailers nowadays are built for the hiking of them on to 40 feet in length. Because they're exposed to so many treacherous winds people usually get the wander bug and talk of buying a smaller job and hitching the open road when they get that elusive nest-egg.

Then there are families who move from town to town throughout the nation, following work, and, when it's possible the sun. A lot of the men are construction workers who move from one big job to another. Then there are the wife and the wife's sister visiting with them as a temporary guest, and the trailer, therefore, seemed to be having the time of their lives.

Another type of trailer dweller is the old retired couple whose children are grown and gone. A large proportion are older people who come from California, spend a few months in the Southern California coast, winters in Florida.

Then there's the professional traveller, and I suppose we fit into this category. A great many show people live in trailers, and spend the whole year in trailers. In Ottawa, our neighbors were members of the Ice Capades, Sonja Henie and Ken Maynard, the old-time cowboy star, and there's a constant passing alongside a family of high-wire trapeze artists and several professional dog trainers.

A great many travelling salesmen, too, have exchanged the old car and sample trunk routine for farmers' daughters for a rolling home complete with wife and kids. Also a considerable number of the old-style gypsies who are still on the road, selling formulas, working in carnivals and otherwise making a buck as best they can. Usually the last word in the caravans, but stick to their old traditional costumes of bright silk and heavy costume jewelry.

Those trailerites who live permanently in camps located in great pains to make their places homey. They build small picket fences around their property; some have elaborate gardens with flagstone walks and fish ponds; some have an extra room — or cabana — flush with the trailer and painted its color.

Really its remarkable what an imaginative woman can do with a box eight feet across and 20 or 30 feet in length.

In Phoenix, most of the permanent trailers have air conditioning and, of course, the inevitable TV set. The reason to which these people go to make a home of what is really a large packing box is quite touching. I suppose it's a way of compensating for the home of their own which most of them dream about.

There's a community spirit in trailer camps that you rarely find in suburban life. Many of the camps have community recreation rooms. The women gather together in the laundry rooms about the twenty-five cents-per-half-hour Bendix machines.

In New Orleans on Hallowe'en the whole camp had a party for the kids, followed by a bingo session for the adults. In El Paso, a weekly feature was a typical wienie roast at which any visiting jam contributed to the fun.

You find a very earthly and unboriness that is refreshing and with no real class barriers. A good example of this occurred in Winnipeg. A family of four were left stranded from a carnival show on the doorstep of the trailer camp. In no time at all a small tent was found and erected, the kettle was boiling over a borrowed Coleman stove and dishes and bedding were scrounged. The camp then took up a collection to help the family get back to their home.

We've run into quite a few families who would like to buy a trailer life for a home life. A young couple in Raleigh, North Carolina, for instance, have dreamed of a home of their own during the war. When they actually got it, they discovered that found themselves wishing they were back in their caravan and missing that life.

The wife said she got so used to comparing and the two-room residence of housework in the trailer that the cottage seemed endless. "It's much more work, cramped snug and more home-like," she said. Husband said they were much more comfortable in them in a house and what's more he liked to have that footloose feeling. Just hop, skip and jump and move any time they wished.

The old folks from California are of exactly the opposite of how this life breeds a restlessness and an inability to settle down when following the birds, they could never be happy again without a home to which to go.

It really is astonishing how much this way of life has taken a hold. The Sales Driving westward across the south, we've passed as many as 60 and 70 in a day, mostly oldsters hauling their little homes down to the warmth of Miami.

MacKenzie's Column:
Officials Ready To Talk Turkey With Chinese Reds

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

(Associated Press News Analyst)

We are told that the great offensive launched by Gen. MacArthur with the United Nations forces in northwest Korea is aimed at ending the war.

Achievement of that goal would in itself be a wonderful climax to a terrible war — a war-weary world. But it strikes me that a great deal more than that is at result even more important.

If the final phase of the conflict can be confined to Korean territory south of the Manchurian border, that might eliminate the danger of war between communist China and the United States. We'd be on the basis of convincing a suspicious China that the U. S. has no designs on Manchuria.

Grave Development

One of the gravest developments which could grow out of the Korean situation would be a war between China and the United States, which China does not want and certainly would be a development. A military victory would not leave her with a political black eye in Asia, and thus she would lose ever if she won.

However, Washington officials have indicated that they are ready to "talk turkey" with the Chinese communists, and might even bargain for a settlement. For instance, that buffer zones on both sides of the Korean-Manchurian border might be arranged.

China has kept her designs much to herself. There is no indication that she wants an all-out war with the United States. Without doubt she is working in partnership with Moscow, but there is a great deal of mystery. Gen. Mao, the red China leader, would allow himself to be pushed into a major war which he didn't want.

FIREMEN SEEK RAISE

Hamilton, Nov. 24 — (CP) — Firemen here advised Board of Control in a letter Thursday they will seek a general raise of $5 a week in 1951. The firemen, members of Local 288 Hamilton firefighters, have not yet reached an agreement with the city on their 1950 demands for equal pay with local police. The dispute now is before a board of arbitration.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When you here somebody furiously honking their car horn behind you as you drive along, and you look in the mirror, find and an instant sense of anger swells you up?

How do you know that your transmission is not on fire, and that flames and smoke are not pouring out from under your car? Why does it never occur to you that possibly some little child has been sitting on your fan-tailing home when you last drove off and there the child clings in peril while some good-hearted fool, full of fellow driver, behind you, is madly signalling you take heed?

Well, the answer probably is that 999,999 times out of a million, the character behind you horn behind you is merely hooting you to get the heck out of his way.

Car horn tooters come in two categories: the excessively arrogant, and the excessively humble.

The arrogant ones usually give you the impression that they wish you to pull over to the kerb, get out, and lie down and die, first a parking space and nip into it, in order to let them pass. If there is bicycle ahead of you, and you slacken speed until you can safely dodge around it, you as fate one of the arrogant ones will whoosh up behind you and blast. The same if you are paying respects to an old lady, a child or a dog crossing the road.

The excessively humble type of tooter is the one who creeps up and wishes to be perfectly sure you know he or she is about to pass you, but give one tout to catch your attention. Then they give another modest toot to indicate the operation is about to begin. Half way through the job of passing they give you another toot, to make absolutely certain you are not left in ignorance of the delicate manoeuvre that is in progress.

Bhat all tooters!

CREATION — NOT CHANCE

In certain medieval glass paintings, there are parts so minute that they can scarcely be seen except under a magnifying glass. Yet when examined they are found to be as perfectly designed and executed as are the perfectly visible parts.

One's first introduction to a microscope is a revealing experience. But if one believes that the microscope is a marvelous instrument his mind is the new electronic microscope. Scientists believe that this marvelous instrument may introduce us to hitherto undreamed of discoveries.

As we examine nature in its different phases, we are amazed by the order, precision, and beauty of design, whether the object examined is the planet or the smallest particle seen through the electronic microscope. All life appears to be one. The universe was not made in sections. The mathematical formula of probability renders absurd the contention that the universe took on its present form by chance. There is too much design in it for anyone to believe this sort of thing.

The biblical doctrine of creation still maintains its place of supreme authority in the thinking of most men, including the scientists. "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth."

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis, or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to questions not conforming to instructions. Address: Dr. William Brady, 185 North Wabash Ave., Chicago 1, Ill.)

BRADY'S TEN THOUSAND ASSISTANTS

I am now a grandmother, writes Mrs. G. When my own children were little I began reading your columns through the present generation may not realize it yet, nevertheless they are Brady babies. I used to quote you to our family doctor—probably I irked him but he always said you were all right. Once when he came to deliver a baby he looked around and asked: "Where is Brady? I am only the assistant." Our thanks for all the help you have given us through the years. (Mrs. M. J., R. S.)

In the United States, Canada, the West Indies, Colombia, Venezuela, Norway, Guatemala, Shadan and Texas there are some ten thousand such assistants, and to say that they are all irked when patients cite my teachings is putting it mildly.

Take for instance the reaction you get when you speak of what you manage to swallow your awe of the staff specialist and ask whether a major character defect may not be permitted to attend the birth of his own child. Boy, does the "specialist" slap your ears back! Do the "authorities" in the lying-in institution back up the "specialist" in this plot to alienate the affections of the woman who bears your baby!

Isn't it about time for the prospective father to grow up and have a home fit for a child to live in? It is the home of the husband and wife to live in it is not fit for babies to be born into the world, and I challenge contradiction of the statement, that any home fit to live in is healthier than any hospital for childbirth.

Last Mr. and Mrs. Winkle of Wisecare utter the usual remark about lack of hospital facilities for expectant fathers, continues. I add that home is the best and safest place to have a baby, complications or not. The official statistics of course include all emergencies or complications.

Hospital "authorities" and doctors who today are making such quaint rules excluding the husband from the delivery room may as well resign themselves to the inevitable. There are going to be some radical changes in these arbitrary and unwarranted hospital "rules." Already in numerous hospitals reform is already under way.

Instead of trying to separate husband and wife at the most sacred moment of life, the well-conducted hospital or lying-in institution is now inviting and urging the husband to remain at his wife's side, where a real man should be, throughout the miracle.

Support of the patient during labor is provided by the physician, the nurse, other attendants and the patient's husband, so that she retains confidence in her ability to see the physiologic challenge through to a successful conclusion. The important feature of natural childbirth is that the patient is conscious at the time the baby is born and she can hear the baby's first cry. However, analgesia (relief of pain) is not denied the patient. These statements are quoted almost verbatim from Training for Childbirth, by Herbert Thoms, M.D., a professor of obstetrics in Yale, published by McGraw-Hill Book Co., N.Y. City.

Childbirth Without Fear, by Grantly Dick Read, M.D., published by Harper & Bros., New York City, should be required reading for every prospective mother and her husband.

Dr. Thom's book costs $3, Dr. Read's cost $2.75, and Dr. Brady's Preparing for Maternity, which book prospective parents should read together, is available on written request. If you include twenty cents you should stamped self-addressed envelope.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ATTAINMENT

All of us have had dreams—and most of us continue our association with them! For, after all, are not dreams the father of all achievements? These marvelous inventions we have given to modern life its comforts and enjoyments were but dreams a few years ago.

Reading in that interesting book, by the late Logan Pearsall Smith, "Reminiscences," the retelling of the years of his childhood, he remarked: "I became vaguely aware of the fact that indeed as a thing of value in itself, and as bestowing a kind of distinction upon those who possess it, one thing is more precious in some mysterious way than all the rest—the single-killer which had hitherto been my ambition and my dream."

It is that very distinction, created out of the substance of ourselves, that puts meaning into our lives and enables us to gain the sort of Culture that makes us companionable to ourselves, and to others. We have sought to be too proud to be a mere imitator, a drone, or a parasite. There are many kinds of spiritual heights, toward whose attainment, no mere monetary or material aims can compete.

Admiral Peary gained personal satisfaction in his discovery of the North Pole, divorced from all other considerations. He had attained his life dream! He had achieved something at the time that no other human being had. And that is how, with a little, sometime, under the most trying of circumstances, the attainment gave him the greatest pleasure, which was all he asked in return.

We cannot be too particular about the sources of satisfaction to ourselves. Shakespeare put it clearly in that famous line of his: "To thine own self be true, and it must follow, as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man".

Who is there among us wise, or good enough, to judge another upon another? What do we know about the hidden beauty, or the concealed ugliness that all attainment in life's nurtured."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

The Things That Money Might Say

By ROY L. SMITH

There is an old proverb to the effect that "money talks". That being the case it might be well to ask what it says.

To some people, of course, about all it ever says is "good-bye", but to others it has a more cheerful word. The shocking thing to discover, however, is that it talks behind our back.

The Root Of All Evil

Some of those who have misread the scriptures have declared that the Bible says "money is the root of all evil". The Bible says no such thing. It does say that "the love of money is the root of all evil", but that is something entirely different.

The love of money which makes a man indifferent to all other values is a terrible thing. To blind a man, made in the image of God, to beauty, justice, brotherhood, and virtue is the greatest of tragedies.

Money Is Innocent

The same dollar which is used to corrupt an officer of the government could be used to train a youth in honest service on behalf of the state. That dollar which bribes can also be used to beautify. The fault does not lie with the dollar, but with the spender.

Two rich men in one city had enjoyed about the same prosperity. Each had about the same ability to give. One of them, a man with a sense of public responsibility, made a gift of $55,000 to build a club house for street boys where they could come in off the street and be trained in good citizenship. The other, a man without a sense of stewardship, spent almost the same amount of money on a private train and a big party. The dollars in each case were innocent; they only accepted different marching orders.

Our Money Talks About Us

It is a fact which a good many people ignore, that the money we spend talks about us. The car we could not afford, the fur coat bought for display purposes, the expensive dinners eaten at show places, and a long list of expenditures, all make their comments to the neighbors.

The money which we hold while we shut our ears to the cries of distress which issue from our neighborhood, also has a way of saying uncomplimentary things about us.

The Sunday school lesson for Nov. 26: "The Stewardship of Money", Psalm 50:10-12; Proverbs 3:5-9; Mark 12:38-44; I Corinthians 16:1-5; II Corinthians 9:1-8; Philippians 4:10-20.

The money we give to the community chest compares notes with our expenditures for entertainment, and expresses its opinion about us. The quarter we drop as a tip into the hands of the waitress and the quarter we drop as a sanctified tip into the church collection plate—both these quarters go out and talk about us.

The money we spend in an effort to make a good appearance, and the little we invest in the culture of our own minds and souls, have a strange and disconcerting habit of telling on us.

Don't Blame a Man's Money

It is not fair to accuse a man's money with being the cause of his downfall. The same funds he spends on his debauchery would be perfectly willing to labor at worthy causes on his behalf if they had a chance. The dollars one squanders on drunkenness could provide one with a liberal education—would be glad to do so, in fact, if they had a fair chance.

It is not the money that chooses its own highway. It is the man who handles the dollars who directs them up hill or down.

The individual who has never grown up, and who has never learned to treat a dollar with respect, is responsible for the misbehavior of his fortune, whether that fortune be large or small.

We Have a Stewardship

It is one of the fundamental doctrines of Christianity that every man lives under a strict stewardship for the use of his money.

It is not the rich man who is the stingy man. The lighiwad may be earning no more than $20.00 per week, and the liberal man may be paid even less. It is not the amount of money we handle, but the attitude we take toward any money we handle.

To live alongside of need, and to have the ability and the power to relieve that need, constitutes a Christian's obligation to do something about the situation.

To be able to give, and to know about distress, is all the real Christian can ask for in the way of divine guidance.

Orthodox in theology is a desirable thing, but a fearless stewardship of one's possessions is one of the basic tests of a true follower of the Son of God.

Money has a way of doing things to us. Rightly handled and managed it can prove a blessing. Mismanaged, it can be a curse.

It does not depend upon the money, but it rests with each individual. What we do with the money determines what our money does to us. We have a stewardship of our own soul, in which the use we make of our possessions becomes one of the determining factors of our salvation.

Says Money Cause of Most Trouble in Married Life

Winnipeg (CP) — The love of money isn't only the root of all evil—it's also the chief cause of marital grief, according to Rev. J. Burton Thomas.

There's not much chance of a successful marriage unless a wife is "unfailingly accurate by and completely" aware of her husband's financial position, he told a young couples' marriage-guidance class.

He said the family "budget should be planned to give each partner some personal money, "even if it means only an extra two-bits a month to spend".

Despite all the talk about sex, more trouble had been caused in marriages by money problems.

Mr. Thomas' talk was called "A Minister Looks At Marriage". He said the path of "most disastrous consequences" for young folk was to choose the wrong life partner.

"If there is to be any guarantee of happiness or success, the choice must involve a third person, God, who must always be consulted," he said.

First guide-post to a happy marriage was: "Caution before you leap".

"Too many young people are grabbing the first thing that comes along, just like in a cafeteria, and having to pay for it afterwards," he said, "and love and staying in love were vastly different. Basic problems must be met before marriage which is "an institution, not a reformatory".

Must Look Ahead

Love brushed aside barriers and by-passed problems. Critical judgment was often dulled until it was too late.

"When sex attractions come in the door, reason and judgment go out the window."

After the supper, a varied program was presented by the following artists, Mrs. Earl Gray, instrumental; Miss Joan Vance, solo with guitar accompaniment. Plainfield orchestra, Mr. and Mrs. Kerr and Mrs. H. Harrison, musical numbers, and Mr. Garth McCreary, a solo.

Short addresses were given by the chairman, Rev. A. Campbell and Rev. L. A. Page and Mr. H. Harrison.

The bazaar table with its many and varied items found ready buyers.

Music in Plants is Modern Touch for Pottery Centre

The writer of the following was one of a party of Canadian newspaper women who toured British industrial areas as guests of Britain's Board of Exports Board and Canada's Dollar-Sterling Trade Board.

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Stoke-on-Trent, England (CP) Most of the children who were yelling "a penny for Guy Fawkes" have got a shilling. How practical can you be in a town where history stalks the cobble-stoned streets?

How can you stay clear of sentiment when the brick kilns of some 150 pot banks are silhouetted like giant champagne bottles against an evening sky?

Stoke is a city of some 270,000 composed of six small towns. In and about are massive piles heaped with the refuse of more than two centuries of pottery-making.

The soot from the kilns has left its mark on the grey stone dwellings of the workers. But crisp white curtains flutter at the windows and they say the smoke nuisance has been cut considerably in the last few years.

Up-to-date equipment has been installed in the plants, and good working conditions generally prevail. There are many women employees doing such skilled jobs as painting the designs on plates. At Wedgwood they prepare the raised ornamentation for the china—a craft introduced by Wedgwood in the 18th century.

Music In Factories

In some cases the women work against a background of music, a feature common to many British factories. Manufacturers feel music keeps their employees happy in their work and also speeds up production.

Hand-work remains all-important in china manufacture.

A cup—whether semi-porcelain or bone china — must have its handle put on individually, its design either painted or stamped by hand.

"Every piece goes through 30 hands before you get it," said Bill Hoare of Johnson Brothers. "So you see its difficult to turn them out like sausages."

Then there are the "firings"—trips into the furnaces — which may total as many as five before the color is fixed.

In addition skilled labor is hard to come by. There aren't many women who can grab a handle on a cup as swiftly as Mrs. O. Smith who has been doing the same job in one of the plants for the last 12 years.

Some of the firms have imported skilled help. In one of the Johnson plants Italian girls are working. There also is a lone Canadian, Adam Russell of Hamilton, Ont., who "polishes", one of the final processes through which the dishes must go.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her husband deserted her—now another wants her. She vies with

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What would you think of a man who walked out of his eleven years ago, but paid a lot of attention to me, but at that time I didn't like him.

Well, now the situation is reversed, and he doesn't pay any attention to me. A few months ago I told one of his best friends how much I like him, with the idea in mind that he would go back and tell this fellow. That didn't seem to work, though, because he still doesn't pay any attention to me.

Did I do wrong to tell his friend what I did, and what can I do to get his interest again? I am getting very disgusted waiting for him to wake up to the fact I am in love with him.

J. F. D.

Dear J. F. D.:

Why wait? Why not just accept the fact that this man's interest in you isn't likely to work out and you might as well forget about it and go on from there to something else?

A good thing to realize is that boys don't get very much interested in girls who are "wailing wants" for them. They're much more likely to sit up and take notice if they see a girl going out with other fellows and having lots of good times. Then they begin to wonder if they're going to miss a good thing by not taking the girl out themselves.

I think you're right that it was not too smart to tell this boy's friend what you did, and to tell him about it. If you've learned from it that it's better to keep those things to yourself, that's fine. You'll do better next time, I know.

So, go out with your other friends, have fun, and stop daydreaming about a boy who seems to have lost any interest he may have had in you. Once the first thing you know, you'll have a new boy friend you'll like just as well.

He liked her—she didn't return it with the same fervor.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 20, and in love with a fellow of 32. When I first met him a few years ago, he paid a lot of attention to me, but at that time I didn't like him.

Then they begin to wonder if they're going to miss a good thing by not taking the girl out themselves.

I think you're right that it was not too smart to tell this boy's friend what you did, and to tell him about it. If you've learned from it that it's better to keep those things to yourself, that's fine. You'll do better next time, I know.

So, go out with your other friends, have fun, and stop daydreaming about a boy who seems to have lost any interest he may have had in you. Once the first thing you know, you'll have a new boy friend you'll like just as well.

P. B.

Dear P.B.:

Under all these unfortunate and disagreeable circumstances, I think you should take some definite steps in this matter, instead of simply letting these letters come in and doing nothing about them. You should go to someone who is thoroughly informed on the subject of old age allowances.

BEAUTY

Eyelashes respond to care.

What about your eyelids? Are they dark, lustrous and heavy? If so, you can stop reading right here. If they do not qualify, you had better continue reading because this, scanty ones can be petted to a state of prettiness. The trouble is that they never get any attention. No cosmetic hits some to them when the beautifying food is served from your dressing table. They are a light, delicate growth and should not be neglected. The majority of the great army of lashless ones never give them a thought.

These little shafts live on the blood streams that bring them groceries and drink. Bathing the eyes night and morning — first with hot water, then with cold — will hustle up these food carriers. Dry gently by pressing a soft towel against the flesh. No rough treatment.

Have two small brushes, one for your eyebrows, one for your winkers. The latter brush must be kept scrupulously clean, washed with soap and water after it has been used. Dip the bristles in mineral oil. Brush the lashes on the upper lid upward, brush downward on the lower growth. Friction is stimulating, and this form of grooming will impart a pleasing gloss. At bedtime rub a little mineral oil along the roots of the lashes; the flesh will lap it up. Don't be skeptical about these suggestions. This form of treatment has been successful in many cases.

Long, silken lashes, whether curled or straight, are an entrancing addition to any face. It is said that few can resist the mysterious allure of eyes heavily veiled or shrouded in long fringes. They add immeasurably to the beauty of the eyes and the general expression.

To keep a luxuriant growth, the lids must be healthy. Beautiful lashes are never seen on weak eyes or diseased lids. If there is scaly condition of the lids, a doctor should be consulted, as some skin disorder may be brewing. Styes are a menace, as it may happen that the little pus pockets will destroy the papilla from which the shaft emerges.

When a style appears, hot boric acid dressings should be applied to bring the tiny boil to a head, after which it will break of its own accord and eventually heal. To lance a stye is a hazardous matter; only a physician should do that.

about Food . . . What's Cooking?

Potatoes were never meant to be a pasty vegetable.

Like turnips, beets and other rubers that grow underground, they are of sturdy plain shape and bear their trademark of good honest dirt.

It's surprising therefore to learn that a new spray, developed at the Colorado A. and M. College Experiment Station makes potatoes prettier. Sodium salt of 2,6-D makes the color of red Bliss potatoes redder than heretofore. It toughens the skin making them less susceptible to cuts and bruises during digging.

Most important of all however, it increases the vitamin C content up to 12.5 per cent. This added source should be a boon to many families whose chief source of Vitamin C is potatoes.

Potato scones are biscuits made with mashed potatoes and browned on a hot griddle rather than in the oven. If you do not have a griddle, bake the scones in a greased pan in a hot oven, 425 degrees.

Split the scones and serve them with creamed ham.

Potato Scones with Creamed Ham—Serves 4

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1-4 cup butter or margarine
1 cup cold mashed potatoes
1 egg slightly beaten
1-2 cup milk
2 cups diced cooked ham
1 can cream of chicken soup
1-3 cup hot milk
Measure 2 cups sifted flour. Then sift again with baking powder and salt. Cut in butter using pastry blender or two knives, until pieces of butter are the size of rice grains.

Force the cold mashed potatoes through a potato ricer or sieve. Add to flour mixture lightly.

Mix the beaten egg and milk. Add to the flour mixture, stirring only until dough follows fork around mixing bowl. Use more liquid if necessary to form dough. Dough should not be sticky.

Turn onto lightly floured board. Knead 20 strokes. Roll to 1-3 inch thickness. Cut with biscuit cutter.

Heat a heavy griddle. Grease lightly. Bake scones on top griddle. Brown on both sides.

Turn several times during baking. Keep on griddle 10-12 minutes or until done.

Combine soup and milk, mixing well. Heat but do not boil. Add ham. Heat thoroughly over a slow flame or heat in top part of double boiler over simmering water.

Spoon creamed ham over split scones.

Long, silky lashes are an asset.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

A housewarming invites to a new home, not to new house

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My brother and sister-in-law have just bought a house, the first home they have ever owned. They are very proud of this home, and would so much like to give a housewarming. But the house is about 25 years ago, and they have been told that because the house is not a 1950 house, it would not be proper for them to give this kind of party that is, a housewarming. So the question that she and I would like to have you answer is: Does the house have to be a "brand-new house" to have a housewarming?

2. If you say that it is proper for them to give a housewarming, how soon may they give it?

3. And what kind of invitations? May they invite by telephone or should they send out special cards?

G. N.

1. The idea, the charming and hospitable idea, is for the new home-owners to invite their relatives and friends to come to the opening of their new home. Indeed, the new home needn't be a new house . . . it may be any place that "is now called home", an old house, a new house, a semi-new house, a large apartment, even a one-room apartment! It's home . . . and one's friends are to be welcomed to it.

2. The new home-owners may correctly give the party just as soon as they wish to, as soon as they are settled in it enough to feel that it is "ready". The point is that the house must be in such "neat and tidy" order that the guests may be shown through it to "oh and ah" about all its charms. I should think they might like to consider giving this party as a Christmas party, or perhaps even better as a New Year's Day party!

3. The invitations may be given verbally or by telephone . . . but I like the more gracious plan of sending these invitations as notes, on cards of notepaper. Perhaps the host might like to give his wife a pre-Christmas present of a supply of informals, with the "new-home address" engraved on them. Then the invitations to the housewarming would be written on the inside page.

Young widow's formal wedding invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am 26 years old, have been a widow for three years, and now am planning to be married again. It is to be a church wedding, quite formal, and I would like to have my parents send formal invitations. Is this correct for a widow? And, if so, please give me the correct form; particularly as to the correct form of my name on the invitations.

A. F. A.

Yes; when a young widow remarries and the wedding plans are similar to yours, her parents issue the invitations for the wedding. Like this:

Bonn Motor Sales New Building Features Modern Improvements

Offering complete sales and service facilities for Austin motor cars as well as service and repairs for all makes of cars, trucks, and tractors, the new Bonn Motor Sales building, 163 Dundas Street, East, was officially opened this morning to the general public.

Today and Saturday will be "open house" when residents of the city and district are invited to inspect the new premises and to view the new Austin models, seven of which will be on display. As an added attraction a credit voucher worth $300 on the purchase of any Austin product will be given away to some lucky winner.

In Business Six Years

The ever increasing demand for Austin cars in the Bay of Quinte district has made the current expansion of Bonn Motor Sales necessary, according to Mr. Jack Bonn, proprietor. In business in the city for only six years, Mr. Bonn has in that short period seen his staff increase from two to 26 persons, including a mechanical staff of 16 mechanics.

The new home of Bonn Motor Sales and of the Austin car, is a building of which the proprietor may be justly proud. Of concrete block construction, the front of which is stuccoed, the building measures 54 by 114 feet and provides ample space for showroom, office space, parts department, and a service shop 54 by 70 feet. It is one of the finest appointed garages in the district.

Tile Flooring

Something new in automobile showrooms in Belleville is afforded in the fine appointed display room at Bonn Motor Sales. The floor is of gleaming inlaid tiles in contrasting colors; the walls are finished in varnished edgewood plywood and the ceiling in squares of ten test. Lighting is of the fluorescent type, set flush in the ceiling. Wide expanse of windows gives full view of the showroom from the sidewalk.

Included among the seven Austin models on display during "open house" is the new Austin five-ton truck, just introduced, and the pick-up and panel models for delivery service.

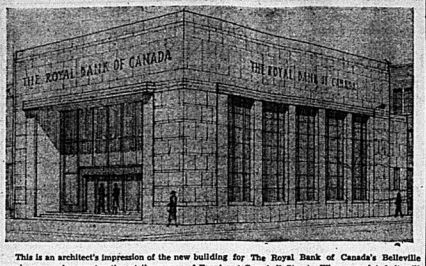
"You name it — we have it" is the motto of the Bonn Motor Sales parts department. A complete line of Austin parts is offered motorists driving this popular British car, while many lines of parts in other makes, are also carried. Adequate for extra storage space, a second storey has been constructed over the parts department showroom and office.

Well Equipped Shop

Mr. Bonn is particularly proud of the shop department in his new building. The very latest in overhead Alemite greasing equipment is provided and there are four twin post hoists, adjustable to any type car or truck. Each mechanic has his own individual steel cabinet type work bench. A full line of motor tune-up equipment is provided.

A special feature of the shop is the "Visualiner" the very latest photographic type front wheel alignment equipment which makes incorrect alignment virtually impossible. The machine automatically records proper camber and caster alignment for front wheels.

A large 12-foot wide doorway 14-feet high provides easy entrance for the largest trucks on the highway. Exhaust fumes are carried away by floor ducts connected with an electrically driven exhaust fan.



Steam Heated

Heating of the new building is by steam with unit heaters in the shop department and radiators in the offices and showroom. The boiler is fired with oil.

Heading up the competent service staff is Al. Strickland who as service manager, has been with Bonn Motor Sales for their six years of operation in Belleville. Mr. Bonn himself as sales manager, heading up his staff of six salesmen.

Another well patronized phase of Bonn Motor Sales is its used car department. The used car lot situated three doors east of the new building has Carman Fitchett as its sales manager.

Architects of New Royal Bank Building

This is an architect's impression of the new building for The Royal Bank of Canada's Belleville branch now under construction at the corner of Front and Campbell Streets. When completed, it will be one of the most modern banking centres in the district, incorporating many of the latest innovations for convenience and efficiency. At the present time, the branch is conducting its business in the original premises, later it will carry on in especially constructed temporary premises located at the rear of the present site.

Wooden Coaches May be at Back End of Train

Ottawa, Nov. 24 — CP — The question of whether wooden cars were involved in Tuesday's Rocky Mountain train wreck recalled today that about three years ago the Board of Transport commissioners issued regulations on how wooden coaches are to be used in passenger trains.

The regulations developed from a Canadian National Railways train wreck Sept. 1, 1947, at Dugald, Man., in which 21 persons were killed, chiefly passengers in wooden coaches.

After Tuesday's collision that killed 20 persons, the C. N. R. said all passenger cars in both trains involved in the wreck had been assembled in the trains as steel cars in accordance with the board's orders.

Earlier, Lieut. Paul Cullen of Montreal, who was on the troop train in the collision, had said the trooper's coaches were "all of wood construction" and had "just disintegrated."

The board has no specific regulations governing the make-up of troop trains. For passenger trains generally, it says wooden coaches may be used but must be placed at the rear of the train, and not between steel units.

Can Place Anywhere

The board specifies that under its order, cars or coaches with steel under-frames, are not regarded as wooden coaches, regardless of their upper construction. They may be placed anywhere in a train.

S. F. Dingle, C. N. R. operating vice-president, said at Montreal yesterday, that the three tourist cars most badly wrecked on the troop train were the steel under-frame construction with outside steel sheathing.

Under the board's regulations, the steel under-frame alone took them out of the class of wooden cars in connection with the make-up of trains under the order.

Other sections of that order specify:

1. There must be a buffer car between the locomotive and the first coach carrying passengers.

2. No wooden, mail, express or baggage car occupied by any person shall be assembled between the locomotive and steel units or between other steel units.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Vance, of Newmarket, spent the weekend in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Kerruish, Dennis and Catherine, Kerruish, of Belleville, spent Sunday with Mrs. William Holbert.

Mr. Donald Geen had the misfortune to fall on Saturday while working at the rail saw at Belleville station, and receive injuries which necessitated an operation at the Belleville hospital, where he is now a patient.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR "SICK" HEADACHES

By JULIUS DINTENFASS, "D.C., B.Sc., F.C.C."

To paraphrase Mark Twain's famous remark about the weather, one might say: "Everybody talks about migraine headache, but there's little that can be done about it!"

Julius Dintenfass "Doctor of Chiropractic"

Migraine, frequently known as "sick headache," is one of those diseases much misunderstood and usually mistreated. But migraine is no product of black magic shrouded in mystery and incapable of cure. Migraine can be defined, symptoms recognized, and can be made to respond to proper treatment by your chiropractor.

There are three principal symptoms of migraine headache, digestive troubles and disturbances of circulation. Basically, therefore, it is a nerve disturbance. For a smoothly functioning nervous system, a free flow of the body's nerve impulses, would not allow for symptoms such as those described.

The migraine pain usually settles in one side of the head. The headache may move from one side to the other. Most intense pain is around the eyes; this condition does not change. The pain is made worse by light, noise or movement. Without any special cause, apparently, the pain sometimes becomes nearly unbearable. The patient feels as if his head were being pounded, crushed as though it would "split."

Vomiting is a frequent symptom of migraine. Circulatory troubles usually consist of the dilation of blood-vessels of the face, on the side where pain is felt. The attack lasts from morning until evening, sometimes for several days. It leaves the patient with a feeling of exhausted depression, relieved only — and with difficulty — by sleep.

In one form of migraine the patient has eye troubles, seeing different colors, or dark spots with bright flashes of light. Another form may be accompanied by temporary blindness, affecting the entire field of vision, or only a part of it. Eye nerves and muscles may be paralyzed. Chiropractors have been remarkably successful in treating migraine. Your chiropractor approaches migraine as he does any other disease which brings pain and discomfort to the body. He know that a nerve disturbance of some kind is causing the pain. His knowledge of anatomy and physiology tells him that the root of the trouble lies in the spine — which controls the circulation of the blood flowing to the brain. By adjustment of the spine your chiropractor can correct reflex contraction and remove irritation of important nerve channels.

Many Teachers Meet to Hear Miss Gertrude Bergey Speak On "Curriculum Building"

Picton—Almost 100 teachers from Prince Edward and Lennox counties gathered in the Presbyterian basement on Wednesday evening to hear Miss Gertrude Bergey, of London, Ont., speak on "Curriculum Building." Miss Bergey is a member of the research committee of the Women Teachers' Association of the Province of Ontario.

The Hon. Dana Porter, Minister of Education for the province has suggested a revised curriculum. This is the first time in 50 years that the teachers have been asked to make suggestions for this revised curriculum, and Miss Bergey was sent to a five day convention in Denver, Colorado, where she met all ranks of educationists, all people of wide experience.

Intellect vs Emotion

In the five day convention, there were just two speakers. One was Dr. Meninger a top ranking psychologist, and educationist, who gave a shocking, terrifying address. He charged that teachers have been developing the intellect rather than the emotions of the child. It must emphasize the emotional, social and spiritual side of the child as well as the intellectual side.

Flexible Curriculum Required

He suggested that different children need different curriculums. A child from the slums needs a different curriculum than a child from a mansion—a town child a different curriculum from a country child, etc. There must be a curriculum that is flexible and tentative, one that prepares the child for life; one that changes with the changing needs of the child.

Dr. Meninger said "a practical democratic education is the hope of democracy" adding that teachers must be aware of the world today—of the life round about. Teachers must step out in the active life of the community and assert themselves.

The Child's Needs

Miss Bergey said the curriculum today is a "subject centred" curriculum. The new curriculum must be "child centred." She suggested teachers read "Curriculum Planning" by Krug.

Curriculum material must be chosen from the angle of what it will do for the child; how it will develop the ability of the child; what will produce a child who is emotionally mature.

The most effective learning tools must be found in solving the problem of how to read.

A curriculum that will produce adults who are calm, and willing, and able, to deal with new and different situations, who have respect for the rights of others, who can make good decisions, who have sufficient knowledge to enjoy life; and who can develop a rich and satisfying life, must be chosen.

Hope Commission

Miss Bergey said the Hope Commission would soon be making its report on education, and asked the teachers to give the ideas in the report a fair trial. She asked them to keep an open mind; to be ready for progress and to advance with it, suggesting that groups of ten or 15, who are geographically situated, meet every three or four weeks, informally to discuss one field of interest in the theory of the group.

Each group must have a chairman and a secretary. The group should read seven or eight professional books, and should analyze the present curriculum if necessary they should bring in consultants.

The department has established three workshops. These are valuable for teachers to work and live together for a week or for two months. Each teacher brings one problem. She consults reference books and consultants. She pools her ideas with others and reaches a solution of her problem.

The speaker thought teachers should attend these workshops for the last two weeks in August and should be paid for attending them as it would benefit their work.

A delicious chicken dinner preceded this fine address. Miss F. Vallieu welcomed the Lennox teachers. The guest speaker was introduced by P. S. Inspector A. F. Brown.

Musical Numbers

Musical numbers were given during the evening as follows: Piano solo, "Over the Waves," Mr. Bennie; vocal number, "Moonlight Bay", Miss Huff, Miss Walters, Miss Starr and Mrs. Gough accompanied by Miss Lois Doxsee; vocal solos "Roses of Picardy" and "Sunrise and You" by Miss Margaret McNeil.

A beautiful basket of mums was presented to Miss Vallieu by the Lennox teachers. Mrs. Freeman thanked the guest speaker and Mrs. Fritz president of the Lennox W. T. Association also voiced the appreciation of her group to the guest speaker. The evening was sponsored by the Women Teachers' Association of Prince Edward County.

Mrs. R. Hoard presided over the rest of the meeting. She read a splendid poem on "Remembrance Day." Virgin Matthews played a piano solo "Bells Across the Meadows", Mrs. Don Mcintosh sang a solo, "Give Peace Again," Mrs. Hoard graciously called on Mrs. Toombs for her address.

Life of India's People

Before starting her address, Mrs. Toombs led the meeting in prayer that each member present might be a little more in earnest for the Master's cause.

Mrs. Toombs with her 18 years experience in India, spoke from her heart, vividly portraying the life of the people who are our brothers and sisters.

These people live under conditions that we would not want our sons and daughters to live. Then, according to Christ's command they are our responsibility.

Sacrificial Giving

If we can not go ourselves we all should give generously to this cause. The work of the missionaries is to go in and live among these people and love them. This means sacrifice on the part of messengers to God. Surely we at home should do our utmost to support them financially and by prayers. "Jesus" said, "Feed my Lambs," that is His last command, said the speaker.

Mrs. Roy Eggleton, on behalf of the society, thanked Mrs. Toombs for her earnest message. Mr. and Mrs. Walker for opening their home, and the committee, Mrs. R. Hoard, Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Fargey for the fine refreshments. Mrs. Walker in turn thanked each one who in any way contributed to the success of the meeting.

Search Continues for Two Still Missing in Train Wreck; Seven Victims Flown East for Burial

Edmonton, Nov. 24—CP—Police and Transport department officers today gathered evidence for the formal inquiry into the Canoe River troop train wreck while the search went on for the bodies of the last two of the 20 persons killed.

In Ottawa, the Board of Transport commissioners announced yesterday that the public inquiry will open Dec. 11 at Edmonton. Board officials now are obtaining information on the collision at Canoe River, 312 miles west of here, the announcement said.

In Kamloops, B. C., it was learned that R. C. M. P. investigators have launched an on-the-spot probe of the remote Rocky Mountain disaster scene. R.C.M.P. commissioner S. T. Wood said in Ottawa that the police are acting in their capacity of British Columbia Provincial police.

The Kamloops report said that the police have talked to survivors and railway officials. It was reported without confirmation that they had requested from the Canadian National Railways certain papers concerning dispatch of the troop train and the Trans-Continental. The two trains collided with it.

Railway officials said previously that failure to deliver an order was responsible for the wreck.

With regular traffic resumed on the C. N. R.'s main line through the Rockies, railroad workers continued probing the wreckage in the search for the last two missing bodies—a soldier and a locomotive engineer. Six bodies were recovered yesterday.

Military Funeral

A brief military funeral was held here yesterday for 12 of the crash victims, all soldiers. A few hours later, at R. C. A. F. transport plane headed east with seven of the dead. It will fly as far as Newfoundland, taking the victims to their eastern Canadian homes for burial.

Two men will be buried here while the remaining three will be sent home by rail.

The death toll of 20 included 16 members of the 1st Regiment Royal Canadian Horse Artillery and four railroad men.

One of the bodies removed from the wreckage yesterday could not be identified immediately. Closer examination of the body, believed to be that of a soldier, will be made when it reaches here.

Six wreck survivors, "dangerously ill" in Edmonton's University hospital, were holding their own, medical authorities reported late last night.

At least three and possibly five of the 42 persons in Edmonton hospitals are to be discharged today, an army spokesman said, adding: "The main worry of the injured is that they will be left behind while the rest of their unit continues to Fort Lewis, Wash."

Most of the injured "undoubtedly" would be sent home to recuperate after they left hospital. Some of the most serious cases probably would be discharged from the army on medical grounds.

Premier Wants Strong Action Against Bookies

Toronto, Nov. 24 (CP) —Premier Frost Thursday told the Dominion government that big strides could be made towards wiping out bookmaking if federal authorities would take strong action against "telephone and telegraph companies and possibly radio stations that distribute racing information."

In a letter to Justice Minister Garson, Premier Frost said Ontario Provincial Police are handicapped in dealing effectively with bookmakers by the fact that telegraph and telephone companies are under federal jurisdiction.

The premier wrote that heads of the anti-gambling squad of the Provincial Police had submitted a memorandum to Commissioner S. T. Wood of the RCMP.

"We are not looking for ways and means to pass the buck," the letter added. "We are looking for co-operation and action."

Premier Frost also announced he had written a letter to Senator Estes Kefauver, chairman of the United States Senate crime investigating committee, to tell him that Ontario authorities had received little co-operation from U.S. law enforcement agencies in combating vice conditions in Windsor.

Senator Kefauver said in Detroit this week that his committee will investigate suspected connections between Detroit and Toledo gambling interests and a race-wire service in Windsor.

Premier Frost wrote Senator Kefauver that "We are looking in regard to gambling and vice in Ontario have their origin in the United States in nearly all cases."

Mr. Frost told Senator Kefauver that the Provincial Police had been directed "to take all possible action to terminate the activities of any gambling or vice agencies which might exist in Ontario, regardless as to whether these agencies had their roots here in Ontario or were merely agencies of U.S. gambling and vice syndicates."

Claxton, Canada's Brigade Meet at Fort Lewis Wash., Finest Parade in Two Wars

Fort Lewis, Wash., Nov. 24 — (CP) — On foreign soil, on an American holiday, Canada's Defence Minister and his country's United Nations Brigade met here yesterday.

Nearly 7,000 troops, the bulk of Canada's Korean Brigade paraded in pouring rain before Defence Minister Claxton. And the minister was pleased with what he saw.

It was the finest parade he had witnessed, "even in two world wars."

Mr. Claxton gave a solemn outline of their duties.

"The Special Force was raised as part of the Canadian Army, not only for the defence of Canada but also to carry out undertakings of our country under the Charter of the United Nations and the North Atlantic Treaty.

First Force Designated

"You are the first force to be designated for this purpose. We hope other countries will follow.

"Part of the force will be moving soon to continue their training and if necessary to go into action in Korea. The remainder will continue training here until the unified command advises and the government, if necessary with the approval of Parliament, takes some other action.

"Continue your training, make the most of the going which some times may be tough. You are doing the best thing anyone can do by taking an active part in defence of your country, of your freedom, and of freedom everywhere against the menace of communist aggression."

The Korea-bound soldiers mentioned by Mr. Claxton are members of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. Mr. Claxton had tentative good news for the soldiers. He said new rates of armed services pay are "under active consideration" at Canadian Army headquarters in Ottawa.

Since the P. P. C. L. I. has arrived here they have been in for some food-natured ribbing from other groups, who are receiving special allowances while at Fort Lewis, where the cost of living is high compared to Canadian standards.

The gist of the comment: "Why don't they now that the pay money is here?"

Officers say the point would be lost if troops were earning pay on which they could be sure their families could live.

Gunner Thinks He Will Fly In Future

Edmonton, Nov. 24 (CP) — Gunner Lawrence Smith of Brockville, among the soldiers injured injured in Tuesday's troop train crash in Western Canada that took 20 lives and figures that he's "had it" so far as trains are concerned.

Interviewed in hospital here, the 27-year-old Second World War veteran told reporters: "If they want me to go to Fort Lewis they're going to have to fly me."

The betting was that he'd change his mind by the time he recovers and the army says "let going."

Reporters were permitted to interview the less - seriously injured victims of the crash for the first time Thursday. Another they talked to was Gnr. Bob Booker, 19, of Fergus, Ont., who looked as if he had been in a fight. His first question showed there wasn't much wrong with him, however.

"Do you know if we get leave?" he asked.

Small Indian Band Accepts "Treaty Money"

Prince Albert, Sask., Nov. 24 (CP) —The last small band of Indians to accept "treaty money" has sworn allegiance to the Crown.

The formal ceremony took place Tuesday on the Witchegan reserve, 50 miles northwest of here. The Indians acknowledged for the first time the cession to the Crown—under an Indian treaty originally signed by the Crees in 1876—of the whole of northern Alberta and Saskatchewan.

And they received the same treaty gifts as their forefathers: $25 for newly-elected Chief Louis Thomas; $12 to each other man, woman and child who put his mark on the treaty document

But more is in store. Ten new houses were promised for the reservation, to replace the mud-and-log dwellings which the Indian families have used in past winters. They will also receive new educational and vocational benefits as treaty-signers.

Members of the small Witchegan band for nearly 75 years refused to accept benefits from the white man's government. They did not go to school. Missionaries visiting them were given a cool reception.

Even now, 30 of the 85 in the band refuse to have anything to do with the Canadian government. They refuse family-allowance payments and treaty money.

Exploitation of Canadian Youth in Sport Charged By Former McGill Athlete

Toronto, Nov. 24 — (CP)— A former Montreal athlete charged in a church report here last night that amateurism in Canadian sports has become a farce.

Dr. J. C. Flannigan, a former captain of McGill University football and hockey team, called for an examination of what he termed "the present recruitment for professional sport" as it affects every phase of a youth's life, including his attitude toward commercialized Sunday sport.

His report was tabled at a meeting of the council for social service of the Church of England in Canada.

Dr. Flannigan said the recruiting of youths for professional sport should be investigated, on the grounds that parents and teachers suffer misgivings over high school and university students forming part of "so-called amateur teams, often sponsored by professional hockey representatives, or less-reputable sponsorship."

"The report cited in particular the raising of the age limit from 16 to 18 years for the signing of the National Hockey League's "C" form at a N.H.L. meeting last year. It claimed this was a "confession that some of the criticism of exploitation of juveniles in hockey had adequate supporting evidence.

(A "C" form in effect is an agreement between a pro club and a player who has yet to sign a professional contract.)

In his report, Dr. Flannigan deplored the passing of "home brew" teams which, "contributed so substantially to local morale. Hockey, baseball, and football . . . are big business enterprises . . . all of which tends to control, subsidization, and monopoly," the report added.

The council adopted a resolution demanding that laws governing Sunday sports in Ontario be strictly observed, and it requested the House of Bishops to issue a strong statement in support of the Lord's Day Act.

In another resolution, it declared itself opposed to lotteries in any shape or form, and urged the public to put a halt to a trend. The public are government-endorsed lotteries. The resolution asked for a ban on radio bingo.

CALL it torque, or call it "pull." What we mean is POWER to turn wheels—to keep trucks rolling and loads moving on schedule.

You get highest sustained torque—at normal operating speeds—in a GMC valve-in-head engine. Every part of a GMC is truck-built, designed for long life in trucking service under full loads.

High torque is just one GMC feature. You'll find GMC's packed with added quality — extra-value in every part of the truck. That is the reason GMC's give the lowest-cost transportation you can buy. Come in and let us prove that!

and here's where you get the most . . .

More "Pull" at Lower Speeds

This chart shows how GMC engines develop maximum torque at speeds as low as 800 revolutions per minute. Check the speeds in other engines before full torque is reached.

Needs of Town and District Discussed at Dinner Meeting Of Chamber of Commerce

Picton — The need for more industries in Picton, the Santa Claus parade here on Saturday, Dec. 2nd, the matter of a retail credit system, improved ferry service, the need for more ship stops to offer their services as candidates for council, and the tourist industry were among topics discussed at a dinner meeting of Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce at the Royal Hotel, Wednesday night.

It was unanimously decided that the incoming executive work in co-operation with town council to take steps to make a survey which might be used in efforts to encourage industries to locate here. This was on motion of Colin Carter and Howard Seeley.

Bigger and Better

That the Santa Claus parade would be bigger and better than ever, was predicted by Don Thomas and Phil Dodge, who urged that every effort be made to enter floats, or give financial assistance.

Dr. C. S. Slack, president, ably presided. Grace was said by Major Corbett of the Salvation Army. Allen Ward led in singing with Woodrow Blakely at the piano. The president introduced newcomers, including Morley Moran, Major Corbett, Don Marston, H. J. Mc-Mullen, Richard Hart, and also especially welcomed T. W. Kinney and Donald King.

Finances Limit Work

There are 220 members of Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, said the president but finances limit the work which can be done. He felt the C. of C. to be filling a very important role.

Major Corbett expressed thanks to all who had made it possible to reach the S. A. Red Shield campaign objective here.

Strings of lights across the streets, trees on poles and store fronts, were advocated by the president and secretary vice-president H. B. Tully is to take the matter re colored lights across the streets up with the Utilities Commission.

Nick Welsh announced winners in the Fishing Hall of Fame competition. He displayed the big walnut plaque on which names and addresses of those catching the biggest fish of different species are inscribed each year. Each winner receives a printed prize and a handsome plaque. Prizes this year were donated by Colin and Douglas Carter, K. J. Williams, L. B. Calnan, W. G. McLean, Louis Yanover and George Publow. Prizes for biggest fish caught each month were also awarded winners, Ernie Franklin for May, hand-tooled leather wallet donated by Fred Greatrix; Ralph Heffer, June, Ronson lighter, by Nick Welsh; Herb Punchard, July, $5 by Thomas Ackerman; Douglas Wamsley, August, air cushion, by Roger Blakely; R. E. Rauh, Edinburgh, Penn., September, fishing tackle box, by Prince Edward Rod and Gun Club.

A great deal of interest was taken in the competition and official weighers N. Welsh, W. A. Davern, Bruce Martin, G. MacDonald, G. Publow, J. H. Mallett and Picton Police weighed many entries.

Special Prizes

Special prizes for largest bass and pickerel caught in East Lake, donated by Everett N. Cowan, went to Benny Howell, East Liverpool, Ohio, and Donald York, Rochester.

Winner of the Publow Evinrude motor, for skill in landing fish on unusual circumstances surrounding a catch, it to be awarded at the January meeting.

Following Mr. Welsh's announcement of winners, President Slack officially declared the following fishing champions:

Pickerel — Joseph Lauer, Rochester; large mouth bass, Norman Butcher, East Liverpool Ohio; muskie, R. E. Rauh, Edinburg, Penn; small mouth bass, A. Reif, Toronto; pike, Georges Smith, Toronto. Thanks was extended to the press for publicity and to all donors of prizes.

The president commended Mr. Welsh, who had ably superintended the competition started last year.

Dr. L. Mackie announced the first annual dinner meeting of Quinte's Isle Tourist Association for next Tuesday night. There are 71 members. Meetings have been held at different resorts to exchange ideas. He commended K. I. Mitchell, treasurer on his work in connection with the Tourist Information booth and the staff of Mrs Strong and Miss Pickering. He felt Prince Edward had enjoyed a better tourist season than most parts of the province. He objected to the tourist and publicity department reports of a recora number of cars crossing border The important thing is how long they stay and how much they spend here, he stressed. Over optimistic reports encourage operators to be led astray and new ones to enter the business at the wrong time, he said.

The president commended Dr. Mackie, L. R. Calnan, secretary of the Association and chairman of the Tourist and Publicity Committee of the chamber which had promoted the Tourist Association, and K. I. Mitchell, treasurer of both organizations.

Nominating Committee

A nominating committee composed of past presidents, under the chairmanship of Colin Carter, was named to present a slate of directors at the January meeting.

Discussing a possible free ferry service between Cronk's at Green Point and Deseronto, James deC. Hepburn explained that the difficulty lies in the fact that the ferry landing does not connect directly with No. 2 highway. He believed the department to be unsympathetic with the proposal under present conditions. As to Glenora ferry, he reported the department is looking into the matter. He suggested the present ferry might be enlarged or replaced by a larger one. Last Sunday, when he crossed, 21 cars were lined up waiting, and the situation is much worse in the tourist season.

E. J. Williams believed that more good entries into the county would mean more people coming in.

The desire of the tourist operators for permission to erect 2 x 4 fingerboard signs, on which resort names and directing arrows would be painted, was voiced by Dr. Mackie. Such signs would do away with many small ones.

Mr. Hepburn introduced the matter of a central credit association and many voiced possibilities in this regard.

Big Business

Mayor H. Henley stressed the need of good men offering their services as candidates in the municipal election. The town's business is a big and important one, he stressed. The mayor, who is retiring, and council were congratulated by the president on their year's work.

The Canmber of Commerce is one of the most important organizations in Canada, declared T. W. Kinney, who felt that some day the real possibilities of this town and county will be realized by industry, and the Chamber needs to be alert when time for action comes.

Nesbitt McKibbon stressed the need for decentralization of industry and the possibility of securing British industries here.

Alfred King thought the Chamber might endorse the proposal that British industry be encouraged to come to Canada with key workers. They would be self-sufficient, provide their own employment as well as work for others. He spoke in favor of British stock as the most desirable type of immigrant.

A. S. Hersey endorsed the idea of British immigrants. He related having had four English boys as farm helpers, each becoming good, useful Canadian citizens. He had learned from London that they would be pleased to send young men to help on farms but a handicap lay in the fact that Canada has no organization to check the welfare of such immigrants.

Great Need For Industry

B. R. Baxter said he found, as tax collector, a great need for industry here. There are many retired farmers and others with non-earning power, and rising taxes create a problem.

Secretary Phil Dodds said there was need for a survey which could be sent to the Dept. of Development and other places, so that those interested might secure needed information. No such printed survey is available though often requested.

L. B. Calnan said several prospects wanting to look at existing buildings as possible sites but none was then available. He felt substantial industries should be in a position to build their own factories.

"$818,107,524.13 that's a lot of money!"

The figure of $818,107,524.13 represents the total assets of The Bank of Nova Scotia as at October 31st, 1950.

This large sum exists because tens of thousands of Canadians continue to deposit their money in The Bank of Nova Scotia.

It is an accumulation of active money made possible by the savings of men and women—and of children, too.

What did this active money do? Part of it—$81,858,536.22 to be exact—was held by the Bank in the form of cash, for the Bank's day to day operations.

Another part of it was loaned to the Dominion and other governments of Canada, the provinces and counties, cities and towns. This money helped to build schools, roads, bridges, waterworks, parks, public buildings and to provide a variety of community services. A total of $249,620,156.48 was on loan in various forms to these public bodies.

But the biggest part was put to work by thousands upon thousands of individuals and companies. These people, alone and in groups, borrowed John Doe's, Mrs. Brown's and Dr. Jones' money to buy machines, materials, stores, and buildings or to provide working capital, so that they could make and sell in increasing abundance all the varied things that all of us want and use in our daily lives.

Farmers, for instance, were able to improve their livestock, to build new barns or acquire new equipment because they were able to borrow part of the money entrusted to the Bank.

Individuals with sound business ideas were able to turn these ideas into useful enterprises.

Companies were able to grow and make more and better jobs.

That part of the Bank's assets being used for all these varied loans, both in Canada and abroad, totalled $366,714,562.74.

Yes, $818,107,524.13 is a lot of money. But, through the services of The Bank of Nova Scotia, Canadians across the land, by putting this money to work for themselves, were able to serve the best interests of every Canadian.

Leafs Extend Lead on Torrid Victory Over Detroit Wings; Chicago Hawks Beat Bruins

(By The Canadian Press)

Only last spring, the members of two top teams in professional hockey suddenly lost interest in scoring goals and concentrated on trying to belt each other out on the rink. The president of the league had to read the riot act after a massacre.

Last night the same two teams staged a repeat performance. Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs, again the power teams in the National Hockey League, staged one of the longest and rowdiest battles in the memory of habitues of Detroit's Olympia. The Leafs won the game 2-1, but few of the giddies seemed to be interested in the score.

Leafs widened their lead to five points over the second-place Wings, while Chicago Black Hawks moved into a third-place tie with the idle Montreal Canadiens by whipping the last-place Boston Bruins 4-1.

Detroit's biggest crowd of the year—13,973 fans—saw two Red Wings' streaks snapped by the decision. It was their first loss in 11 starts and their first setback of the season on home ice.

Toronto took a two-goal lead in the first 15 minutes of a packed period, in which only three penalties were imposed. Cal Gardner sank it and added the 5:07 mark with Harry Watson and Gus Mortson getting assists. Then Joe Klukay scored a soft one on a 20-foot shot from dead centre.

From there on, the action grew rougher. Seven men paraded to the penalty box in the second period and 14 more in the third—all minors.

Rival Centres Battle

The trouble started with a couple of scrambles in the first between rival centres Metro Prystai of Detroit and Ted Kennedy of Toronto, the second featuring Detroit's Ted Lindsay and Toronto's Gus Mortson.

Then Detroit centre George Gee and Toronto defenceman Bill Barilko squared off and clinched off a 10-minute brawl, which involved everyone on the ice except the goalkeepers. Each drew a major for fighting, with Barilko getting an additional minor for high-sticking. Two other participants, Leaf's Bill Ezinicki and Wings' Bob Goldham, also went off for five minutes. Three more minors crowded seven men into the penalty box.

Then a second outbreak late in the period even involved Detroit goalie Terry Sawchuk. Lindsay and Leafs' Howie Meeker were given majors and the fiery Detroit winger drew an additional minor.

George Gee scored the lone Detroit goal with less than two minutes to play to deprive Al Rollins of a shutout in the Toronto nets.

The Black Hawks snapped a four-game losing streak at the expense of the hapless Bruins. Bep Guidolin tallied twice for the winners with Roy and Jim Conacher getting a goal apiece. Defenceman Bill Quackenbush was the lone Boston marksman.

Colder Weather Promised For Grey Cup Game

Toronto, Nov. 24 — CP — The weather grew colder, the football teams grew more secretive and the prospective customers patiently continued their search for ticketless today as Grey Cup tension mounted.

Twenty-four hours before game time, Toronto still was full of confidence but ticketless citizens who stoutly asserted their equally-ticketless neighbors that they'd get into Varsity Stadium somehow.

Other equally — confident citizens were ready to give detailed day-in-advance accounts of the game, the score and the outstanding players to anyone willing to listen. Few of the accounts matched.

The teams themselves were scheduled for workouts at the stadium, Winnipeg Blue Bombers getting their first look at the 27,000-capacity field since their arrival from the west as they pulled into town from their London, Ont., training quarters. Toronto Argonauts were due to follow them shortly before dusk.

Both clubs followed the tradition of football contenders everywhere, took elaborate precautions against fifth-columnists. As they have done all week, both coaches refused to allow their players to make a serious move on the practice field until assured that all strangers were barred.

The main body of Winnipeg supporters were due in from the west today, but there was no advance indications of parades, gaudy costumes or the Mardi Gras atmosphere that marked the arrival of the Calgary rooters who supported the Stampeders in the last two east-west finals.

A mild sensation was caused today when Big Four experts—three football writers and a Big Four club manager—unanimously picked Winnipeg over the Argos. Unofficial reports continued to put the local betting odds at even money, with the home club drawing the odd 7-to-5 wager.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Chicago's Bep Guidolin, who led Chicago Black Hawks ot a 4-1 victory over Boston Bruins with two goals and one assist.

Jim Conacher of Chicago, who scored three assists in the Hawks' victory.

Rookie Al Rollins who sparkled in the Toronto nets as Maple Leafs defeated Detroit Red Wings 2-1.

Rex Layne Puts Fistic Future "On the Line"

New York, Nov. 24 (AP) — Rex Layne gambles for the whole pot tonight when he takes on tough old Jersey Joe Walcott in a one shot bid for a crack at Ezzard Charles' heavyweight crown.

It's a giant step for the 22-year-old pride of Utah. If he beats Walcott in their 10-rounder in Madison Square Garden he will by-pass every other contender in the ranks and just about a clinch a June title chance with Charles, providing Ez still is the king.

But whipping the cunning, experienced 36-year-old Camden, N.J., negro is a big order for anyone in the business today. Old Joe is hoping for a fourth title shot himself, and he's proclaimed that he intends to kayo the green youngster.

The bookies, noting growing support for the invader, have whittled the price down to about 4 to 1, from 10 to 1 in favor of Jersey Joe. By fight time 10 p.m. EST the odds may be as low as 3 to 1.

Long-shot bettors are taking a fling on the stocky, curly-haired westerner with the knockout record. Rex has been fighting pretty since May 1949, in that time he's had 28 bouts, losing once. He squared accounts with his conqueror, Dave Whitlock, and has beaten the best on the coast including Joe Kahut, Turkey Thompson and Ernie Butcher.

Layne has scored 19 kayos. He's strong, and in his workouts here has shown a willingness to get in close and punch.

That's the only way he can beat Walcott, and yet that style is made to order for the side-stepping, fancy boxing veteran.

Layne and his manager, Marv Jensen, have examined movies of Walcott's two fights with Joe Louis. They are confident of victory.

Most of the experts hereabouts, however, believe Layne is in deep water with Walcott.

"Too much savvy, too much hitting power for the kid," is the way they sum it up.

Border Loop Will Consider Transfer At Meeting

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Nov. 24 — (CP) — A meeting of the Border Baseball League's directors Sunday will decide whether the Jersey Giants of the International League can locate in Ottawa.

The Ottawa Nationals Club wants to transfer its Border League franchise to Cornwall, Ont., so the Giants can come in to the capital.

John G. Ward, president of the league, said T. P. Gorman, head of the Ottawa team, had made application to him asking the transfer be allowed. The president of the Class C League said the matter would have to be decided by the directors of Border League, who are the club owners.

The Border League directors will also discuss the amount they will ask the Jersey City Club for the Ottawa territory which they control.

Arrangements will also be made for directors to inspect the playing field and other facilities at Cornwall.

Ottawa was the largest city in the Border League and also drew the largest attendance last year — going well over the 100,000 mark.

BOMBERS' STARTING LINEUP FOR SATURDAY'S GREY CUP CLASH WITH ARGONAUTS IN TORONTO

WORKOUT IS WITNESSED BY SOL KAMPF, FRANK LARSEN BOOTING PRACTICE NEEDED BY BUD TINSLEY, JOE AGUIRRE

When the weatherman predicted a "fast, frozen field, a cold northwesterly wind with the temperature in the 20's" for Saturday's Grey Cup fistal between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Toronto Argonauts, he caused consternation in camps of both teams and cold shivers to run down the backs of 25,000 fans expected to turn out for football classic. For although most of the players are used to below-zero weather, there are a few such as American imports from sunny south whose blood literally turns to ice as soon as they are exposed to the cold. "Stretch" Whaley of Bombers and Argos' Al Dekdebrun, both good passers, are two such sun worshippers and their problem is what to do with cold hands. Some enthusiastic fans suggested that Al use, among other things, oil; gasoline, turpentine or the like. But he is the suggestion came from a Bomber fan? — Central Press Canadian.

11 U.S. Imports Make First All-Eastern Team in Poll And Six on Second Squad

Toronto, Nov. 24 (CP)—The supremacy of the Intergrovincial Football Union in Eastern Canada, reflected in the Grey Cup play-offs and exhibition games for more than a decade, was emphatically shown in the 1950 all-eastern team.

In an unprecedented vote of writers and coaches in senior football cities, the Canadian Press poll for eastern Canada honors turned out to be an exact duplicate of the Big Four all-stars. Five players from the Ontario Rugby Football Union and one from intercollegiate ranks made the second squad.

In addition to the 11 United States imports named to the first team, five were selected on the second. One—Jack Carpenter of Hamilton Tiger-Cats—tied with home-brew Fred Black of Toronto Argonauts for an inside berth.

Ballots were weighed to give equal voting power to each football city. First and second-team choices counting on a 3-1 basis.

Argonauts, who made only two first-string places despite their eastern Canada title, took three more on the alternate team. Three more second-stringers were members of Toronto Balmy Beach, the Argo farm club that won the O.R.F.U. championship.

The Teams:

Here are the choices:

First Team—Flying wing, Rod Pantages, Alouettes; halves, Bill Gregus, Tiger-Cats; Ulysses Curtis, Argos; Edgar Jones, Tiger-Cats; quarter, Frank Filchock, Alouettes; snap, Ed (Buckets) Hirsch, Argos; inside, Ray Cicia, Alouettes; Vince Scott, Tiger-Cats; middles, Herb Trawick, Alouettes; Ralph Sazio, Tiger-Cats; Outsides, Vince Mazza, Tiger-Cats; Bill Stanton, Rough Riders.

Second Team — Flying wing, Johnny Chorostecki, Sarnia; halves, Carl Galbreath, Balmy Beach; Virgil Wagner, Alouettes, Bob McFarlane, Western; quarter, Al Dekdebrun, Argos; snap, Dwight Follin, Balmy Beach; Inside, Bruce Mattingley, Sarnia; Jack Carpenter, Tiger-Cats and Fred Black, Argos (tied); middles, Whitey Fisher, Balmy Beach; John Kerns, Argos; outsides, Ralph Toohy, Alouettes; Ted Tully, Western.

Three members of the first team are repeaters—Filchock, Scott and Trawick. It was Trawick's fifth year in a row and Filchock's third. The other nine all are newcomers to eastern football football this season.

Mazza and Cicia came closest to unanimous selection, drawing 15 of a possible 16 first-place ballots. Filchock barely edged out Argos' Dekdebrun, drawing eight first-place choices to seven for the Toronto quarterback. Only One Made Team

All three league scoring champions were all-star berths, but only Edgar (Special Delivery) Jones of the Tiger-Cats made the first team.

Johnny Chorostecki of Sarnia Imperials, the O.R.F.U.'s leading scorer, was the second-team choice as flying wing. Bob McFarlane of University of Western Ontario Mustangs, topped intercollegiate point-scorers, also was a second choice for a backfield spot.

As in the Big Four rankings, the only first-string Canadian was Rod Pantages, Montreal Alouettes' flying wing and punter.

Hall of Fame For Grid Heroes May be Set Up

A Canadian football Hall of Fame, a permanent shrine to honor the immortals of the gridiron and officials associated with its development, may become a reality in 1951.

Football officials, queried by The Canadian Press on their views about formation of such a memorial, generally favored the idea.

"It is a wonderful idea and it would be an honor and a tribute to the great players of the game and to the people who have fostered it through the years," Eric Cradock of Toronto, president of the Interprovincial Union, said.

Cradock added he would recommend formation of the Hall of Fame to the Canadian Rugby Union board of governors at the C.R.U. annual meeting next February.

"It's a good thing," C.R.U. president Tom Allison of Toronto said. "I'm in favor of the idea. The Hall of Fame probably would be similar to that set up by hockey (at Kingston, Ont.) and baseball (at Cooperstown, N.Y.)"

Harold Bagley, veteran secretary of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, told CP it was a "great idea."

Jim McCaffrey manager of Ottawa Rough Riders of the big four, said he had never given the idea of a Hall of Fame much thought "but I believe it would be a good thing if it had the right guidance."

"A grand idea," said Lew Hayman, coach of Montreal Alouettes of the big four. "It is natural that the idea of a Hall of Fame would find wide acceptance and would do a great deal for sport."

McCaffrey and Hayman will attend the Ross Trimble memorial dinner at Toronto tonight and both said they would talk it over with other club officials. It is expected more than 700 officials and players from nearly every section of the country will attend the dinner.

Trimble, a former player and coach, died suddenly at his Toronto home last March.

FOSED LIKE TROUPER

Wallaceburg, Nov. 24— (CP)—Wallaceburg's oldest resident, Mrs. Susan Smith, 101, cut a cotton to mark the official opening of a new $600,000 highway-bridge across the Sydenham river Thursday. Highways Minister Doucett handed Mrs. Smith the scissors and she posed like a trouper for a battery of newspaper photographers.

Black Suspended By Detroit Wings, Left Indianapolis

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit Red Wings Thursday night suspended forward Steve Black in the first such disciplinary action in the history of the National Hockey League.

Manager Jack Adams, announcing the action just before the Detroit-Toronto game, said Black was sent down to their Indianapolis farm club two weeks ago. At the end of the two weeks, he left Indianapolis without permission and returned to Detroit.

At a subsequent conference with Black, Adams asked the 23-year-old forward to return to Indianapolis for one more week but he refused.

Black was not available for comment.

There's another Canadian championship football game Saturday. In Cobourg, 70 miles east of the scene of the Grey Cup struggle, the Cobourg Galloping Ghosts will be playing Montreal Flyers for the Dominion Intermediate championship.

The Ghosts, Ontario Union champions, will be trying for their third dominion title in five years. It's the first try at the title for the Flyers, Quebec Union champions, but the Quebec league won the crown last season when the R. M. C. S. Donnacona upset Dundas.

Two universities—one in India and the other in Pakistan—are to be helped financially by the Canadian football championship game in Toronto Saturday.

The all Varsity Aid Committee of the University of Toronto announced today that the University of Sindh in Karachi and the University of Jamia Millia Islamia have been chosen because of damages suffered in rioting which followed the separation of India and Pakistan.

A thousand motorists may provide the nucleus for a fund which the students hope eventually will reach $10,000. The committee has lined up parking space for 1,000 cars and will charge 50 cents a car.

Johnny Evans, 23-year-old middle for the University of Toronto Blues, has been awarded the Johnny Copp Memorial trophy as the most valuable player of the Intercollegiate Senior football Union club for 1950.

At Milwaukee, Ike Williams, the lightweight champion of the world, avenged a previous ring defeat by pounding out a 10-round split decision over Joe Miceli of New York in a non-title bout Thursday night. Williams weighed 146, Miceli 145¾.

In Montreal, Lucien Beaumont, 18-year-old Quebec swimmer, established a dominion record for the 100-yard free-style distance, covering the distance in 53.1 seconds in the 25-yard N.D.G. pool. The former record was 51.7 seconds.

BIG IMPROVEMENT

Ottawa, Nov. 24—CP—Premier Duplessis of Quebec said Thursday there will be "big improvements" in western Quebec highways under a program being drafted by Highways Minister Talbot.

Here for the dominion-provincial constitutional conference Mr. Duplessis told newspaper men the Gatineau and Pontiac highways and the Aylmer Road near Ottawa would be included in the new program.

Expectations are that rebuilding and paving will begin on a large scale early next spring.

Mohawks Move To Within Two Points of Barons

(By The Canadian Press)

Indianapolis Capitols, last place team in the American Hockey League's western division, found the eastern division cellar-dwellers to their liking Thursday night.

The Caps, sparked by Fred Glover and Johnny Wilson with three goals each, polished off the Eagles 9-1 in handy fashion.

In the only other A. H. L. game, Cincinnati Mohawks defeated Hershey Bears 2-1. The win brought Cincinnati to two points behind Cleveland Barons, Western Division leaders.

Jackie Gordon and Fern Perrault were the Cincinnati goalgetters while Mark Margosse saved the Hershey fans from withleasing a shutout.

At New Haven, Glover scored his three goals in an eight-minute stretch in the first period while Wilson scored his third counter less than two minutes after the start of the second stanza.

Clare Raglan, Gordy Haldy and Don Morrison scored the other Mohawks goals while Barry Sullivan robbed goalie Jim Henry of a shutout with Eagles lone marker.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 24 (AP) — A good golfer could come up to the 14th tee two down and win the match on the 17th green... that was the analysis offered by former champ Willie Turnesa after playing a round on the Saucon Valley course where the 1951 National Amateur Golf Championship will be played... and pro Ralph Hutchison, touring the course for perhaps the last time before taking off for a fling at the winter tournament tour, explained how that could happen... the 14th is a 202-yard uphill hole to a green that slopes forward. The good golfer can get his par there, but the guy who hits the back of the green when the pin is on the front would have to putt like the Dickens... No. 15 is 609 yards, a dogleg affair requiring extreme accuracy and the huge green calls for good putting... they all do at Saucon Valley; the greens are tremendous, rolling affairs with as many as nine good places to spot the pins... if a golfer can't put his approach up close, he's better be lucky as well as good with his putter.

Too Danged Fair

Hutchison, who is intensely proud of the layout and the condition in which it is kept, calls the 16th hole "one of the finest in the world."... it's straight, almost flat and has no artificial hazard, but that's where a lot of matches end... trees on both sides of the narrow fairway call for extreme accuracy; its 446 yards from the back tees requires a long second shot, and the green, as usual, is contoured to make long putts difficult... the 17th is similar, but with a slight dogleg and a second shot over Saucon creek. You can't waste a shot here, either... so there you have it; four little mistakes, like any amateur could make, and the match is gone.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Like everything else in Horse Sense, answers to a takeout double follow an order of preference. There is a first choice, a second choice, and so on; a lower choice denies a higher choice.

A takeout doubler says he has a hand as good as an opening one bid; five tricks, of which four are high cards, among which are two sure tricks. Nothing less is a sound takeout double.

Some double orders partner to bid something if there is no intervening bid by the next opponent. In answer thereto, four types of replies are available to the partner of the takeout doubler.

His first choice is to bid any unbid major suit with four or more cards in it. The suit need not be truly biddable. But it must have at least four cards of some kind in it.

Second choice is no-trump with two stoppers in the opponent suit. One stopper is not enough. Third choice is any unbid minor suit with four or more cards. It need not be biddable.

There is a fourth choice. This fourth choice is to bid the lowest ranking unbid suit regardless of how few cards there are in it. This is the bust response; the response of last resort.

Many are under the impression that no-trump is the best reply to a takeout double. This is absolutely wrong. No-trump is second choice and guarantees two stoppers in opponent suit.

South opens with a bid of one heart and west doubles for takeout. Pass by north. East holds this hand:

♥ K J 10 9
♣ 9 8 2

What should east reply and why? Lacking four spades of any kind he must not bid a spade. Holding 2 heart stoppers his bid is one no-trump. Thus does he deny four spades in his hand.

With one heart stop or less he would bid two clubs to deny four spades, two heart stops, four diamonds. He says nix on that stuff.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 24 (AP) — American women are on the wrong track in their search for equality with men, says Marina Berti, Italian glamor girl.

This observation came out when I asked the actress about the future. Here to play a role in "Up Front" she has been offered a seven-year contract if she will stay in Hollywood. She turned it down.

"My husband is more important than a contract," she explained. "His work is in Rome, so I must stay there with him."

Her husband is Claudio Gora, actor-director, and they have two children. Her movie career ranks second to the family, she said, in contrast to some Hollywood stars.

"That's the way it is in Italy," she remarked. "The family is most important and the man is the head of the family. From what I have seen here, American women don't believe that. They seem to want to be equal. I think they will only make themselves unhappy because of that."

Wash Dishes?

Miss Berti was astonished to learn that American husbands have to help wash the dishes. And that some of them even help with the cooking and housework.

"The Italian husband never enters the kitchen," she said.

The subordination of the wife does not mean that families have no arguments.

"Fights add the spice to marriage," she said. "No one is perfect and when you fight, you work out your differences and learn to live with each other. You are more in love when you make up after a fight."

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Max Bentley, Toronto's great play-making centre, continued hoarding assists last night when he added another to his bulging total of 18 and strengthened his position on top of the National Hockey League scoring parade.

Bentley's 19 assists and six goals for 25 points puts him five points ahead of his nearest rival team-mate Ted Kennedy, who went scoreless last night as Maple Leafs downed Detroit Red Wings 2-1. Kennedy has six goals and 14 assists for 20 points.

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

"If patrons continue this summer to buy as they have to date there will be marmalade and jam in Mowery purgatory," the voice in which he went on, "Not unless the Constable is found, though, Josiarnce won't be paid till the company is sure the painting was stolen, long before that Sinclair will be clamoring for my decision."

The evening of the burglary he had said:

"We'll have the guilty party on the anxious seat."

Should she tell him that already Blake was anxious and suspicious?

"To get back to the enamel." He gave her no time to decide. "The cabinet is locked. Where is your key?"

"Upstair. I didn't give it to Gene as I usually do because I knew you would have yours. After what happened the other day I thought one key to the cabinet at large was enough. I change the hiding place ofth week just in case one of our patrons should be curious and wander through my apartment. I don't look it when I am on duty."

"You don't think a patron—"

She ran upstairs in the midst of his roar, for the clock in the living room gave out a rosy glow where morning sunlight touched them. "Whoa," she said to herself as she said each time she entered the attractive room which had become home to her.

In the act of reaching for the small golden box on top of the gilt and crystal clock, her arm dropped. The hands still pointed to eight o'clock. Never had she known it to stop. It was as faithful as the sun. Had she upset its balance yesterday when she checked on the key inside the box before starting for lunch at the Country Club? Unlikely. She had left just after noon and she would have heard it had it had musically chimed 12 before she closed the door. Perhaps she had not heard it, perhaps she was remembering another day? She was so accustomed to its chime that for hours she didn't notice it. Suppose someone had been hunting for the key and—in frantic haste she seized the box. It was empty.

Fran catapulted down the stairs. Henry Sargent was teetering in front of the cabinet.

"Look! Look!" she whispered. "It's gone."

"What's gone?"

"The key. Gone from this box. It's stopped."

"Take your time, Miss Phillips. Take your time. Cut out whispering. You have me doing it. What's gone? What's stopped?"

She told him.

"The clock stopped at eight! Didn't you notice it when you got up this morning?"

"No, sir. I glanced at the clock, saw it was eight. I had the rising morn at seven, and believe me from that moment on I hustled to get in a swim before it was time for Mrs. Betsy to serve my breakfast on the porch. I remember now, she said I was early. After breakfast, I did my stint on the putting green, talked with her and then—you know the rest."

"Where were you at eight o'clock last night?"

"Driving home from the lobster ground."

"Sure of that?"

"Yes Mr. Sargent."

Never enough she be more sure of anything. When she refused to go to a movie after dinner with the excuse she had work to do Myles had demanded:

"Why are you slaving over this job when you don't need it?"

"Because I like it. Why do you slave at law? I understand you don't need the money."

"The work you have to do this evening is an excuse for not going with me. I'm wise to that." His scowl had put a full stop to the conversation, except for a stiff "Good night."

"Ten-m, it stopped at eight o'clock." Henry Sargent's voice recalled her to the present.

"What stopped at eight o'clock Mr. Sargent?" inquired a voice behind them. "Someone's heart? Ad about that time mine was chilled to a standstill. The top of the morning to you, Fran."

"Come in Myles. Perhaps you can help us. Take him into your office, Miss Phillips, and tell him what happened. I'll carry on here. Henry Sargent settled his tie, wriggled his coat into place on his shoulders and assumed his professional suavity. "I hear a car. Patrons. Go along. Quick."

"Now what's the excitement?" Myles inquired of her, Fran, who from force of habit had stepped behind her desk in the office. "Whom's?" She shook her head.

"Can't. Too excited. This mystery is getting to be like a tangle of yarn with no loose end with which one can start to untangle."

"There's a loose end in every tangle, two of them. Remember, I don't know what you're talking about. I swear. Last night I would not come near you again, you make no bones of your dislike, and here I am, a glutton for punishment."

"You've evidently forgotten that the first evening on the rocks you declared that though you would spend your vacation with your sister, I wouldn't see you. I have seen you almost every day since." His amused eyes met color to her face.

"Nice of you to have kept control. I didn't know then that we would be co-dicks. It's the lure of the mystery in which we're mixed up, not your charm, that's the answer. Now that is nicely taken care of, shall we bring me up to date on our burglary. Why get hot up this hot day? Betsy Dig speaking."

"You look cool as a cucumber in that linen suit," she commented resentfully. "Perhaps you'd be het up if you'd had the shock I had."

"What was the shock? Let's have it."

He perched on the corner of her desk as she began the recital with her talk with Betsy Dig, included the report on Si Pond who said ended with Henry Sargent's "It stopped at eight o'clock."

"That is where I came in." Myles produced a cigarette.

"No smoking in this building."

"That's right. Your reminder reminds me that Si Pond had smelled cigarette smoke before he passed out from a crack on his head. What time eight o'clock that angle in our case. I'd like to get Betsy's interrupted confidential information straight. She had just said, 'We're sure it was—' when Henry Sargent's call clanged her lips shut."

"Correct. A few moments before she had told me that Mr. Digby was tracing the call."

"Surprising at it may seem I thought of that and acted the next day. No record of a call from the town in which Dig's mother lives."

"Whoever sent the message would figure on that and would send it from another place, wouldn't he? I say 'he' because I can't argue myself out of the feeling that the man Barth had something to do with it. Otherwise, why should he appear here almost at the moment they were leaving? Have you heard what happened to him the night of Miss Thaxter's party?"

"No. To return to the clock, where is it?

"In my living room."

"Let's take a look see."

Side by side they stood before the gilt and crystal clock flanked by photographs in silver frames.

"It says eight-fifteen now. It's ticking."

"Thank goodness. I must have started it when I lifted off the box in which I had hidden the key to the cabinet. Am I pleased? It is like a member of the family, it would hurt to have it stop—never to go again," like Grandfather's clock."

"It strikes the hour?"

"Yes, and one stroke on the half."

"Didn't you hear it last evening? You were home early enough. Perhaps you kept sufficiently other date after you turned me down. I wouldn't know."

"I didn't look at it, I was so hot I undressed in the dark."

He wouldn't know either that she had cut their evening together short because she was becoming afraid of his attraction for her, afraid of her sense of utter content when she was with him, afraid she would forget the little hum that ran around the room when Matilde Sargent put her arm about his neck and they had danced; forget that he had told Miss Tanta of his love for Fran, that he had taken over the trusteeship of the estate to help Ken that she was conducting responsibility." Of course she should not have gone to dinner with him, distrusting him as she did, but she had thought he might have news of Ken and—why fool herself? Had she gone on Ken's account or because—

"Listen. This will tell the story." While she had been thinking Myles had been studying the clock. He carefully moved the hour hand to nine and the minute hand to 12. The clock struck one.

"One! Isn't it going on?" Fran whispered as if afraid that a louder tone would upset the mechanism for good.

"That's all. We've got something! At last we've got something! Between twelve-thirty and one yesterday someone ran this this clock around to eight without giving it a chance to strike. The next time it was had to be one. Who was here between twelve-thirty and one o'clock?"

Gene! Had she had the enamel box all this time? As a last resort had she planned to sell it toward paying her debt? The day after Miss Thaxter's party she had been given one thousand dollars realized from the sale of bonds. Yesterday had been the first time she had been on duty at the gallery since. Had she returned the box then? Should she tell Myles what she suspected? She looked up and met his eyes. He shook his head.

$200,000 Damage As Fire Sweeps Ottawa Building

Occupants on Sixth Floor Rescued With Ladder

Ottawa, Nov. 25 (CP) — A three-alarm fire early today swept through a seven-storey downtown brick business building, destroying four stores and the first three storeys of the structure and causing damage estimated at $200,000.

No one was injured in the blaze at 18 Rideau Street which raged for three hours before being brought under control. Destroyed were more than a score of legal and insurance offices on the first three floors and jewelry, drug, candy and children's clothing stores on the street floor.

Firemen believe the blaze broke out about 4:49 a.m. EST in the kitchen of the drugstore luncheonette section. One occupant, Joseph Cole, a sixth-floor tailor living in his shop, had to be rescued by a fire department aerial ladder.

The other occupants — the building superintendent, Telegraph Office staff, his wife and young children—escaped earlier. They eased themselves out on a fireescape from the roof of the adjoining Union Station, directly across from Ottawa's swank Chateau Laurier Hotel.

Spectators pushed and grabbed when tons of merchandise, from shoes to jewelry, were swept out through windows and perfume on the streets, towards the catch-basins. Police kept pushing the crowds back, but many slipped damp cigarettes into their pockets before they could be stopped.

Commonwealths Sponsor Asian Aid

London, Nov. 25 (AP) — Commonwealth countries soon will call for American help to smother communism among $70,000,000 Asians by raising living standards.

Official sources reported today that a Commonwealth-sponsored six-year plan—estimated to cost more than $3,000,000,000 will be announced in detail Monday.

The plan will stress that its own fulfillment hinges on the measure of aid it can get from American-sponsored agencies.

The United States is expected publicly to welcome the Commonwealth undertaking. Simultaneously the U.S. State Department may list what the U.S. itself is doing to help feed, clothe and house the people of Asia.

The program stresses development of backward Asia's primary resources. The idea is to increase agricultural output, improve communications, harness cheap power for their power and diversify lopsided national economies.

The program was launched by Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, Pakistan and Ceylon.

Preston Recovers After Blackout

Preston, Nov. 25 (CP) — Electricity was restored early today to households in this town of 7,000 persons where an explosion Saturday destroyed four transformers in a municipal hydro sub-station and cut off the power.

Hydro crews erected two transformers outside the sub-station as an emergency measure which enabled the current to be turned back on shortly after midnight. Bonuses were issued to the streets to notify the public that the power was on again.

Utilities officials said they hoped to restore power to industrial users by Monday. Some 1,000 workmen were made idle by the power failure.

The fire in the 1 1-2-storey sub-station on the town's eastern outskirts blew three hydro employees through the roof. Ted Gambling and James Hall—out of the building but none was injured. Their boss, clifford Bricker, escaped injury when the explosion slammed a steel fire door in the control room in which he had been working.

During the blaze, a light flag staff oil-fed flames, Fire Chief Andy Spalding, who is over 70 and has a heart condition, collapsed and was taken to hospital.

ARM TAKEN OFF

Cardinal, Nov. 25 (CP) — An accident at the Canada Starch Co. Ltd., plant Thursday night cost James Francoli, 37, his right arm below the elbow. Officials said they believed Francois stepped too close to a revolving feeder belt that dragged the arm into a pulley.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Nov. 25 (CP)—Synopsis: It is cloudy and mild over all the province except southwestern Ontario where the weather continues cold with snow. Tonight and snow will gradually diminish during the day with moderating temperatures.

The eastern advance of the cold air across Eastern Ontario was checked Friday night by the sudden development of a new storm in the southeastern states. This storm is moving northward and the centre will cross Lake Ontario during Saturday night. The storm will bring heavy snow falls in parts of the eastern states and rainfall over the lower northern lakes. Tonight and Sunday it will be cloudy with occasional snow flurries and mild over the province except southwestern Ontario where it will be cold with snow and freezing.

FOUR LIVES LOST, 30 INCHES SNOW MORE TO COME

Highways Passable But Accidents Claim Four

(By The Canadian Press)

Still tackling the mammoth task of digging out from the blizzard that left as much as 30 inches of snow in places, Ontario today was due for another early-winter blast.

The first wallop of winter blew in from Western Canada yesterday, leaving four dead, innumerable traffic accidents and a thick coating of powdery snow in its wake.

Weather forecasters said today that another explosive storm was moving in fast, this one from Virginia. It was due to strike by afternoon.

Deepest snowfall in the province yesterday was reported at the Western Ontario centre at Preston, where it measured as much as 30 inches. The heavy fall threw thousands of fans to restore electrical power disrupted by an explosion at the town's power plant in the morning.

The western part of the province bore the brunt of the storm which struck early. It moved into Eastern Ontario and Quebec during the afternoon.

Original forecast for this afternoon was 20 degrees in Toronto accompanied by snow flurries.

But an official weather forecast issued early today at Malton changed this outlook to about 35 degrees and freezing rain, small precipitation was going to the Grey Cup football final.

The storm took its toll in lives in Ontario where a truck driver was killed in a highway accident near Tillsonburg, a workman was crushed to death when a truck skidded on an icy road near Kitchener, and a man was killed in a car-truck collision near Sarnia.

In a shack north of Montreal an 82-year-old man was found suffering from exposure. He died later in hospital from gangrene and a lung condition.

The storm left its mark on Manitoba before heading into Ontario. But the cold weather and snow weren't much felt in the far-western provinces. British Columbia enjoyed mild weather while Edmonton was stirred by by warm Chinook breezes in Alberta. Southern Quebec was the hardest hit with more reported some delays from snow, but most Ontario trains were running on time. Air line flights ranged they were on schedule.

The Ontario Highways Department put overtime to get roads cleared throughout the southern part of the province, reporting last night that all highways were passable, if not bare. Driving was the very long and frustrating in Toronto, where snow-removal crews did not get into operation until late last night. Dozens of minor accidents were reported.

Aboard H.M.C.S. Sioux off China Coast, Nov. 25 (CP) — When Canada's flotilla of three destroyers set off for Hong Kong for a brief respite from the Korean war, it was the first time in 78 sea days that the men had been able to get out of lifejackets or have lights showing at night.

For almost the first time since the destroyer Sioux, 2,325 tons, and Athabaskan joined the war in the east, the pressure was off. And the pressure has been heavy in the tough business in which the ships have been engaged.

Danger of Mines

Most of all, there has been the gnawing danger of Russian made mines, which wrecked three American destroyers and a minesweeper. One day the Sioux was relieved on patrol by a U.S. ship. A few hours later the American vessel was shattered by an explosion mine.

The Sioux had a couple of other narrow escapes. She was relieved on one day when a mine which was attacked heavily by a North Korean plane a little later. On Oct. 26 the Sioux was ordered, with the British cruiser Kenya, to bombard an enemy battery near Fankoch Point, about 60 miles north of Inchon.

At the last minute the Kenya was ordered to hold off. Cmdr. (E) Paul Taylor, of Victoria, took his ship within 8,000 yards of shore and anchored. The Sioux's 4.7-inch guns pounded the battery for 37½ minutes. It never replied, far.

One direct hit was scored on the ammunition dump and an observer reported the enemy battery "kaput."

As the Sioux hoisted anchor, she found she was lying just half a mile from a mine-field. Lt.-Cmdr. Taylor had decided to keep moving during the bombardment, his ship would probably have been blown to bits.

The captain says his work has "paid off" but that it has provided excellent training. "Most of the men say the Korean war is 'some' and that they've 'ploughed a furrow up the Yellow Sea.'"

Sioux First to Sight Mines

The Sioux was the first of the flotilla to sight and destroy mines. She and the Athabaskan have posted eight mines and the Cayuga one.

Some of the mines have been exploded 100 yards away from the ship. Shrapnel rains down, and claims the air of a man's head and white-hot. One day one man aboard the Sioux was caught out from cover. He grabbed two tin helmets, crouched down and, when the all clear was heard over his head, one over his rear.

The Sioux has had two mine scares and the Bofors or Oerlikon guns, normally only against aircraft. The three sharp-shooters of the Sioux are Lt.-Cmdr. Harry Griffiths, Ajax, Ont., Kenneth Kellbough of Sturgeon Lake, and Ab. Roy Welburn of Vancouver.

Wellburn said they didn't keep individual scores because everybody was firing at once. Martin potted one mine with 12 rounds, the best record on the Sioux so far.

Inch of Snow, Warm Air Turn Field into Mudbath

Toronto, Nov. 25—CP—A treacherous, muddy field with an east wind blowing a chilling rain with gusts was in prospect today for the Grey Cup final between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Toronto Argonauts.

A strong current of warm air from the southeast rolled into the Toronto area during the night, driving the temperature soaring upwards from its 18-degree night low. By game time at 2:30 p.m. EDT it was expected to reach 45, 20 degrees or so warmer than previously forecast.

Snowfall on the field during the night amounted to 2 1-2 inches above 1.2 inches of precipitation. This morning it turned to slush and the weather prospects said rain was likely this afternoon.

This forecaster expected a 30-mile east wind this afternoon with the velocity increasing to 35 miles in gusts. That would be a crossfield wind as the playing field is a north-south layout.

Most of the snow will be removed from the field and stands before it melted. Some 450 University of Toronto students turned in a 6 1-2 hour snow-shovelling job on the field Saturday night. Others there were followed by 65 Toronto employees using snow-blowers, tractor-drawn scrapers and snowploughs on the field.

The field and the stands were cleared and almost dry but the field was heavy. Some of the field's 6,000 seats remained down in the centre, sinking about a foot, and had to be towed off.

"It will be playing going, eliminating the possibility of the playing of basketball shoes," said Harry Griffiths, manager of the stadium. "I don't think the mud will be deep enough to cause cleats. Ordinary cleats should do."

Two tons of snow, which turned into slush with the upswing in temperature and rain starting at 4 a.m., was shovelled into trucks and other vehicles and moved out of the stadium.

Hundreds Flee Red Drive On Inchon

Tokyo, Nov. 25 — (AP) — United Nations forces rammed ahead toward the communist Manchurian border in the northwest offensive today but their extreme right flank was shoved back by counter-attacking reds.

Gains on the winding 80-mile front ranged up to six miles, with Chongju falling to the Americans on the left flank of the concerted drive, but on the extreme east flank, strong communist forces plunged six miles into South Korean positions.

U.S. 1st Corps spokesman described the red attack as the first major reversal of the two-day offensive which Gen. Douglas MacArthur hopes will end the war by Christmas.

The reds penetrated the South Korean 8th Division to a point near Yongju, 32 air miles east of Tokchon, on the far right flank of the northwest front. The spokesman said the reds presumably were Chinese.

Reds Try to Turn Flank

It is apparent that the reds were trying to turn the flank of the offensive, but it remained to be seen in what strength. Prisoners captured Friday said a full Chinese division was dug in about 10 miles north of Yongju.

The scrap on the right flank of the northwest front contrasted with the absence of opposition on the extreme left flank. There the highway hub of Chongju fell to a tank-led task force of the U.S. 24th Division without a fight.

Chongju is 51 road miles south of the Yalu River border city of Sinuiju, main gateway for Chinese communists entering the war. Patrols of the 24th struck 10 miles north outside Chongju toward Kusong.

In that sector there was no resistance.

Earlier Saturday, the offensive was dealt another, but minor, setback in the centre of the line. In the Taedong area, 40 miles northeast of Chongju and on the 24th's right flank, the South Korean 1st Division was thrown back 2 1-2 miles.

There the reds pierced the line only temporarily. They struck in the pre-dawn darkness, but were buried back in the daylight hours.

All along the line, B-29 Superfortresses and fighters supported the U. N. drive.

The South Koreans were heading toward the great Suiho dam on the Yalu upstream from Sinuiju. Fourth largest in the world, the dam supplies hydro-electric power for most of Manchuria and North Korea. Most of the communist resistance is expected in that sector.

As eighth Army spokesman said the offensive generally "exceeded planning expectations". With Gen. MacArthur personally signalling the kick-off, the push has generated a spirit of prolonged lull and rumors of peace.

On the one-hundred northeast front, the South Korean capital division, thrust to the edge of Chongjin, last major North Korean city south of the Soviet Division and allied forces elsewhere in the northeast.

Enter By Saturday

But it was on the northwest push that MacArthur was planning his hopes for ending the war on Christmas.

On the west end of the line, an American tank-led task force of the 24th division seized hills overlooking Chongju on the eastern outskirt. The Americans were preparing to enter the city at the highway junction.

Other elements of the 24th, advancing north from Pakchon on the right flank, reported destroying a Joseph Stalin III tank, a Russian-built model weighing nearly 60 tons.

It was the first such official designation of a giant red tank in Korea, although Allied troops have been reporting and seeing mammoth tanks. Later, however, they encountered the new T-34 tanks also. Hundreds were destroyed.

East of the 24th, the South Korean 1st Division was hit twice by about 3,000 communists in the Taedong area northeast of Taechon. But by daylight the South Koreans were in the pre-dawn areas. said they drove the reds back but still faced stiff resistance.

Farther east, the U.S. and 25th Divisions advanced up to three miles Saturday.

AP correspondent William J. Wagner reported that air observers spotted a red division, about 8,000 men, moving south Saturday.

Across the peninsula's mountainous east-central and coastal sector, U.S. 1st Marine Division patrols reached the northeastern edge of Yongju, capital city on the west side of the big lake, Marines continued moving northward, backed and slowed by unmanned road blocks.

TITO RELEASES SLAV PLOTTER AFTER CONFESSION

Once a Top Yugoslav, In Prison Two Years

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 25 —(AP) — Premier Tito yesterday caused a sensation by releasing from prison his former chief collaborator after the man signed a confession that he treacherously plotted against the Yugoslav government.

The man released is Mladen Zulovic. He once had a strong following among the Yugoslavs, especially the dominant Serbs, and was the man the Russians once apparently had regarded as strong enough to unseat the rebel Tito. The confession meant Tito had broken down one of his toughest opponents.

Zulovic was finance minister in Tito's cabinet and a member of the Yugoslav communist party's central committee before the Soviet-led Cominform broke with Tito in 1948. Zulovic was an old-line communist who had been in the party for 25 years and had fought in Tito's anti-Nazi partisan movement. He had been in prison for more than two years.

Zulovic emphasized in a confession that the Cominform-line party had "saved me and millions of others from a dreadful nightmare and opened my eyes to the path of truth." He confessed to detailed spying on Yugoslav and the communist party for Russia.

In a statement preceding the confession, the state prosecutor said Zulovic had been "re-educated" by the party and before he leased "because his confession showed he was re-educated and because the aim of re-education is the purpose of our criminal law."

Red Counter Blow Drives Six Miles Into East Flank

Result Called First Major Reversal of Offensive

The counter-blow, launched by Lt.-Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's Eighth Army, struck at the Communist Manchurian border in the northwest offensive today but their extreme right flank was shoved back by counter-attacking reds.

The wreaths will be replaced at Cenotaph time next spring. Four wreaths were left at the Cenotaph and these will be replaced periodically during the winter months.

Five Bodies in Train Wreckage Yet, Hold Little Hope for Rescuers

Edmonton, Nov. 25—CP—Bodies of five of the 20 persons killed by Trans-Canada Air Lines plane crash have not been recovered from the fire-scarred wreckage, and there is little chance they can be found now.

This was revealed last night by Dr. Max Cantor, Alberta's chief coroner, who said that the explosion and fire which swept through—the wreckage on the night of the crash made further entry by 15 bodies had been received.

Dr. Cantor said it is believed "there is little hope that they will be taken out."

Meanwhile, railroad workers still are turning over the wreck debris. The first of several hearings into the crash, an inquiry on behalf of the Canadian National Railways, was scheduled to open today at Kamloops, B. C., 191 miles west of the wreck. The Railroad has already commandeered has scheduled a public inquiry for Dec. 11 at Edmonton.

Mayors Receive Acclamations in Many Cities

(By The Canadian Press)

For more than 50 Ontario municipalities, civic election day this year will be more or less of an anti-climax.

Acclamations were the order of the day for the chief executive's job in five cities, and standing in most 40 townships as nomination meetings were held yesterday throughout a large section of the province.

In Hamilton, a city of 38,000 population, almost the entire municipal slate was filled by acclamation, including Mayor Howard E. Winter. Only possibility of a vote there stayed in the Ward 3 Tory candidates turned up to challenge a council seat held by Clifford Bateman who seeks re-election.

No candidates showed up in Windsor for the jobs of Mayor Michael Starr of Oshawa, Dr. E. Cecil Glidden, St. Thomas, T. M. Palmer, North Bay, and W. Fred Reynolds, Brockville.

One of the most hotly-contested civic elections, at least from the number of candidates nominated, shaped up in the city of Hamilton. The only acclamations there went to four nominees seeking seats on the Board of Education.

N.Y. Rail Customers Refuse To Sit in Wreck "Death Seats"

New York, Nov. 25.—(CP)—Jittery commuters rode the Long Island Railroad in their usual numbers yesterday — but they carefully avoided sitting in the "death seats" in the front and rear cars.

David G. Bareuther, Associated Press staff writer and himself a commuter, said in the last car of the 6.09 p.m. train to Hempstead that the one struck in Wednesday's wreck by a speeding express—rode it again last night.

He said he was on the train when the crash occurred—killing 77 and injuring more than 200—because he went home early Wednesday.

Bareuther said the aisles of the centre car and standees last night but only 10 persons rode in the almost-empty smoker, end coach on the 6:09.

Almost all the riders present were regulars who for one reason or another had failed to make the connection Wednesday.

STOLE TOOLS FOR SYSTEM

St. Catharines, Nov. 25 (CP)—Harold Davey is burning mad, all because of a theft with a delicate sense of timing. It was bad enough when he found that one of his electrical supply store here Thursday night and stole $300 worth of electrical tools. But what really made it hurt was that the tools were what Davey bought specifically to install a burglar alarm system. He was going to hook it up Friday.

Rhee Asks Unity Between Korea, United Nations

Seoul, Nov. 25 (AP)—The next two weeks will be crucial for the future of Korea, President Syngman Rhee said today. But he predicted victory in the war which entered its sixth month today.

Rhee certain, but equally important to the republic's future, is the need for unity between the republic and the United Nations Commission for the unification and rehabilitation of Korea, Rhee said in an interview.

"I am hopeful the commission will gain a full perspective of Korea's position," he continued. "It appears to be composed of high-calibre, sincere diplomats and I am sure we have in common with the aims of the Korean people's desires be fulfilled From the public's enthusiasm during our many appearances in Pyongyang, Hamhung and Wonsan, it is obvious North Koreans are eager to reorganize the authority of the R.O.K. Although he was confident of his political future, Rhee said he moves indicate his concern over opposition in the assembly. Rhee ousted three ministers last week and intends to make more changes.

Gideon Speaker

The Gideons International, organized in 1899, is an Association of Christian business men, banded together for mutual fellowship and for the purpose of winning others to the Lord Jesus Christ.

Interdenominational in character, the main qualifications for membership are a belief in the Bible as the inspired Word of God and a personal knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour.

The membership, numbering over 15,000, engage in various forms of personal evangelism. They are best known, however, for their distribution of the Holy Scriptures which, since 1908, have resulted in the placing in circulation of almost two hundred copies of the complete Bible and more than fifteen million New Testaments with Psalms.

One of their members, Brother J. R. Russell, will speak at Bridge Street Church at 11 a.m. this coming Sunday.

Mr. Russell is a past Dominion President of the Gideons International in Canada, and has also sat as Canadian Executive Director on the International Cabinet. Expect Canada Spend $5 Million Aiding Korea

Ottawa, Nov. 25 (CP)—Canada is expected to pour nearly $5,000,000 into the relief and rehabilitation of Korea.

The government has already agreed to ask Parliament to vote a certain sum at the session starting early in 1951, and it is believed to be of that order of magnitude.

Most of the money would be spent in Canada, buying lumber, food and other commodities to be shipped to the battle-razed peninsula for use by a United Nations relief agency operating as the post-war U.N.R.R.A. in Europe.

External Affairs Minister Pearson, at a press conference yesterday, said Canada's U.N. delegation has been discussing at this General Assembly in New York for a distribution of the costs of aiding Korea on an equitable basis.

But he admitted that the idea has made few yards. It appeared to be the broad desire to ask member countries for voluntary donations.

The Dominion Cabinet, he indicated, has already agreed to recommend a Canadian contribution that would be based on the same proportion as the 3.26 per cent Canada puts into the general U.N. budget. However, he mentioned no specific sum.

The tentative figure mentioned at New York for the full U.N. donation is around $250,000,000. This would appear to put Canada's contribution around $7,500,000, but this is believed to be considerably above the actual figure agreed on by cabinet.

Mr. Pearson at the same time indicated that another demand on the Canadian purse strings is shaping up. He said the broad outline of the long-range economic growth plan for helping build up South-east Asia will be released Tuesday.

But, he said, it won't tell how much it's going to cost Canada. That bill, too, will have to be laid before Parliament as the final guardian of Canada's Federal purse strings.

Russia Critical Of U.S. Proposed Japanese Treaty

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Nov. 25 (Ap) — Russia's criticisms of American proposals for a Japanese peace treaty are regarded today as establishing base for a new Russian propaganda drive against the United States in Japan.

The Soviet Union raised half a dozen critical questions in a note released yesterday, one as to whether the United States and other countries might conclude a separate peace with Japan.

American officials said the Russians will get an answer to all their questions and indicated it probably will be made clear to them that a separate peace is a possibility. The United States wants an early Japanese peace settlement with Russian participation if possible on reasonable basis—but without it if necessary.

American officials are hopeful but not too optimistic about the prospects of Moscow's co-operation.

The fact that the Kremlin made the Far Eastern problems public when they were supposed to be tentative and confidential, and released their critical questions at the same time is taken as a sign that they are more interested in propaganda than in private diplomatic negotiation.

Russia inquired pointedly, for example, whether an American proposal to have U.S. forces take primary responsibility for Japan's security after a treaty is concluded means that the U.S. intends to maintain its naval, ground and air bases in Japan. The United States Constitution gives the International Cabinet. He has wide knowledge of Britain, Canada and the United States, and is in great demand as a speaker. His long years of service have given him an experience matched by few, and this, in addition to his devotion to the Gideon ministry, entitles him to an honored place in the ranks of the association.

British Hussars Strain to Meet New Russian Tank

Tokyo, Nov. 25 — (Reuters) — The British 8th Hussars armed with the latest British 52 - ton Centurion tank, were straining to get into action today after hearing that a huge Russian tank—the Stalin III—had been encountered in North Korea.

Neither tank has yet been tested in battle, and Korea may be the proving ground for both, as it is the first time the 52-ton tank has seen action in this war.

The Mark III is believed to be the latest model of the Russian 56-ton Stalin tank in action towards the end of the Second World War. It mounts a powerful 122-millimetre gun.

The Centurion is armed with a new high-velocity rifle. It has a smaller gun but is believed to have tremendous punch.

So far only one Russian Stalin has been seen in Korea, though reports two months ago said several had been thrown into action.

Britain has about 70 Centurians ready for action in Korea.

BMB Band Notes

By TREBLE CLEF

Thinking back one evening last week to our more youthful days we chanced upon a game played by many of us, and in the evolution of thought brought the game up to date. "Who am I," though in this case we changed it a bit and to be grammatically correct asked ourselves "What are we?" The reason for this oddseeming chain of thoughts stemmed from the various types of music played by your band, plus the instrumentation and types of concerts put forth by your band. The answer is not essentially a military band, or brass band, nor does the name concert orchestra cover the march renditions of John Philip Sousa.

After serious thought, the name concert military band was decided upon, this being purely a development of the brass band, with the wind instruments being solely depended upon for the interpretation of the music. John Philip Sousa's contribution was a concert military band; in fact, he "specified" the highest type of concert military band. Victor Herbert, in the 1890's, had a band in the theatre productment of this type of band, as did D. W. Reeves.

On second thought this isn't an unhappy "What" to be. The concert type orchestra appeals only to those of certain musical tastes, the brass bands are strictly for community and church work, the military band appeals to many. By being a concoction of these we hope to appeal to the populace at large.

Having thus decided "what" we are, we now continue our existence in a much happier frame of mind. The U.S. Military bands, which are along the style of a concert military band, list a minimum requirement of fifty members. But as we count noses, many times our feeble accounting abilities are taxed beyond the simple number like, say 25, or so. It is difficult to be somewhat subtle, and to not correct the leader and say that attendances are not up to a very high standard.

Putting oneself in the Bandmaster's size twelves, we can imagine the difficulty of producing music like a 28 piece minimum band, with barely twenty pieces in the first place. Before becoming too involved in the higher mathematics of addition and subtraction, let us just once again appeal to all band members to attend if at all possible. The place is the same, the time 8.00 on any Tuesday night and the activities are just a little interesting.

With little other conversation for this week's news, we must return again to everyday life until Tuesday when the place will become the Belleville Multipurpose Band, Your Band.

Burglar Steals Tools Used to Install Alarm

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 25—(CP) — Harold Davy is burning mad, all because of a thief with a delicate sense of timing.

It was bad enough when a burglar broke into his electrical supply store here Thursday night and stole $250 worth of electrical tools.

But what really made it hurt was that the tools were ones Davy bought specifically to install a burglar-alarm system.

Early History of the Moira Valley

From Moira Valley Conservation Report

EXPANSION AND RECESSION 1857 - 1896

(13th Instalment)

In December 1856 the rumble of the first Grand Trunk train crossing the bridge over the Moira had heralded the opening of a new era in Central Ontario, but the change can hardly have been apparent to most of the inhabitants of the Moira Watershed. Life went on much as it had in 1856, although the distance between Belleville and the outside world had been shortened over night and there was an inevitable quickening of pace. It was to be many years however, before railways reached Madoc or Tweed, and horse-drawn traffic continued to move to Belleville from the north along the same highways and in much the same way as before.

The railway did not bring an immediate increase of prosperity, for the Crimean War boom collapsed in 1857 and during the few years there were marked fluctuations in markets and production. The lumber trade was not seriously affected, however, and its continued expansion produced in the dependence of the Moira farmers and tradesmen on lumber contracts. Immigration into the area continued, if more slowly, for some time. Most newcomers now going to the more northern townships. Sidney and Thurlow were still gaining population until after 1871, but the increase could be accounted for by a high birth rate and growing villages. Huntingdon lost inhabitants during the 'sixties,' probably to the neighboring townships. Tyendinaga had been gaining rapidly during the 1850's, and most of the settlement along Park's Creek may be dated from that decade. After 1861 Tyendinaga began to lose population, slowly at first and then more rapidly.

There were a number of new settlements in Hungerford at this time. Between Chisholm's Mills on the Moira and Marlbank, the first concession began to fill up and 5th settlers moved southward to settle around Marlbank and into the valley of the Clare River.

A. L. Bogart of Bellville acquired a large tract on the Clare about 1853 and soon began to develop this area, building first a sawmill and then a grist mill at Bogart. By the mid-sixties this was a thriving and productive settlement on the north and east. The slightly earlier settlement around Clarsview was well established before 1860 and soon these settlements on the Clare River were connected by way of East Hungerford and Otter Creek. The founding of Bridgewater (Actinolite) led to some development between this new village and Tweed, and by 1870 the settlement in Hungerford may be said to be complete, for there was little change in population during the next fifteen years.

Madoc township was probably at its most populous during the gold rush of 1856-70, but this was too brief a period to affect the census lists. These show a slight loss of inhabitants by 1871 and a fairly steady decline after that census. Since the villages were growing during the 'seventies' and 'eighties,' the decline in the farm population of this township was somewhat more marked than the figures indicate. It was due to a change in the habits of the Madoc families, from seasonal lumbering combined with farming to more or less full-time farming after that to any decline in the number of farms. The acreage of improved land was actually increasing fairly fast in this period, but it was becoming more necessary for some members of farm families who had worked in the camps to find employment away from home. The building of the Ontario Central Railway started some new development in the northwest corner of the township, but this caused no permanent increase in the total number of inhabitants.

Elsevir was organized as a township and separated from Madoc before 1861. Its population grew during the next two decades. Then the same situation developed As in Madoc, the population declining while the acreage of improved land grew greater. In both these townships the period of settlement may be said to have come to an end before 1875.

The population of Marmora township rose considerably in the later 'fifties' and continued to increase for the next thirty years. At first most of this new settlement was outside the watershed, but gold was discovered in this part of the Moira Valley and the opening of the railway led to the founding of villages along the line, as it did also in Madoc township. Marmora township held its ground until the end of the century.

There had been a few settlers in Tudor township since before 1851, but it was not till the proposals for the Hastings Road were started about 1837 that a serious attempt was made to develop the northern part of Hastings county. In 1858 township lots laid out and added to the county and the line of the proposed road was designed to follow as closely as possible the boundary between the two western tiers of Tudor township. It followed the boundary between Tudor and Lake Louisa and then south as Glanvire and then turned southeast at an angle of about 30 degrees, reached the northern boundary of Madoc township at the front of the sixth concession of Madoc just north of Bannockburn. About half of this section of the road in Tudor township lie within the Moira Watershed. The Government made the road in the first place, but the settlers were under the obligation of keeping it up.

The beginning of another colonization scheme of the same kind in Thurlow had resulted by a strip of "narrow hundreds" with lots considerably smaller than in the Madoc-Tudor boundary and starting from it three-quarters of a mile and a half from Bridge. This strip, however, was only carried to the seventh concession of Tudor.

By 1861 nearly 100 families had settled in the townships along these roads. They had cleared on the average between fifty and fifteen acres per family.

Municipal Development

"Town Meetings" had been held in the townships from the early days of settlement and were legalized by statute in 1793. At these annual meetings the freeholders elected their local officers — a moderator, a clerk, constable, pathmasters, fence viewers, poundkeepers and others. (Freeholders paying a specified rent were also qualified to vote). However, these officers were responsible to the magistrates in Quarter Sessions and since the latter were appointed by governors the latter officials had little real control. The justices of the peace controlled the finances, settled disputes of labor and taxes and had certain other powers. The exercise of this authority was sometimes arbitrary and prejudiced and a cause of dissatisfaction and complaint. The District Council Act of 1841 permitted the subdivision of districts and the election of district councils by those qualified to vote at the townships. All the municipal powers of the Courts of Quarter Session were transferred to these councils. The Baldwin Municipal Act of 1849 went much further and by providing for the incorporation of townships, towns, counties and cities, established municipal government in Ontario on practically its present basis.

The county of Hastings had existed since 1792, returning members to the House of Assembly and having its own militia. Until 1837, however, it formed part of the Midland District. The counties played little part in local government and the District Court sat at Kingston or Adolphustown. There had been agitation to make Belleville the centre of a separate district for some time and decision to do so was finally made in 1837, for a courthouse was begun in that year at Belleville and finished in 1838. In 1839 Hastings county was divided from the Midland District and became the Victoria District. This was a welcome change for the inhabitants of the new county as well as for the people of Belleville. They no longer had to take a long and troublesome journey to attend the courts and had much more direct control of their own local affairs. After the passage of the Municipal Act of 1849 the Victoria District was abolished and the county of Hastings took its place in the new system.

Ten of the townships in which the Moira Watershed lies were incorporated by the Simcoe Act and joined to Madoc for municipal purposes. A village was selected in each township as an administrative centre and township halls (usually referred to as "Town Halls") were built for the accommodation of the township councils and the Division Courts. The township centres within the watershed in 1856 were Cannifton for Thurlow, Foxboro for Huntingdon, Georgetown for Hungerford, and Madoc Post Office, or "Hastings" for Madoc township. The other township centres were outside the watershed, though Marmora village is close to the watershed boundary. In 1858 Bridgewater (Actinolite) became the centre for Elzevir and a hall was built there. The fact of being the township centre naturally gave added importance to a village, bringing business to the inns, blacksmiths' shops and stores.

The new system of local government worked well on the whole and has not been radically changed in the century during which it has been in force. Difficult conditions of travel made decentralization a necessity and this was inevitably responsible for some duplication of function. It is on this score that the system is usually criticized today. Changing conditions have already brought about some reforms and it is possible that further reform is desirable, but the form which this should take is still an open question.

Public Education

Schools were set up in the Quinte region soon after the first settlement. These first schools were due entirely to the initiative of the inhabitants or were the ventures of private individuals. In 1816 legislation was passed making it legal for the inhabitants of a township, town, or village to hold meetings for the purpose of starting "common" schools and building schoolhouses. The township undertook to build a schoolhouse, to pay a teacher (in part at least) and "engaged to provide twenty scholars or more" they were empowered to appoint trustees to manage the school and could apply for a grant from the Provincial Board of Education. District boards were appointed and these had power to grant up to £100 to £250. Grammar schools were established in each district to provide secondary education. The government paid £100 a year to the headmasters of these schools, the balance of the salaries and any other expenses being the responsibility of the school supporters, aided by occasional grants.

This system threw most of the burden of providing schooling for their children upon the parents. In practice it was eased a little for the less fortunate by the practice of assessing subscriptions on a sliding scale and by the fact some men of substance were in the habit of contributing to the common schools even when they had no children of school age. Arrangements of this kind could not produce much addition to the numerous advocates of free education and, since the teachers had no regular training and were miserably paid in most cases, it is a wonder that the schools did not do a good deal worse. progress was made before 1838) the progress was made before 1838) the first development of the 'forties' is evident.

The grammar schools were not brought into the new system until 1853. The number was then increased and about this time no grammar school was opened in Madoc to serve the northern part of the country.

The new system brought little change in the character of the schools. With better pay and special training, tipsy pedagogues disappeared and were gradually disappeared from the schoolroom to provide schoolboys did not disappear at once, but some of the school buildings built on the Moira in the 1850's, though very simple in design, are substantial, well - built, well - proportioned little buildings, very suitable for their purpose even by the standard of a much later period.

School taxes were introduced to provide funds for education. There was still no provision for the proper training of teachers.

Although the reforms of 1841 brought about a notable advance in the number and quality of the common schools, they did not satisfy the demand for a system of universal free education. In 1844 Egerton Ryerson was appointed Superintendent of Education and, after considerable study, he drafted legislation, passed in 1846, which set up the present public school system of Ontario.

The following figures show the development of public education in the Victoria District during the 1840's:

Number of Common Schools

Township	1845	1847	1849
Thurlow	7	19	20
Huntingdon	6	7	9
Hungerford	6	8	13
Madoc	5	8	9
Sidney	8	12	14
Tyendinaga	16	22	24
Rawdon	7	12	13
Marmora	5	4	—
Total	55	99	113

When these figures are compared with that of twelve common schools for the whole Midland District (five counties) in 1831 (bearing in mind that little

RESOURCEFULNESS

To be able to form an instantaneous decision and the correct one is the envy and admiration of everyone. The successful person has command of himself or herself and acts wisely.

To see immediately what is to be done in the face of a crisis or critical situation is a gift which all might well envy. Especially is this true in a time of great danger. Less for instance the situation that immediately faces a person with the sudden discovery of fire in the home.

The news on Thursday told a dramatic story of a Sudbury husband and father who was able through his calmness in danger to preserve his family intact and get them out of their burning home in the dead of night.

Hector Casey and his wife and four children under nine years of age, squeezed their way when the passage leading from the bedrooms to the stairway was cut off by flames and smoke. Casey broke a window with a few inches square, in the upstairs bathroom, smashed the sash and helped them through. He had taken a mattress and dropped it out of the small window to break the fall of the children to the ground. Then he helped them through the window. The fire chief, who should know what he spoke, said that but for Casey's action all six of the family would without doubt have lost their lives. To lose one's head in such a situation might well have proven fatal.

That is a happy story in spite of the loss of the home by fire.

IRON DISCOVERIES

Iron ore discoveries and developments which are now going on in Eastern Ontario and in the north have been attracting a great deal of attention as the public realises the importance of this metal in the nation's Premier Leads. It was stated recently that in Eastern Ontario including the area around Marmora an American steel corporation and other companies had been conducting drilling operations following what the Premier and Mines Minister Gemmell mentioned as substantial tonnages worthy of commercial development."

Of the future Mr. Frost said that "these developments iron deposits are going to mean an enormous industry. We are going to see explorations being carried on and are coming into their own in this great development. It will have a profound effect upon the economy of the province."

It is worthy of note that Americans have been taking interest in the discovery and development of the deposits in Ontario and Quebec.

The Ontario Government Services says in its November issue that "a picture of developing potential for Ontario has changed in America because many of the largest corporations are turning their attention to deposits in Ontario and other places in Canada instead of searching wide and far within and this continent." The surface has only been scratched in regard to "fields" of iron through Marmora, Hastings and into Addington and Frontenac, he said, this iron range — considered probably of low ore though not definitely determined — extends into New York state and Ontario. In the Adirondacks there has been operated in the search for much-needed new sources of iron for steel. In the Sault Ste. Marie area, he pointed out, the known reserves exceed half a billion tons. Developments in this area, too, he said, are forecast to continue.

RIGHT RETORTS

One of the peculiar irritations of life is thinking of the right retort to a smart remark half an hour too late. It is particularly true if the remark has tended to shake one's ego by making one an object of ridicule. Only those of exceptional powers of reconstruction and imagination can derive any pleasure from reliving the incident to their satisfaction by later insertion of the magic riposte.

As Bacon, that past master in the art of producing appropriate sayings, has quoted: "Occasion furneth a man with words; a good occasion furneth a good man's mouth with apt words, and a good occasion furneth a man with good words or fit subject for them."

Many a man immediately after he has presented her locks in front, and a good retort has presented her locks in front, and hold taken." The great difficulty is to recognise Occasion before she turns; she is as a rule only too easily recognisable in retrospect.

Those who have made a success of their own lives by long others how to succeed rightly place great stress on necessity of grasping opportunities, but all neglect the essential element of the success story, which is how recognize opportunities if they arise.

Reflection, however, might suggest that it is perhaps all that opportunity is a mysterious lady who likes to her face. A world in which all were successful would ly become dull and boring. Such an opinion, at least, be some consolation to the majority of mankind, who ally grape at Bacon's Occasion too late even to scratch bald pack-pate. — Montreal Gazette.

Justice is the first virtue of those who command and the complaints of those who obey. — Diderot.

GOOD ANNOYANCE

a lad's a little noisy at his play
Be patient and enjoy it while you may.
All the time some when he cannot rise about
I'll be wishing that his little feet were stout.

talks when you are talking, he will, remember, were his voice forever still.
go he'd frequently annoyed you with his chat,
I'd be wishing for annoyance such as that.

You were once a little fellow,
father wise,
You were eager and bad
mischief in your eyes,
But your father and your mother loved you true,
It is difficult for children to be good.

They were patient, though they scolded now and then,
And they loved you with a love that knows no end.
Although often you annoyed them they were glad That health and strength to trouble them you had.

His Highness stated to the press this morning that this was his first trip to Belleville. He arrived in the city last night via motorcycle and left today with great hopes of landing in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., by the same method.

There is a possibility that a soup kitchen will be established at the police station to allow those who seek lodgings for the night to get a free cup of coffee, their own meals instead of the city taxing tickets for meals at local restaurants.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE NEXT STEP

As we drive a car at night we can see the road immediately ahead of us. Of course we can realize our headlights and take in a little more of the road ahead, but we see a little farther into the field on either side. But only a little.

We drive at night by following a road that we know or a road well marked on the map, and all we have to guide us is the little area of light ahead of our car.

In every life there are ideals towering like mountain peaks in the distance. But their nearer peaks are few in number. Life consists for the most part in taking the next step, and that is all we can see clearly.

Experience (or the road we have travelled many times before) leads us in a certain direction. We have maps (the counsel of loved ones, our philosophy of life, the Word of God) to guide us. But the future is hidden from every living soul, and that is a merciful provision indeed.

We see the road just ahead of us. Our light may be extended a little by education, by increased experience, by the opening of our spiritual life, but at best the future is enshrouded in darkness.

But there is that light ahead, and when we follow that, we can go on our way with calmness and assurance.

Adenauer Blames West for Disunity In Germany

Bonn, Germany, Nov. 25 (AP) —West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today told High Commissioner André Francois-Poncet of France that the Western Allies have only themselves to blame for German disunity over rearmament, a qualified German source disclosed.

The source said Francois-Poncet called on Francois-Poncet to complain that he had been "let-down by Allied failure to agree on the question of the German contribution to western defence.

His socialist opposition had seized on the uncertainties surrounding the subject to make it a hot internal political issue. Allied Adenauer lacked full Allied support he fight back, he was quoted as saying.

Realtor Catches Fish Hook in Eye, Flies to Surgeon

Albany, N.Y., Nov. 25 (AP)—Charles Cox, 38, a real estate agent, caught a fish hook in his eye yesterday and had to be flown 150 miles to Atlanta, Ga., to have it removed. Cox married his eye will be took on the Official fish when he got a bad backlash in a cast on a nearby lake.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

THE SEA AGAIN

Nothing in a full 15,000 miles has given us the same sense of elation as driving toward the Pacific with the knowledge that before the day was done we'd be camped beside "our" ocean.

In the history books they make a great thing of the thrill / for those early explorers, Cortez and Balboa and others, when they first topped the last rise, shaded their eyes, and sighted the sea for the first time. I'm prepared to report that the thrill goes just as deep when you know what lies ahead. Then you have not merely the expectation of something beautiful, but a promise, kept, and rediscovery is always headier wine than discovery.

We left our desert camp outside Yuma, Arizona, early in the morning and drove first through the incredible Sand Hills, California's own, personal Sahara, where you keep an uncomfortable eye on the camels expecting to sight a camel train or a robed sheik or two. Wild Arabs.

Then we went across the wide, dry Imperial Valley into the little town of El Centro, which has a curious psychological effect on my wife and me.

A couple of years ago when we travelled down to Mexico we'd passed through El Centro. The homeland-like atmosphere of a highway we'd traversed before gave us both the feeling of being home. Any recognized landmark—the chalk white town of Mexicali, for instance—straightened this illusion. With some 1800 miles to go we were talking as if we'd reached the outskirts of our town.

This sort of illusion is common enough, but it's not always true. Time itself gets all twisted up. If we reminisce about adventures we've had, we'll look back from a hill or talk about the long drive through northern Ontario it's as if we were recalling events of years ago.

Again, the drive down the eastern seaboard from Maine to Florida seemed a million miles because everything was strange. But the drive to complete the same familiar distance from California to Arizona Columbia is as if it were no more than a pleasant Sunday drive.

I suppose there's a psychic moral, but it seems to me that anything in life is easy—once you've done it.

Going Up

At El Centro we faced a choice of routes. We could turn north and follow the Imperial Valley up past Palm Springs, Banning, Redlands and down to Los Angeles. Or we could head on directly west over the mountains to San Diego and that little plus ocean. We decided on the mountains.

It was a long and agonizing climb. In less than 10 miles the road rises from sea level to more than 400 fee: and there's still more ahead before you reach the Texate pinnacle. Sunset is a roller-coasting down to the Pa-

AH, SWEET MYSTERY OF LIFE

Speaking as an obscure practitioner who had four years of high school — but four years in Philadelphia High School, I'd have you know, if any of you college people feel inclined to sneer—and went through a Yale and Harvard in two afternoons—before entering medical school to dawdle for four more years before entering on a 30-months internship before beginning practice in Penn Yan — I am of the opinion that there is no substitute for a single fault in my medical education. I should have taught school, kept books, peddled fish and or clerked in a drugstore for two or three years between high school and medical school. In medical school I found that the students who had been out a bit along better than those who had not. I think I had much the best experience with life.

I had practised medicine for twelve or fifteen years before it dawned on me that the popular expression "worse than death" was what physicians and pediatrists mean when they speak of "a sickly child." And that, I had always wondered what they were talking about. In Bundesen's Care of the Feet (for copy send 10c and self-addressed stamped envelope) I explain that this rolling in at the ankles is common in children 7 to 18 years of age, due to latent or unrecognized weakness of the feet. Failure to fit in the selection of shoes, adequate intake of calcium and D and perhaps failure to support properly developed muscles for daily walking are other corrective exercises.

Only recently have I solved what had been a mystery to me in the Canadagua, Penn Yan, Elmira, Binghamton and Utica epochs—the solution occurred one soft February afternoon on the Pennsylvania R.R. W. A. Adm. was half drowning in a deck chair, smoking my first cigarette for the day, and I can't remember just what line of thought led to it. But anyway I solved a mystery at least to my own satisfaction.

It has had a vague feeling in addition that there is something in beauty, feminine or masculine, good nutrition, good health, complexion, good teeth, good posture, and that sort of thing. Perhaps I had never been able to determine just what it is that makes one individual strikingly more beautiful than another who is equally well developed with all the features mentioned. This afternoon, as nearly as I can describe it, is a radiance, a vivility ...etched on my memory are the days of a clinical medical school's ten year old child, a beautiful child, and her young nurse—when I came out of the anesthetic and saw her face I knew that I must have been in my loes and arrived where all good doctors go.

There was no such example of beauty on board, as I recall, except the one who accompanied me on the voyage, but as we approached the coast that afternoer afternoon it suddenly occurred to me that the essence of beauty which I had hitherto failed to recognize was of course—

Good metabolism.

Now I need not bore you by enumerating the many things that cause faulty or slow metabolism. I'll just mention a few things that often converts a poor metabolism into a good one, and it brings to a dull, deadpan, unimpressive countenance a touch of liveliness which is truly beautiful. The thing is The Iodin Ration—for instructions see Book 7—and send a stamped self-addressed envelope. If it doesn't make you beautiful in three months, please remember that after all, I'm not a miracle man. But in any case

I can virtually promise you, maiden or matron or child, that it will make you look better than you look now.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Nitroglycerin

You said nitroglycerin tablets lose their strength in two weeks. My pharmacist says this is inaccurate. Please let me know. (J. P.)

Answer—It is inaccurate. I said the tablets lost strength on standing and unsatisfactorily. I said it. So it is better to get them fresh at two-week intervals if you use them steadily.

Trick Specialist

A leading pediatrician here calls electro-coagulation of tonsils "a trick operation." Is a doctor using such a method in this state would lose his license. (C. W. M.)

Answer—I don't know which state is yours, but no matter, the situation is not quite as you state it. Probably he was trying to sell you the old Spanish custom.

Cramps in Hands and Feet

I have cramps in hands and feet. Is there a remedy to control these cramps? (S. W. A.)

Answer—In most cases, I believe, it is tetany. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet Adult Tetany and Growing Pains.

Gout

What causes the gout How can it be prevented recurrences? What treatment is best for the pain? (W. A. S.)

Answer—The old timers believed it was due to deposits of chalk-stones in or near the affected joint or joints, the uric acid being derived from nitrogenous food products (purins) "digested" most, etc., which the scientific individual may unable to burn completely. Too much meat, overeating, insufficient exercise, alcoholic indulgence were the presumptive causative factors, and sugar, starches and fats largely. Scientifically the concept of gout has not been substantiated. In my opinion it is a "rubber"—it doesn't happen in man.

Engineers Form Advisory Council

Kingston, Nov. 25 (CP)—In a move to bring industry and specialised science closer together, Queen's University announced today formation of an advisory council for engineering which will work with the school of applied science.

Seventy-five Canadian and U.S. engineers form the council, divided into seven committees representing the branches of engineering.

Personnel of the council include F. H. Sexton, Bethlehem, Pa.; R. Mott, Falconbridge; J. E. Neilson, St. Catharines.

Chairman is Norman F. Tisdale, chief engineer of the Molybdenum Corporation, Pittsburgh.

BURGLARS SCARED OFF

Prescott, Nov. 25—CP—Provincial police said today burglars were frightened off by a night watchman after they had broken into the bank proper and apparently were working on the safe when scared away.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TAKE A CHANCE!

There are no more fascinating stories than those of our pioneers, inventors and scientists, for they have all had the pioneering spirit which makes for progress. Those who take a chance, who are willing to risk, to experiment, and to continually try out new ideas and plans are our great benefactors.

In my reading recently I came across the story of Dr. Francis Pierce. He said: "Beaten paths are for beaten men." People who take chances are those who refuse to travel the route of the multitudes, always ready to win even against the greatest of difficulties. As a matter of fact most of the world's great achievements are those that have meant struggle and difficult experiences. They inspire victory!

Bold men and women have written the history of the world. One of the most inspiring of modern times is the immortal Winston Churchill. His history of the Second World War will be a wild inspiration to others from now, or for as long as books last.

Initiative is a wonderful possession. It inspires men to take a chance, to dare, and to go ahead. Without it we would all remain static and uninteresting. Read the thrilling story of the South Pole explorers, Scott and Shackleton, often called the George Washington of that continent to the south. He gave freedom to that vast area from long Spanish rule. He led his men through many a trial and hardship. He repeatedly took chances. He never gave up.

There was not beaten path to the door of the man who made the proverbial better mousetrap, but until a chance was taken in making that better mouse-trap. The world remained content to win and flying machine took chances with their lives, as many another has done since, before it was willing a chance and offering his own body for experimental use.

Those are always risks in taking a chance, but, as we have often said, "Nothing ventured, nothing gained." So, if you believe in yourself, or in the idea which stirs your mind, take a chance. Test it out. A multitude of silent winners will be watching and cheering you on!

India Sends Grain To Parched Area

Patna, India, Nov. 25—(Reuter)—The Indian government has sent 10,000 tons of grain to Bihar province, threatened by widespread famine after a 10-week drought.

Army engineers have been posted to the vast province of 40,000,000 persons, India's main industrial region, to harness all available water to irrigate the parched land.

The drought struck Bihar soon after it had been ravaged by August floods from the Kosi River—"River of Sorrows."

MORE CHRISTMAS TREES

Bridgewater, N.S. (CP)—The Höfert Christmas tree yard, in operation for many years, has more Christmas trees this season than ever before. Thirty thousand balsa were planted in the yard in mid-November and the company hopes to ship 100 carloads to the United States.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Human beings manage to think well of their species despite all their continuous failure to make themselves comfortable. For several thousand years men have been writing books in their own praise, thanking themselves their own glorification, and making endless speeches of congratulation to their own kind.

Actually, they have no sooner got one little scheme worked out for their own security and comfort than they think up something new to destroy it. Their latest masterpiece of folly is the building of magnificent cities with every conceivable convenience for comfort, and then rendering them almost uninhabitable with traffic.

Chipmunks, on the other hand, work out a system of civilization of their own countless ages ago and are sticking to it harmously, without having uttered a single word of self-satisfaction.

All over the dominion, right now, except on the Pacific coast, these model Canadians have retired for the winter in far greater style and comfort than those who can afford to go to Florida until next April. While we are being dandified around in traffic, each chipmunk, entirely on his own, was busily engaged for about one and a half inches in diameter, straight down into good sound earth for about three to five feet. From there, he levelled out and dreamed out a sleeping chamber, having wished us all a soldier's farewell till spring. Mostly, he will sleep. But now and then, he will wake drowsily for a sip of cane bug or a snack of wintergreen berries, or even a willow a trace of vain glory!

Serious Problems Shadow Britain's Joy at Christmas

Editors Note: Frank H. King, who covered the Royal Visit to Canada in 1939 after heading the London bureau of The Associated Press, now is a general executive for AP at Dallas, Texas. Here is his picture of English life on a return visit to see his son, a Rhodes Scholar:

By FRANK H. KING

London — (AP) — Christmas, even in late fall, was in the misty air of England.

The best Christmas for many a year. One more good one, perhaps, and then a big question mark. Britain's problems are piling high. The year ahead will be critical.

But this year, with Christmas weeks away, London's teeming shopping streets could hardly hold the people. Sidewalk artists, pavement musicians and the tailend of the tourist horde are packed in by the crush while the big red double-deck buses run almost bumper to bumper ferrying more humanity to the stores.

Appetizing Sign

Oxford Street, long and straight, funnels its crowds through the great nerve of Regent Street to smart Piccadilly. The most appetizing sight in London is Piccadilly, a huge steaming Christmas pudding with real steam. The gentlemen clerks in a grocery there have survived bombs and social revolution. They still wear formal morning dress and have courtly manners.

Hear the conversation before a shop window packed with goods as only a London window can be stacked:

"I must buy all my little gifts today, my dear, before everything is sold."

"But it isn't like last year. There's plenty for all, my dear. Isn't it wonderful!"

On the Surface

It's wonderful on the surface. And after what the British have been through the last 10 years, who would have the heart to tell an upset, early Christmas shopper to go home and look below the surface of her welfare state economy.

"Look below the surface of your own economy in the U.S.A." said one Englishman.

Consumer goods are piled high, for export and home use. British export goods have increased from 28 per cent of total production in 1938 to 70 per cent in 1950. Food is good, plentiful and varied. A delegation of European travel experts recently said so, as do Americans who can get along without beefsteak and fresh eggs. Meat, sugar and some other items continue to be strictly rationed.

Everybody in the Isles seem to come to London to see the sights. Hotels theatres and trains are packed. Luxury still exists, but not conspicuously.

The statistics show fewer than 100 persons left with incomes after taxes between £5,000 ($15,000) and £6,700 ($20,000) yearly.

The majority of the nation's 50,000,000 workers have weekly take-home pay of less than $30.

Austere Living

This is more than the equivalent in the current American economy. A London worker who may make only eight pounds sterling weekly is better off paying only a pound a week rent than an America wage earner in similar income group. But he lives austerely, eats plain food and must watch his pennies.

Whether English worker living in a tight, austere economy will continue to stand harness through rising prices, inflationary trends, strikes and the impact of world events is the great concern of his Labor government.

His worries and his government's include:

Increased living costs, inflation threats, wildcat or "unofficial" strikes, Labor's precarious parliamentary majority, high-priced rearmament, costly state social services such as the National Health Plan; housing, food resources and reserves, world markets and increasing world commodity prices.

The bright spot in the picture is the steadiness of devalued sterling in the money markets of the world. Gold reserves are up. Exports have also been doubled in a year, but it is reported that the pound will be revalued upward are denied. Such a step now would mean the loss of benefits which low exchange gives in aiding British exports and putting a brake on imports.

Some time soon the English workers will trek for an hour or so about greyhound and horse racing, his garden patch and the local 'pub' to check with a vote on his member in the House of Commons.

From Prime Minister Clement Attlee one gets the impression he will not seek a general election before February at the earliest. This writer lunched with Attlee and American correspondents in London who asked him many questions. Attlee's great sense of responsibility for his share in world affairs is evident and the problems of Russia and China, particularly China, are of great concern. He believes what happened in Korea will help peaceful settlements with Russia.

Shadow of War

What do the people talk about in England

Not much about war. Although the shadow is dark, British leaders believe another great war can be avoided. They have universal military training. Their rearmament program has gone as far as it can without putting the country on full wartime economy. Cooperation for European defence increases.

A few weeks ago half a dozen powers joined air manoeuvres blanketing the island with bombers and fighters. American air forces are in training in England.

At a Channel port smart military police in jeeps trail an occasional celebrant. Ask the "bobby" on duty nearby how the Americans are getting along and he says just like during the war — nearly all of them "fine lads." Boy meets girl, war or no war, and there's another crop of Anglo-American babies.

Nor do people talk much about American economic aid. The King on the opening of Parliament expressed the thanks of the nation.

Practical politics apparently render inadvisable the Labor Government's emphasis on this phase of Britain's economic life, but it can put the words into the King's mouth.

Rising Living Costs

What do the people talk about? The rising cost of living, as much as anything.

Widespread concern exists over rising prices (with fear of loss of the tight control which has been tough on many people) but paid national dividends.

Labor's answer is they are lucky that prices haven't gone higher. Tight home budgets leave little margin for cutting down. Even good housewives have a struggle.

Basic in wage problem is the fact that the T.U.C. (Trades Union Congress) no longer recognizes the national "wage freeze." As a result the wage line is wavering to a breaking point at important places. Increases to government employees may have started the trend.

Coal miners, railway workers, bus drivers, engineers, all want more money. Coal, gas, clothes, food, rail fares and many items of every-day living are higher.

The "do-without 'try to solve the problem on a personal basis. They are the people who try to do without everything possible from haircuts to bus rides, movies and cigarets. Cigarets cost 50 cents a package, at 20. You see cigarets sold singly.

The new Chancellor of the Exchequer, Hugh Gaitskell, is a "do-without." He quit smoking cigarets when the tobacco tax went up.

The wave of wildcat strikes is not so serious that the ministers of labor broadcast a warning that the troubles were communist-inspired.

Variety of Strikes

Americans in London a few weeks ago found the streets almost as dark as during the war because 3,400 gas works men were out and troops were in the plants. Nearly 5,000 printers on London periodicals were out, also on a wage issue. The "unofficial" strikes have infinite range and variety.

A Birmingham textile manufacturer told the British National Union of Manufacturers employers ought to strike against nationalization.

"It's no good our building up enterprises for these present-day highwaymen to abduct them," he said.

Ask an influential minister in the Labor Government whether British employers are likely to go on strike.

"Not while they are doing as well as they are at present," he said.

To Conservative party leaders this is whistling in the dark of labor unrest. They like to think they see a surging tide of unrest in trade union ranks against the Labor Government.

The Tories are campaigning with everything from Winston Churchill down to comic books, a sports quiz, crossword puzzles and knitting patterns.

"One more heave and they're out," Churchill urges.

Labor hopes to be voted into power again for another five years to carry out their time-table of socialization and nationalization.

Attlee or Churchill, Churchill or Attlee, Britain's problems of people and resources will remain.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

Latest from the statistics people is that women get more schooling than men. Yet women hold few of the top posts in business, industry or government on this continent. While many women are temporarily handicapped in careers because of young children, the thousands of brainy women who are either unmarried or childless don't achieve the heights commensurate with their training either. Reason for this is that a prejudice against women taking on responsibility at equal pay still persists.

This prejudice was broken down considerably during the emergency years of World War II and II indicating that when they get into a real jam, men will, as a last resort, turn to the little woman for assistance. Of course, they are not willing to pay her very much, but if they are pushed to the wall, they can toss out plenty of chips.

The prejudice of women in another factor, incredible though it may seem. Women can't expect to make much headway in pealing off key posts in government if they fail so miserably in electing their sisters to the legislatures of the nation.

Most people are willing to agree that women should not get positions simply because they are women, but because they are personalities qualified and suitable for the posts.

How fine it is to see some of our Canadian women honored. Like the news when receiving honorary degrees from our universities. How refreshing to see women being appointed on some royal commissions and boards of education.

News sources in the U.S., now suggest that a woman is slated to be named assistant secretary of defence. Mrs. Anna M. Rosegberg, confidante of the late President Roosevelt, may be given charge of manpower and personnel problems in the U.S. armed forces. It will be the first time in history that a woman will have a part of authority over the army, navy and air force.

In fact that Mrs. Rosenberg is slated for this seemingly man's field, is proof that she is definitely NOT being appointed because she is a woman and women must be represented, but because she is the best person for the job.

Word from Ottawa comes that Defence Minister Claxton has more than he can handle now and that the appointment of a second defence minister is in the wind. In combing the country for a good person to fill this post it would be that a Canadian woman will measure up to the needs of this special position. Any suggestions?

Nothing tastes so good these chilly days as a big bowl of rice pudding packed full of raisins. Be sure to save the drained-off rice water for starching collars and cuffs. It does the smoothest laundry starching job on curtains too, and doesn't stick the iron.

For a must magazine article, see November McCall's with the grand personal story entitled "Meet Marian Eisenhower".

Uncle Frontenac says whenever he sees those big fifty dollar maghogany barometers advertised for men's gifts, he feels the only man you could give one to, would be one of the ten most wealthy men in the country. There have absolutely every other little thing. Uncle says who in thunder knows one of these fellas well enough to exchange Christmas presents with him anyway!

GOOD COMPANIONS' CLUB

Vice-president Bud McCready conducted the regular November meeting of the Good Companions' Club of Tabernacle United Church. There was a short singsong led by Mrs. Harold Ann, Harback led in prayer.

Magazine convener, Wes. Mifflin, gave a report on sales to date, urging each member to do his share in promoting this project of the club.

Two films "Sailing in Canada" and "Hills and Bubbles" were shown. The latter film was particularly appealing, with its setting in the lovely countryside of Prince Edward Island.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

Women's Institute

CHATTERTON W.I.

The November meeting of Chatterton Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Reid.

The meeting was opened in usual manner by the president, Mrs. G. Irvin. Following minutes of last meeting, the roll call "Work In Which Canada is Showing Signs of Dictatorship" was answered by a lively discussion of same.

Due to disappointment of part of program because of rain, the next half hour was taken for complete planning for serving at Belleville Livestock Sale, Dec. 13. This avoided a further committee meeting.

A reading was given by Lugo Prest and Mrs. Frank Tummon kindly favored with an instructive address, "Famous Canadian Women".

It was decided each member, who wished to would leave "Ivory soap and face cloth package" at Mrs. Reid's not later than Wednesday. These will be shipped to Europe. A layette for the same purpose has been donated and made by ladies of the Institute.

Roll call answered and should warm some needy mother's heart.

Mrs. Reid and her helping hostess, convener served refreshments and all enjoyed the accompanying social period.

Edwardian Elegance

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THIS beautiful black velvet gown harks back for its dignity to the early Edwardian days, when Edward was still Prince of Wales.

Today's version enhances the figure of fewer buxom curves, so that the straight front is real, not armored, and the outstanding feature is artistry, not Madam. The very low neckline is balanced by the wide sleeve line, and the shoulder, in classic style and with great success!

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

One fall girl who is learning to handle her problem

A few weeks ago, a letter was printed in this column from a girl who was very distressed because she was taller than girls are apt to be.

This letter, and my reply to her, brought a number of communications from other girls with the same problem. Most of them as is of course only natural, add their fun in life was all but destroyed because they were so self-conscious about their height.

This is such a difficult problem, and one to which it is so hard to adjust, that it was very pleasant to find, among the other letters, one in which the writer tells of her increasing success in handling it.

Here is what she wrote:

"For a long time I felt just as unhappy as the girl whose letter you printed about the fact that I am unusually tall for a girl. You can bet that I, too, had trouble finding tall men for dates, especially as all through childhood and adolescence I dreamed of a tall blond knight in shining armor.

"What am I going out with now, and what is he like? He's four inches shorter than myself, and he has black hair, exactly the opposite of what I used to dream about!

"I felt very self-conscious about the difference in our height when we first started going out together 15 months ago, and as a matter of fact, I still feel a little self-conscious to this day. But, believe me, I'm trying my best to fight it, and it's really working. Instead of slouching down when this man and I are walking or standing together, I hold myself erect. I try to do as much walking as possible with him and to go dancing with him. People may look at us, true, under these circumstances. But so what they look? Because of the difference in height or just as people passing by? That's something we don't know, and, since we don't why worry about it? It's not only the worry that causes the self-consciousness.

"Since the girl who wrote you about her height troubles will have to put with them the rest of her days, she should try going out with these shorter men and spoke of, and try to overcome her self-consciousness about it. She'll find that if she does this, she will have just as good a time with a short man as she can with a taller one. I don't know whether she will be willing to try this suggestion or not, but I thought perhaps it might help her, coming from one in the same boat."

Here's a girl who is going to get along and have fun in spite of what other girls "in the same boat" let themselves believe is a handicap. And I'd be willing to bet that sooner or later, she'll make a happy marriage. It won't matter whether she is taller or shorter than she is, for she will have learned, as she already has made such a fine start in doing, that height has nothing whatever to do with congenial companionship.

If P.M., as she signed her letter, is reading this column, I want to tell her not to forget to let me know when the big event occurs. I'll be waiting to hear.

BEAUTY

Egg shampoos for bleached hair.

During the platinum craze some years ago, blondes were seen all over civilized creation. The frenzy did not endure, and for a very good reason; the hair was over-bleached to attain the white-gold effect with the result that the shafts dried out, broke at the touch of the comb. It wasn't the peroxide that brought about that unhappy state of affairs, but the burning effects of the ammonia that was added to the bleaching agent.

The bleached blonde is still with us; always will be. The once-golden girl cannot bear to see the sunlight depart from her halo. The treatment is safe, if it is given by an experienced operator who specializes in dyeing and bleaching. It is home treatment that raises the mischief. After the first application, only the new darker growth should be touched up. Even the novice is unable to do that properly. One application overlaps the other, and eventually the hair takes on crisp, jute-like quality.

The average long bob requires at least eight eggs

Soap suds can't get a hold on the growth it runs off like water from a duck's back. Then the egg shampoo must be substituted.

Eggs will clean the hair perfectly and will impart a glossy softness to the harsh shafts, especially if the oil treatments are given the day before.

For the average long bob, at least eight eggs must be used; six will suffice for the short cut. Don't fancy that one or two eggs will do a thorough job; they won't. Enough must be used to foam up like soap suds so the egg will be well distributed. The whites and yolks need not be separated. Break the eggs in a measuring cup, add two tablespoonfuls of egg water and beat slightly with a fork.

Start with a vigorous brushing to remove the surface dust from your hair. Brush the hair forward, bend over the bathtub and turn on the spray, using fairly hot water.

Apply a half portion of the eggs. Friction briskly. When they are rubbed into the hair, rinse in warm spray again, lifting the hair as the water flows through it. Apply the rest of the eggs and rinse again.

Fill the washbowl with warm water, add the strained juice of three lemons, then pour the water over your head, frictioning the scalp. Then back again to the tub to use the spray, as the lemon juice should not remain on the shafts.

Their Christmas card to include birth-announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This Christmas my husband and I would like to send out cards with our names signed to them, also the name of our 5-year-old son and, if it is correct, the name of our baby-daughter born five months ago. For about two months after this baby's birth, I was not very well, and I did not have the strength or the time to send our birth-announcements. Would it be entirely out-of-order to include her name on the cards, more or less as a birth-announcement? If so, could we even include the date of her birth, as well as her name? Or would this be "too much?" If you approve of this, or any part of it, will you please guide us as to the form of name—for example, should we sign our names "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith", and then the first names of the children?

Ellen S.

You have a very good idea here, correct, practical. It is entirely correct for you to include, in the signature, the name of the baby born five months ago. As a matter of fact, this is very often done to "announce" the birth of a baby during the year from Christmas to Christmas.

Please don't write "Mr. and Mrs.....". There should not be a title in the signature. Write your husband's name first.

The father's name comes first when the names of children are included in the signature.

How would you like this form: Greetings from The Smiths. . . all four.

Details of semiformal dress

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to my first formal dinner-dance in this city, and I need your help. For I find that since coming to live in this city the customs here are different from those in the city where I previously lived. Here occasions for dress are more informal . . . there they are definitely on the formal side. I am a middle age, well-educated, an excellent dancer, and have always found that "just being myself" made me successful "at any affair. . . .

But clothes are bothering me for this affair. (1) Do you approve of my plan to wear a light-shine silk formal dress, with white slippers, no hat? (2) Should I wear gloves, and if so, what kind? (3) And does wearing gloves depend on whether or not I wear anything on my head, dinner hat or small bandeau?

M. J. D.

(1) Yes; although I would be more enthusiastic about having you wear slippers to match your dress and shoes, which would harmonious shade. (2) If you don't like to wear any kind of head-dress—don't. No reason to wear one, and these days most women do not. (3) Wear gloves or not as you wish. . . . this too is a matter of preference. Or, if you prefer not to wear long gloves, you may like to wear the short, three-button kid gloves, perhaps ones with a bit of pearl embroidery or something else patterned for evening.

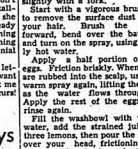
Girl with 93 Boys In Catholic Group

Toronto, (CP)—Abbyann Day, 21, doesn't think it strange that she is the only girl among 93 boys in the Pontifical Institute of medieval studies at St. Michael's College here.

"Every Friday," she says, "we have a tea for the professors and students, and they gratefully escort me into the kitchen. I'm glad to have that burden when they feel it belongs."

A native New Yorker and a graduate cum laude in chemistry and mathematics at Manhattanville College—which she entered at 15—she spends 22 hours a week in class and most of the rest of the time studying.



She is in her second year of a five-year course for her master, licentiate and doctor degrees in philosophy at the institute, only one of its kind in the world. It was formed primarily to study the thought, life and culture of the middle ages.

Her family had come to expect much from its children. One sister is a doctor, two are nurses, a brother is an electrical engineer and a younger brother is studying chemistry at Notre Dame University. Her mother is head of the Modern Research Bureau in New York.

"I have always been interested in writing," Abbyann said in an interview, "and I'm quite sure I don't want to teach. Any research I would do would be on my own, and although I certainly plan to maintain an interest in the work, I don't plan to devote my life to a career."

New clothes complements

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

SHOWN here is a trio of new clothes complements. The blouse is a pastel pink tissue faille, with collar, cuffs and yoke all stitched in deeper pink. A black velvet string tie under the collar adds to the demure charm of this pretty shirt. The pearl buttons tone with the fabric. The dusty pink double woven cotton gloves look and feel just like doeskin. The deep gauntlet cuff is stitched decoratively in slant-ing rows. Rosy beige smooth leather is used for the flag bag detailed with an adjustable shoulder strap. The entire bag, including the push through flap closure is of leather, and it is black leather lined. All three accessories would go beautifully with brown, black, navy, or gray.

Turkish Students In Western Dress

Istanbul, (Reuters)— When the English high school for girls was founded here 100 years ago this month, a few timid, heavily-veiled, guarded girls were the first Turkish pupils.

Today the Turkish girls at the school wear gym bloomers, white blouses and bedgo-adorned hats much the same as girls in British and Canadian schools. They go around unveiled, and their steps has the vigor of the untrammelled modern miss in any civilized country.

The elder pupils differ in only one fashion from other Turkish girls—they wear no make-up. At least, not in school hours. The English headmistress, Miss D. E. Thompson, says "we have only one rule about make-up: "none".

In Australia grocery are now systematically leading their customers by the nose. Among the buying smells used in their stores to draw in patrons are grinding coffee under the counter, placing bowls of cloves on the shelf and heating sugar and cinnamon in a frying pan.

Cinnamon is always a reminder of Austria. Sprinkle cinnamon buns, golden bread pudding or fluffy spice cake.

You'll want ground cinnamon to make a light prune spice cake. The prunes should be first boiled, then drained, pitted and chopped fine. About 1-3 pound of prunes will be needed to make 1 cup of pulp.

If you do not have the 3-4 cup sour milk called for in the recipe you can make the equivalent by adding 1 tablespoon vinegar to 3-4 cup sweet milk.

Prune Spice Cake

2 cups sifted cake flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-2 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1-4 teaspoon cloves
1-4 teaspoon nutmeg
3-4 cup vegetable shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup prune pulp
1-3 cup sour milk

Preheat oven at 350 degrees. Sift flour, measure, sift again with salt, baking soda, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg.

Shortening should be at room temperature—not cold. Work shortening in a mixing bowl, using the back of a spoon, until shortening is softened slightly.

Gradually add sugar, beating until light and fluffy. Add unbeaten eggs one at a time beating well. Add prune pulp. Stir well.

Add the sour milk and the dry ingredients alternately to the shortening mixture, starting and ending with the dry ingredients and beating smooth after each addition.

Grease two 9-inch cake pans. Line bottoms with wax paper which should also be greased.

Turn batter into pans. Bake until cakes shrink from sides of pans or until tops of cakes are firm when touched lightly with the finger, about 35-40 minutes.

Cool on cake racks. Cover with chocolate or vanilla butter frosting.

Television Aids School Children In U.S. Classes

Philadelphia (AP)— Philadelphia school children are learning everything from table manners to the science of splitting atoms through classroom television viewing.

Now in its third year, Philadelphia's pioneering school room television program reaches some 200,000 students who watch school-planned shows carried on each of the city's three commercial television stations.

The programs are unsponsored. The time is given to the schools by the stations.

Students see the program on 16 inch or larger receivers provided to parents through the Home and School Council. There are now over 70 sets in various Philadelphia elementary and high schools and 60 more in the suburban schools.

In addition to seeing the shows which take up four hours of the school week in daily 30-minute to one-hour periods, children get to take part in some of the broadcasts. Last year about 1,500 students took part in TV shows.

Head of the TV-education venture is energetic Martha A. Gable, native Philadelphian and University of Indiana graduate.

Popular Programs

"We are demonstrating that education can be entertaining and entertainment can be educational," Miss Gable says.

Proof of her statement is that many of the programs beamed for school use are popular with the home audience.

Miss Gable's children on the school program this year are a half hour show on the history of music and one conducted by the Encyclopedia Britannica, arts and crafts program, a 15 minute broadcast to demonstrate that "science is fun," and others dealing with civic government and national and world affairs.

One program "How's Your Social IQ?" sets out to demonstrate socially graceful conduct for every occasion.

Miss Gable believes that television in the school room whets the student's appetite for new knowledge.

After the miracles of chemistry, physics and nature have been demonstrated, a child may find it easy to ask searching questions in his study of these subjects.

R.C.M.P. Manual Says

Communists, on Principle, Traitors to Everything Sacred To Canadian Democracy

Ottawa, Nov. 25 (CP) — The R.C.M.P., in a manual on world communist doctrine, states that communists are, on principal, "traitors to everything sacred to Canadian democracy."

"They have been so in the past, are now, and may be expected to be in the future. Those who follow their lead are either fools or traitors. There is no other choice."

The statement is made in a 227-page book, entitled "Law and Order in Canadian Democracy". Compiled in 1949, it includes 20 lectures covering every aspect of police duty in Canada. It now has been placed on sale at the King's Printer, Ottawa, for 50 cents a copy.

Veteran R.C.M.P. officers have contributed to the publication, used as a training manual in the force and as a reference book in some Canadian universities. It was written at the request of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Public Must Assist Police

The publication says that in a democracy the public must assist the police in fulfilling their duty. In a democracy the police is the servant of the people, in a totalitarian state, such as Russia, it is the tool of the state.

The book says that the 15,000-member Labor-Progressive party in Canada is a communist organization, in effect one of the Russian "fifth columns" developed all over the world—"advance guards of the Soviet Union spearhead of the world revolution."

In its chapter on communism, it says:

"The Labor-Progressive party of Canada is the heir of the revolutionary traditions of the communist party of Canada. It is likewise the heir of its subservience to Moscow.

"No matter what may be its cost—and it had many colors in the last 27 years—underneath there still beats the black heart of terror and dictatorship, the spirit which is essentially traitorous and anti-democratic.

"The strategy laid down for the communist party applies in equal measure to the Labor-Progressive party. In fact the whole Labor-Progressive party is merely the communist party of Canada under another name."

Therefore, no one should have been surprised, says the R.C.M.P., that nearly all the Canadians involved in Russian espionage were either leaders, or sympathizers of the Labor-Progressive party. They were leaders in the spy ring which came to light in the Royal Commission investigation of 1946.

As for the National Federation of Labor Youth, "let no one be under any illusions about that."

It is an integral part of the Young Communist International, "under direct Moscow control", says the R.C.M.P.

"Leslie Morris, present editor of the Canadian Tribune (Toronto), leading communist organ, was one of the first secretaries of the Young Communist League. Trained in Moscow, he has been in the fight against communism, it must be remembered that a "convinced communist is a man possessed."

"He is not amenable to argument or persuasion, or even to words. Society must always be on guard against him, and each citizen must be prepared to combat his ideas wherever they crop up."

Canadians in Korean Airlift To Fly New Route, Dodge Cold

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

McClord Field, Wash., Nov. 25 (CP)—Canada's North Star airlift to Korea will be rerouted by way of Hawaii starting next Friday, the R.C.A.F. announced last night.

The present route is by way of Anchorage, Alaska and Shemya in the Aleutians. The Hawaii jaunt is designed to keep the aircraft out of the low-pressure areas along the present route.

Wing Cmdr. C. H. Mussells of Montreal, officer commanding No. 426 Squadron, said that during the winter the cold is severe and winds vary between 70 and 100 miles an hour along the Alaska-Aleutians route.

The R.C.A.F. has mapped out a southern route which dodges the winds on the westward flight. But it uses them as tail winds on the homeward hop.

The 12-plane airlift has flown 2,744 passengers and 840,000 pounds of freight in five months' operation over the north route.

The new route's over-all distance is 12,100 miles. That's roughly equivalent to halfway around the world. The squadron utilizes a couple of "deadheads"—without payload—flights to work the route out.

The announcement followed rumors that the squadron was flying "off" trips to Japan and back without passengers or cargo.

Defence Minister Claxton said during his visit here Thursday: "Our aircraft are flying under United States orders and are subject to any changes they make in their disposition. Ten aircraft have flown the route empty since it started, and two were Canadian. They were used to pathfind a new route for winter flying."

Wing Cmdr. Mussells said ground crew personnel will be stationed at each major stop along the new route. Present system of interchanges every six weeks will continue.

New Automobiles Bring Layoffs

Windsor, Nov. 25 (CP) — An approaching change-over to 1951 passenger models by the Chrysler Corporation of Canada, involving lay-offs of some employees, was indicated yesterday in a statement by the United Automobile Workers Union (C.I.O.). The statement said that the company and union had agreed to pay holiday pay for Christmas and New Year's to those employees laid off in the model change.

Harry Rooney, U.A.W. International representative, said the company had agreed to waive a section of the contract which says workmen must work the day before paid statutory holidays in order to receive holiday pay.

"Since it will be no fault of the workers that they will not be able to meet the requirements of the contract, the company intends to pay them for Christmas and New Year's as though they had met those requirements," Mr. Rooney said.

Under the agreement, he added, Chrysler workers who are laid off in the change-over will have to be notified by Feb. 1 at the latest, and their return must not be only temporary for the purpose of getting the holiday pay.

Employees not laid off would have to meet normal requirements to become eligible for holiday pay.

BANCROFT

St. Nicholas To Visit North Hastings

Bancroft—Santa Claus is paying his official pre-Christmas visit to North Hastings on Dec. 19th and 20th, Bancroft is the centre of that area the old gentleman with the white whiskers announced that he would meet everybody there at two o'clock in the afternoon.

As his official agents, Bancroft Lions Club are preparing for a crowd of 5,000 young and almost as young. The club will have ready a bag of candy for every one of the expected 2,000 school children and pre-school brothers and sisters.

Free Movies

And, of course, there will be all the trimmings—a parade, complete with a band, floats, clowns, and a number of characters from fairyland and storyland; and free movies for the kiddies while mother and dad move around the town.

Everything is absolutely free. An official of Bancroft Lions Club explained this by saying that old Saint Nicholas was so busy that he could just spare one half day before Christmas and Bancroft Lions appreciated this so much that they always turned out in a body to do everything in their power to help him.

With Canada's Naturalists

(Written for The Canadian Press)

By PERCY GHENT

Toronto, Nov. 25—(CP)—One of the things Canada's pioneer settlers never worried about was the high price of turkeys. For them, a century or so ago, turkey dinners were commonplace affairs.

Joseph Pickering, an English man, was one of those settlers. He found life in upper Canada so attractive that he wrote his "Emigrant's Guide to Canada," a bright book published in 1832. In the Ontario woods wild turkeys roamed in numbers, and he describes them as birds big and tender that made grand dinners.

In his day, of course, flocks of pigeons—the now extinct passenger pigeons — actually darkened the skies. He watched Indians spearing sstoon by torchlight at the mouth of the Credit River, and their canoes, he says, were filled with the great shining fishes. On several trips across Lake Ontario by schooner or steamboats of early model, he was thrilled to see immense sturgeon leaping out of the water.

Beside the bay and the river Don at York (Toronto) in those days, waterfowl flourished in great flocks, and Pickering tells of the mighty pine forest east of the city and along the road to Kingston.

Mrs. Simcoe, wife of John Graves Simcoe, first governor of Upper Canada, whose sketches and famous diary tell so much about Canada 150 years ago, also noted the abundant wild life on every hand.

Soldiers at Newark, now Niagara-on-the-lake, caught sturgeon at the mouth of the Niagara River that were often six feet long, and their catches of white fish were counted in hundreds. Canadian wild birds—blue jays, red-wing blackbirds, hummingbirds—never ceased to delight the gifted Mrs Simcoe.

Canadian birds aren't the only ones that have learned to guzzle cream from the tops of milk bottles.

Back in 1921, some British birds and especially tom-tits, learned how to pry the paperboard tops from milk bottles and help themselves to the cream. A shortage of fats in their diet was blamed for the thievery.

Since then the trick has been learned by many species, and some hunorous or sentimental reports of cream drinking by birds have been counted.

In recent months, similar raids on milk bottles have been reported by bird watchers at Duncan, B.C., and other centres on Vancouver Island.

Man is Killed By 'Dozer Blade At L'Amable

Bancroft — Crushed when the blade of a four-ton bulldozer dropped on him Friday afternoon, Nelson Wolfe, 43, Kitchener, was instantly killed at L'Amable, four miles south of here.

Employed by the McFarland Construction Company of Picton which has a highway contract in the area, Wolfe was working on the radiator of the bulldozer tractor when a fellow worker accidentally struck the trip lever which allowed the dozer blade to drop. A second man on the maintenance crew Gerald Antler, of Espanville, Ont., was taken to hospital with slight injuries.

Ontario Provincial Police Cpl. John Grayling and Constable John Hawkins investigated the accident. Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson of Bancroft has ordered an inquest. The dead man's wife lives at Kitchener.

Grey Cup Final Game May Be Terrific or Terrible Depending on the Weather

By MEL SUFRIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 25.—CP—This is Grey Cup day; the day when football madness reaches its peak in Canada; the day of the east-west final that could tip terrific or terrible, depending on the weather.

Two import-studded teams—Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Toronto Argonauts—rated among the best ever from the east and the west, will meet on a gridiron at Varsity Stadium that promises to be treacherously uncertain underfoot at best, slippery, slithery and snow-packed at worst.

A battery of snow-clearing belts spent most of the night and all the morning attempting to get the grid in shape for the big game, a classic that will be watched by 27,100 fans, a comparatively small group among some 75,000 in all parts of Canada that wanted tickets.

Eleven Inches of Snow

This morning the snow turned to sputty rain as the temperature rose to 32 degrees by 8 a.m. It was expected to shoot up to a mild 45 to 50 this afternoon, more than 20 degrees higher than earlier forecasts.

What will the uncertain field conditions do to the efforts of two of the fastest backfields in Canadian football?

One thing is certain. The brilliant passing of Toronto's Al Bedenbun and Winnipeg's Indian Jack Jacobs will be hampered. Their ability to toss the slippery ball accurately may have a lot to do with the outcome.

Certainly kicking, still the important factor in the Canadian game, will become considerably more important as a result of the insane footing. There'll be Joe Krol, a star of several past Grey Cup victories, who will compete with Jacobs.

Bombers' Line Bigger

The Bombers have good reason to remember the game-winning point Krol kicked against them in East-West game of 1947. Will Krol be lucky again today?

Winnipeg's line is bigger than Toronto's, but it is questionable if they can move backfield if the footing is particularly difficult the Bombers' 60-minute men may find themselves tiring faster than the Argos' two-platoon specialists.

The backfielders, particularly tricky speedsters such as Tom Casey and Tommy Ford and Parsley Hall of the Bombers, and Ulysses Curtis, Ted Toogood and lit in.

Billy Bass of the Argos, will have it tough, whether they try wide ends or are forced to stick to plunging.

It all boils down to the fact that the breaks may decide whether the Grey Cup stays in the east or goes west after this weekend. There are bound to be fumbles resulting from the adverse conditions and, as the stories of past east-west finals will say, one fumble might make all the difference.

All this talk of the weather might suggest that never before has it been this bad. But that's not a fact. In at least 11 of the east-west meetings of the last 20 years there has been snow, ice, mud or a combination of the three.

Neither of the two coaches found this year's conditions to their liking.

"This is horrible," said Frank (Buck) Larson of the Blue Bombers as he surveyed the field. "I was hoping for a fast field." Fred Gehrke of the Argos "block, tackle and fight the way I know this team can, we'll be all right."

The Grey Cup game, as usual, has been a great one for ticket scalpers, although they appear to have fewer tickets than in past years.

Aiming particularly at Westerners who have come East, with the selling furor of ticketless, scalpers have been getting as much as $40 for a pair.

It's fairly certain, however, that the price will drop sharply at the game time as the kick-off approaches. Last year ducats were selling at the regular price outside the stadium when the game was almost under way.

An estimate of the money that will change hands in bets today is a delicate matter. But the story of the Westerner who put up $10,000 with the hope of winning $14,000 may give some idea. The odds seemed rooted to 7 to 3 for Argos as the game approached and it appeared there would be little change.

Reason for the odds is a little uncertain, unless it's the fact that Argos have never lost to Winnipeg in a Grey Cup final. They won 4-3 in 1937, 30-7 in 1938, 35-0 in 1945, 28-6 in 1946 and 10-9 in 1947. And the score and winner in 1950? Well, you fill

In Defence of the Crow

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

For many years our group of winter gunners has been making heavy inroads on the crow population in these parts. We are fortunately situated for this type of shooting. About two miles from our farm is where this is written is one of the largest winter crow roosts in the state.

With the coming of cold weather, the local rascals throughout this entire section gather in one huge community each evening to roost and talk things over, estimates vary, but the roost harbors at least one hundred thousand crows each winter.

A careful check has shown that one flocks fly as much as thirty-five miles to reach this central roost. Why a more convenient roost will not serve during December and January is something that only a crow can explain.

Evening Shoot Best

As you might imagine, the evening flight to this roost offers some superlative crow shooting to give you some idea, one winter crew of us shot our way through forty-two cases of shells. Our kill in well up into the hundreds.

Last December we moved into our new home in the outskirts of town. Our plot is a pie-shaped, three cornered affair of about six acres. Possibly an acre of this land is cleared and made into lawn. The rest is allowed to grow as it will, and it makes an ideal refuge for wildlife of all kinds.

Last year a flock of about ten or ten crows took up residence in a wood lot nearby and during the nesting season they waged open war on them to keep them out of our area.

Once the babies were off the nests and able to shift for themselves I noticed a decided change and the crows were allowed to do pretty much as they pleased.

When summer came with it came the annual pest of Japanese beetles. One of the fairways of our course and the fairways always hold a liberal amount of these insect pests.

Each morning our flock of crows marches up the sixth fairway, each one gobbling all the beetles he can find. So far as I know, the crow is the adult beetle's only natural enemy among the birds.

About half a mile from our house, among the trees on top of a hill, two Cooper's hawks have made their home. These fast-flying gangsters hunt this area every day, preying on small game. We have managed to identify one of them but the other is too wary to give us a fair shot.

However, the police job has been taken over by our flock of crows. They seem to enjoy annoying the hawks and, several times this season, I have spotted the hawks fleeing hawk away from this area.

Another serious menace to our wildlife are the feral house cat. The cat is a clever hunter, intelligent and wary. Finding one in the hawy brush is next to impossible for one or two gunners.

Not so the crow, however. Their keen vision enables them to spot a cat as soon as he shows up. The cat's first thing make not only warns all wildlife of danger but also tells us what is going on.

In short, they police our place for us far more diligently and effectively than we can.

A by-product of all this is the excellent response to Solunar Periods on the part of our black policemen. Between activity periods we don't see much of them but the advent of a Solunar Period brings with it the flock of crows.

Mischief Maker

Prior to this summer I had not been aware that the crow is of any benefit to mankind. He is a thief of the first water, making heavy inroads on crops.

In the spring he does localized damage among the young and helpless babies of wildlife. In short, he is a predator whose numbers can be decreased with profit.

Just the same, we must give the devil his due. The small flock which we have come to call "our crows" actually do serve their purpose. They police our property.

They stuff themselves daily with beetles, which, of itself, is a definite service. They police our place for us, driving out hawks and serving notice of hunting cats.

I suppose that next spring will find me waging open war once to keep the black devils away from our neatly sown seed rebbits.

With the coming of summer, however, truce will be declared. Of course, there are second nestlings to consider, but I honestly believe that this particular flock of crows, by driving away hawks, spotting hunting cats, and eating their daily quota of Japanese beetles, actually do a great deal more good than they do harm.

Belleville Redmen Lose Fast Game to Peterborough Eagles 4-2 in 10 Minutes Overtime

By C.D.T.

The Belleville Redmen scored a moral victory at the Memorial Arena Friday night although the records will show that Peterborough Eagles, rated by far the best in the group play, defeated the Redmen by a count of 4-2 in ten minutes of overtime. It was one of the best played games the Ice Igloo has seen in many a moon and the customers that eased away certainly will be kicking themselves today when the free holders tell them of the thrilling pastime they witnessed.

It would be fair to say that Peterborough won because they had a little more depth than the locals. The Redmen were certainly not outplayed at any stage of the game and the two goalies put on a show that probably will not be seen again this winter. The Reds were fighting hard and at times, there was enough feeling between the two clubs, that was quite hard to anticipate what would be done next. Belleville displayed oodles of speed from the first faceoff, they had more chances and had more good chances to score but did the referees but Lady Luck was not riding with them, Nicholls the Eagle goalie and was the stumbling block. He simply was unbeatable and the two goals that the Redmen secured were scored when the puck carrier was right on his doorstep.

All Played Well

Every player on the Belleville team gave his best and it was the most difficult to pick the stars. Wardhaugh and Green on the front line combined the best load with Mulvihill pulling his weight but it was in goal that the Reds men got real protection. Maurice LeForte was tremendous. The first one that he let slip by puck shy or that one but from then on he was almost unbeatable during the overtime, when he was not given the protection that he had all through the game, and it was then he was beaten twice. Maurice probably has never played a better game on Belleville ice and the fans voiced their appreciation of his work on more than one occasion.

The Redmen passed the puck as well as the opposition but their passes were not as accurate and in positional play, Peterborough had a slight edge. In speed the locals were not lagging but as was said before, the Eagles had plenty of strong reserves to throw over the boards and they kept a continual flow of shots coming at the Redmen. The going was heavy and the Reds were tired over the place with Peterborough taking a rather rough but legitimate edge.

Fireups were a dime a dozen and the closeness of the play usually elicited the cash from many sparks flew during the contest. "Doodles" Vitarelli and Jack Green tangled early in the first and Vitarelli was given a minor and a major, with which he went off with, while Green also got a major. Doug Mortimer tried to tell Catterton how to run the game after receiving a penalty and he got a misconduct tacked on for his conversation.

Receives Nasty Blow

Montgomery received a nasty blow on the nose, which broke the facial excitement but he was patched up and came back for more. The injury was accidental. Crowley had his wind knocked out by Schreiber in a real old fashioned bumping duel but he too came back into the fray. For the first five minutes from the opening whistle on the Redmen hemmed the Eagles in their own end and Nicholls saved them from a real shellacking. On two occasions he was the only man to beat but each time he out-guessed the puck carrier.

Near the 10 minute mark, Hill jumped over the goal before after taking Smith's pass from close in and then the game become more rugged. Vitarelli and Green started their battle royal and Goyer followed for hooking and, with the man advantage, Crowley hit the hemp on Monroe's pass. Before Green and Smith and Schmidt were sent away.

In the second frame Nicholls kept his team from falling apart at the seams. He stopped the proverbial million and when play was transferred to the other end LeForte was just as hard to beat. When the Redmen found they had solid protection in goal they went after the goals and Wardhaugh potted one from Mulvihill and Green. There were only two minor penalties in this frame to Green and Schneider. Wardhaugh came right back in the third and how he missed no one will never know.

Montgomery Hurt

At this point Montgomery was hurt and the game was held up for a time. He was attended by Dr. Ralph Bird and he was soon back on the ice. The score was tied at 2-2 when Green clicked again flashed the blinker with a beautiful play, Mulvihill and Green assisting. The team stuck strictly to hockey and there were no penalties in the final overtime session-It looked as if it would end in a stalemate but Crowley took a pass from Montgomery and shortly after Hill netted a goal from Vitarelli and Crowley and the game was in the bag for the Eagles. It was the kind of a game that will bring the fans out next Friday night the same Eagle will be back again.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 25 — (CP) Vern Escoe, Toronto's "ebony flash", will have to line up behind a pack of less formidable challengers before he gets a crack at Jack Gardner. Britain's new heavyweight hope.

The Canadian champion, who is unemployed with the end of the British lies for the past two years, has already got his bid in, but Gardner, who dethroned the newly - crowned British and Empire titleholder.

He may have something at that for Escoe is the only fighter to defeat the 25-year-old ex-guardsman as a professional, and he has done it twice. He scored his first decision here in July, 1949 and took the return encounter at Leicester last February.

After his 11th - round defeat of Bruce Woodcock, which brought announcement from the defeated champion, Escoe he was through with the fight game for good, Gardner packed off for a holiday in the country.

Solomons Has Say

Gardner's future engagements rest with promoter Jack Solomons since him nie first chance in the big time. Before the Nov. 14 title-clash both Gardner and Woodcock agreed if they won to take on Joey Maxim, light-heavyweight king. But with Joey in line for a go at world champion Ezzard Charles, Solomons says a Maxim - Gardner match will have to wait.

Johnny Simpson, who manages Gardner and Don Cockell, the British light - heavyweight champion, declares that Joey would be ready to defend their titles until sometime in the new year. Both are being treated for eye injury.

Since his protege sent Woodcock into retirement, Simpson has made it clear he has no jurisdiction in nabbing Gardner into a Solomons's guidance. Ex-champion Woodcock agrees with that view.

"He'll be a fine champion and I hope he has as fine a run as I have had," he said.

Welcome Mat Will be Out For Bombers

(By The Canadian Press)

It's going to be a big day when Wembley Stadium in London welcomes home again.

And the spectators at the colorful ceremony welcome that will be just as bright whether the boys who bowled the football home in their Grey Cup game against Toronto Argonauts.

Here's what's planned:

The Winnipeg police pipe band, returning Monday from the Grey Cup game, will be on hand to play in the team Tuesday morning.

Players, with one guest each, will be whisked through a reception committee into a dais in the station rotunda. They'll be introduced and interviewed.

Then they'll go by motor cavalcade, complete with motorcycle escort—to a downtown restaurant for lunch.

Wednesday night there will be a public reception in the civic auditorium. Carl Pedersen, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, says a "jackpot" of gifts will be collected for the Bombers.

Even the newspapers are prepared for it. At the official welcome at the depot, a replica of the Grey Cup will be ready—just in case the Bombers don't bring back the real one.

In Montreal, President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League announced that the protest of New York Rangers over the winning goal scored by Montreal Canadiens Oct. 29 has been disallowed. The game in New York, ended in a 2-2 tie.

Orville Burke, formerly of Ottawa Rough Riders, announced Friday his resignation as president of the University of British Columbia football team. He gave pressure of business as the reason. He coached the team for the last two seasons during which they have won only one of 16 games played.

In Winter Haven, Florida, Carol Ann Duthie, 13, of Toronto, youngest competitor in the World Skating Championships, placed third and fourth in two events Friday. Miss Duthie, daughter of sports director George Duthie of the Canadian National Exhibition, finished third in the trick riding event and fourth in the women's slalom.

Football paid its formal tribute to the memory of Rose Tyrrell in Toronto last night. More ethan 700 players and officials, greats and near-greats of the gridiron, made the 1,500-mile senior football belt from Edmonton to Montreal indicated elbows on probably the greatest gathering at one time in the history of the sport. Practically "everybody" was there. It was the first of an annual eve-of-Grey-Cup football dinner, a get-together of this initial $10-a-plate gathering going to the family of the late Rose Tyrrell, former coach of the Ottawa Rough Riders, who died suddenly last month. Every major football club in the country was represented.

In Bowie, Maryland, a match race definitely will be for the leading U. S. jockeys, Willie Shoemaker and Eddie Culmone, and not the horses. The two horses Chloe II and Curruricus, a gate of Argonne-bred, selected for the race jockeys to ride are anything except outstanding. They should cut out the betting skill in the two jockeys who have been weighed in unanimously as vital for the year's laurels.

Betting at New York's seven harness-racing tracks this year increased $25,045,600 over last year. Attendance this year increased by more than 300,000. Figures reported by the state racing commission showed $144,-410,853 was bet at harness tracks this year, 7% on the handle in 1949 was $120,946,670. This year's total attendance was 3,544,581, compared with 3,225,841 last year.

Why shoot quail(when you can catch 'em! In Mexico, Arizona, William Davis says he caught one of the birds in flight last Saturday, just like a baseball. Explained Davis:

"We were in pretty thick cover and this bird jumped up ahead of the dogs.

"I stood there watching it fly straight at me. Just as it came by my shoulder I stuck out one hand and then, wham, the bird hit. The bird was out cold."

St. Michael's Score 4-2 Win Over Marlboros

(By The Canadian Press)

The two Toronto teams in the Ontario Hockey Association major series — St. Michael's and Marlboros play a little more try in their play when they meet each other.

It's not only because of their fast-growing intra-city rivalry. It's also because the games are worth four points instead of the usual two.

St. Michael's, for that reason, got extra enjoyment out of their 4-2 victory over Marlboros in a game at Maple Leaf Gardens last night. It gave them a six-point lead over Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen who took over undisputed possession of second place by defeating Hamilton Tigers 7-4 in Waterloo.

The Marlboros, who have dropped both their games with St. Mike's so far this season, are in last place, a single point behind the Tigers.

The Toronto Maple-Tigers game was worth the usual two points to the winners. Reason the St. Michael's-Marlboro game was worth four points is that playing time at Maple Leaf Gardens is limited to each of the games that the two teams will have nights only back to back games as originally scheduled. By doubling the value of each game, the schedule will work out even.

Wind Up In Tie

The O.H.A. Junior A League also had a couple of games last night, but they were featured for their lack of decisiveness.

At Guelph, the Biltmores and Stratford Nationals battled to a scoreless tie after 10 minutes of overtime.

In St. Catharines, the Teepees were outplayed but managed a 4-4 tie with the league-leading Barrie Flyers.

The high-scoring Guelph-Stratford game was the first to provide possession of seventh place and gave the Kroehlers a second place tie with Toronto Junior Marlboros.

Ray Ross paced the Stratford attack with three goals. Gord Myles, Terry Matheson, Johnny Wilson, Roy Locke and Bill Uhler scored the others.

Eddie Litzinger and Don Prentice sniped two each for Guelph with Ken Lanfman, Herb Dickenson, Emmick Henderson and Andy Battigale scoring the others.

Guelph led most of the way but Stratford moved ahead in the third period only to have Guelph tie matters up and go again before the Kroehlers got the final tying goal at 17:35.

The tie in the other junior game gave St. Catharines a fourth-place tie with Windsor, while extending Barrie's first-place lead to five points.

The Flyers had to come from behind twice to earn the split. Ron Stanley, Leo Labine and Chuck Wood tallied for Barrie while Jim Robertson, Billy Harrison and Doug Powers were the Teepees scorers.

Score Three in Third

At Toronto, St. Michael's scored three goals late in the third period to defeat the Marlboros. Bus Wyshnesky and Don Rope had sent Marlboros into a first-period lead.

Ron Stansfield picked up the first for St. Mike's midway through the second period, then added another in the third period while Mat Mesich and Ed Mulligan were scoring the other two.

Hamilton put up their best showing in the second period against Kitchener, outplaying the Dutchmen even though they were outscored 4-3 in that frame. Kitchener led 2-0 at the end of the first.

Harvey Jacklin got two goals for the winners, Art Hurst, Don Oberholtzer, Dinny Flanagan, Mitchel and Mickey Roth getting the others.

Murray Comfort scored a couple for Hamilton with Johnny Cockle and Paul Miocinovich getting one apiece.

The major circuit is idle today, three games being scheduled for the night's league. St. Michael's are at Interlor; Marlboros at Galt and Windsor at Oshawa.

CALUMETS WIN

Cornwall, Nov. 25— (CP)— Cornwall Calumets defeated Pembroke Lumber Kings 7-4 here last night in an Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League tilt before 2,000 fans.

Coach John Denneny's Calumet squad worked their way into a 4-1 first period lead and were ahead 6-2 in the second.

Jim Denneny led the Cals with two goals and three assists. Other Cornwall scorers were Bob Bingley, Jean Fayette, Pete Peyette, Pete Long, and Gilles Genereaux. Jackie Demers and Ken Robertson tallied for Pembroke.

FRANKFORD Bowling Race At Frankford Closest in Years

Frankford — The Frankford Bowling League is seeing the closest race in the history of Wednesday night bowling. Last Thursday night saw the standings tighten up even more, with only a single point separating many of the positions in the standing. Monarchs eked out a single game win from the sharpshooters and thus held first place by a one point margin.

Screwballs jumped from fourth to second by taking seven from the top and down Alley Cats. The Aces remained in their third place position by taking five from the Royals. Hornets, who have found themselves after a very slow start, continued their winning ways, taking five from the Lucky Strikes.

Next week, the Sharpshooters and Aces tangle on one and two; Royals and Hornets on three and four; Screwballs and Lucky Strikes on five and six, with the Monarchs and Alley Cats on seven and eight.

COME FROM BEHIND

Ottawa, Nov. 25—(CP)—Hull Volants came from behind in the dying minutes of an Eastern Canada Hockey League game last night to gain a 2-2 tie with North Bay Black Hawks.

The see-saw battle saw the teams evenly matched. Percival scored North Bay's second goal with a man short in the second period. Ringler got the first for the visitors, while Hull Snipers were Richer and Dore.

BLAST FURNACE EXPLOSION

Duisburg, Germany, Nov. 25 — (Reuters) — A blast furnace exploded at the Ruhrort-Meiderich foundry here yesterday, killing one person and injuring eight, three of them critically.

National Hockey Loop Heads into Busy Weekend

The National Hockey League heads into another heavy six-game schedule this weekend with Toronto Maple Leafs still holding down just about everything in the way of honors.

Not only are the Leafs first in the standing, they also shine in the goal-getting assist and penalty departments. They even have the most-penalized player.

The Leafs hold a comfortable five-point margin over their nearest opponents, Detroit Red Wings. The Wings have played three games less than the Leafs but Toronto followers aren't particularly worried, pointing to a 2-1 victory over the Wings in the last meeting between the two clubs.

The Toronto team has 27 points Detroit 22.

In a three-place tie are Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks. Each team has 13 points. New York Rangers follow with 11 points while the hapless Boston Bruins languish in the cellar with 7.

In weekend games, Montreal travels to Toronto Saturday and Sunday and the Rangers to Boston Sunday. Chicago plays at Detroit Sunday and the teams reverse the locks Sunday.

In the other games, Rangers play at Boston Sunday while the Leafs tangle with the Rangers at New York Sunday.

Why Leafs on Top

An idea of why the Leafs are top team to date is shown by a breakdown of individual performances.

Max Bentley has the most points, 25, and the most assists, 18. In the goal getting department, Tod Sloan and Sid Smith have 10, the same number as Maurice of Montreal.

Richard is the only non-Leaf in the leaders of various individual departments.

Turk Broda of Toronto is the league's shutout king with four, leading the penalty department is Gus Mortson with 46 minutes.

Other NHL clubs are close behind in most cases, but to date they haven't been able to do much in the way of catching the the Torontonians.

If and when they do, the standing probably will tell another story.

HARVARD STUDENTS RIOT

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 25 — (AP) — Three Harvard University students were arrested early today in a riot that stopped traffic in busy Harvard Square. It was part of the celebrations in connection with today's Harvard - Yale game. Police said a city councilman was slapped in the face, a patrolman was bitten on the hand and several persons were cut by flying glass as beer bottles smashed in the street.

BANCROFT Hockey Season In High Gear At Bancroft

Bancroft—Everybody is going into high gear for the hockey season in Bancroft as the Bancroft Hockey Club and North Hastings Minor Hockey Association made their preliminary plans and selected their slates of officers for the coming season.

Bancroft has the only covered rink between Madoc and Barrys Bay, a distance of 88 miles. It is quite a job to accommodate all the hockey teams that wish to play so at this time of year coaches, managers, club officials and rink officials from the North Hastings Community Centre Commission have a few hectic weeks arranging schedules.

The seniors have not yet decided in what league they will play, but will know definitely within the next week. The 1950-51 their officials will be Milton Brough, president; A. M. Burns, vice-president; Cecil McAlpine, secretary treasurer; Fred Deleye, manager, and Don Simpson and Vessie Sullivan, coaches.

The midgets and bantams will operate a league that will cover all places where clubs are interested. This season individual teams will enter the OMHA playdowns, instead of using the system of picking one team from all clubs in the league. Their officers for the year are as follows— past president, W. C. Hutton of Bancroft; president, Clarence McCormack of Apsley; vice-president Ken Forsecate of Coe Hill; secretary treasurer John Bleeck of Bancroft; schedule committee Bill Houle of Apsley; Roy Turner of Coe Hill and Lawrence Leedy of Bancroft.

Wants All Cops To Wear Badges

Helena, Mont., Nov. 25 (AP) — A man signed up to Harold Richman and Mike Kotich and asked, "Wanna buy a shirt?"

Helenans asked: "Is it hot?"

The man grinned. "What do you think?"

Police plainclothesman Rickfan and Deputy Sheriff Kotich picked up Edward J. Kiley, who received a 30-day jail sentence on a larceny charge.

Mike complained: "I thought he was reaching for a $10 bill and he comes up with a badge. It is not fair. There ought to be a law requiring all cops to wear badges on the outside where a person can see them."

HEAVIEST ORE CRUSHER

Oslo, Nov. 25 — (Reuters) — Norway's heaviest ore crusher, weighing 475 tons, is coming to Norway from the United States. It will be installed at the Sydvaranger Iron Mines at Kirkenes, northern Norway, near the Russian frontier.

Rex Layne Whips Joe Walcott In Fight Upset

By JACK HAND

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—Rex Layne, a 192-year-old bruiser from Utah who beat beer farms, has become a heavyweight contender overnight on his "upset of the year" over Jersey Joe Walcott.

Layne won't do any contending for two months while his battered left eye heals. Then he'll be ready for anything, says Manager Max Jenson.

"We're ready for anyone — Ezzard Charles—anyone," said Jenson in the dressing room after the fight.

It probably won't be Charles for the title, at least not yet. More likely they'll move Layne into a bout with somebody like Roland Lastarza or Rocky Marciano.

Jenson will talk business today with Al Weill, International Boxing Club matchmaker. After that Jenson and his fighter will head for home at Lewiston, Utah.

"I went out to bust his guts from the start," said Layne. "And I guess I did."

Pressed Attack All the Way

That about tells the story. Layne punished Walcott's body and head with a long, hard punch throughout the night. Despite a smeared eye that became a circle of blood in the late rounds, he pressed the attack all the way.

The 27-year-old Walcott was a 5-to-1 favorite to whip this kid who had been fighting pro only 18 months. Instead, Jersey Joe was not at his best, to put it mildly. His jabs were weak and ineffective, was his vaunted right-hand counter that he usually throws at the end of his little dance of retreat.

In the dressing room, Walcott said he hurt his right hand when he hit Layne on top of the head in the third round. Jersey Joe was not too generous in praise of the kid who was born in Provo, Utah, old when Walcott had his first pro fight in 1939.

"He's a rough, strong kid but he's definitely not a fighter," Walcott said. "He's good for two and a half away. It's too bad he got past me. Now he'll be in trouble."

Never in Trouble

That's true, but Layne was never in serious trouble last night except over the eye cut in the first round that blocked his vision.

In the two judges had it 6-3 in favor of Layne with one even. Referee Frankie Goldstein saw it 8-2-2 to make it unanimous. The AP score-card had it for Layne 7-2-1. Walcott was penalized in the eighth round for backhanding.

Layne weighed 192, Walcott 200.

Only 5,995 paid $19,976 to watch the bout that had been billed as a championship match. Layne, Jenson and Weill, who thought the kid had a chance, certainly can say "I told you so."

Layne, a heavy amateur Dempsey, made a fine impression as a good, pressing youngster who fights with determination. His best punch was a straight right under the heart. The curly-haired, handsome lad moves forward all the time and is most dangerous when he can pin his man against the ropes.

It was Layne's 36th fight, and he has lost only one. He fought three times in his last starts before the Walcott battle.

ARMY CARRIED PLAY

Ottawa, Nov. 25—(CP)—Three second-half goals in the second period gave Ottawa army the lead needed to trim R.C.A.F. Flyers 6-4 last night in an Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League fixture.

Army carried the play to the air force most of the way in the second and third periods after Flyers took a 2-0 lead.

TRIES TWICE

Birmingham, England, Nov. 25 (Reuters) — Pathologist Franklin Croxon, 48, decided to kill himself and swallowed some reddish-brown salts, a coroner's jury was told yesterday. A true scientist Croxon then recorded his reactions in a diary for one hour. But the salts weren't poisonous. So he didn't die, Croxon stuck his head in a gas oven. The jury ruled he committed suicide while mentally disturbed.

FREIGHTERS COLLIDE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Ribbiter

A bridge question just asked me is: Do you always double for takeout with enough for an opening one bid regardless of the type of distribution in your hand? The answer is yes.

It is understood, of course, that a hand strong enough for a one overcall does not double for takeout. Because it contains a total of eight tricks and is too strong for a takeout double.

It is also understood, of course, that a hand with enough for an overcall in opponent suit does so. With nine tricks and no losers in opponent suit it is too strong for a jump overcall or double.

But if not enough for a stronger bid and enough for a takeout double, by all means double for takeout. And if is strong enough for a takeout double if it contains enough for an opening of one.

The fact that the hand has one or more long suits does not alter this rule in any way. The main idea is to inform partner of the fact that your hand was strong enough for an original opening.

Why not bid a suit instead? Because a defensive bid in a suit without a jump shows a hand that could not have opened the bidding. It may have as few as two high cards and only one sure trick.

Instead of a double for takeout, therefore, if a player bids a suit in defence he may have a weak hand. It promises at least five tricks. But it denies four highs and two sures.

South opens with one heart and west has the hand seen here:

♠ A J 9 7 4 2

Count the tricks in the west hand: Three high cards for an ace, a king, a queen; a short card in hearts; a short card in clubs. The total of five tricks are enough for a bid.

Lacking four high cards, however, it would not be enough for an opening one bid. Therefore, not enough for a takeout double. But it is enough for a simple overcall of one spade.

Keep on the right track.

Hollywood, Nov. 25 — (AP) — This week Hollywodians were treated to a thorough history of their town.

The Hollywood Citizen-News, sole daily newspaper in the glamor town, issued a five-section edition called "Hollywood — 50 Years of Progress." It disclosed many little-known facts about a well-known town.

Judge Harlan Palmer, publisher of the paper since 1911, recalled when the corner of Hollywood and Vine Streets was the site of a home surrounded by a four-acre orange grove.

Cecil B. Demille pointed out that Hollywood was the first location of the first commercial airlines with scheduled flights for passengers. During the First World War, he helped form the Mercury Aviation Company, which also trained pilots for the army.

Ranch Name

Mrs. Deeida Wilcox, who came to California from Topeka, Kas., in 1883, gave the town its name. On a trip east, she met a lady who called her summer home "Hollywood." Mrs. Wilcox liked the name and called her ranch "Hollywood."

Other facts disclosed in the edition:

A corner at Hollywood Blvd. and Highland Ave. was offered for $9,500 in 1904. Recently a $1,000,000 offer was refused for the same land.

The Biograph Company opened the first studio in Los Angeles

Santa in Helicopter Lands on Store Top

Lawrence, Mass., Nov. 25 — (AP) — Santa better stick to his tried-and-true reindeers.

He tried using a helicopter yesterday — and his arrival touched off wild confusion and a few bruises.

A crowd estimated at 12,000 elbowed and shoved their way through police lines into the downtown intersection roped off for Santa's ship to land.

After circling overhead, the helicopter finally alighted atop a store — and Santa made his way to the ground by a fire escape.

In 1906. The first picture made here, "The Count of Monte Cristo," was filmed the following year by the Selig Company.

In 1909, an ordinance forbade the keeping of bulls or more than five sheep, cows or goats on one Hollywood premise. Furthermore, no such animals could be kept within 95 feet of any residence.

HELPING PEOPLE ACROSS

Dayton, O., Nov. 25 — (AP) — The little old man had a burp stuck crosswise.

Said he to the policeman directing traffic at Dayton's busiest downtown intersection yesterday:

"You're supposed to help people in trouble, ain't you?"

Patrolman T. D. Spreng said he was, and while with a hefty slap on the back. It brought an immediate and gratifying response.

The little man nodded his thanks and strolled away into a crowd of grinning Christmas shoppers.

The Atalanta Brought Fame To Belleville; Some Interesting Facts About This Noted Sloop

By JIM GRAHAM

Much of the history of any locality is lost through neglect of contemporary citizens in making proper records. Such is the case with Belleville's yachting past. Many fine boats have been built here and have raced in our city's name. Not only on the Great Lakes, but on the oceans, Belleville is remembered. Old timers and some not too old, as a city with keen interest in racing and building sailing craft of various classes.

In particular there is one sloop named Atalanta and built by a Captain Alexander Cuthbert in Belleville about 1890. A model of her still exists in the city, but not much more remains. A photographic specimen of Mr. Mikel's "City of Belleville" where the name is spelt Atlanta.

Capt. Cuthbert, it would seem, was quite a prolific designer and builder of boats. Nearly a dozen of his creations are mentioned in current publications. That he built many more is a logical guess. He appears to have come from Hamilton, settled in Cobourg and, eventually, in Belleville.

His financial status does not seem to have been equal to some of his endeavors. This must have been much the case with the Atalanta for the records show that she was built for $2,000. This seems amazing, even for those times, considering that she was only 78 ft. overall, 19½ ft. beam and drew 6½ ft. without her centreboard. It has been said about that if another $1,000 had been spent on her she would have been very nearly unbeatable.

Not the withdrawing type, Capt. Cuthbert rushed her to completion and entered her in the America's Cup, one of the most coveted cups in a sailor's world. The challenge was issued through the Royal Canadian Yacht Club in Toronto on the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. That was about as far as the Atalanta got. Cuthbert. Between the rush of completing her and the need for economy, she was crudely finished and poorly rigged.

Race Held Off New York

The race was held off New York and she was taken down through the Erie Canal. In order to get her through her scrap iron ballast had to be shifted to one side. This tilted her enough to scrape through the narrow locks. As ordinary stone substituted fixed ballast, this economy proved to have advantages. Also used as ballast was a certain amount of iron ore and plain stone.

She reached New York just in time for the race, but the racing crew that was to go separately from Belleville had not turned up. Perhaps discouraged, but not giving up, Captain Cuthbert hired a few men from the New York waterfront and proceeded to the race shorthanded.

The race was to be in three parts with best two out of three to take the cup. In the first race the inexperienced hands spent 40 minutes reefing sails and the Atalanta was beaten by 28. With her own crew she could have won easily. In the second race a mistake was made in passing one of the course buoys and she was disqualified.

Capt. Cuthbert must have felt some bitter moments. Perhaps only to himself had he proved his ability to build a fast ship. The Mischief, against which he had raced, was built of iron, polished smooth, equipped with best ballast and the best of other equipment. The Atalanta seems to have been the fastest boat but who was to notice that? It is of interest that shortly after this race the Americans changed the rules to say that all challengers had to be built on salt water.

Wins Over Chicago Boat

The Atalanta lived a happier life after her return to the Bay of Quinte. About this time the Fisher Cup, presented by Mr. J. Fisher of Chicago, came into existence. It soon was and still is one of the most prized cups competed for on the lakes. It's first race for this cup was won by the Annie Cuthbert, also built by Captain Cuthbert. But the cup presented to the Chicago club and in 1883, no less than 13 boats competed for it. In this race the Atalanta raced but was beaten by the Chicago boat Cora. Undaunted, Captain Cuthbert immediately challenged the Cora to another race which she won. Thus the Atalanta was able to bring home some fame for the Bay of Quinte Club. She defended her prize well and was beaten only by her own designer. It would seem that the captain's business was ships, and better ships, for the sooner built one named Nora for Mr. John Bell, Q. C. This boat challenged the Atalanta and took the Fisher Cup, although naturally, it was still in the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

It was not until 1892 that a challenger was found that was able to give Captain Cuthbert's boats a good race. In that year the Onward of Rochester was beaten by hard luck more than skill. Mr. Bell showed the sporting instinct and accepted a second challenge for a few days later. Repairs were completed in time and these were completed at Deseronto. The course was in Big Bay, consisting of a two-nautical-mile triangle, rounded three times. The sloops were evenly matched in most ways, but the Onward had a slight advantage in ballast. At first there were no rules concerning this (as there now are), so she carried 35 men. This "sportsable" ballast was an obvious help. These men had one duty: to sit in the particular positions that suited the boat's best form trim in each changing amount and direction of wind. They also were able to slip over the side and swim for shore when the wind became light enough to make them unneeded and unwanted. It is presumed that they could swim and did catch their boat on the next lap of their weight was needed. At any rate, the Nora was defeated by 23 seconds and the Fisher Cup left Belleville.

What became of these boats is not known. The Atalanta was sold into the Detroit club and was last heard of as winning the Richardson Cup there in 1936. Of Captain Cuthbert there is equally little information beyond the names of some of the boats he designed or built. A few of the betterknown of these were the Surprise, Dauntless, Countess of Dufferin (another unsuccessful contender for the America's Cup), Escape, Katie Gray, Kathleen, and one that is still in active use, Iolantha. It is unfortunate that these names and events, which helped to make Belleville famous, have been lost to present generations. What information there is is brief and sketchy. There must be many stories that could be told and of which Bellevillians could brag a bit.

Hydro Chairman Says no Cutoffs Will be Necessary

Toronto, Nov. 25 — (CP) — Robert H. Saunders said Friday southern Ontario can get through the winter without power restrictions and cut-offs, but only with full co-operation of every hydro user in that part of the province.

The Hydro Commission chairman issued a statement reiterating a plea for care in use of power and reporting an all-time record peak in power demand during the last week.

The statement was issued in connection with the return by Hamilton, Oshawa and Toronto to Standard Time at 2 a. m. Sunday morning. The three cities have remained on Daylight time to stagger the peak supper-hour loads of power consumption.

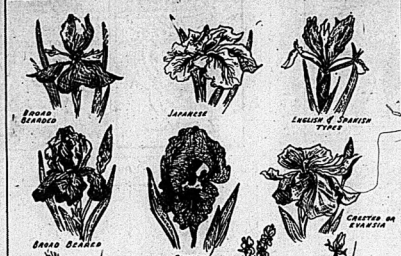
Mr. Saunders said that despite staggered supper-hour loads, the peak demand in Southern Ontario reached an all-time record of 2,270,000 kilowatts, or 3,242,893 horsepower Thursday, 1% more compared with 1,902,315 kilowatts or 2,559,403 horsepower on the same day a year ago.

Wrecked Boat Lands in Midst Of Liquor Cache

Alexandria Bay, N. Y., Nov. 25 (AP) — Wreckage of a speedboat in which map publisher Andrew F. Rand and Mayor of Chicago was critically injured Oct. 5 landed in the midst of a cache of apparent prohibition - era liquor at the bottom of the St. Lawrence River.

A diver said Friday he had found the wreck and "from 200 to 300 bottles" of whiskey and sauterne wine in 50 feet of water.

The diver was Donald R. Gray of nearby Clayton.



During the prohibition era rum runners from Canada frequently dumped their cargoes overboard when federal men were too hot in pursuit.

McNally was injured when two speedboats crashed in the St. Lawrence near here.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was eating her grapefruit diet this morning, saying to pop, it's a beautiful morning, William, with no sine of rain, and that reminds me, we ought to do something about the leek in the rain spout on the roof, so the next short rain wont be followed by a long endless drip. We better send for a man, she said.

My dear, we've got a man, pop said.

Meening him, and ma said, Now William, dont get any dreamy ideas.

Dont worry, I'm perfectly capable of doing the job in person and alone, pop said. I've consulted an expert, I was talking to my frend Carl Dinslow the arkitect, and he told me all about plugging up a leeky rain spout. Carl can reed a blueprint in 9 languges, including 2 Chinese dialects, so he ought to know. I'll fix it today, it'll be a nice Saturday workout for me. I'll go to the drugstore rite after breakfist and get the stuff, he said.

Are the drugstores going in for roofing materials now for land sakes? ma said, and pop said, Oh you can get anything in a drugstore, except perhaps certain drugs.

And he went around to the drugstore and came back and put on his old clothes, including his favorite sweiter with the buttons off, and he went up on the roof for about 2 hours, and came down again, saying to ma, Well my dear, the leek is licked. I just followed Carl's instructions and carefully picked out 4 packages of chewing gum and sat up there in the nice sunshine chewing it and sticking it over the crack in the spout. My dear, I think it's the best time in my life that I've realy injoyed manual labor, he said.

Oh, autch a man, ma said. Well all I can say is wait till it rains, she said.

Being what we're doing.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

JUST SPARROWS

When we look out of a window and say that all the birds we see are "just sparrows", what do we actually mean? REAL Sparrows are Canadians by heredity, and there are many different species: Song, White-throated, White-crowned, Chipping, Savannah, and so on. But these little brown birds which swarm through our cities, and have even invaded our small northern towns and villages, are Europeans — Canadians only by adoption — belong simply to one species, and are, believe it or not, classified in bird books under the heading "Weaver Finches".

It is not to be wondered at that birds are called House Sparrows. Preferring human company (unusual for feathered 'folk'), they shun the country side, and take up lodging in any crack or crevice that is available about our houses, and, to the casual observer, they look just like all the REAL Sparrows. With bills of seed-eaters, they eat almost anything: grain, insects, or garbage, though probably their taste turns mostly towards weed seeds. Fortunately, they are seldom destructive. What we have principally against them are their untidy habits and their bossy ways, driving off the native song birds. It is sad to lose Martins, Wrens, Bluebirds, Swallows, and House Wrens because these noisy, pushing little birds are grabbing their homes.

The reason for the name ENGLISH Sparrow, which is in common use, goes back to the date 1851, when eight pairs were brought from England to Boston by the Brooklyn Institute, to help check a plague of worms which were spoiling park trees. Oddly enough, they did not survive. However, the next year 2300 was collected, and one hundred more were imported. There was no doubt about this lot: they not only survived, but multiplied so fast that by 1900 the United States government realized that a mistake had been made. Man spoils the balance of nature when he meddles in these matters.

By 1870, the House Sparrows had reached eastern Canada, by 1889 "the outlying municipalities (of Montreal) were offering a reward of 10c a dozen". Before long they had sent scouts north, and west. Even Vancouver had its supply. Perhaps statistics do not tell everything, but a report of the Christmas bird census for 1948, which appeared in the "Canadian Field - Naturalist", gives us a good idea of the House Sparrows' spread. On December 18, Torontonian bird watchers counted 68 species, and 12,130 individuals. Of these, 2676 were House Sparrows.

Wellington, N. Z. — (CP) — J. R. Stability has been reached over a wide range of prices.

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

"You needn't answer my question, Fran,—I'll work it out myself." He was standing before the clock running the hands round and waiting for the hour and half hour to chime. "Lots of pictures you have here. Mighty good ones of Ken and 'your old-est friend.' Sinclair is photogenic and—does he know it. "What's this behind the clock?"

He held up a small key that looked like a choice example of gold filigree.

"That's it. Loud cheers. The key to the Louis XV cabinet."

"We're getting on. Now if we know—"

"Here you are, dearie." Mrs. Betsy puffed from the haste in which she had mounted the back stairs. "I run up to ask if you'd be here for dinner. I'm going to the village, I'll get anything—" she stepped into the room. "Myles, where'd you come from, I didn't see you?"

"Didn't know I was a clock expert either, did you, Betsy? This one went on a sit-down strike. Must have stopped yesterday at about one. I'm getting it on the beam again."

"About one. Pity sake, I bet he stopped it."

"Sir? Was Mr. Sargent in this room yesterday?" For one hectic second Fran wondered if Henry Sargent had worked up the mystery of the theft of the jewel box to protect the Constable.

"Mr. Sargent wasn't here yesterday," said Mrs. Betsy. "It was that young man who comes here with Miss Fran. I'm always remembering names. I was puffing up the front stairs to water your window boxes and I met him coming out of your living room. I guess I looked like a mercy, because he looked and said:

"Keep your shirt on, Mrs. Betsy—whisky I didn't think was a proper thing for him to my as a lady is! I am only the caretaker—like Shakespeare's fellow in her dark glasses, she'll need them when she watches me win the tournament.' I'm the best golf player.' At that he laughed again and ran down the stairs. You have photographs of him all around this room so I thought 'twas all right." She looked from the girl to Myles and back to the girl.

"You look kinder funny, dearie. Didn't I do right to let him take them?"

"Sure, Betsy." Myles covered Fran's silence, she was having trouble with her voice. "Miss Fran's girl keeps so many pictures of a man in her room, he must be a dear friend, practically engaged. I'd say. The clocks seems to be on the job again any—"

"Miss Phillips! Miss Phillips!" The roar came from below.

"There goes the public address system. Down we go, Fran. By the way, did you get those dark glasses? No answer? Huff and puff. Come on, we'd better face the Firing squad pronto and find out what your boss has in his mind."

What Henry Sargent had on his mind had no connection with the discovery of the returned enamel box, but with a letter from the man's gill-edge patron who was considering the purchase of the Chinese mandarin's plate the eighteenth century English torchere. He wanted Fran's suggestion as to a more entertaining way of showing them.

Myles left them discussing a different light and a black velvet background and drove away. Fran was right, the mystery was tangling into a knot and a tight one at that. Of course there was a loose end, where to find it was the riddle of the month. Was it the name of the person who had sent the phony telephone message? She was sure that Barth was responsible. He didn't agree with her. Suppose she were right.

Would the man have made the curious appointment to meet him at the table at the end of the terrace at Miss Thaxle's party? It was more probable that he had information to impart about the break-in.

Flash. Wouldn't that account for his sudden disappearance? Had the whistle in the garden been warning to him to make his get-away? Cesar had reported a row at the back door. Perhaps the thief or thieves had discovered that he knew too much about their safety and had forcibly removed him. Now that the enamel box and Apostle spoons had been returned, there could be no doubt that their objective had been the Constable.

Confidence in the honesty of the ex-butler didn't mean that he had not been trying to find him. In between practice for the tournament, business of the estate conferring with the GGA as to election procedures, he had followed innumerable clues to come up against a dead end each time. He couldn't enlist Morris Grove as assistant without explaining why he wanted to find the guy; his promise to Henry Sargent prohibited that.

Yesterday Sinclair had stepped into the picture. Why had he been in Fran's apartment? Perhaps he had been looking through her rooms in search of the Constable. Fran had said he was on the verge of a nervous breakdown because Henry Sargent had made no report on it.

Sir, old Nosey, who wasn't talking, had been allowed to slip into the background of his thoughts while he had been speculating as to why Eckhard had been huddled against the shrubs outside the Digby kitchen that same night. Si was his hot tip for the present.

He returned to the village. In the pharmacy he bought half a dozen packages of each variety of gum. The outsize proprietor in a white jacket regarded Myles with curiosity not unmixed with mirth.

"Pick up the gum-chewin' habit in the army Major, or are you calculating to sign up for a baseball team?"

"Wrong station Tiny. I heard that Si Pond was laid up. Decided to drop in on him and implement the stimulation of my presence with a gift of gum."

"Tiny" Carter, so nicknamed of his abnormal girth, glanced to right and left before he leaned across the counter.

"Something queer about Si, he isn't talking, just sits and nods and chews, you know, 'tain't like him not to talk," he confided 'in a mysterious whisper. "Story is a fallin' branch knocked him off his bicycle and most cracked his skull. There's a whisper going around that he hasn't seen hide nor hair of that bike since. If he knows what become of it he's a good actor. Don't seem as if the thief would have could have rode off on it, does it?"

"Stranger things have happened."

"You're telling me. I guess everything is strange when you live wire in that house. Don't like her. Haven't any use for a female that has a higher voice than the man she married. All the womenfolks in the neighborhood are down on her and the roomer walked out on her."

"What roomers?"

"Gee whiz, Myles, don't snap my head off, I was only passin' for a little gossip. She let a room and Si rented his flahin' boat, complete with phonograph, to a fella who got a job as a waiter for the caterer who supplies the food for some of the parties the summer big shots give. Funny how we never count you and Nat among them, you're more upon all in importance—you're like own folks."

"Sure we are. Where is the roomer now?"

"Suddenly lit out. Left what few clothes he had. Marthy didn't lose, she'd made him pay in advance, trust her for that. I'll stake mit she's smart as a steel trap, if I don't like her." He turned to a painfully sunburned customer whose tatoo on the counter was increasing in speed and volume.

"Yes sir! Can I help you? Hot lun? it sir? This isn't real Maine weather, no sir!"

Si Pond's bike had disappeared Myles ruminated as he waited at a crossroad for the light to change. Barth no doubt that the roomer was Barth, had "lit out" probable that he had taken the bicycle, he had been at Miss Thaxle's party, and after it disappeared. Si had been struck down inside the gallery. Had he parked the bike in the kennel in the garage? Quite a yarn he had made up about having been struck by a falling branch. Was Henry Sargent the inventor of it?

He turned into a road at the end of which he could see a white cottage snuggled close to the ground. Just off shore a boat rocked at its moorings. He drove slowly, checking the information he had gathered.

"A bike mislaid," he repeated softly. A man on a bicycle could have followed my roadster to Rocky Point that night and snitched the blotting paper with the muddy footprints while I was in the house. Something told me that my hunch had rung on the back was too cockeyed.to be probable.

"Hi, Si!"

The tall man in a chair on the porch ablaze with nasturtiums in boxes on the rail stood up so quickly that a gull which had been perched on a nearby building rose in the air with a scream. He waved a bony hand.

"Come up, come up, Myles, Cricky where did you drop from? Set here." He drew forward a green-cushioned white rocker and sank into his mate. "You brought you this hot day?" His voice had sharpened, suspicion lids partly obscured his pale eyes.

"I heard you were still a little balmy from the knockout the tree branch gave you, Nosey, so thought I'd drop in and give you the once-over. Brought this."

Si opened the package.

"Cricky, that's somethin'." He spit the gum in his mouth over the top of the nasturtiums and substituted a fresh stick. He glanced at the screened door to the house.

"Did Mr. Sargent send you? Jest nod or shake your head. I don't want Marthy to know I'm talkin. He didn't. Has he found out who broke in that night? He ain't. He told me things were missin', when he brought me home the next mornin', told me I didn't know it, not to talk. I haven't. Hasn't found anything, I take it? He accepted Myles's motionless head as a token of agreement. "Cricky, it's getting kind of serious. If that thief's still at large he might bust into your house, everybody knows about the Jaffray emeralds, or Miss Thaxle's, and get something valuable, aren't you fearin' that?"

"No." Myles leaned close and whispered. "Found your bike!"

Si answered with a negative shake which set every straw colored hair in motion till his head looked like a dish mop in action.

"Okay, write the make, size, number of the wheel on this."

Si scowled at the memorandum book and pencil which had been pressed into his hand and scratched his big left ear.

"Cricky, don know's I can remember much about the bike."

"Sure you can remember. You have got to remember. A lot hangs on where that bike was taken after it was snitched from the garage. If we can locate it—don't be afraid to tell me. I'm doing this for Mr. Sargent, he has practically—hang it, was he picking up Sinclair's word—"engaged me to solve the mystery."

"If that's so—guess I can remember." He wrote. Myles returned the book quickly to his pocket and lighted a cigaret.

"By the way, Nosey, after you came to the other night in Miss Phillip's office, you said that before you passed out you smelled cigarette smoke. Was it like this? He blew a few rings.

"Cricky I—"

"Si" Gray haired, sharp-featured Martha Pond followed her impatient voice to the porch. "Were you talking? Why, Myles Jaffray." As he rose she wiped a floury hand on a floury apron and extended it, twinkled bright-like eyes at him. "How's Natalie, Myles?"

Norwich, Nov. 25 (CP)—Joseph Searls is 81 but that's not too old for him to go on a hunting trip. He celebrated his 81st birthday by shooting two deer while on a hunting expedition at South River. He did it the easy way too, by-firing a couple of shots close to camp while younger companions went far afield with less success.

Says at Least 25 P.C. Canadian Restaurants Are Sub-Standard

Winnipeg, Nov. 24 (CP) — At least 25 per cent of Canadian restaurants are sub-standard, Finlay D. Paterson of Sarnia, Ont. said yesterday.

Mr. Paterson, president of the Canadian Restaurant Association, said at a meeting here that a survey indicated that about 75 per cent of the tourists visiting Canada were "well pleased" with the restaurants they found.

"The greatest harm in our industry today is caused by such substandard restaurants," he said. "These should be much more distinguished in granting licences and much stricter inspection."

DEPARTMENT CRITICIZED

St. Catharines, Nov. 25 (CP)— The Ontario Department of Welfare was criticized yesterday for employing an insufficient number of field supervisory inspectors for the 53 Children's Aid Societies in the province. Delegates to a regional institute sponsored by the Association of Children's Aid Societies said there are three such inspectors, the same as there were 15 years ago when the work of the Children's Aid was only one-third as now.

12 Deaths Attributed to Terrific Storms

Worst Nov. Storm Ever to Strike Eastern Canada

Beach Communities Near Hamilton Bear Brunt

(By The Canadian Press)

Wallaped by a weekend of wet and weather, eastern Canada today counted a toll of death, widespread property destruction and untold injury in the wake of one of the worst November storms ever to strike that part of the country.

The deaths of 11—possibly 12—persons in Ontario and Quebec were attributed to the storm which rode into Canada from the United States with winds which reached a velocity of 85 miles an hour in some places and were still of gale force even at their lightest.

Whipping across the great lakes basin, the storm first stirred up tremendous waves, the storm left its mark on communities all through southern Ontario and southern Quebec.

But it took by far its heaviest toll on the low-lying beach communities near Hamilton in the wdge at the western end of Lake Ontario.

There, revised estimates placed the damage toll at $200,000, wreaked upon lake-front homes which were battered by waves 30 and 40 feet high. Twelve homes at Van Wagner's, Crescent and Burlington beaches were swept right into Lake Ontario during 12 hours of buffeting by the raging winds.

Some 300 persons were left homeless. Furniture, clothes were smashed and flooded. At least 200 were injured.

Owen Sound Will Vote on Modified City Manager Plan

Owen Sound, Nov. 27 — (CP) — Owen Sound will adopt a modification of the city manager plan in 1951, if a by-law which has received preliminary approval by city council is passed before the end of the year.

The by-law will appoint city clerk and solicitor Alan S. Stewart to the new post, as yet not officially named, in addition to his present duties. He would be responsible to the mayor and councils for the "carrying out of decisions regarding policy in all city departments."

Now receiving a $5,200 annual salary and due for an automatic $100 increase in 1951, Mr. Stewart would receive $6,500 a year under terms of the council's proposal. The figure was set to meet offers made to Mr. Stewart by two other Ontario cities which desired his services as city manager.

Favor Subway For Auckland

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Auckland, N.Z., — (CP) — A transport scheme to cope with the growth of Auckland, New Zealand's fastest-growing city, has been recommended to the government by a commission set up and brought to the country to study the problem.

Early features of the scheme already costed at $15,000,000 to $21,000,000, including an underground railway based on the London tube system.

The experts, Sir William Halcrow, English engineer, and J. P. Thomas, leading transport authority, recommended the building of a tube railway under the centre of the city as the nearest to an underground system. They urged the electrification of existing suburban railways, and made numerous proposals for changes in the present rail stations and marshalling yards.

Extension Foreseen

Ultimately they proposed the extension of the tube railways beneath the harbor to the suburbs on the northern side. This tunnel would be in addition to the harbor bridge, a large-scale project in itself, which is planned to be built in a few years to carry motor traffic.

Auckland by far the largest city in New Zealand with a population of 308,000, has grown so rapidly in recent years that most city facilities are heavily overtaxed. Inadequate transport is resulting in the inner city becoming greatly congested, with value of land which offer fine home sites, are being retarded.

COUNTRY CLUB BURNS

Montreal, Nov. 27 — (CP) — The County Golf Club of Montreal in suburban St. Lambert was destroyed by fire early today.

The 40-year-old wooden structure was described "as a complete loss" by Fire Chief Gerald Reilly of the St. Lambert department.

The blaze raced out of control before any fighting equipment reached the scene. No estimate of damage was available.

The club house was closed for the winter season last month.

Nine Catholic Churchmen Put On Trial

Prague, Nov. 27 (AP)—Nine Roman Catholic churchmen were put on trial here today on charges that they conspired with the Vatican to overthrow the economic and social order of communist-ruled Czechoslovakia.

Archbishop Stanislav Zela, auxiliary bishop and vicar-general of the Olomuc archdiocese in Moravia, and eight others were charged with high treason, espionage and other offenses.

Vatican sources reported last August that Bishop Zela had been arrested as part of the communist Czech government's intensified campaign against the Catholic church.

Ship Seems Rolling Diagonally, Across, Endwise-It's Seasickness

By DAVE McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Aboard H. M. C. S. Sioux off China coast, Nov. 27.—CP—It's because a destroyer is so narrow, you see.

I came jauntily up the Jacob's ladder of the Sioux, tied at Dock 18 in Hong Kong harbor. Yes sir, a good salt air. Makes a man want to breathe again.

I found a place to sit down—no easy matter on a destroyer—and in a fe wminutes the ship was under way.

It wasn't long before it started to get too warm. Must be near the engine room.

The ship began to roll from side to side. But it also began to roll endways, too, bow to stern.

A bulb in a light wasn't screwed in tight. When the ship rolled, it blinked on and off.

Then somebody switched on the overhead fan. It rotated slowly.

Now the ship seemed to be rolling diagonally, as well as endways and endways atthe same time.

I noticed I wasn't answering questions put to me. In fact, I couldn't hear anything being said.

A picture seemed to be jogging back and forth on the wall. Then the instructions on the wall began to rotate like a ferris wheel.

The pressure was building up; the ship going up and down and rolling diagonally and across; the light flashing; the fan rotating; the picture jogging; the ferris-wheel whirling.

"Ready for lunch," somebody said.

Even the salt air was no help.

226 Deaths Blamed on Winds And Snow Which Struck Along Atlantic Seaboard

New York, Nov. 27—(AP)—Life for most of the millions on the eastern seaboard of the United States was getting back to normal today, 48 hours after the great Appalachian storm spread death and destruction from South Carolina to Maine.

At least 226 deaths were blamed on the devastating winds along the Atlantic seaboard and the heavy snow which fell as far south as Mississippi and Alabama. Damage in New England alone was estimated at $100,000,000, with threatened floods expected to add to the cost.

Most power, traffic and telephone service torn up by the storm was restored yesterday, but some areas still were out off.

Thousands still shivered, and met the darkness with candles.

The storm moved away from the coastal region Saturday night, leaving behind a cold wave that hovered just under freezing.

Contrary to all normal weather movements in the northern hemisphere, the storm's centre turned northwest instead of continuing northeast. It left New York only to swing over Lake Erie, then down to Northern Ohio, and then northwest again over Lake Huron, where the weather bureau said it was blowing itself out today.

This was the storm centre only. Around it on land were raging snow-laden winds whirling out nearly 600 miles in every direction and hitting from Maine to the Mississippi River at their widest span.

On the storm's earlier northeast passage, the shore areas were ripe

Mrs. M. Sullivan Is Remanded For Second Week

Ottawa, Nov. 27 — (CP) — Mrs. Marion Sullivan, 50-year-old Toronto society woman, charged with the murder of her lawyer husband, today was remanded for a second week in police court.

Clad in a black fur cape, she stood briefly while Magistrate Glen Strike granted the request of Crown Attorney Raoul Mercier for a remand until Dec. 4.

Mr. Mercier said he made the request for the second remand on the understanding that the Crown would not at that time proceed with the case, but would be able to fix a definite time when it would be prepared to proceed.

The tiny courtroom was crowded and a small crowd of men and women gathered outside the doors, barred from entry by police.

Mrs. Sullivan, arrested Nov. 18, was composed and silent today.

From the courtroom the sub-urban-area woman was taken to the police garage. There she was held hidden from news photographers as she was driven to court 15 minutes.

Many reporters and photographers wandered away she was once more returned to the county jail on Nicholas Street in downtown Ottawa.

Meanwhile, police are continuing the investigation into the slaying of her husband, Francis J. Sullivan, prominent solicitor for the Ontario Lands and Forest Department.

His body, bludgeoned to death, was found in the early morning of Nov. 18 in the front room of a swank suite in the Chateau Laurier Hotel.

Mrs. Sullivan was booked on a murder charge about 24 hours later after being stopped while driving to Toronto.

Chinese Delegates Make Dramatic Appearance

Lake Success, Nov. 27—AP—The Chinese communists made a dramatically-timed entrance into United Nations body for the first time today. They appeared before the general assembly political committee for a debate on Formosa.

Their heads took their seats in the committee room while Russia's foreign minister, Andrei Vishinsky, was making the United States with transforming Formosa into a military base and clamping a naval blockade on the island.

The theatrical entrance of the Chinese communists produced a stir of excitement in the room. Vishinsky interrupted his speech while they were being given a welcome by Dr. Hsiu Chuan, head of the Chinese delegation, who greeted him sucnew. A thin smile creased Wu's face.

The Chinese reds were greeted by Trygve Lie, secretary-general, Dragoslav Protich, director in the U.N. department of Political and Security Council Affairs. He conferred briefly with Wu and then led him down the corridor to the nearby committee room.

Vishinsky was calling on the United States to recognize the Chinese communist regime when the reds entered. Nationalist China's Dr. T'ieng glanced up for a moment and then continued writing.

Vishinsky introduced a resolution calling on the General Assembly to recommend immediate action in Formosa and requesting the United States to end its alleged "aggressive" acts.

The Soviet foreign minister told the committee that American armed forces "have deliberately subjected the army to occupation" in violation of the Cairo and Potsdam agreements and the United Nations charter. Vishinsky opened debate on Russian charges of American aggression against Formosa.

The committee decided Friday to allow the Chinese communists to participate in the discussions

Close Escape From Drowning

Goderich, Nov. 27 (CP) — An automobile in which three grain elevator employees were also riding fell into the lake Huron.

Elmer Lee, 36, jumped out of the car and swam to safety. The driver, Norman Allen, 50, scrambled out after Lee into the water. Arnold Doak, 36, in the rear seat, was carried to the bottom but escaped by kicking out the rear window and crawling through the opening.

Doak, upon reaching the surface, grasped a coat held down to him by another man and hung on until a fellow worker, John way through 10 miles of four and Drinn, hauled him onto the dock. five foot drifts, finally stalled in

LESS WORK ACROSS CANADA MORE LAYOFFS

More Job Applications At NES Offices

Ottawa, Nov. 27 (CP)—A few temporary lay-offs due to material shortages, seasonal shutdowns on construction projects and termination of the harvesting season has increased unemployment in Canada slightly, the Labor Department reported today.

On Nov. 2, the total number of applications for work at National Employment Service offices amounted to 341,000, an increase of 10,400 over the 136,600 on Oct. 19, but down 25,400 from a year ago.

On the whole, the employment situation in Canada is buoyant, the department said. Workers released from agriculture and construction jobs as a result of the cold weather, are finding many more jobs available this year than they did last year.

Loggers Scarce

Eastern Canada logging camps need many workers to cut their increased quotas of lumber. Pulp metal mines require additional help. Jobs are plentiful in the U.S. 1948 and 1949 Divisions but the Chinese fiercely throughout Monday.

A U.S. 1st Corps spokesman said the 25th was hit hard in the area, six miles northeast of Yongbyon. He said the situation there was critical.

Reserve units of American, British and Turkish forces were rushed up to bolster a sagging 30-mile eastern section of the Communist invasion front stretching inland from the Yellow Sea. The reds raced down the west coast south of the Manchurian border.

An estimated 130,000 Red troops are said to be pulled winter uniforms, began the counter-assault late Saturday night.

South Korean troops and the U. S. 2nd and 25th Divisions fought the brunt of the attacks, which continued with increasing fury Sunday night.

An correspondent Leif Erickson said the American divisions stopped the second series of the attacks in the centre of the line after earlier withdrawals of several miles.

Situation Not Clear

The situation on the eastern flank, manned by the South Korean 8th and 6th Divisions, was not clear. Fighting withdrawals of four to 5 miles in the North Korean sector were reported Sunday.

Field dispatches indicated heavy allied casualties. An indirect censorship settled over operations as a security measure.

Musicians Battle Drifts for 10 Miles Leave Car, Finally Reach Farmhouse

Guelph, Nov. 27 — (CP) Seven men narrowly escaped freezing to death Saturday when they fought a losing battle against a raging blizzard as they plowed their way between Orangeville and Fergus on a country road in a heavy snowstorm.

The men, part of a group of 10 members of the Clansmen Orchestra led by John Singular of Guelph, left Orangeville about 2 p.m. Saturday after playing at a dance there. Their car, after they had driven about 10 miles, stalled in a deep drift.

Unable to push the car, seven of the party, finally stalled in a deep drift on the Orangeville Fergus road about half way, began the trek overland.

Exhausted and soaked to the waist by the snow, the seven ran across a field to look for a farm house in which to take shelter for the remainder of the night. About one-half mile down the road from their snow-buried car, they spotted the farm house of John Wilson who took them in.

In the stranded car were Don and John Singular, Ken Wesengerd, Sid Mountford, Lawson Madden, all of Guelph, Louis Bradick of Kitchener and Roly Lindsay of Elora.

Ruest Goes On Trial Charged With Complicity

Quebec, Nov. 27 (CP)—Five jurors in Quebec were chosen today for the murder trial of crippled Genereux Ruest charged with complicity in a time-bomb air disaster that killed 23 persons in September, 1949.

Selection of the 12-man jury started in criminal assize court after the Seven-year-old watchmaker hobbled into the prisoner's box on his crutches.

Ruest said the words "non coupable" (not guilty) in a low voice when the charge was read to him by a black-robed clerk.

The formal charge is that the little watchmaker helped manufacture a time bomb that blew up a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane in mid-air Sept. 9, 1949, just off Baie Comeau, a half-hour jet of Quebec.

The charge said that Ruest intended to help J. Albert Guay, Quebec jeweler, due to be hanged fast, 16, kill Mrs. Guay who died in the plane wreck.

Choice of a 12-man jury from a panel of 152 Quebec district residents filling most of the seats in the courtroom started immediately after reading of the accusation.

Ruest, under police guard in solitary confinement since his arrest, was ordered to stand and face each one of the five jurymen as they were piloted into the room to hear the evidence in his case.

Pedestrians Make Complaint Over Splashing

Widening of the pavement by removal of the boulevard on the east side of Coleman Street may have pleased motorists, but pedestrians walking on the sidewalk are not so happy about the whole thing. Their "beef" is that splashing by motorists during wet weather has increased several hundred per cent since the street was widened.

It seems that since the street was widened the slope of the pavement does not continue to the curb with result that water lies in puddles about three feet from the sidewalk where it is splashed by auto wheels.

"Hasn't the pedestrian any rights at all," complained one resident whose clothes were liberally splashed on Friday. "I appreciate that motorists drive faster than necessary along Coleman Street, but the city works department is also somewhat to blame."

A well kept cemetery is a credit to any community.

The work of the Quinte Institute in Funeral Service has been widely commended, and we hope for renewed interest in this splendid community work.

A committee of Mr. J. F. McFarlane and Mr. F. Melbourne was appointed to interview authorities re purchasing of more ground to enlarge the cemetery. Another committee of D. Geddes, W. Hathaway, and Mrs. R. Stratton were appointed to survey and chart the cemetery and the plots.

It was decided to have a pot luck supper in the Sunday school hall Dec. 1 from 6 to 8 as a financial aid to the funds. A cordial invitation is extended to the community and surrounding areas to attend.

Alderman W. Argue Explains Benefits Of Health Dept.

Benefits of the proposed Health Department were explained to the Y's Men's at their regular weekly meeting in the Y. M. C. A. by Alderman William Argue. Because of misunderstandings, he felt it desirable that citizens should have a clear picture of the need of such a department. The history of medicine he stated was one of caring. The function of a health department was one of prevention by its ability to investigate and overcome many of the causes of disease.

Equitable Distribution of Costs

Indicating that it was the hope that such a department would be for the benefit of the rural areas as well as the city, he suggested that an equitable distribution of costs could be arrived at. A department so organized would be eligible for provincial and federal grants. The present annual available for health work as provided by the city and the Board of Education this year is $12,000 so that an additional $13,000 or approximately $25,000 per annum will be the question before the electors in as much as the estimated cost of the Health Department is $25,000,

Medical Health Officer

Such a department would provide for a full time medical health officer and sanitary inspector as well as adequate nursing facilities according to Mr. Argue, and a program of health education would be inaugurated particularly in the schools. He pointed out that with a budget of $140,000 for public works and $100,000 for fire protection the amount required for health could only be considered a little over a million dollar expenditure.

The Y's men reviewed the results of Radio Auction and were loud in their praise of merchants and those who made possible such a successful project which has become regarded as an excellent community medium, as well as providing funds for the service work of the club.

Driving Training School Will be Established

The Belleville Board of Education announced today that a driving training school will be established in January at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School. Instructor for the school will be Arnold Wilson, motor mechanics instructor at the school.

As chairman of the board of education Mr. Ross David stated the driving school would be established with but very little cost to the Board of Education. Instruction in driving theory would be given during school hours with actual driving lessons being given by Mr. Wilson after school hours.

The driving school will have the co-operation of both the city police department and the provincial police, it was stated.

Investigation into the matter had revealed that driving schools in certain other centres had been very successful with the city of Kitchener, one of the first centres to establish such a school, being very enthusiastic.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 27 (CP)—Prices declined steadily as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Industrials sagged with a wide list of issues lower. Losses ranged to more than a point and there were more than twice as many losses as gains. Steels, utilities and papers lost the most with a solid list of leaders lower. Agricultures, refining oils and retail stores showed a majority of losses.

Base metals opened lower and then continued downwards with declines ranging to $1.50. Consolidated Smelters dropped 1½ and Hudson Bay was down $1.25. Other key issues that were lower included International Nickel, Quemont, Waite Amulet and Steep Rock.

The gold decline was a complete reversal of their strong gains of the past two sessions. Senior producers dipped up to 35 cents while junior producers traded actively for a wide list of penny issues.

Western oils sagged up to 35 cents.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Nov. 27 (CP) —Sales up to noon were strong to 25 cents higher and fresh receipts included 300 westerns at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: Cattle 2,680; calves 400; hogs 760; sheep and lamb 900. Left from last week 500 cattle.

New Social Register Lists Important People

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—Society's 1951 scratch sheet—the New York social register — came out Friday with the names of people it considers important.

Among the new "ins" is a 21-year-old model from Maryville, Wis., Hayne Blodgett. She married Gordon Murray, already listed, during the year.

The "outs" included Mrs. Henry Ford II's brother, Gerald McDonnell. He married a contractor's daughter.

And Mrs. Brana Tew Hinton Hart divorced a Wall Streeter and married an industrialist.

She was dropped, too.

Among the still-ins are Mrs. Winthrop (Bobo) Rockefeller, the coal miner's daughter whose Cinderella marriage is reported on the rocks.

One newcomer probably won't be too excited.

He's the Marquess of Milford Haven, a cousin of King George VI. He married an American woman and that got him in.

But he's already in another little catalogue of notables — Burke's Peerage.

Speaker From Batavia To Address Youth Rally

Rev. John A. S. Woodhouse, of Batavia, N.Y., will speak on the subject "The Korean War, the United Nations Flag and the Second Coming of Christ," at the Youth Rally which will be held Tuesday night at the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Everett St.

Mr. Woodhouse, a graduate of Houghton College, is a young man of unusual executive and preaching ability. His fine musical talent, together with his pleasing personality and fine Christian spirit, have been the means of opening doors to Christian service from coast to coast.

To take care of the overflow crowd that is anticipated at this great musical youth rally a public address system will be put into operation in the basement of the church.

PICTON

Woman Seeks Seat on Council For First Time

Picton—For the first time in the history of the town of Picton, a woman is a candidate for municipal council. She is Miss Mary Dunkley, a retired school teacher. She is seeking the councillor seat, one of seven for the six seats available.

Reeve J. C. (Buff) Cooper and Deputy Reeve Robert Cackburn are seeking the Mayor's chair vacated by Mayor William Henley after two years' service.

A second nomination is necessary to fill the reeveship. Frank Dunning received the nomination and was the only one who did not withdraw at the meeting. By Saturday night, he had not qualified, leaving the office still open. A second nomination will be held late in December.

Councillors Alfred King and Carmen Scott are contesting the Deputy reeveship.

Seeking council seats are Lindley B. Calnan, Nesbitt McKibbon, Donald Ward, members of this year's council; Miss Mary Dunkley, Dayton Wark, newcomers to municipal politics; Ralph Gibson and Oscar Grimmon, former council members.

Harry G. Blakely was given an acclamation as Public Utilities Commissioner.

Trustees given acclamations were—Pierce Jones, 2 years, and Russell Gardiner, 1 year, Brock Ward; Edmund H Carter, 2 years, Quinte Ward; Dr. C. S. Slack, 2 years, County Ward; Jack B. Lehmup, 2 years, Tecumseh Ward.

Rural Nominations

Warden Norris Whitney, reeve of Ameliasburgh township, retired, with Deputy Reeve Thomas Walker becoming reeve. Melvin Pulver is the new deputy reeve. Councillors, re acclamation, are Harmen Montgomery, William McDougall, William Nightingale.

In Wellington village, this year's council was given an acclamation, their names being the only four nominated. They are Reeve James Clemlnson, councillors Leonard McLennon, A. C. Platt, James P. Johnson, W. G. Wilson. Harry D. Clemlnson, father of the Reeve, was given an acclamation as Utilities Commissioner.

Reeve Jack K. Welsh, veteran member of council, retired as Reeve of Sophiasburgh. He is succeeded by Harold Barker. There is a contest for councillors, four to be elected from: Clarence Allison, Blake Richards, Bert Moran, Harold Robinson, members of 1950 council, and John I. Thompson, Stanley MacDermaid.

Hallowell Township council received an acclamation with this year's council returned—Reeve D. O. Reynolds; Deputy Reeve Clarence Hicks; Councillors Bruce Hyatt; Harry Davis, Jr., Clifford Wilson. Hallowell electors will go to the polls anyway. A plebiscite will be held to determine the wishes of the ratepayers as to the continuance of the County Health Unit.

South Marysburgh township has a contest for both reeve and council. Reeve Carson Scott is opposed by Stewart York, a former councillor. Seeking the four councillors seats are Howard Dulmage, Howard Gyde, Verne Bongard, members of last year's council; Donald Walker and Benton Goodman. Councillor Elmer Collier did not qualify.

Hillier township gave an acclamation to Reeve Norman Foster. There is a contest for councillors. Four will be chosen from Kenneth Conley, Sam Danford, Ray Ferguson, Murney Parks, Lewis Wight, Kenneth Wood.

Athol and North Marysburgh townships hold their nominations at the end of the year.

Street Lights Off for Hours, Pole Set Afire

Picton — Picton was without street lights through Saturday night though other lights were not affected. A large tree fell on the hydro wires on Maple avenue about eight o'clock Saturday night during a high wind and rain storm.

About the same time, live hydro wires came into contact and set a hydro pole ablaze on Johnson street. The fire department was called on to extinguish it. Sparks blew towards homes in the neighborhood but they did not ignite.

The gales ripped many limbs from trees, put a number of telephone lines out of commission and ripped off doors and parts of roofs. Saturday saw the county having a heavy rain storm instead of snow which fell in Toronto and other areas.

ANNIVERSARY MARKED

Picton—Picton United Church marked its anniversary with special services yesterday. Rev. H. M. Servage of Queen Street United Church, Kingston, was guest speaker. His topic at the morning service was "Look To Your Sanctuary". In the evening, he spoke on "A Trio Of Inheritance". Large congregations enjoyed these inspiring messages. Special music was given under the direction of A. A. Benvie, organist and choirmaster. The choir gave two anthems at each service. Soloists were Miss Shirley Pickering and Ralph Pickering. The senior, intermediate and junior choirs combined to render the fine anthems.

ESCAPE WITH TRUCK

Toronto, Nov. 27—(CP)—Police said last night two gunmen held up the driver of a wholesale firm Saturday and escaped with his truck and cargo of drapes, rugs and women's wear valued at $3,000. Manley Hastings, driver for A. Bradshaw and Son, Ltd., told police the gunmen, one wearing a stocking pulled over his head and the other wearing a false nose, appeared as he drove up to the rear of the company's building. He said the thugs bound him and taped his mouth.

SEASON FOR CAUTION

He drives well and safely who drives carefully in this season when road and highway conditions are more dangerous as the freezing period of the year takes control.

October had a record for fatalities with more victims of road accidents than in the same month last year.

With weather which tends to make driving more hazardous this month it becomes everyone using the highways and roads to be alert to the danger of being struck or of striking someone.

Caution should be increased also because of the shorter hours of light in both morning and evening.

When roads are slippery bicycle riders too must take the utmost precaution lest they be injured or injure others. There is the occasional rider who trespasses on the sidewalks with his bicycle or who rides at evening towers without carrying a light. At any time of the year lights are necessary for safety of riders or pedestrians in the darkness and riding on sidewalks is prohibited.

IN ONTARIO FORESTS

Work in the woodlands is under way as the logging season comes. The progress memorandum just issued for Quinte District reports that most operators are busy with plans for the winter, cut, constructing camps and roads in already existing areas. Some of the operations are already in progress and a preliminary survey indicates that something like 19 million board feet will be cut on Crown lands in the Quinte District before the winter season ends. Most of this is for pulpwood with some saw timber licences and the remainder one and a half million feet will be from small operations authorized by permit.

Measuring this material before being hauled to the mills, is a full winter's job for the Department's scaling staff. In addition to this measuring, the 13 scalers and their assistants inspect each operation at regular intervals to determine that cutting is being carried out according to the conditions of sale, proper utilization practised and that diameter limits are observed. In addition, in a number of cases trees are first marked for cutting by Department staff to ensure that immature trees or trees required for seeding purposes are left uncut.

The ever increasing scarcity of timber and the rising prices of lumber promise profits to woodlot owners who properly manage their woodlots.

Forest woodlot management involves first and foremost the fencing of woodlands from grazing so that seedlings can grow up as fast as mature trees are cut down. Secondly, woodlot management requires that certain trees be cut and certain trees left to provide the next crop. Finally, to make a profit from woodlands, the owner must find a good market for his standing timber, logs, lumber or cordwood.

How important the timber wealth is to this Province and the Dominion is apparent. More and more interest is being taken in the wealth that grows in the form of trees.

STRUGGLE FOR LIFE

That very wise and very shrewd churchman, Very Rev. W. R. Inge (who for many years was the "gloomy Dean of St. Paule") once gave the wise reminder that the struggle of life has its own meaning and value, and that a world without great problems — even if it could be achieved — would be a stagnant world.

He pointed out that there are ages of sowing and ages of reaping. The brilliant epochs may be those in which spiritual wealth is squandered. The epochs of apparent decline may be those in which the race is re-gathering strength after an exhausting effort. We tend to judge generations mainly by surface currents. There may be in dark times a shortage of beneficent forces which we cannot see.

But such nature and practical wisdom — the acceptance of troubles as part of the pattern and worth of living —has been in the thinking of many a true philosopher. It is close to a century and a half ago that the poet, William Blake, gave this wisdom its simplest and plainest expression, when he wrote:

Joy and woe are woven fine,
A clothing for the soul divine;
Under every grief and pine
Runs a joy with silken twine.
It is right it should be so;
Man was made for joy and woe;
And when this we rightly know
Safely through the world we go.

—Montreal Gazette.

Biography, especially of the great and good, who have risen by their own exertions to eminence and usefulness is an inspiring and ennobling study. Its direct tendency is to reproduce the excellence it records. — Horace Mann.

JUST FOLKS

THE HAPPIEST PEOPLE

At times I have ventured, when sitting alone,
To sort out the happiest people I've known
And none were the richest and none had the fame,
But others were glad when to visit they came.

They all had had trouble and sorrow to bear,
But the heartaches of others they'd hasten to share.

Their homes weren't pretentious; their gardens were small,
But they always had blossoms From springtime to fall.

They were humble, God-fearing and patient and brave,
For the needs of their children they struggled to save.

They loved and were loved and were content with their lot,
Which sometimes the wealthy and famous are not.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

Nov. 27th, 1920

The Bay of Quinte Country Club held its annual meeting at the Chamber of Commerce last evening and the reports revealed that a most successful season had been enjoyed. The sum of $1,000 was paid off the mortgage on the property and a new caddy house was erected. Many trees and shrubs were planted during the season. The following directors were elected: A. C. Weir, Dr. Blakslee, E. V. Ilsley, R. D. Purdon, H. J. Wyer, Fred B. Smith, William Parker, Roy Stafford and Dr. McCreary.

Four hundred and sixty thousand gallons of gasoline were pumped into one of the local municipality's reservoirs recently in five and a half hours. This is the first time in the history of Belleville that a fire has been called at the Government dock here. Pipe lines were laid from the boat to the tanks.

30 YEARS AGO

Nov. 27th, 1920

Belleville City Dairy Limited has been incorporated with a capital stock of $40,000.

Subscriptions to the fund for the Christmas tree and entertainment for the children of soldiers, which is being arranged by the G.W.V.A. now total the sum of $303.05.

St. Andrew's Day will be celebrated by the members of the local camp of the Sons of Scotland by a gathering of the clans in the Oddfellows' Hall.

"Mutt and Jeff" will be the attraction at the opera house on the evening of Nov. 30th.

Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Dunning of Panama City are visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Black, Hillside Street.

Nov. 27th, 1910

The annual banquet of the Belleville Business Men's Bible Class was held in the assembly rooms at Bridge Street Church last evening and was a very enjoyable affair. J. J. B. Flint was the chairman and Mr. David Price was vice chairman. Reports from the various departments of the class were read by the treasurer, Mr. Russell Crown and the secretary, Mr. L. W. Holmes. Brief addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. Bishop, Judge Deroche, Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, Mr. A. R. Walker and Mr. William Johnson. Musical solos were rendered by Mr. Fred Sprague, Mr. Harry McKay and Mr. Ernest Mountjoy. Allan Crown was the accompanist.

Mr. C. M. Reid will address the men's meeting at the Y.M. C.A. on Sunday afternoon.

50 YEARS AGO

Nov. 27th, 1900

We are willing to wager that the horse which drew Dr. Hoboe cart can easily travel a mile in two minutes.

The rising generation in Belleville should be kept at home more after the sun goes down.

Several persons who are thinking of running for the office of aldermen will get it where Mary wore the beads.

The merchants anticipate a big trade this coming Christmas season. Here's hoping they get it.

Mr. Moran, the well known piano tuner, is in town.

Mr. C. A. Gibson will leave shortly to spend some time in the south.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

If war really comes, there is one feature of the problem facing us that should cause widespread concern. And that is: where will the sergeant-majors come from?

Normally, wars are far enough apart for a good crop of sergeant-majors to grow, ripen and be wood. For example, in the last war, the U.S. had available a goodly crop of sergeant-majors left over from No. 1. They were just in their prime. Being around 50 years of age, they would reasonably pass themselves off as 45.

Their chests had not yet dropped down; or, if they had, only a few weeks was necessary to get them back up from the belt again. Their voices had lost none of their resonance. Their hampers were likely as only those of men of fifty can be. Their wit had been given a fine whetting by the years. They remembered all the old gags and had thought up as many new ones.

The sergeant-majors with which you shall be served, of course, survive it. They don't die in battle. Younger men they train out them from their positions of authority in the same natural course by which young stags cast old stags from a herd of elk, say. The old sergeant-majors end up as custody clerks, or drill dogs in the front offices of home-front generals.

But a war now will catch us with our Sam Brownes down, so to speak. The sergeant-majors available after the interval of only five years since the last war will be mere children. Some of them won't even be in their 30's. Some will have neither chest nor belly. The voice of a 30-year-old lacks the roar of authority. No man of 30, no matter how sour the pickle in which he has been kept, can be adequately acquitted for the job, it takes years of rik to make a sergeant-major.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

A SPIRITUAL DISEASE

We get nowhere in this world by hating people. Literature is replete with the accounts of people who have dedicated their lives to the painful project of hating someone. On such a spirit of hatred foods have been based. And always they have resulted in nothing but blood-letting and the wrecking of happiness.

In the first place we should remember that we will never bring anyone around to our way of thinking by hating them. And much less will we arouse his admiration or his love by showering him with contempt. The thing we need most to remember is that hate bounces off the lives of those against whom it is directed, and comes back to destroy our lives. Just as certain lethal rays may enter the human body and bring about death and the victim is not conscious even of discomfort until all hope of recovery has passed, so hate eats away our souls and we are unconscious of it until we discover that everything we prize most in life has died within our hearts.

Hate is a spiritual disease. The person who tolerates it in mind and heart is desperately ill. The specific for which it can be cured is religious faith and a mighty exercise of the will to begin loving people instead of hating them.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

THIEVES AND REDS

These are trying times for Americans. The international situation, alone, is enough to put a balloon labelled "Gloom" over every thinking man's head. The domestic situation is almost as depressing.

A cursory glance at American newspapers is enough to convince you that the country is menaced night and day by subversives who are aiming on overthrowing authority and that authority, itself, is pretty heavily ridden with a dry rot of crooks and schemers.

Most Americans are still wavering their hankies dalntly under their noses to dispel the aroma of the recent elections in which some flashy hotel-room deals came to light and a large number of the candidates screamed "Red"; at their opponents, most of whom, were politically, slightly to the left of Little Orphan Annie.

Life magazine, even emerging from its great height on the rules and morals of American politics, observed, not long ago, that "Most Americans take for granted that politics is at least a little crooked." It might be a more accurate estimate to suggest that most Americans are wondering just how crooked politics are.

On the minor official level the Kefauver Crime Investigating Committee, which is prowling the nation looking under stones, has unearthed a staggering amount of graft and corruption.

Recently in Nevada they came across a number of choice specimens of that American phenomena, the small-salaried officer who drives the custom-built Cadillac.

So many police officials have been linked to the rake-off in the States in recent months that honest cops are writing petulant letters to the papers complaining that their children are losing their respect for them.

Typical of these red-blooded American boys is Police Chief John Gerdes of New Orleans, who recently paid income tax on $105,-000 "found money."

Sherriff Gyoth confessed to the United Press, with charming candor, that he had made most of it on fixed horse races while he was a mere chief of detectives. Then announced that he would be a candidate for mayor of New Orleans in 1954.

How To Succeed

California has had a crime commission of its own and has learned with sigh (and not much else) that agents of the Federal Bureau of Internal Revenue have been cozying up with the state's collection department with a view to mutual advantage of both.

Indeed, the wedding of racketeers, mobsters and gamblers to crooked law enforcement agents and venal politicians is pretty well taken for granted.

One nationally famous writer recently wrote that racket power is rigidly organized like a big corporation, has reached right up into the upper political strata in both major parties. He intimated that when it came to infiltrating high government agencies the "Big Mob" could give the Communists the ace, deuce, jack and joker and still show cards and spades.

The tax-collection racket, proof that any intelligent, hard-working boy can get ahead under free enterprise and have a Cadillac and swimming pool of his own on a modest civil service salary.

An interesting example of this was the tax collector in Nevada who organized a copper mine and sold a great many shares to the owners of gambling clubs, bars, night clubs and similar establishments.

The deal was simple. An investment in the mine meant that the tax agent would not be too boorishly insistent about the taxable income of his share-holders. One of the wealthiest gamblers is reported to have commented that the stock was the best investment he ever made, a droll remark, indeed, when you know who mine. In contrast, a Las Vegas businessman who refused to buy stock is now in the policy of tax evasion, the first man to have been prosecuted on this charge in Nevada in several years.

Faced with almost daily sagas of this sort, it is small wonder the American may be forgiven for wondering if anybody at all is honest any more and if virtue is really its own reward, as daddy said.

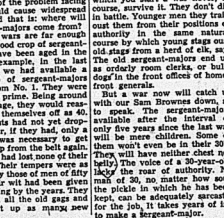
While this average American is plaundering nervously at his right shoulder for dishonest politicians and public servants he must keep a sharp lookout over his left for Communists.

Since the word "Red" has now come to mean anybody who doesn't part his hair to your liking, Misrepresentation is full of charges and counter-charges. It sometimes seems there are more Communists in the United States than Democrats.



This has taken on a musical comedy aspect in the past and in the city of Pasadena, California, there's a current example of how far it can go.

In that city a self-appointed committee is attacking the school system as "Communist." Evidence? Well, the committee says that students in the ninth grade are given the problem of racial prejudice (this could lead to revolution and so is "Red"), the committee charges) and that a visiting lecturer was Dr. William Kilpatrick, professor emeritus of education at Columbia (who is a member of certain organizations on the attorney general's subversive list and consequently "Red.").

With this kind of thing going on a citizen never knows when he, too, is going to find a finger pointed in his direction and may be forgiven for joining nothing more inflamatory than the YMCA or, better, staying home reading the Criminal Code.

These are indeed trying times for Americans.

IF PATIENTS WERE NOT SO DUMB

Mouth cancer kills 7,500 persons in a year in the United States. Dr. Hamilton B. Gordon of Ohio State University believes 5000 of victims could be saved by early detection through regular visits to the dentist.

Addressing a convention of physicians and dentists Dr. Robinson said mouth cancer is often caused by rough edges of teeth, by tartar deposits and by poorly-fitting or broken dentures. Yahhut.

The trick is to persuade people to make regular visits to the dentist. Most of 'em are pretty dumb about it—they think you are cracked when you tell 'em how important it is to keep all teeth—their own or denture made by the dentist—functioning, if they hope to maintain health, vim, general efficiency and a good looks and sickeee longevity.

Only a few of the dentist's competitors who assured the poor geeks it was just as well and cheaper to have 'em out and be done with it. The succesful practitioners did point out that what they did not know, just what the patient could be doing with their teeen ourselves and not for publication, it was good health.

Any dope can tell you that I call you or anybody ignorant, if you are not a doctor of medicine, you know perfelly well that I mean ignorant of physiology, hygiene, bacteriology and the like. Let me say, for the week. For example, my one Mind Menu a day for this week would read thus:

Appetizer: "Trivia", by Logan Persall Smith.

Salad: "Still Seeing Things", by John Mason Brown.

Entree: "Fifty Famulous Years," by H. V. Kaltenborn; "Pathway to the Future", by Harold Kantz; "Purple Land", by W. H. Hudson.

Desserts: The New Testament; hundred books that be loved as "Golden Florins". And that is what great books are, they are even more, for they feed the mind and nourish the soul.

"First sellers" of the day do not clutter my library shelves. They resemble too much the menu cards of fashionable eating places. Interest in them is soon gone, like the wind". Great books, that have stood the test of the years, are what should be in every well regulated Mind Menu. Many are religious cast.

Enriched Bread

For your information the article inclosed, by a noted nutrition authority, explains why enriched bread fulfills every requirement that your much touted wholewheat bread does not. Let me say, for the week. For example, my one Mind Menu a day for this week would read thus:

Answer—The magazine article defines enrichment as the process of bringing white flour up to the level of whole wheat flour in content of the four B vitamins — thiamin, riboflavin and niacin — to which you up, take the $5, $10 and $20 bills from your wallet and gave back the $1 and coins, would you be enriched?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MIND MENU

I read somewhere, long ago, the statement that if you knew what a person ate you could get a good idea of the sort of a person he was. Perhaps there is something to the idea, especially from a physical standpoint, but I think a more accurate idea of a person can be gained by learning about what he feeds his mind. Learn what his Mind Menu is and immediately Smith, Jones or Doe is praise him, for it is what a person thinks that sets him apart.

Endless variations of course are what make up the Mind's Menu. At the end of the list I would back "Ex Libris Carissimis", by Christopher Morley he has listed some hundred books that he loved as "Golden Florins". And that is what great books are, they are even more, for they feed the mind and nourish the soul.

"First sellers" of the day do not clutter my library shelves. They resemble too much the menu cards of fashionable eating places. Interest in them is soon gone, like the wind". Great books, that have stood the test of the years, are what should be in every well regulated Mind Menu. Many are religious cast.

King Will Tour Six Cities in New Zealand

Wellington, N.Z. (CP) — The 1952 Royal tour of New Zealand is likely to be drastically curtailed when compared with the program mapped out for two years ago before the king's illness. The revised itinerary is likely to provide for calls only at the four chief cities, Auckland, Wellington, Christchurch and Dunedin, and attendance at one large Maori gathering.

The program for the cancelled 1949 tour provided for travel by train, plane and ship. It is now probable that under the new plan, the Royal Family will be almost all their travelling by ship, either in the royal yacht Vanguard, or in a New Zealand cruiser for the coastal passages.

A. G. Harper, under-secretary for internal affairs, will leave for London shortly to discuss detailed arrangements for the tour with Buckingham Palace officials.

LOTS OF COAL

A survey of Pakistan indicates there are millions of tons of workable coal reserves.

According to Statistics Nearly 175,000 Accidents Will Happen in Next Year

The supervisory staffs of many industries in this area were present at a dinner meeting sponsored by the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, and held at Gilbards Furniture Shop in Napanee, last Wednesday evening. Many of those present were above the manufacturing processes of Gilbards in the afternoon prior to the dinner.

The speaker, introduced by Mr. S. Poole, was Mr. C. Gordon Cameron, medical aids officer for the Workmen's Compensation Board. The main points of Mr. Cameron's address were graphically portrayed by incidents and accidents whose particulars had been brought to Mr. Cameron in his work.

"The work of a Safety Committee is a job where the full results of your labors are not always evident," Mr. Cameron remarked. "There is no record of the accidents that have been prevented by the guards, appliances, bulletins, and g;zer efforts of the Safety Committee. The job is a thankless one and you come to the conclusion that the going is tough. What else?"

With the case histories of many injuries, and with the stories of the adjustments that follow incapacitation, either blindness or loss of limb, Mr. Cameron very effectively brought to a very rapt audience the realization of the need for continual, incessant efforts in safety work and accident prevention.

Worthwhile Job

"When the going is tough, think of the number of men who are not cripples today because of the efforts and programs of the safety committee, and feel that the job is worth while, then do not stop there but think again." Mr. Cameron pointed out that with the 1951 coming up, taking the statistics of 1950 as an example, "there will be approximately 175,000 accidents, 200 to 300 people reported killed or who will die as a result of various industrial accidents."

With the plea for greater thought and effort, more planning and consideration for the safety of the workers, so their future will not be marred by the misery and suffering of an industrial accident, Mr. Cameron said, "I scorn the thought that anyone would suggest this plea is made to save the millions of dollars that accidents cost. It is made in the name of humanity, in the hope that the day may come when we can proudly claim that we have eliminated industrial accidents other than those beyond human control."

Appreciation for the speaker's address was made by Mr. H. S. Burley. Among those present were Mr. Jafferies, factory inspector for the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, Toronto, H. Kapitle, chairman of the Eastern Ontario division, I.A.P.A., and G. Stephens, secretary of the I.A.P.A. The meeting was presided over by Mr. H. Rivest, chairman of the BeReville section, I.A.P.A.

Three Destroyers Most Prosperous Corner of Canada

By DAVE McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Aboard H. M. C. S. Sioux Off China Coast, Nov. 25 (CP) — A prosperous nation, economics has it, not only has plenty of money but keeps it in circulation.

In that case, the three destroyers in the Korean show are the most prosperous little corner of Canada.

Money changes hands so quickly here, the owner hardly has time to touch it.

It's all part of the mad currency whirl in the Far East.

The men aboard the ships are paid in Canadian dollars which, for all practical purposes, might as well be chewing gum wrappers.

These dollars the men immediately swap for American dollars — at a five per-cent discount — and these for occupation scrip. The paymaster simply takes back the Canadian money as he makes the currency changes and hands it back to the men again next pay day.

Scrip is good in American posts and the like. But if you want to buy from the Japanese, the scrip must be changed into Japanese yen. There are two kinds of yen, convertible and non-convertible. The latter can't be changed back into scrip.

They are also faced with the problem of dealing in Hong Kong with Hong Kong dollars, in Tokyo with sterling when making deals with Britons, and in Korea with the won, worth 4,000 to $1 American.

PARENTS BEWARE

Brantford, Nov. 25 (CP)—Parents who use Brantford theatres as nurseries had better watch out. Ray Auld of the Children's Aid Society, which prosecuted one such case several years ago, says he's going to get the law after people who send their children to the theatres in the afternoon with their lunch or 50 cents to buy candy. The kids, usually from six to 12, are picked up in the evening after six or seven hours in the show.

Elected Governor In First Attempt To Serve Public

Madison, Wis. (AP)—Seven years ago, while serving as a naval intelligence officer in the Pacific, Walter J. Kohler, Jr., decided that if he ever got back he would devote more time to public life.

In his first bid for public office Republican Kohler was elected governor of Wisconsin on Jan. 1 he will succeed Gov. Oscar Rennebohm, also a Republican, who did not run for re-election.

When Kohler is inaugurated he will be the second son of a former governor to take over the chief executive's post. His father the late Walter J. Kohler, served as governor of Wisconsin in 1929-1930.

The other father and son team was the late Robert M. La Follette and his son, Philip.

Walter Kohler, Sr., was beaten in two other tries for office after his election on his first bid. He lost to Philip La Follette in 1930 and to the late Albert Schmedeman in Democratic year 1932.

Young Kohler was born in Sheboygan, Wis., and graduated from Yale University before turning to work in the big Kohler Company at Kohler, Wis., a suburb of Sheboygan. The firm manufactures plumbing equipment and was founded by Kohler's grandfather.

He worked in various jobs at the Kohler plant before entering the service in 1942, coming out with the rank of lieutenant commander after active duty on an airplane carrier.

In 1947 Kohler left the Kohler firm to become president of the Vollrath Co., of Sheboygan, a firm that manufactures enameled and steel kitchen utensils and hospital supplies. The firm was started by a brother of his grandmother.

Kohler has been married twice. His first wife was Celeste McVoy Holden. They were married in 1932 and divorced in 1946. They have two children. His second wife is Charlotte McAleer of Philadelphia. They were married in 1948. They have no children.

1752 Treaty Basis Of Indian's Appeal

Dartmouth, N.S. (CP)—An elderly Micmac Indian is appealing his conviction for hunting deer illegally out-of-season at a 198-year-old treaty.

His wife, Mrs. Margaret Phillips, is using the case in an effort to champion the cause of Indian rights.

Sentence against Phillips was adjourned to allow clarification of the law.

Mrs. Phillips produced a copy of a treaty, signed by the governor, which says, in part: "It is covenanted that the said tribe of Indians shall not be hindered from, but have free liberty of hunting and fishing as usual."

Rare Falcon Shot in B.C.

Williams Lake, B.C., (CP)— One of the rarest falcons in North America was shot recently near this Cariboo district town, 200 miles north of Vancouver.

The bird, a blyack gyrfalcon, was brought down by Hermie Maurice at Alkali Lake ranch. It measured 24 inches.

Only four of these have been found in British Columbia. The first one was killed in 1903 and now is in the Provincial Museum at Victoria.

The falcon's habitat in the Canadian northland extends to within 500 miles of the North Pole. They occasionally move south in the winter.

LUCKY HORSESHOE

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 25 — (Reuters) — A lucky horseshoe saved Jen Taylor when he was swept from a bridge in the dark by Nairobi flood waters. Carried against a tree he clutched for a bank and got a grip on a horseshoe nailed there as a hook for horses' bridles. He clung to it for four hours before he was rescued.

11 Governments in Canada Will Suggest Solutions Of Amendment Procedure

Ottawa, Nov. 27 (CP)—Canada's 11 governments are going to try individually to come up with an acceptable solution to the most difficult problem of the many standing in the way of agreement on a procedure for future constitutional amendments.

Representatives of the governments — members of the continuing committee of attorneys-general — decided yesterday after wrestling with the problem for two days to adjourn further work until next month. In the meantime, the representatives will study the problem with their own governments.

The governments know what they want — an amending formula that will protect the particular rights of Quebec and those of the other provinces without giving any one province the right to veto a change desired by the majority.

Some of Problems

For instance, they don't want a small province such as Prince Edward Island to have the power to block a compulsory contributory old-age pension program desired by the majority. They don't want a big province like either Ontario or Quebec to have the power to block something desired by the other provinces.

At the same time, there is the question of protecting Quebec's language rights and her own legal system. Quebec operates under the civil code, based on old French and Roman law. The remaining provinces operate under English common law.

An official statement issued by Justice Minister Garson, chairman of the committee, at the conclusion of discussions said the attorneys-general will meet again next month while they are here for the federal-provincial conference on fiscal and other matters.

That conference opens Dec. 4 and is due to be followed by the third plenary session of the federal-provincial constitutional conference. The first plenary session was held here last January and the second in Quebec last September.

Amendment of Constitution

The aim of the governments is to obtain for Canada full power to amend her own constitution—the British North America Act, passed by the United Kingdom Parliament in 1867 when the Canadian provinces decided to federate.

A year ago parliament obtained from the United Kingdom power to amend the constitution on all matters within federal jurisdiction. The provinces have always had the power to make amendments on matters solely within provincial jurisdiction.

But the United Kingdom parliament still has to be asked to ratify any constitutional amendments dealing with matters under the joint jurisdiction of the federal and provincial governments.

The amending formula being drafted now will be used once full power over constitutional amendments is transferred from the United Kingdom to the Canadian parliament.

The governments have agreed on the classification of about 100 of the 140-odd sections in the constitution. Of new remaining 40, one is causing the most difficulty. It is section 92 of the B.N.A. Act which confers on the provinces full jurisdiction over property and civil rights — the rights enjoyed by citizens in every community across the country.

One suggestion was advanced that the section, barring specifically-listed exceptions, be subject to amendment only with the consent of Parliament and all of the provinces. Another was that the section as a whole be subject to amendment with the consent of the majority, but that the exceptions be changeable only with the consent of all governments.

Both suggestions proved unacceptable. Information indicated that one of the reasons was because conditions in another 50 or 100 years from now could not be foreseen.

The informant said that if the problem concerning property and civil rights can be solved, all other points of disagreement will be overcome.

Women of the Moose Hold Open House

On Thursday night the Women of the Moose, Belleville Chapter 435, held their regular meeting in the Saco Club rooms with Senior Regt. Selina Isles presiding. This was "open night" and around 75 were present. Guests were from Peterborough, Port Hope, Frankford, Trenton and Belleville. After the officers and escorts were at their stations, the Sr. Regt. called the meeting to order. There was balloting on two candidates who had the ballot favorable. Then came the initiation of five, Bethla McCauley, Elva Reid, Trenton, sponsored by Homemaker Madge Bailey, Violet Bridge, Beatrice Leech, Marion Kovach, Belleville; sponsored by Jr. Regt, Peggie Mintz.

The new co-workers were all welcomed in the defending circle and all sincerely hope they enjoy being with the chapter as much as it is to have them. The Sr. Regt. then thanked the sponsors for bringing in their friends.

Guide Marg. Mallette thanked all co-workers for their help at Frankford and all thank Marg for the grand job she did herself. The meeting was then brought to a close. After the meeting the fun began. Convener Jr. Grad. Regt. Kay Donnovan passed out song sheets and old favorites were sung, followed by a good, old square dance with Jerry Clement on the violin and Irene Reed at the piano, and Bernard calling.

During intermission co-worker Barbara Burshaw, and Ron Donnovan tap danced and by the account of applause would say they did very well. There were old fashioned waltzes, two steps and a bit of jive. At midnight a buffet lunch was served by several co-workers. An invitation was extended by Belleville Lodge 1104, for all to attend the dance in the Vanity Fair at the end of the month. As a lot of buses had to be caught, the good night waltzes were played and many thanks were said for a lovely evening.

Yule in Britain Has Stores Full But Prices High

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)— British shop shelves are laden with half-forgotten delicacies as Christmas approaches, but rising prices may prevent millions of working families from noticing any appreciable change in Christmas fare.

Small price increases in such goods as Christmas puddings, cakes, cookies, eggs, butter, bacon and coffee will mean less money for luxuries like crystallized fruits, nuts and French fruits bottled in syrup.

A housewife planning a decorated Christmas cake will find all, or almost all, the materials she needs, but the price tag may be prohibitive. For the first time since before the war such things as preserved violets and roses, glace cherries, silver dragees, icing sugar, almond paste and sugared figurines are all easily obtainable—but price may daunt some shoppers.

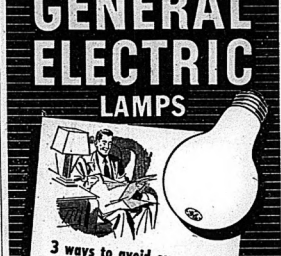
Turkeys Costly

No. 1 headache in a Christmas which will be the lightest rationed since the defeat of Germany, is the cost of turkeys, starting at 6s 6d. (97 cents) a pound. They have mounted in some instances to 8s and 10s. All other poultry prices, free from government control for the first time, are well in advance of last year and Maurice Webb, food minister, has announced there will be no Christmas bonus on the meat ration.

Other price problems are provided by Christmas trees and decorations. Trees that pre-war cost 2s 6d, are now 15s. Decora-tions a box of 12.

Queen Mary-Prince Charles School Club Holds Social Evening

On Friday evening the Queen Mary-Prince Charles Home and School Association held an enjoyable social evening in the beautiful assembly room of the Prince Charles school. Mrs. R. Pyke, president, extended a warm welcome to the guests, and outlined a skate sale to be held in Queen Mary school early in December.



Planned by the executive to help the members to become better acquainted, and to create a good community spirit among them, the entertainment began with a singing contest which provided much merriment. With Mr. Cavers at the piano, the rousing rendition of "A Bicycle Built For Two" won its group first prize by majority vote and sufficient delighted applause to persuade the singers to give an encore. Military whist, a good mixing game that is growing popular in the city, gave pleasure for the rest of the evening. Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Frederick and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Grills emerged victorious as the winners of the first prizes for the most fiendish.

Players then sat down at two long tables to refreshments supplied by the executive. As the delicious hot coffee appeared, the lady vocal trio sang "The Borden's please." The Borden representative for the Eastern Ontario district, Mr. Gordon Miller, had kindly donated the coffee, cream and serviettes, with the compliments of Borden's milk.

Mr. E. M. Lush graciously expressed the thanks of the executives and guests to Mrs. F. A. Beeby and Mrs. J. E. Pugh for so ably convening the evening's entertainment.

Parents Aid Teaching in Play School

Regina (CP) — Parents take turns in teaching a class of 41 at the Lakeview Co-operative Play School. The children there are the three to five years old; from day school they graduate to Grade 1 in regular public schools.

Mrs. David Smith is a specially-trained educationist in charge of the project. Mothers are from 9 a.m. to noon each school day. The Regina public school board gives the play school the use of two rooms in Lakeview School.

Two mothers work each day to help Mrs. Smith with the children.

"Learning through play" is the basis of the curriculum. Psychologists say play is a child's way of learning, of experimenting, of trying himself out, and of finding out about what goes on in the world surrounding him.

The youngsters start each morning with outdoor play. Then there is free routine. Children are assisted in learning to dress and undress and gain confidence by doing it in a group.

They drink milk and eat cookies in a lunch period, followed by 10 minutes' rest during which the children lie on blankets brought from home.

Story Time

Mrs. Smith often reads stories during that period. Most of them point out something of value to the children. A little fastidious, what happened to a boy who did not wash, for example, points out the necessity of cleanliness.

Equipment includes a miniature jungle gym, where the boys get exercise and sport in climbing about. The girls have a doll house and dolls to tuck in their time.

Clay modelling is another favorite pastime of the children. Teaching includes dancing to music and rhythm groups. There are no competitive features in the school.

The parents hold study groups periodically to discuss common problems. From the play school they learn what makes some children timid and others bold, and a host of individual variances.

Fathers sometimes take opportunity into the school's activities. They supply equipment used in the classroom. They made stools for the children, the jungle gym, the doll's house and a teeter-totter.

Breathe Deep for Beauty

Don't be a stay-at-home if you want to keep healthy, cautions pretty Screen Star Terry Moore. Everyone needs regular exercise—at its best a daily walk.

By HELEN FOLLETT

FRESH air addicts tells us that deep breathing is good for slendcrizing the waist and developing a full, high chest. Outdoor girls who love to tramp through the woods, play tennis or skate, according to the season, usually have pleasing figures, while the stay-at-home who loves her soft cushions will earn as a "lodging" place for a colony of fat cells in coutse of time.

Certain it is that deep inhalations pull the muscles of the mid-section inward, keeping them strong and resilient. Whenever you have a spare moment, breathe deeply, extending the backbone fully, drawing the abdomen not only in but well upward. Some movie stars, having little time for outdoor recreation, make it a practice to get at least twenty minutes of deep breathing exercises every day. They can take no chances of losing slender lines that suggest youth and loveliness.

In salons in which figure remodeling goes on, there is much emphasis on slimmer lines and lighter weight. there are also wispy young customers who are seeking fuller bosoms and more definite hip curves. It is surprising what can be done by these beauty wizards who make plump bodies slimmer, thin ones more attractive of contour.

Once a woman gets her figure trimmed into correct proportions she is rid of a number of problems. No trouble will she have finding frocks that suits that fit, impart chic, make her distinguished of appearance.

Normal weight will have a favorable effect upon her complexion, too, strange though that may seem. It means that she will be in condition to get plenty of exercise out of doors without suffering from fatigue. Without exercise the circulatory streams become sluggish and then the skin is pale or carries a grey cast.

Mr., Mrs. G. Deline Celebrate Silver Anniversary

Twenty-five years ago on an American Thanksgiving Day, at Maple Street Baptist Church, in Buffalo, N. Y., a young couple, Mildred Taylor and George Deline, attended by Miss Jennie Taylor, Miss Ida Seighton and Mr. Harold Taylor, sister, cousin and brother of the bride, plighted their troth to each other. Yesterday, on another Thanksgiving Day, Mr. and Mrs. George Deline were "at home" to their many friends in their new and lovely home on the Front Road.

At 4.00 p.m. a delicious turkey dinner was served to the immediate family and a few close friends, amid a setting of charm made lovelier by the profusion of pink and golden 'mums tastefully arranged throughout the rooms. This color theme of pink and gold was further accented by those white centre ribs!

those which centred the appropriately appointed table in their crystal bowls, on either side of which were moss-green, ceramic candle-holders with gold trim and silver services gleaming above the exquisite, white damask cloth.

The guests were received by Mrs. Deline, becomingly gowned in navy blue crepe with gracefully draped skirt and corsage of pink and gold 'mums. Mrs. Deline was assisted by her niece, Miss Virginia Sangbusch, of Buffalo, N. Y., who wore a green of red crepe accented by a glamor pin of delicate sparkmanship.

The evening was spent in an enjoyable sing-song of old and new favorites, and in dancing, after which refreshments were served, with Mrs. D. M. Schweidener, sister of the hostess, and Mrs. J. Gibson, presiding, while Miss Virginia Sangbusch and Miss Harryette Vaton served.

Mr. and Mrs. Deline were the recipients of many lovely pieces of silver, and beautiful cards of congratulation upon their silver wedding anniversary, extending to them sincere wishes that they might enjoy the golden one together.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harvey J. Roberts; Mrs. Walter B. Atkins; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Taylor; Mr. A. J. Taylor; Mr. and Mrs. David M. Schwendener; Miss Harryette Vaton and Miss Virginia L. Sangbusch, all of Buffalo, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Guthridge, of Cobourg, Ont.

Scotch Weavers Are Proud Of Efforts in Dollar Drive

The writer of the following was one of a party of Canadian newspaper women who toured British industrial areas as guests of Britain's Dollar Export Board and Canada's Dollar-Sterling Trade Board.

By KAY REX

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hawick, Scotland, (CP)—The Royal Stewart Tartan, which you bought in Canada may have come from the yards of Royal Stewart you may see woven here any misty day.

Should it be a cashmere sweater, there's a chance some of the £30 it probably cost you may have found its way back for more wool for more cashmere sweaters. It's all part of this endless circle which makes British trade wheels go 'round.

A good deal of Britain's woolen industry is located around Hawick in County Roxburgh and Walkerburn in Peebles.

Hatick — as the Scots call it — is a sleepy little town just above the English-Scottish Border and 50 miles south of Edinburgh.

Sleepy that is until one discovers there are 20 firms turning out knitted goods for world consumption. They range from underwear to the finest of woollen garments.

In the last year each of the 3,000 knitwear employees has contributed £700 ($2,100) of effort toward Britain's dollar drive. They'll tell you with some pride that exports at July stood at £2,007,703 ($6,023,109), an increase of 44 per cent over the corresponding 1949 figure of £1,453,238.

The figures probably would be even higher if more labor were available.

Old Industry

For years knitting has predominated in this town whose inhabitants still celebrate annually "the cessation of hostilities"—when the youth of the town defeated English marauders in 1514.

In fact it isn't unusual to find father, mother, sons and daughters all working in the same industry.

Such specialization has enabled craftsmanship to survive.

But it's the three-year apprenticeship which makes it difficult to get the right kind of help.

"It isn't possible to import just anyone," said a director of the 45-year-old firm of Barrie and Kersal. "Experienced help is necessary."

Labor also is hard to come by in the tweed mills—in such spots as Walkerburn, a small town which pops up at you from the rolling countryside 20 miles north of Hawick.

Here on the banks of the River Tweed Henry Ballantyne and sons has been manufacturing tweeds for 300 years.

In the main section of the low, rambling buildings women stand before the singing looms, turning out tartans one day, tweeds the next.

"We vary the work from day to day to keep them interested in what they're doing,' said a member of the Ballantyne family.

Wool for the cashmere sweaters of Hawick comes from a species of goat which thrives on the mountain slopes of the Himalayas.

But wool for the tartans and tweeds usually is a mixture of Australian wool and wool from the black-faced sheep which roam the surrounding hills.

Garlic, Cherry Spoil Dishes For Frenchman

New York (AP)—The trouble with North American cooking is garlic and maraschino cherries.

Outside of that Jean Ravaud, French Gourmet, has no serious criticism of the eating habits of his adopted country. Ravaud, whose experience is demonstrated by his waistline, is qualified to speak by membership in the Conferie du Tastevin, an international epicurean group.

"American food is extremely good," says Ravaud. "The frozen foods, like the fruit, I find as good as the fresh. And the canned goods—infinitely would I prefer a canned soup to some of the kinds which are home-made. No Garlic With Beef

"But what is this vogue of the garlic! Garlic in everything and too much garlic. A roast of pork, yes, always with garlic. And lamb, yes. But never, never a roast of beef with garlic. And whisper it aloud, certainly, but chopped up gloves of garlic—this must not be done."

The maraschino cherry is the figurative symbol of Ravaud's dislike of the American fashion for preparing "colorful dishes". "Food is not a painting," he says. "Food is something good to eat. When I chose a tomato to eat with a salad—broiled, let's say with a little fresh chopped parsley—it is for the taste, but never because of the appearance on the plate."

Ravaud was born in Bordeaux and raised in the cognac district of French.

French Cooking Best

"I think the greatest cooking in the world comes from the great wine regions of France," he says. "You will find that where people know how to drink, they know how to cook."

Like most appreciative eaters Ravaut is modest in his use of wine and vehement in preaching its use in cooking—not for alcoholic content which is lost during cooking, but for a means of injecting subtle flavor.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

Husband "didn't seem to want her"—she left him

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband and I have been married three years. I was then 20 and I was 17 when we were married. Now we have two children. We just haven't been able to get along. He would stay out night and be gone all day every day. He never stayed home unless he was sick, and he never seemed to care for the children like a father should. Finally, he stopped working, and I had to get a job to support myself and the children.

We stayed together until about a month ago. I just got tired and disgusted, so I moved away from where we were living. I wanted to be far enough away from him so that I couldn't see him and he couldn't see me. I wrote him a letter and he didn't even answer it.

I love my husband and I really did want to stay with him, but he just didn't seem to want me. I would like to know what I should do.

Mrs. E. B. J.

Dear Mrs. E. B. J:

Since you've already left your husband, it would probably be just as well for you to stay where you are and see if perhaps he won't make a move to get you back. If you go back now of your own accord, without his having asked you, you are going to weaken your position very much. He'll never believe you mean it if you ever again threaten to go away.

I think you should see someone experienced in helping straighten out tangled family situations. I suggest that you go to see someone at the YWCA in the city where you are now living and explain your situation. If they are not able to help you there, they will tell you just where to go for the kind of advice you need.

A good book for party-givers

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two girls of 19, and are planning to give a party in the near future. Since we do not want this to turn out to be a flop, we would like to know if you could suggest some games that would be interesting.

Vicki and Joan

Dear Vicki and Joan:

I suggest that you go to your public library and ask for "The Complete Party Book", by Alexander Van Rensselaer. This has a great many suggestions for special kinds of parties and games to play at them. It also contains a variety of menus for either light refreshments or more substantial ones.

If the library doesn't have this particular book, ask the librarian what books on party games are available.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

The A-bomb has suggested a lot of new fish dinners. At least 79 new varieties were discovered at the Bikini Atoll by Smithsonian institution scientists scouting the waters both before and after the experimental bomb explosions.

Among the fantastic specimens taken were fish a half inch long, big puffers, a strips that give lights in the dark and reverse ostriches—fish that buried their mouths projecting.

Unfortunately museum fish are no of much use to women who want to know what to make for Friday's dinner. You'll search in vain before you find a fish that is as adaptable as plain filet and skinless fish that can be fried, baked, broiled or made in a chowder or casserole.

Use filet of flounder to make a baked macaroni dish. The macaroni must always be boiled before it is baked, but it shouldn't be cooked to a soft paste. Egg and milk take the place of the usual cream sauce in this macaroni casserole.

Macaroni and Fish au Gratin.
Serves 4.

1-2 lb. elbow macaroni
Salt—pepper
1 lb. filet of flounder or sole
1 cup diced celery
2 tablespoons grated onion
1-2 cup stuffed olives
2 eggs
1 1-2 cups milk
1-4 cup grated cheese
Paprika

Bring 2 quarts of water to a oil. Add 2 teaspoons salt and macaroni. Stir will. Cook at a rapid boil until macaroni is tender 8 to 10 minutes. Drain. Wash macaroni in hot water.

Wash fish. Place in a saucepan with the celery. Cover with hot water. Add 1-2 teaspoon salt, bring to a boil and cook for tender 10-15 minutes. Drain fish and celery. Break fish into small chunks about 1 inch.

Grease a casserole or baking dish. Cut the olives crosswise into thin slices.

Put the macaroni, fish, celery, onion and olives into the casserole. Mix well.

Beat the eggs slightly and combine with the milk. Add 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Pour over the macaroni.

Sprinkle with cheese. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Place the casserole in a larger pan containing water.

Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour or until a silver knife inserted into dish comes out clean.

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

"Fine, thank you. Sorry to hear that Si had an accident. I was told in the village that besides his getting a crack on the head his bike disappeared. Sit down, Mrs. Pond." She perched on the edge of a chair he drew forward.

"I can't stay but a minute, I'm doilin' out pastry. Ain't it the limit about the bike? I bought it with money I earned doing laundry for the summer folks, and—"

"Not all of it you didn't, Martha," her husband corrected mildly. "You bought the bell and the headlight." His tone of indulgent amusement set her bright eyes snapping.

"If you'd waited till after the storm that night like I told you to, you wouldn't have got that crack on the head from the falling branch or lost your bicycle. You remember that artist man was here the next day and—"

"You mean Mr. Eckhard!" Myles interrupted. Si's eyes signaled a watch-your-step warning.

"Surprising the number of folks been interested in that missin' bike," he drawled. "There was all the neighbors askin' questions and Congressman Grove drove out to say he was sorry I lost it and glad I any idea when it was taken."

"You wouldn't open your mouth to one of them," his wife reminded acidly.

"Not much, Martha, too much. Quit now, you've set my brain spinnin' again." Si rested his elbows on his knees and sunk his head into his hands. "You'd better go, Myles. I can't talk any more, feel as if I was goin' to have one of my sinkin' spells."

"First, let me give you an arm into the house, Nosey."

"No, no. I'm better off out here in the air."

"Think I should leave him while he's like this, Mrs. Pond?"

"Sure, Myles." She threw a look of disdain at the straw-color hair, all she could see of her husband's head. "This is the first I ever heard of a sinking spell. Good-bye, give my love to Nat."

As he drove toward the highway, Myles checked the information he had gathered. The missing bike was a new angle to the mystery. Where and how did it figure? Why had Eckhard called to inquire about it? Did Si know where he was? If he did he was putting on a convincing act of ignorance.

Now that he had title-number and make of the bicycle why not advertise its loss in the local paper? He would sign the ad XYZ and have the answer sent to him at Shore Acres. How would he better word it? He pulled up by the side of the road and wrote out an ad on a page of his notebook.

At the newspaper office a perspiring man in a collarless striped shirt said: "One insertion will be seventy-five cents. Three for two dollars."

"Make it three." Myles laid down the money.

"Okay, seems like a lost-bicycle epidemic has struck town. This is the third this morning. Hot, ain't it?"

It didn't necessarily follow that the other ads were for Si's bike, he tried to reassure himself as he started his roadster, there must be several hundred in the town. Now what? He resisted the almost irresistible tug to return to the Gallery and tell Fran of his latest discoveries. That was out. Lord, how he loved her!

He glanced at the clock on the instrument board. Twelve-thirty. She might be having luncheon and would have time to talk with him. Nothing doing. If he saw her now he would have no excuse to lure her out with him tonight, Twelve-thirty. At about this time yesterday Sinclair was snooping through Fran's apartment. Where was he today? Lunching at the Country club probably. He practically — darn that word — lived there. This was the day of the mixed doubles. Not a bad idea to follow him up.

Each table on the terrace was occupied. He reached the group for which he was looking. Gene Sargent and Matilde, Sinclair and John Eckhard. All in white.

"Myles, sit with us," Gene invited eagerly. "We've been holding this chair against all comers for you."

"You shouldn't flatter me, Gene, I can't take it. What are you eating?"

"Lobster cocktails. They are out of this world."

"Sounds all right to me." He gave an order to the boy. That takes care of that. Are you playing this afternoon, Matilde?"

"Yes, at three. Hal Andrews and I battle for the silver cups Miss Tassle presented this year, cups that will belong to the victors. It will be points to her if we win." Myles ignored her bitter comment.

"Are you playing in the women's doubles, Gene?"

"I am. I wanted Fran as a partner but she is so infatuated with her job that she wouldn't ask Dad for time off, not that I think he would have given it to her, he's tense about Sargent Gallery, Jr., at present."

"That reminds me, I saw her for a minute when I stopped to give Betsy Dig a message from Nat. She said if I came to the Club would I inquire if her dark goggles had been found. She thinks she may have left them on the bleachers yesterday."

"She wasn't wearing them when I was with her, Jaffray," Eckhard declared. "We were watching you and Sinclair in your finals."

"She's forgotten that she gave them to me to keep for her at tea at:: the game," Sinclair explained smoothly. "They are in my coat pocket at the Inn. We have a date tonight. I'll return them then. Glad you reminded me, Jaffray."

You liar, you darned liar, I don't believe Fran is going out with you tonight, any more than I believe you have her goggles in your pocket at the Inn. I'll smoke you—

"Blake, you can't have a date with Fran tonight." Gene's impatient reminder collided head on with his train of thought. "We've promised to play poker with Kitty Saunders to give her a chance to recoup last night's—"

"I'll take that up with you later, Gene," Sinclair interrupted hastily. "Fran and I are cooking up a scheme to combine our two estates and build small houses. You look startled, Jaffray. Have you forgotten that Rebecca Harding's real estate was not included in the trust?"

"Forgotten? Do you think I could forget that I haven't that headache to contend with? I called on Si Pond this morning, Gene, he's been having a tough time—as if a crack on the head wasn't trouble enough his bike has been stolen."

"Stolen!" A small cracker John Eckhard had intended for the sauce in the lobster cocktail slipped from his fingers to the floor. He laughed. "I echoed that word as intensely as if Si were a dear and valued friend. The only time I've spoken to him was the day of the preview of my paintings."

Why is he lying, Myles wondered. He called on Si. Just when does that get us?

"Not that I care particularly, but why is Si—was that the name —having a tough time?" Blake Sinclair inquired.

"Remember the record-breaking thunderstorm we had—it was one of the matinee days, to be exact—the day you dropped in for tea at Shore Acres, Sinclair? On his way to report for duty at the Gallery the wind wrenched a branch from a tree and knocked him unconscious. That's the story, but—"

Aware of the tense attention of the two men, Myles leaned forward and lowered his voice.

"There is a whisper going the rounds that it wasn't a branch, that he was conked as he left the Gallery garage after stabling his bicycle."

"Conked," Gene echoed. "Can he tell me why anyone would be sufficiently afraid of Si Pond to conk him? He wouldn't hurt a fly."

"I can't. I'm just reporting the whisper that's going the rounds, and believe me, a whispering campaign can get results. This morning I took a look at Si's head. If a man sand-bagged him and is caught, it will rate a nice long sentence, with a fine added for full measure."

"Let's hope the brute will be caught," Eckhard declared. "Are you with me, Sinclair?"

"Sure, sure, this Si person is nothing in my young life, but I'm always on the side of justice. Boy, why are we spending so much time talking about a guy we don't any of us know?"

"Myles and I know him and like him," Gene defended. "There's something in your suggestion of a whispering campaign that gives me the jitters, Myles." Her face had grown curiously white under the tan.

"It shouldn't bother you, you didn't bop Si, Gene; perhaps after all the gossips are wrong, perhaps he was floored by a branch, but if he wasn't, a whisper-wave, and that is what has started in this town, is a sure-fire weapon—like the Northwest Mounty, it never fails to get its man. I believe—"

"For you, Major Jaffray." A boy in blue livery with reckles thick as stars in the Milky Way on his round face offered a note. "Gentleman waiting in the Jobb for an answer, sir."

"Myles, come back, won't you?" Gene pleaded as he rose.

"Sure. I'll meet you at the tennis court if not here."

Just inside the window that opened on the terrace he read the note.

I'm not waiting in the lobby. If you want to know what became of the bike be in the summer-house in Miss Trent's garden at midnight.

Myles hunted up the boy who had delivered the note.

"You said that the man who sent this was waiting in the lobby? No one there. How come?"

"Gee, Major Jaffray, don't get sore at me. Bill Duffy, the bell captain, gave me the message and the note to be delivered as soon as you came in." Anxiety whitened his face till the freckles looked like a sprinkling of chocolate chips.

"All right, I'll go for Duffy."

But the bell captain was off duty. For the present that ended the attempt to discover who had sent the note.

Gene had saved a seat for him in the crowded bleachers. His sister and Tassie Trent were directly in front of them. How did Nat feel when she saw the man whose wife she had been devoting himself to another woman? Could a law dissolve a marriage? Could she see him without remembering the days when he had been passionately in love with her and she with him? Would her love have gone out the window had it been founded on respect? One should be implicit in the other for a successful marriage.

Some tolerate snow, some hate snow, some refuse to step outside the door when there's snow on the ground. But among those who love snow is this little girl who found the sudden and near-record fall in Ontario for this time of year something to cheer about. She like lots of others, wasn't prepared for it, and tried to navigate with a tricycle instead of a sled. — Central Press Canadian.

SHOES WERE WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD

United States Attorney Parker is shown confronting a gold smuggling suspect, Manfred Fliegel, with evidence of crime. Fliegel and an accomplice were arrested by federal agents who said they had $250,000 worth of gold (black market value) in their possession. The metal was in strips concealed in a pair of specially constructed shoes (shown on desk), in a money belt and in the false sides and bottom of a trick suitcase. The shoes alone, federal men said, contained 18 pounds of gold. In all, there was 150 pounds of the precious metal. — Central Press Canadian.

MARMORA

Acclamations" Given Reeve And Councillors

Marmora — Acclamation was accorded the councils of Marmora Village and Marmora and Lake Township at the nomination meetings held in the town hall on Friday afternoon and evening respectively. Township clerk Thomas Bateman, presided at the afternoon session and announced nominations as follows: Marmora and Lake Township, Reeve Irwin McCoy Council, Arthur Sheridan, John Wilkes, George Fox, Gordon Jones.

For School Area Trustees, (2) George Brown, Louis Hulsmans, Sarcenda Father.

The only change is that Louis Hulsmans succeeds his father Joseph Hulsmans retiring school trustee. A fair number of electors were present for the subsequent meeting. Reeve McCoy, first speaker, thanked all in their various capacities who had given support last year to the county roads, he touched briefly on the proposed improvement to the Sheridan hill on the Corrigan road; the lowering of a knoll east of the village and widening and straightening out of the Malone road at points. He said he would leave it to the councillors who would be succeeding speakers to touch on township affairs in general. He next referred to the township concession road which led towards the property that the Bethlehem Steel Corporation is interested in and said that one third of the iron ore deposit was in the township. He also referred to the building resolutions embodied in the by-law now awaiting its third reading. "We must be ready to stop the erection of any shark town should the Bethlehem Steel Corporation develop the iron resources," he said with emphasis. The reeve said Arthur Sheridan thought the council had done its best to give value for dollars it had spent.

More Money Spent

Irwin Wilkes objectioned that the last roll was around twenty-eight thousands dollars, involving responsibilities. Money spent in relief had unavoidably been a little bit higher. He felt that money for road improvement had been wisely spent and considered the passing of the by-law on building restrictions a wise move for the council to make.

George Fox found his first year of office a busy one in which he had learned a lot with a lot more to learn yet. Over three thousand yards of rock had been put on the roads but he felt the expenditure was justifiable. Gordon Jones said he had enjoyed his initial year as councillor. The council had tried to do its best. Although some complained roof was too thick and others that it was too thin, he thought roads had been well looked after. The two school trustees in brief remarks promised co-operation with others on the board. Others speaking were E. D. O'Connor township assessor and Alex Fraser secretary of Chamber of Commerce, and Gordon Moffatt road superintendent

Well Attended

The meeting unmarked with any heated discussions was fairly well attended and closed with the National Anthem.

Clerk Presides

Mr. R. C. Prentice presided as village clerk at the nomination meeting for Marmora Village council for the evening. The following were nominated: Reeve, Vincent M. Lynch council, John R. Reynolds, Ritchie Wells, Arnold Walker, Fred S. Johnston; Hydro commissioner, George R. Forestell; public school trustees for two years (three), J. Warren Miller, Mrs. Dorothy Dygerld B. Sanderson.

Mr. Lynch's speech on the year's work, Reeve Lynch mentioned it had been heavy but carried out under trying circumstances. He gave his hearers some interesting back history of the village. While the incorporation of the village was effected on Dec. 8, 1930, it did not have its first reeve until 1907 when the late James A. McDonnall assumed the office. From 1896 to 1906 the municipal affairs of the village were taken care of by commissioners from seven county districts. The reeve then dealt in turn with village liabilities, fire protection, the new high school (which due to a impediment, will not be ready for use until September 1951), completion of drainage and sidewalk on the south side of No. 7 highway, the joint town planning and development committee of the village and township councils, maintenance of Rooster Park and other projects. He also referred briefly to his membership on the Finance committee of Hastings County Council. He concluded with thanks for the vote of confidence indicated by his return to office.

Other Speakers

Other speakers were D. P. Marcell, chairman of Marmora Public School Board; G. H. Forestell and F. R. Wells for the local Hydro Commission; Councillor F. G. Johnston, chairman of Streets Committee; Councillor Arnold Walker, chairman of Fire Protection; School Trustee D. B. Sanderson and Councillor John R. Reynolds, chairman of the Finance Committee.

Reeve Irwin McCoy of Marmora and Lake Township, accorded the privilege of saying a few words, testified to the splendid co-operation that existed between the two councils of the two-municipalities.

Native Programs Are Great Problem in Africa Radio

Capetown (CP)—South Africa is battling a radio problem that's a lot different from the television puzzle and the old arguments between privately-owned and national radio in Canada.

It's the problem of reaching thousands of new, uninstructed native dwellers in the South African cities and towns. For all the South African Broadcasting Corporation can do about it, the thousands of Africans who have clustered in makeshift townships along the Rand mining area might be at the North Pole, although actually they're only a few miles from the union's biggest radio station.

The trouble is that the great mass of African natives do not own radio sets. Even the handful who can afford them are often stymied because they live in new townships which are not yet supplied with electricity.

British immigrants were first to see the possibilities, and they pioneered a new cheap, battery radio set which is selling like hotcakes to the natives. Because of its shape it's called the "sauce-pan special".

Another idea is the plan of a British firm's subsidiary to take radio by wire to African homes. Under this scheme all the native's home would need is a loudspeaker. Sub-stations erected in the various townships would take the programs into homes lit by lamps and candles.

The South African Broadcasting Corporation, a statutory corporation independent of the state is anxious to tackle the problem but has been held up so far by shortages of equipment and material.

The first obstacle to corporation planning is that there is so far no reliable guide to the number of native listeners. Then the majority of them are laborers who would be able to hear only early morning, or late night, programs.

The language difficulty is a major language groups among the natives.

The South African Radio Corporation is impressed by the idea of "wired" radio programs and says programs will be set up as soon as the installations are started. This plan is expected to be operating in at least one Rand Township by next summer.

The program staff has done much pioneer work in discovering native wishes for radio. They are especially keen to keep alive the natives' love for their own traditional rhythm, music, their tribal songs, dances and festivals. Here too they face difficulties, for the natives who have flocked to the townships are cultivating a love of the native African "jive" in the bands.

IN BAD WAY

Toronto, Nov. 25 (CP)—Toronto's hospitals Thursday put their financial plight before the city's advisory committee on hospitalization.

Mrs. Charles McLean, spokesman for the hospitals, said they had a deficit of more than $600,000 in 1948 and 1949 and that estimates for 1950 were $1,500,000.

Arthur Lascelles, city finance commissioner and chairman of the committee, said the group unanimously decided the city could only make grants on what it considered the "need" of various hospitals.

Can't Guarantee New Song Is Popular When First Born

New York — AP — Nobody "verifies" popular songs, says Irving Berlin.

The little man who has composed many song hits explained that a popular song is simply one that becomes popular; it can't be invented with any guarantee of success.

"Schubert's 'Serenade' and 'Pagliacci' are popular music in just the same way as any other song that strikes a chord in the people," he said.

"When it fills the need of the people, when it strikes that chord, never mind whether it's a commercial success, If it fills the need it's popular music and maybe it becomes folk music."

Berlin leans forward to tap a forefinger on the desk:

"If you could hit on a tune that strikes the same responsive chord in everyone in all the world, there would be no wars. Music is the greatest force that draws people together." Maybe it sounds naive, but there is no doubt of his sincerity.

He points out how songs like "Easter Parade," White Christmas" and "God Bless America" became such wide favorites. Altogether he has published 800 songs in 43 years. A "goodly percentage" have become lasting hits.

Some Bad, Some Good

Irving Berlin can observe his tunesmith career and his songs with clinical detachment—"some of the songs were embarrassingly bad." He has "maybe a dozen" he likes best but he won't say which they are.

Right now Berlin is resting up from the rigors of creating the music for Broadway's new success, "Call Me Madam." He thinks it is Ethel Merman's "greatest show,"—but the music?

"Of course I'm grateful to the critics who said it was one of my best scores. But no one can tell everything about a score the first time they hear it. I say, let's wait for a year and then we'll know whether it is the music the people want."

Several tunes were pulled out of the show after rehearsals started—in Berlin's pungent phrases they "died like a dog." Another, "It's a Lovely Day," was deleted from a previous score and used in "Madam" because "it fits here."

"You're Just in Love" was created "under deadline pressure" after the show was in the works.

Berlin is 62 and his first tune "Marie from Sunny Italy" was published in 1907.

CANADA PRODUCES NEWSPRINT FOR ALL THE WORLD

In all likelihood, the newspaper you read is printed on Canadian newsprint; for Canada produces 4 times as much newsprint as any other country in the world. 3 out of every 5 newspaper pages throughout the world are Canadian paper.

Why Seagram's sells Canada first

This is an adaptation of one of a series of advertisements designed by The House of Seagram to promote the prestige of Canada and help sell Canadian products to the markets of the world.

The campaign is appearing in magazines and newspapers published in various languages and circulated throughout the world. The peoples of many lands are told about the quality of Canadian products and see Canadian scenes illustrating these products.

The advertisements are in keeping with the belief of The House of Seagram that the future of every business enterprise in Canada is inextricably bound up in the future of Canada itself; and that it is in the interest of every Canadian manufacturer to help the sale of all Canadian products in foreign markets.

A campaign such as this not only helps Canadian industries but also puts money in the pocket of every Canadian citizen. One dollar of every three we earn comes to us as a result of foreign trade. The more we can sell abroad the more prosperous we will be at home. It is with this objective that these advertisements are being produced and published throughout the world.

U.S. Troop Train and Freight Collide in Georgia, Take Fire No One Reported Killed

Screven, Ga., Nov. 27 (AP) — A troop train smashed into a freight train at a small town depot today and both burst into flames. Three persons were injured, but none was reported killed.

The troop train, carrying about 200 soldiers, was en route from Savannah, Ga., about 75 miles northeast of here, to a camp in Alabama.

C. W. Collins, resident of Screven, said he heard the crash and was at the scene in a few minutes.

"The freight train was parked at the depot," he said. "The troop train was coming from Savannah. The trainmen told me they saw the freight, and tried to stop.

"But the brakes wouldn't hold. The trainmen jumped and the train crashed into the freight."

Burning oil from the diesel engines spewed over the depot and cars of both the troop train and the freight. The depot and several cars of both trains were destroyed.

C. W. H. Wooten, a telephone operator said "there's a terrible fire. The depot is burning. Both engines are burning. I don't know if anyone is killed, but I was told there are some injured. Everybody's at the wreck."

Gale Nearly Spells Grief For Oil Tanker

Gale-like winds which swept up the Bay of Quinte on Saturday almost spelled grief for the British-American oil tanker "Britamoco" as it approached the Bellevilla dock with a load of gasoline and fuel oil.

The last wind gust roaring up the bay was so strong that the bow of the tanker was being swung away from the dock and was in danger of grounding on the west side of the channel. The wind and sea was so high that the tanker could not put off a man to get hawsers attached to the dock.

Fortunately crew members of the City of Belleville were on the dock and were able to catch a line thrown from the "Britamoco" as she swung further and further from the dock. The tanker was then winched back to her berth. The tanker did not unload her cargo until the wind subsided.

Trees and Wires Main Sufferers From Storm

Trees, hydro and telephone wires were the principal sufferers from the gale-like winds which lashed through the city and district on Saturday with trees and limbs of trees being reported down in many sections of the city.

Trees or large branches were reported down at Moira and Coleman Streets, on Marshall Road, Baldwin Street, Oliver Street, Herchimer Street and George St., in several instances effectively blocking traffic. The public works department were on the job to remove trees and restore traffic.

Hydro crews were also called out in the emergency to repair broken wires.

Fire Destroys Trenton Home With Loss of $10,000

Trenton — Special — Damage amounting to $10,000 was caused Sunday morning here, when fire destroyed the home of Ed. Webber, 131 Bay Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Webster and their children, Marguerite, 10, Willie, 13, and Hope, 4, managed to get out of the house safely when Mrs. Webster was awakened by smell of smoke and the crackling of flames. Clothing left in the fire were three pets, a canary, a bulldog and a cat.

Also lost were cash registers and adding machines worth approximately $5,000. The house was valued at $4,000 and the furniture worth $1,000 was lost.

Cold weather and high winds hampered efforts of the Trenton Fire Department to control the flames running through the storey-and-a-half house. Mrs. Webster, after giving the alarm to the rest of her family, collapsed and had to be taken to a neighbor's home and put to bed, sleeping upstairs.

Mr. Webster and his son were sleeping upstairs, and by the time the man tried to get to the phone and call the Fire Department, the flames were beat him back. The children next door ran to Mr. Bob Wilson's nearby house and put in the call.

When the firmen arrived, the house was too far gone to save, and very little could be done to prevent it from crashing. Lost in the fire were three pets, a canary, a bulldog and a cat.

Also lost were cash registers and adding machines worth approximately $5,000. The house was valued at $4,000 and the furniture worth $1,000 was lost.

Reds Take Beating In Municipal Voting in Austria

Eisenstadt, Austria, Nov. 27 — (AP) — The communist party took a terrible beating in Soviet zone municipal elections in Burgenland province yesterday. But the communist press hailed the results as a victory.

Final figures showed the communists received 4,612 votes, or 3.27 percent of the total and won only 32 of the 2,603 contested seats in municipal councils.

The Peoples (Catholic) party won a little more than 53 percent of the popular vote and 2,039 seats.

The Socialists won slightly more than 42 percent of the popular vote and 543 seats.

Burgenland probably is the only Russian-occupied or Russian dominated area in the world where free elections can be held. For reasons known only to the Kremlin the Russians chose to live up to their agreements with the west as far as the Austrian elections are concerned. This was the first free election of local officials in the province in 18 years.

Crippled Watchmaker Goes On Trial for Murder in Time-Bomb Airplane Killing

Quebec, Nov. 27—(CP)—Gentorney-general's department stenoseux Ruest goes on trial today for murder.

The grey-haired watchmaker who hobbles about on crutches is charged with "deliberately helping" J. Albert Guay kill his wife by manufacturing a time-bomb detonating device which caused the mid-air explosion of an airliner over Sault au Cochon, Que., Sept. 9, 1949.

All 23 persons aboard, including Mrs. Guay, died when the Canadian Pacific Airlines plane crashed into a rugged mountain top after the explosion.

A total of 150 prospective jury members have been called, and it is expected that the selection of the 12-member jury will take up at least most of today's business. Ruest's trial was originally scheduled for Nov. 20 but the date was pushed back to allow crown prosecutor Noel Dorion to complete his case. Ruest is represented by Irenee Simard.

There has been no indication how many witnesses will be called or whether Guay himself will be called to testify. Ruest was arrested June 6 as an accessory before the fact about four months after Guay, 33-year-old Quebec jeweler, was found guilty of his wife's murder.

Ruest's arrest came after the at-

Wizard With Hands

Ruest, 54, described by police as "a wizard with his hands," testified at Guay's trial last February that he often did work for Guay and admitted manufacturing the bomb. Ruest said at the time that he made the bomb after Guay had told him it was to be used to do some blasting.

Guay was originally sentenced to be hanged June 23 but the execution was stayed until Jan. 13 to allow him to testify at Ruest's trial if necessary.

Ruest is the brother of Mrs. Arthur Pitre, who also testified at Guay's trial that it was she who bought dynamite for Guay. She also said she placed a parcel for Guay aboard the plane the morning of the crash and that Guay later told her the parcel contained time-bombs.

The woman was arrested and charged with intimidating witnesses at her brother's preliminary hearing last June. The case is pending.

West Germany's Socialists Score Gains in Election

Munich, Germany, Nov. 27 — (AP)—West Germany's socialists —bitter opponents of German rearmament for western defense— scored big gains in Sunday's Bavarian state elections.

With returns still incomplete, the socialists were running a strong second to the pro-rearmament Christian democrats in the balloting for members of the state parliament.

The surprising socialist showing in this traditionally-conservative state is certain to be interpreted as a third protest vote within a week by German voters against rearmament.

Hesse and Wuerttemberg-Baden rolled up socialist victories Nov. 19 in elections widely regarded as a step at the Christian democrats, who control the federal government, for their support of German rearmament.

Federal Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, the Christian democrats' leader, already has agreed to take West Germany into the projected western defense system. He must obtain approval from the federal parliament, however.

Democratic Stronghold

Bavaria has been a Christian democratic stronghold since 1946. In the election that year, the party received more than 50 per cent of all votes.

This year the socialists challenged the Christian democrats in Bavaria solely on the rearmament issue. They argued that the Germans should refuse to take up arms until they have full independence and enough allied troops in Germany to repel any Soviet attack.

The Christian democrats countered that the danger of Soviet aggression is imminent and therefore Germany should not delay in agreeing to rearm.

In every previous Bavarian election since the war the Christian democrats have easily outdistanced the other parties.

The socialists are certain to hail their strong showing in Bavaria as a further vote of no confidence in Adenauer's federal government.

Storm Damage Said to be Less Than Estimated

Hamilton, Nov. 27—(CP)—Board of control today named Andrew Frame welfare commissioner to co-ordinate Hamilton's effort in a city campaign for relief and rehabilitation for those persons who suffered losses from the storm at Van Wagner's Beach during the weekend.

Mayor Lloyd Jackson estimated that $40,000 to $50,000 would put the houses back in shape. The estimate of $750,000, which had been heard, was absurd. He had visited the whole area yesterday and found three houses had collapsed; four were off-centre and a couple of others needed foundation repairs.

Controller Arnott Hicks said there were perhaps 100 homes needing major repairs. Furniture was the worst casualty. Others needed fuel. It was suggested that three tons to be taken from the city coal yard, private fuel dealers provided additional amounts.

The mayor said food and clothing "galore" was already provided. A school had been converted temporarily into a food depot.

A Van Wagner Flood Relief Fund was launched this morning. Contributions are being received by Wentworth Children's Aid Society at the court house in Hamilton.

At noon today the fund total stood at more than $12,000, in cash and pledges.

The fund, started by a group of Saltfleet township citizens, headed by Reeve Burton Corman, will be administered by a committee to be organized immediately.

Situation in Malaya

Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, commissioner general in southeast Asia, speaking at a press conference in London recently, dealt with the reaction of the communist-led bandits in Malaya to events outside the country, especially in Korea. One of the results of the communist military successes in Asia was, he said, a toughening effect on the resistance of the terrorists operating in the jungles, whereby the process of eliminating them was being slowed down. He said "I do not say things will grow worse. I say they will become tougher and more difficult and such progress as is possible in jungle conditions will be slowed down," and he added that the attitude inside Malaya would be affected by events outside. The United Nations victories in Korea undoubtedly have a good effect, but if the news from Korea becomes rather more difficult it will have a reaction in Malaya and encourage the terrorists. The invasion of Tibet will put fresh heart into them.

On the other hand, Mr. MacDonald emphasized that the overwhelming majority of the people in Malaya were supporting the government— large numbers of them actively—and were opposed to the terrorists. The armed terrorists themselves remained a force of a few thousand men in the jungles, but they were supported by unarmed civilians—no one knew exactly how many who had a fairly wide underground organization which supplied the armed men with food, money, recruits and information about army and police movements. Often recruits were obtained by press-gang methods.

Playground is Jungle

The terrorists and communists were nearly all immigrant Chinese. Mr. MacDonald said "they do not care a hoot about Malaya," but the jungle provided an ideal playground for the guerrillas whose policy it was to run away when attacked and thereby live to commit another murder.

Mr. MacDonald said the terrorists were receiving a certain amount of moral support from outside the country. There were broadcasts from Radio Moscow and Radio Peking, but so far as the authorities knew the terrorists were not receiving material support from outside. They were still using arms and ammunition dropped by the Allies during the war against the Japanese. Recruits might be men trained in leadership had managed to sneak in as illegal immigrants.

Mr. MacDonald said that the only schools searched had been those suspected of communist propaganda. It was the law of the country that comment of a kind favorable to the enemies of the United Nations engaged in police action in Korea was prohibited and newspapers systematically publishing such comment were liable to suspension.

It was pointed out by Mr. MacDonald that the drive against the communists was not merely destructive. Work was going ahead in economic development and social security. A bill would be introduced next month which would, when passed, bring into Malayan citizenship large numbers of non-Malayans. "This effort by Malayan leaders to make in the country a united people is the condition on which Malaya will one day be self-governing."

Fifteen Violent Deaths Reported In East Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Three multiple fatalities were among the 15 violent deaths in Eastern Canada during the weekend, all from traffic accidents.

A compilation by The Canadian Press showed that 13 died in the central provinces, and the majority of those were attributed to highway conditions caused by a storm which lashed through Ontario and part of Quebec.

Only two deaths were reported from the Maritimes. Joseph Dunegle Sr., 69, of Stellarton, N. S., died in hospital from injuries received when his motorcycle collided with a truck. Colin McPhail, 43, was crushed in the cab of his truck at Pictou, N. S., deliberately driving it into a bank to avoid hitting someone after the brakes failed on a hill.

Struck a Tree

Quebec's fatalities were three men killed at Rigaud, on the Quebec - Ontario border, where their automobile struck a tree blown across the highway, and two women, victims of a tyo-car collision near Val Morin, 50 miles north of Montreal.

The Rigaud victims were Real Fillon, 37, of Lachine, Que., and Herve St. Amour and Rene Couture, both of Fournierville, Ont. Victims of the Val Morin crash were Mrs. Honore Bernard, 48, of Montreal and Mrs. Aurele Charron, 48, of L'Abord-a-Plouffe.

Ontario fatalities: William Fiscus, 40, and Jonathan Loftus, 50, both of Kitchener, at Oakville, where their car crashed into a tree; Jack Given, 19, of Humber Bay in a car - train crash at Islington; Albert Townsend, 40, Toronto garage man struck down while preparing to tow an auto up a hill; Metaldi Lumausus, 55, Toronto pedestrian knocked by a taxi into the path of another car; Robert Gordon Boughner, 12-year-old cyclist knocked down by a car at La Salle, near Windsor; Mrs. Marion Louise Squire, 17, of Strathroy, pinned beneath an automobile when it overturned in a ditch, and Clifford Arthur Wentworth, 48, of St. Thomas, in a car-tree crash near Strathroy.

Wage Increase Granted 11,500 Ford Employees

Windsor, Nov. 27 (CP) —Wage increases of 10 cents an hour were granted yesterday to 11,500 Ford of Canada employees, with an extra five cents an hour for certain groups of skilled tradesmen and foundry workers. The increases were retroactive to Sept. 1.

The agreement opened the way to negotiation today of the last remaining differences between company and local 200 of the United Automobile Workers (CIO).

Officials of the company and union are scheduled to meet in an effort to settle a month-old seniority dispute arising from a series of layoffs caused by a change-over to 1951 passenger models.

The Sept. 1 date for the wage increases is almost the date on which the union made its first demands for pay boosts to supplement the existing one-year contract. A union official estimated each employee will get from $40 to $60 in back pay, to be paid before Christmas.

The wage settlement, reached in two days of closed negotiations last week following a wildcat strike that closed Ford operations for one day, was approved at a membership meeting yesterday of the 11,000 member Ford local. An estimated 7,000 members were present.

The union made one concession which Rhys M. Sale, Ford president termed an "important feature." It agreed to bargain for a two year contract when the present contract expires next May.

The union had opposed a long term five-year contract which was offered by the company during early negotiations in September.

NO EARLY END

Verner, Nov. 27—CP—There doesn't appear to be an early end in prospect for the truckers' strike which started last Tuesday. Twenty-one independent truck drivers are out, protesting that the 60 cents offered by J. H. MacFarland Co., of Pickering, for 60 cents of gravel hauled from a highways department pit was too little. The truckers claim they can't make a profit at any rate. They want 90 cents.

Donations to Repair Damaged Church Will be Welcomed

Donations will be accepted by members of the United Church Board at Halloway where some weeks ago a portion of the church wall collapsed necessitating expenditure of a considerable sum for repairs.

Workmen had been excavating beneath the church for a basement when a portion of the foundation gave way allowing a large portion of the north church wall to collapse.

Already several donations from persons outside the Halloway community have been received by the church board following a report in this newspaper. Other contributions of money to assist in repairs will be welcomed. Donations should be forwarded to Mrs. George Rose, storekeeper and postmistress at Halloway.

Roosevelt's Views On Stalin Quoted By Churchill

New York, Nov. 27 — (AP) — Franklin D. Roosevelt wrote Winston Churchill in March, 1942, that he had "a definite personally handle Stalin better than either your Foreign Office or my State Department."

"Stalin hates the guts of all your top people," Roosevelt wrote. "He thinks he likes me better, and I hope he will continue to think so."

President Roosevelt and British prime minister Churchill in Churchillu own description in his new book — an "intimacy of Colossus." But they said in which extending this intimacy to Moscow.

Churchill's book, "The Hinge of Fate," is the fourth volume of his memoirs of the Second World War. It will be published today by Houghton Mifflin Company.

The volume covers the period from January, 1942, through May, 1943, a period in which, says Churchill, "for the first six months all went well for the last six months everything went well."

The "Hinge of Fate" was the Battle of Alamein, which began Oct. 23, 1942, and marked the start of Britain's successful offensive in North Africa.

Raddall, Costain Give Modern Tilt To Latest Novels

(By The Canadian Press)

Two Canadian novelists previously concerned with historical themes have gone modern in their latest stories. They are Thomas Costain, Ontario-born, who now lives in Connecticut.

The term "modern" is comparative. Costain, whose popular histories have dealt with the middle ages and renaissance periods, comes down to the 1890s and the start of this century in "Son of a Hundred Kings" (Doubleday), a romantic story of life in small Ontario city. Raddall, known for his rousing and beautifully-written tales of the 18th century life in Nova Scotia and the high seas, has gone to the early 1920s in "The Nymph and the Lamp" (McClelland and Stewart).

Raddall throws together a disconcerted woman and a gentle middle-aged man, a rough-diamond idealist, and lets them work out their destiny in a wireless operator's station on Sable Island. The result is a fascinating picture of that peculiar desolation, there are sharp images of Halifax, of the Annapolis Valley, which was Isabel Jardine's childhood home, and of life mixing with the voices of the ships, which was Matt Carney's province of the sea.

Raddall, who started his own working life as a brass-pounder at sea and on isolated east coast stations, writes of that life with unerring authenticity. And any easterner will feel the stab of homesickness in his land and sea, and in his people.

Costain's "Son of a Hundred Kings" is set in a busy Ontario industrial town about 50 miles from Toronto. The search for the parents of Lucie Prentice, a seven-year-old English boy who arrives alone in Balfour, Ont., in 1890, provides the novel with suspense. The social and business rivalries of the various factions and their families reflect the changes brought about in Canadian daily life by the advent of telephones, electricity and industrialism.

Costain, now 63, is a native of Brantford, Ont., and worked as a newspaper man and magazine editor before he went to the United States. Author of six previous novels, he has drawn on his own experience for an authentic background of Canadian life at the turn of the century.

Dr. Donalda Dickie, eminent Edmonton teacher who wrote Canadian history and geography readers for junior school classes, has produced in "The Great Adventure" (Dent) her most ambitious volume. It is a presentation of Canadian history especially designed for use in junior high schools.

Miss Dickie, a native of Hespeler, Ont., went to Alberta after gaining a Ph.D. degree in history which she studied at Oxford. Aided by the research which previously went into her textbooks she has written a vivacious and continuous study of Canadian history, about one third of the work is devoted to the French period and the remainder to the British period. The script had been submitted to her pupils, some of whose suggestions were adopted.

Says China May Seek Tibet by Negotiation

New Delhi, Nov. 27 (AP)—A reliable observer at the India-Tibet border city of Kalimpong reported today that supply difficulties may force China's invading army to seek conquest of Tibet through negotiation and the fifth column rather than with arms.

This source said the communist invaders have had to carry with them the bulk of their ammunition and food as well as food for mules and other transport animals and therefore are making slow progress.

The latest runner to reach the India-Tibet border after a 15-day journey from Lhasa said the reds have been advancing at a rate of less than 50 miles a week and still are nearly 200 miles from the Tibetan capital.

The runner had heard no news of any recent fighting but said the Tibetan army, a force of 10,000 reasonably well armed men to defend Lhasa.

Argonauts Win Grey Cup From Winnipeg Bombers on Old-Time Two Bucks and Kick

BY JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 27 (CP)—The old-time two-bucks-and-a-kick Canadian football returned to Canada for 60 minutes Saturday. And to a wind-whipped 18,000 Grey Cup crowd the sight was uninspiring for one reason: Mud.

For the swampy conditions of Varsity Stadium field to revert to a game played by line-smacking giants—before the days of 1931 when the forward pass came to Canada via the United States — Toronto Argonauts and Winnipeg Blue Bombers were forced to play it the old way. Argos had too much know-how and they carted home the trophy with a 13-0 shutout.

That was it, except for the glaring fact that Canadian-born players—overshadowed by American imports during the regular east and west league schedules—carried a big load in this No. 1 Canadian sports spectacle. It was the game of the year and the home-grown did themselves proud.

American imports such as Argos' brilliant quarter Al Dekdebrun, line coach Ox (Moose) Kerns, snap Ed (Buck-et) Hirsch, half Billy Bass and Winnipeg's snap John Brown, outside Joe Aguirre and middle Glenn Johnson played their parts, too. But for one game in the year it was Canadians who hogged the headlines.

One Touch on Sneak

Dekdebrun, who adapted his single-calling to playing conditions, got the only touchdown of the game—a quarterback sneak from Bombers' one-yard line in the third quarter—and paved the way for another third-quarter single when he fetched a Winnipeg forward pass by rival quarter Indian Jack Jacobs.

But two University of Toronto Blue Grads, Ted Toogood and Nick Volpe, old reliable Joe (King) Krol; and two Winnipeg home-brew second - stringers, George MacPhail and Pete Petrow, caught the crowd's eye.

Toogood, 26-year-old freshman backfielder, topped all other running backs on both clubs with 79 yards gained from scrimmage. His name didn't appear on the scoring record but his plunges and superb skirts around the ends in the end kept Argos in Winnipeg territory.

Volpe, one of the country's most accurate place-kickers, missed a convert attempt in the heavy going but was the game's top scorer with six points from two field goals. And it was Volpe who robbed 22-year-old MacPhail of a sure touchdown with a shoe-string tackle when the Ottawa-born youngster was in the clear.

MacPhail had gone around the end for 43 yards—easily the longest run of the day—before Volpe sprinted across from his safety position to nail him.

Krol, a Winnipeg nemesis since 1945 when he embarked on a three-year one-man career of robbing the Bombers of Dominion honors, was up to his old pay-off tricks.

Kicked Masterful Game

The old pro from Windsor, Ont. kicked a masterful game, taking advantage of the fickle wind which veered in all directions.

He failed on a 50-yard single when the ball was still relatively dry for Argos' first point, and drove a mate deep into the Bomber coffin in the third quarter by hoisting a sorry ball for 39 yards deep behind the line in the last scoring play of the game.

Petrow, who was lost in the shadow of Jacobs, took over quarterback duties in the final quarter when the former Green Bay Packer couldn't get his high-ly-publicized passing attack to click.

The 23-year-old Winnipeg native proudly completed the longest pass of the day a 37-yard fling to fellow - Winnipegger Bud Korchak, who snatched it out of the hands of two Argo defenders. On the next play, he sent MacPhail sloshing around the left end for his long gallop.

Robbed of Duel

The game, billed as one of the greatest of all east-west clashes, was robbed of the expected aerial duel between Jacobs and Dekdebrun which the largest crowd ever to watch a Canadian football game had hoped to see.

The wind and the mud ruined most passing attempts. Jacobs completed only two of 11 tries and had two intercepted — equalling the total number of interceptions against him over the entire season's play.

Dekdebrun tried three, completed one, and gave up his aerial attack for the afternoon. Young Petrow fired three unsuccessfully after his long toss to Korchak.

After the game — Argos' eighth Grey Cup victory over the Bombers in 33 many meetings — officials from Edmonton to Ottawa openly criticized the state of the playing surface, and the apathetic lack of efforts to protect it from the elements.

Field Like Pig-Sty

"That stadium was nothing short of a pig-sty," said Jack Gree-gan of Calgary, president of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

"If this game means nothing to Toronto . . . then let's have it in Western Canada where it will be appreciated."

He saw no reason why people should travel 3,000 to 4,000 miles to see a "schemozzle."

Don Brook, president of Calgary Stampeders who slithered on his ice-covered gridiron in the big final, termed this year's field "the loosiest football field I've seen in my life." He promised to buy a tarpaulin and "give it to Varsity if they see that cheap," as his donation to future Grey Cup finals.

Bomber President Ralph Misner said before the game that the field was a "disgrace," and promised that he would "have something to say about it later."

Not Fair to Teams

Eric Cradock of Toronto, president of the Big Four, said the condition of the field "wasn't fair to the fans and to the teams," and added that something must be done — and would be done — for the future.

Athletic director Warren Stevens of Varsity disclaimed responsibility for the lack of protective measures.

"It is the Canadian Rugby Union's ball game," he said. "They rent the stadium for the Eastern Canada final and the Grey Cup. It's their baby."

C. R. U. president Tom Allson of Toronto said "actually the field would have been all right if we had sun." He added that if the C. R. U. wants to do anything about purchasing a tarpaulin, the matter will have to be brought up at its annual meeting in Winnipeg next March.

Five AHL Games Are Postponed Due to Weather

(By The Associated Press)

A sour-minded weather man is giving the American Hockey League a lot of misery and messing up the schedule.

Five games have been postponed in the last two days. Four were scheduled last night but only one, Indianapolis at Providence, could be played. That one wound up in a 3-3 overtime tie before a crowd 4,500. The storms knocked out the Pittsburgh at Buffalo and New Haven at Cincinnati night games, as well as the Springfield at Cleveland afternoon contest.

Saturday night, snow prevented the Providence at Cleveland and Cincinnati at Pittsburgh games.

Picking up one point for its tie with Indianapolis last night, Providence moved past idle Springfield and into third place in the eastern division. It had to overcome a 3-0 deficit in the first up with three goals in less than seven minutes in the second period.

Saturday night Hershey Bears defeated Indianapolis 3-2 and Buffalo Bisons edged St. Louis 2-1, New Haven took a 3-2 decision away from Cleveland.

A pair of goals by Jerry Reid gave the Capitols a 2-0 first period lead. Fred Glover made it 3-0 before Chuck Scherza started the Red comeback. Donat Deschenes and defenceman Art Mighaluk added two more to send the game into the scoreless overtime session.

Third period goals by Les Hickey and Pete Ashbee enabled Buffalo to come from behind a 2-1 deficit Saturday against Springfield. Leo Curick sank the Indians' marker.

Arnie Kullman and Mark Marquess provided Hershey with their victory margin after Red Sullivan scored the Bears' first marker. Fred Glover connected for both Indianapolis goals.

Ernie Trigg's overtime goal gave New Haven Eagles their triumph over St. Louis Flyers. Johnny Ranack gave the Flyers a 1-0 lead in the first period. Barry Sullivan tied the score in the third period. Then the Flyers went ahead on Cliff Simpson's marker.

Ray Robinson Becomes Toast Of Sport World

(By The Canadian Press)

Sugar Ray Robinson has become the toast of the Paris sporting world without throwing a punch.

Since arriving there 10 days ago the world's welterweight boxing champion from New York has attended so many luncheons, dinners and receptions that his biggest problem has been finding time to train.

Robinson meets French middleweight Jean Stock today at the Paris Palais De Sports in a non-title match.

Sugar Ray and his party have visited various Paris night clubs, stopped at Georges Carpentier's bar, and lunched with Maurice Chevalier one day at a meeting of boxing writers.

The champion's training methods have baffled French experts. He spends much time shadow boxing, rope skipping and bag punching. In addition he plays golf and does roadwork, but has spent very little time in the ring with sparring partners.

At Cambridge, England, Oxford girls defeated the Cambridge girls Saturday in a boat race, but no one ever will know the line-up for the event. The official timekeeper rode a bicycle along a towpath trying to keep ahead of the boats. He glanced over his shoulder to watch the race and fell into the river.

A round-robin playoff, embracing the clubs finishing in the first three positions, has been announced by Al Pickard, president of the Western Canada Hockey League. The playoff was agreed on after a request from Edmonton Flyers. The Edmonton club sat on the sidelines for almost two weeks last spring while the semi-final was being decided. The new set-up will see 12 games to decide the league champion. Each team will play the other two clubs two games at home and two away.

Annual meeting of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association will take place in Ottawa March 12, 13 was announced Saturday at the annual meeting of the province of Quebec Rifle Association in Montreal.

Forward Steve Black, suspended Thursday by Detroit Red Wings for refusing to spend more time, at their Indianapolis farm club, said Saturday he intended to ask the National Hockey League team to trade him. Black was fined an undisclosed amount and suspended after he declined to spend a third week at Indianapolis, where he had been sent to bolster the injury-riddled cage. He served two weeks with the farm team before returning to Detroit.

Indianapolis Indians of the American Association have announced the appointment of Doc Gutteridge as manager to succeed Al Lopez, recently signed to manage Cleveland Indians.

In Montreal the Quebec A.H.A. has voted to form a special tour has voted to form a special committee to study a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association decision to allow two Quebec players to remain with Saskatoon Quakers of the Western Canada Senior League. Defenceman Larry Zeidel formerly of Quebec Aces and Bill Heindl of Sherbrooke Saints were not released by their Quebec senior loop teams nor given transfers by the Q.A.H.A. to the Western League.

The C.A.H.A. first suspended the two following a Q.S.H.L. protest. However, in a mail vote last week, branch presidents of the C.A.H.A. and other officers agreed to permit Heindl and Zeidel to remain with Saskatoon.

Cobourg Ghosts Down Montreal To Win Title

Cobourg, Nov. 27—(CP)— A high wind that hit more than 80 miles an hour at times held action to the ground Saturday as Cobourg Galloping Ghosts won the Eastern Canada Intermediate Football title, downing Montreal Flyers 2-0 in a sudden-death game.

Playing coach Bob Cooper, Ghost's quarterback, kicked two singles to lead Cobourg to victory and his long kicks throughout the game kept the Montrealers from threatening

Cobourg, normally shining with a fast backfield and passing attack, were confined mostly to plunging plays

The entire game was accompanied by snow, sleet and rain, besides the gale winds. Fumbles were many on the muddy field. One of Cooper's few attempted forwards was blown right off the field.

The Tams battled through a scoreless first half before Cooper kicked his first point to the dead-line. He added another in the final quarter when a last-minute passing attack by the visitors missed fire.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

EGAD, IT WAS MUDDY!

After listening to a half hour of pre-game comment; the slicing of two pigskin-play anniversaries and the opinions of a half-dozen assorted football experts from Montreal to Edmonton, we came to the conclusion on Saturday afternoon, that the Grey Cup football classic, the game that ends all games in Canada, was played in a "sea of mud." Not since the Royal visit way back in 1938 have we heard so much commentary centred on one topic. And the radiosters, experts, coaches, and others who aired their views not only used all the adjectives garnered by Dan Webster but threw in plenty invented on the spur of the moment.

That "sea of mud" must have been black in the face. A Royal bride never drew as much commentary from the press and radio. And the black-hearted villain had heaped on his shoulders all the blame, or most of it, by Bomber fans, for the defeat of the popular Blue Bombers from Winnipeg, who definitely proved they are no mud horses, but prefer the weather fair and the track fast. . . . At that, it was smack, lack, Volpe and Krol's boots and Indian Jacobb's fumbles that were the main factors in the Bombers' defeat. The Argo line helped, too, but from our radio observations, we agree with what Annis Stukus said, in the half-time recess, that Bombers seemed to lack the fire, pep, and the football ability that carried them to the Western Conference title.

We may differ from the experts, but it seemed to us, from radio accounts, that Indian Jack Jacobs, vaunted quarterback of the Bombers was the gentleman with the hands and feet of clay, in the game. His fumbles were costly and his kicking was well below the calibre of Krol, the old master. Too, the Bombers seemed to be another team in the Grey Cup series whose quarterback took over. Oh well still Ah me, it's all over, and a football-mad country can relax again and take up pellitics, taxes, murders and mothers-in-law.

There are those who said after the game, that had the field been in good playing condition the result would have been different, that the Bombers were the better team than Argos. That argument has about as much sense to it as the old bromide that Dumpey was a better man than Joe Louis, or vice versa. True, some, and they were football experts, who had seen both teams in action, predicted a Bomber victory by a slight margin, but loyal Toronto gave its double blues 7-5 odds just before the game.

Any fan who went to Varsity Stadium on Saturday and expected to see topflight football, should have either consulted a psychiatrist, or gone back to his table in the cocktail lounge. What he did see was two superb football teams, representing the finest from Canada's west and east on a chalk-marked mud-pack that was their battle-ground. It showed no favoritism, even to officials. Its watery, gooey surface was as fair a proving ground to one team as the other. The big factor that entered into the battle was the "breaks", and Argos capitalized on these, as represented by Bomber fumbles. Too, the Scullers' lighter line outplayed the mud-heavy Bombers, and as was said before, the fine punting of Krol and placement kicking of Nick Volpe were key-mud factors in the Argos victory. No matter the post-mortems, the fact remains the Argos proved they were 13 points better — and thereby hangs the tale.

Surely there is something besides old age pensions and broken legs that can stop these Flying Eagles of Peterborough. Perched high in their aerie atop the Senior Loop, the undefeated falcons of the senior ice-lanes have circumnavigated the circuit with a large duck-egg in the 'loss' column. They have been dead-heated on a couple or three occasions, but have struggled through with that overtime last-minute spark that has brought them the gonfalon. And Ole Lady Luck hasn't been altogether unkind to the feathered flyers. Wally Bent's Redmen, we understand, threw a goddlemighty scare into them last Friday glooming and had there been an extra inch or two to the goalmouth when sizzling Red pucks rifled past, the story might have been different. The Eagles' coach, we understand, like he of the Argos, believes in the 'platoon system", and in both cases players to have paid off. However one swallow does not constitute a binge, nor does a team's win streak constitute a championship. No time for tears yet, lads. Remember, Goliath was a big tough guy and look what happened to him!

DOTS 'N' FLASHES

Prime weather beef is that of the Blue Bombers and other factions regarding the conditions of the field on Saturday . . . Lee Lear, of Calgary didn't pull any verbal punches during the halftime cold-furnace league . . . Montreal and Ottawa football factions have added their squawks, claiming tarps should have been placed on the field . . . "What's a few thousand bucks extra cost with a gate of 27,100?" yelps Andy (Montreal Star) O'Brien . . . Playing coach Bob Cooper kicked the Cobourg Galloping Ghosts to an Eastern Canada intermediate grid title Saturday . . . The Wildfire defeated a Montreal Lakeshores by a 2-0 score . . . Longhurst and Ferrester of the Ghosts are Belleville gridders . . . Young Al Rollins of the Leafs, is the only undefeated goalie in the NHL . . . The Leafs' Saints win over Canadiens gave the clever Rollins his fifth victory and one tie in six starts . . . He plays against the squads that have defeated the Leafs . . . Better look out Turk, that Labatt ale lost may develop into a full-blown affair . . . So, Joe Louis fights again? . . . The boxing idol of millions is tottering on a pedestal which he is turning on today . . . That tough trail to the top turns into a greasy slide when you're in reverse . . . It's tragic to think that after the Louis fight, he will join Walcott as being, just another Joe . . . The Redmen undergo a stiff workout at the Arena tonight from 6:30 to 8 o'clock . . . Coach Walter Beni will concentrate on speed in his front lines . . . Brooklyn Dodgers will name their new 1951 manager tomorrow . . . It could be either Clyde Sukeforth or Pee Wee Reise . . . Latest sensation to hit the "rasslin" horizon is the "Great Togo" a 245-pound Japanese . . . Togo cannot "botcha-botcha" like the venerable Sammy Dunlop, but he hisses a reasonable facsimile . . . .

Leafs Continue Win Streak By Winning From Canadiens And Rangers During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

With right-winger Tod Sloan tripping in goals at an average of more than one a game and Al Rollins kicking-'em out like a veteran, Toronto Maple Leafs appear well on way on another winning streak.

Sloan, the National Hockey League's leading goal-getter with 13, bagged the clincher as New York last night as the Leafs edged Rangers 3-2 for their fourth victory in five days.

It was the 23-year-old Falconbridge, Ont., player's fifth goal since Wednesday, when he tallied twice as coach Joe Primeau's charges started their latest victory skein. He also scored two Saturday night at Toronto in a 4-1 victory over Montreal Canadiens.

Meanwhile Rollins, the six-foot two thin man from Vanguard, Sask., has established his record as the league's only unbeaten goalie while substituting for the veteran Turk Broda. He has won two and tied one of the seven starts the lanky rookie has made.

Another player to attract attention in Chicago last night when the Hawks walloped the Stanley Cup champion Detroit Wings 5-0, gaining a split on a home-and-home weekend set. The Wings won 4-1 at home Saturday.

For the Hawks, Sunday's victory was especially sweet to goalie Harry Lumley, whom the Wings shipped to Chicago in a five for four player deal last July. It was Lumley's first shutout of the current campaign, as well as the worst defeat inflicted on the second-place Detroit club.

Loss and Tie for Bruins

In other weekend games—both at Boston—the cellar-entrenched Bruins tied Rangers 3-3 Saturday and were whipped 3-1 by Canadiens Sunday.

The result of weekend action saw the Leafs extend their lead to seven points over the Wings in the league standing. The Leafs have 31 points, Detroit 24; Chicago and Montreal are tied for third place with 20 each; Rangers have 12 and Boston 11.

At New York Sunday, 12,854 fans saw the Leafs take a 2-0 lead on goals by Max Bentley and Sid Smith. Ed Harrison shaved the margin by tallying New York's first goal just before the penalty-filled first period ended.

Tony Leswick knotted the count in the middle frame, setting the stage for Sloan's winning effort. Also a Winner

Sloan's first goal at Toronto Saturday also was the winner, breaking a first period 1-1 tie. Cal Gardner had counted Leafs' first goal which was nullified by Vern Kaiser's for Montreal. Sloan travelled the length of the ice alone to tally after taking a pass from Bentley deep in Toronto territory.

His second goal came after a double relay from Bill Sinclair and captain Ted Kennedy. John McCormack closed out the scoring.

At Chicago, the Hawks were paced to their first victory in four starts against the Wings this season by veteran Doug Bentley who fired home two first-period goals.

His linemate Bill Mosienko fired in another late in the second period and Roy Conacher and Gus Bodnar completed the route in the finale.

Much Their Own Way

On Saturday, the Wings had things pretty much their own way, slapping in three goals within eleven minutes in the third period before 10,393 fans.

Jim McFadden tallied for the Wings in the first period and Pat Lundy tied it up for the Hawks in the middle session. Then George Gee, Marty Pavelich and Ted Lindsay scored in that order to sew up the decision.

Canadiens were delayed seven hours in reaching Boston Sunday because of bad weather conditions in Canada and Eastern United States. A crowd of 8,239 waited 90 minutes before the game got under way.

Montreal spotted the Bruins a second period goal by veteran Woody Dumart before Maurice Richard and Billy Reay connected for Montreal. Cal Mackay got the visitors third goal in the last canto.

Milt Schmidt's third period goal pulled the Bruins into a draw with the Rangers Saturday. The New Yorkers raced to a 3-1 lead on goals by Nick Mickoski, Frenti Lund and Buddy O'Connor after Vic Lynn had tallied for Boston in the first period.

William (Wild Bill) Ezinicki counted the goal of the middle frame on a pass from Dumart. It was Ezinicki's third goal of the season.

FAST MOVE

Dismissed Coach Helps Root Argos To 13-0 Victory

Toronto, Nov. 27 (CP)—The little farmer sat by himself in Varsity Stadium Saturday and watched his beloved Toronto Argonauts recapture the glory of Canadian football championship.

Teddy Morris, the only coach to win three successive Grey Cup titles, doesn't see much football these days. He's too busy making a living at his farm near suburban Malton. But this was one game he wouldn't miss.

"I had a good seat on the west side near centrefield—about the 30-yard line," he said, answering a question. "No, I didn't bring my family. I sat by myself. Somebody has to stay home and mind the farm."

The homespun little man with the shock of black hair, whose best was on the players' coach's bench until this season, was reluctant to give his impressions of the game. Anything he said might sound like "sour grapes" or "sticking my nose in."

Disappointed Over Field

Like others in the record crowd of 27,100, he was disappointed over the muddy playing conditions that stalled Winnipeg's attack. Under urging, he gave his idea of how the game might have been played.

"I'm sorry we didn't see anybody throw the ball around much," he said slowly. "The backs didn't catch hardly three passes all day. They were waiting for them to drop and stop in the mud.

"A back like Bobby Coulter or Freddy Doly would have caught them on the fly and run them back as far as they were kicked."

He didn't say it but he might also have been thinking of the day blonde Frith Hannon led Winnipeg to a 19-18-12 victory over Hamilton in 1935 by catching a slippery ball on the goal and running it back for long gains.

Did Right to Play It Safe

Teddy figured that after Winnipeg fell behind it was their job to open the game up "instead of piling down centre all the time." Once they went ahead, the Argos, he figured, did right in playing it safe to build up their 13-0 victory.

And don't get Teddy Morris wrong; always a strong advocate of purely-Canadian football, he was replaced by American coach Frank Clair this season after the Argos had fallen from the heights of their 1945-47 Grey Cup reign with an all-Canadian team. He was replaced again by American coaches at Stanley Beach so that the team could use the Argo system when it became an Argo farm club.

But he was an Argonaut long to hold any resentment—nearly 20 years, including three as the 155-pound plunging hero of Grey Cup champions besides the three as coach. Only five players are still with Argos from those 1945-47 champions—Joe Krol, Jack Wedney, Byron Karrys, Les Ascott and Rod Smylie—but this was still an Argo team and the enemy was Winnipeg, the club that Argos always beat.

"You can say that I never was pulling any harder for Argos to win."

Weekend Stars

(By The Canadian Press)

Maurice Richard, Montreal, whose goal and assist broke a scoreless streak and aided the Canadiens to a 3-1 decision over Boston Bruins.

Harry Lumley, Chicago, who blanked Detroit as the Hawks won over the Wings, 5-0.

Ted Sloan, Toronto, whose second period goal gave the Leafs a 3-2 victory over the hapless New York Rangers. Sloan also got two goals and an assist Saturday to pace the Leafs to a 4-1 win over Montreal.

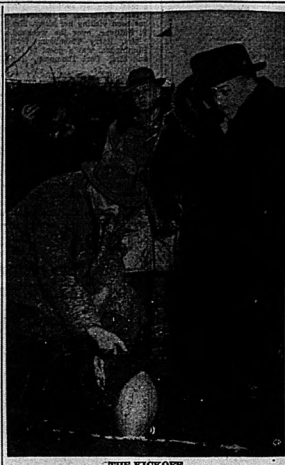
Charles-Barone Title Fight Will Go on

Cincinnati, Nov. 27 —(AP) — Schools closed. Banks shuttered. Store snow falls. Still the Ezzard Charles-Nick Barone heavyweight title fight goes on as scheduled tomorrow.

With Ohio much more concerned about digging itself out of another snowfall, the powers that be ruled last night that "the fight must go on."

Of course, there may be a change of heart today when the boys scan the snow-covered highways leading to the Cincinnati Garden, some nine miles from downtown Cincinnati.

This city still battled to free itself from the icy clutches of winter yesterday as the two battlers wound up training.



Charles, making his first home start as champion in Cincinnati's first heavyweight title bout, slapped through seven fast rounds at his own gym. They said he appeared great, weighing 194 pounds. That was his weight when he whipped Joe Louis in New York, Sept. 27.

Henry Andrews, Baron's manager, did not let the syracuse light heavyweight bout yesterday. The stocky 24-year-old puncher will come in at about 180 pounds.

Darling promoter Sam Becker said last night that he would go through with the battle. Earlier in the day he wanted to postpone it until Dec. 8.

The gate is strictly a guessing contest. Becker said he had "about $30,000" in advance sales but "not all the tickets are paid for." Best guess around here is that a gross gate of $30,000 will be most acceptable.

Despite the title being at stake you could find little betting action. It's at least 4 to 1 and probably higher. Baron cuts easily and Charles is a slashing puncher who slices up his opponents.

Junior Marlies Right on Heels Of Barrie Flyers

(By The Canadian Press)

When Waterloo Hurricanes broke into Ontario Hockey Association Junior 'A' company this year the hometown fans didn't expect too much of the team. They were ready to agree that building a hockey team, even with the help of Boston Bruins' scouting system, was no overnight job.

But they couldn't have expected things to be as bad as they have to date. Bob Kinnear's kids lost their 10th straight game Saturday when Toronto St. Michael's beat them 8-5 at Waterloo.

The setback was the 14th of the season in 15 games. Closest the Hurricanes have come to winning was more than a month ago when they tied St. Catharines 7-7 for their only point.

But if things are tough for Waterloo, they're just the opposite for Toronto Marlboros who haven't lost a game in two weeks and have come through their last five undefeated.

Marlboros are right on the heels of the League-leading Barrie Flyers as a result of a 6-4 victory Saturday over Galt Black Hawks and a 1-1 tie Sunday with Windsor Spitfires. The Spits aren't doing so bad either. They pulled within two points of the Marlboros as a result of the tie and an 8-5 win over the fifth-place Oshawa Generals at Oshawa Saturday.

The Generals split in their two weekend games, defeating Toronto St. Michael's 8-5 in the first half of a Sunday twin-bill at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Flyers Still Lead

Barrie Flyers, who weren't scheduled on the weekend, still lead the league with a two-point margin over Marlboros. But the Toronto team has a game in hand. The tightly-bunched standings could easily change Wednesday when four games will be played: Galt at Windsor; St. Catharines at Waterloo; Marlboros at Oshawa and Guelph at Barrie.

Sunday hockey got a bit of a boost at Toronto when 4,322 fans turned out for the doubleheader. They saw a rough Marlboros-Spitfires game which ended in a tie without overtime being played because of the 6 p.m. curfew on Sunday sports.

A couple of fights and some heated arguments with the officials resulted in six major penalties and two misconducts. Even Art Hall, Windsor goalie, made the penalty summary with a minor and a misconduct, the latter for arguing.

Earl Johnson scored within two minutes of the first faceoff and Marlboros didn't tie it up until the five-minute mark of the third period when Ron Stewart beat Hall.

The St. Mikes-Oshawa game was quiet by comparison. The Irish got away to a 2-0 lead in the first few minutes but the Generals tied it up before the end of the period and were never headed after scoring three in a row in the middle session.

Lou Jankowski tallied twice for Oshawa, Bill Berwick, Alex Delvecchio, Gordon Boniface, Stan Mills, George Samolenko and Ric Amiro getting others. Murray Costello with two, Bob Sabourin, Jack Weldrake and Willie Marshall were the St. Like's scorers.

Come From Behind

At Galt, the Marlboros had to come from behind after the Hawks had taken a 2 first-period lead. They outscored Galt 2-1 in the second period and added two unanswered in the last period.

John Lumley, Bob Cooper, Danny Poland, Dave Maxwell, Bill Hurst and Reg Stewart potted the Toronto goals, while Bill Wharram scored two for the losers and George Gosselin and Mike Buchanan got the others.

In Oshawa Saturday it was another meeting between the two Detroit Red Wings farm clubs. Windsor built up a 6-1 lead before the Generals turned it on with three last period goals, all in the space of 95 seconds. Lou Jankowski got two of them and Alex Delvecchio who assisted both times, got help from Jankowski on the other. Delvecchio had also scored a first-period goal.

John Ceffdant got 3 for Windsor, Jim Anderson, Al Arbour, Ron Johnson and Martin Zorica adding the other tallies.

Big man at Waterloo Saturday was Willie Marshall who scored five goals in leading the ninth-place St. Mike's to their 8-5 win over Waterloo. Other Irish scorers were Fred Sandford, Bill Dineen and Bill Lee.

Warren Godfrey, Reg Campbell Jack Oberle, Gerry Horton and Don McIntosh scored for the luckless Hurricanes.

North Bay Hawks In Second Place Of Eastern Loop

North Bay, Nov. 27—(CP)—Hill Dwyer set the pace for North Bay Black Hawks Saturday night, scoring two goals and an assist as Hawks routed into second place in the Eastern Canada Hockey League over Cornwall Calumets here with a hard-fought 4-3 victory.

Hawks opened with a two-goal lead in the early minutes of the second period after Ralph Orlando and Dwyer scored, but Jim McEwen tallied for Cornwall before the period ended and Gilles Gendreau tied the count for Cals early in the third.

Hawks came back with Dwyer's second goal and a breakaway marker from Frank Bingfee put the game away, although Pete Payette reduced North Bay's lead to single goal just before the final whistle.

Mud-and-Water Field Nothing New in Classic

(By The Canadian Press)

Saturday's mud - and - water Grey Cup field was nothing new in the history of the classic.

Since 1921, when the west first challenged for the title, 13 of 30 east-west finals have been played under difficulties because of the poor footing.

Here is a run - down of the Grey Cup games in which the field was off-color:

December 4, 1926 at Toronto. Ottawa 10, Varsity 7. (West did not challenge because of lateness of the season). Zero weather. Snow on field. North wind. Footing treacherous. Weather so bad that fans lined up at the box office asking for their money back. About 8,000 in stands.

Nov. 26, 1927 at Toronto. Balmy Beach 3, Hamilton Tigers 6. (Regina unable to travel east because expenses too heavy) field a soggy, muddy mess from rain.

Dec. 1, 1928 at Hamilton. Hamilton Tigers 30, Regina Roughriders 0. Field so muddy that two Regina players went without stockings to avoid carrying extra weight.

Nov. 30, 1929 at Hamilton. Tigers 14, Regina 3. Wind howled, snowstorm raged. Tigers' Ray Broadway and referee Reg. DeGruchy skidded into goalpost on treacherous field. DeGruchy knocked unconscious but continued after being revived.

Only Few in Stands

Dec. 6, 1930 at Toronto, Balmy Beach 11, Regina 6. Rain and mud. Only few in the stands.

Dec. 5, 1931 at Montreal. Montreal Winged Wheelers 22, Regina 0. Field frozen and snow-covered. Temperature 13 above zero.

Dec. 9, 1933 at Toronto. Toronto Argonauts 4, Sarnia Imperials 3. (Argos defeated Winnipeg 12-0 in semi-final). Field coated with snow and frozen solid.

Dec. 7, 1935 at Hamilton. Winnipeg Blue Bombers 16, Tigers 12. Field greasy. Fritz Hanson ran 70 yards for touchdown to give west its first victory.

Dec. 7, 1940 at Ottawa. Rough Riders 12, Toronto Balmy Beach 5. Riders won two-game, total-point series 20-7. (No east-west final because of dispute over rules). Snow-covered field.

Dec. 5, 1942 at Toronto. Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes 8, Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers 5. Salt and sand applied to move thick layer of ice, but field greasy and muddy.

Nov. 26, 1949 at Toronto. Montreal Alouettes 36, Calgary Stampeders 15. Treacherous, ice-coated strips and sun-melted blotches of mud.

Nov. 25, 1950 at Toronto. Toronto Argonauts 13, Winnipeg Blue Bombers 0. Muddy field, with occasional puddles of water.

BIG VOTE

Greenwood, N. S. — (CP) — When Flt. Sgt. H. L. MacAulay of Point Tupper was elected first mayor of the housing community at the big RCAF station here, 95 per cent of eligible voters turned out. Absentee votes were either on duty or on leave.

Race for Honors Will be Put On Personal Basis

Bowie, Md., Nov. 27—(AP)—Wee Willie Shoemaker, the weekless wonder from the west, and Joe Culmone, a cocky Jamaican kid from Bixley, put their battle for 1950 jockey honors on a personal basis today.

The two little giants of horse racing will ride against each other in the Bowie Special, a $1,250 winner-take all match race especially tailored for them.

Going into today's program, Culmone had ridden 344 winners this year while competing in the east. Shoemaker, performing on the west coast and in Mexico, had booted home 341.

Until last Monday, when Culmone pulled ahead at 333-331, Shoemaker was leading in the duel for the national riding championship.

Both had surpassed Alberta-trained Johnny Longden's modern record of 319 in 1948 and are gunning for the all-time of 388, set in 1906 by Walter Miller.

Today's $10-and-a-half special is an added feature, sandwiched between the seventh and eighth races on the regular program. There will be no pari-mutuel betting, but the fans will have plenty of opportunity to support either Culmone or Shoemaker in the other eight events. Each has mounts throughout the routine card also.

In the big one they will be riding James Jenkins Jr.'s Chloe II and Mrs. Tilyou Christopher's Curruhulus, but nobody knows yet who rides which. That won't be decided until just before race time by the toss of a coin in the paddock.

After today's program Willie will return to Hollywood Park and resume his work there Tuesday, later shifting to Florida's Tropical Park.

Joe plans to finish out the season at Bowie, which closes this week, and then take off for Tropical too.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto's Max Bentley continues to pull away from the pack in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race, racking up the odd goal and chalking up the assists at an amazing pace to set the pace with 28 points.

Team-mates Ted Kennedy and Tod Sloan hold down second place with 22 points each while two Montreal Canadiens — Cal Gardner and Bill Smith—come next with 18 points apiece.

Bentley's total is made up of seven goals and 21 assists, a department in which he has a wide margin. Sloan has 13 goals, the record to date, and nine assists for his 22 points and Kennedy six goals and 16 assists.

Toronto's Turk Broda continues to lead the league in shutouts with four to his credit while another Torontonian, Gus Mortson, has the dubious distinction of being the most penalized player. He has spent 52 minutes in the penalty box.

Sloan, Toronto	13	9	22
Kennedy, Toronto	6	16	22
Smith, Montreal	11	7	18

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Among bridge questions asked frequently is: Do you always rebid a six card suit before bidding a four card suit? The answer is no, if the six card suit is rebiddable.

With one suit at least two cards longer than the first bid the first one bidder will twice (if it is rebiddable). Then bid the four bidder, rebidding each suit before showing another show six-four.

With a five card rebiddable and a four card biddable, bid the five bidder; then bid the five carder again; then bid the five carder again. This tells partner you have five-four.

If, however, a six card suit is not rebiddable it is not bid a second time at all. Neither first nor later. The six carder is then bid first and the four carder next and neither is rebid.

Partner may thus assume you have five-four. But it is better for him to be thus misinformed than to give him the wrong advices as to the strength of your longer suit.

Suppose you had a seven card rebiddable suit and a five card rebiddable suit. How would you show them? The seven carder twice and then the five carder twice, if able to get around to it.

Having rebid the first suit before the other you show two cards longer in the first. Having rebid the second suit, you show five cards in it. This is how partner knows if you have seven and five.

These are the basic rules for the showing of suits. There are emergencies that arise to alter such showings. But wherever it be possible you should follow these basic showing methods.

South has the hand shown here:

♠ A Q J 9 8 2
♥ A K J 5

He opens with a bid of one spade. He next bids spades again. His third bid is heard. He says he has six spades rebiddable and four hearts biddable. Break the news.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 27—AP—Actress Dexter is worried about what his family thinks of the to-do surrounding his portrayal of Rudolph Valentino.

Dexter is the lucky lad chosen from six estimated (by press agents) 75,000 applicants for the role of the famed screen idol. Dexter's stage name is Walter Craig. Before that he was Walter Reinhold Alfred Frederick Fleischmann.

Now the Fleischmanns are a German-Scottish family who lean to the clergy. Agthony's father, grandfather, great-grandfather and uncle have been ministers in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Colorado. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fleischmann, now live in Loveland, Colo.

"I'm concerned about what the people in the congregations and my family might think about the things they see about me," he remarked. "You know, some people believe what they see in movie is gospel. They don't realize that some of the things that come out of Hollywood are far from the truth. I didn't either—until recently."

Arousing Mystery

Anthony himself is sometimes amazed at the things he reads about himself. Trouble began when the Valentino picture was filmed with no outsiders allowed on the set. That is a standard stunt to arouse mystery over a picture, but some correspondents resent it.

Although many will disagree Anthony doesn't believe he's a ringer for the greatest of all film lovers. "The resemblance can be achieved by make-up, costumes and lighting," he argued.

As Walter Craig, the Nebraska-born actor played his part of roles on Broadway. It was Katharine Cornell and her manager, Guthrie McClary, who recommended him for the Valentino role.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in the living room, and he looked around to see who had just came in.

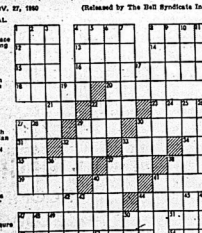
Being me, and pop said, 'Was that door open or shut when you came in?'

Sir? Shut, I said, and pop said, Oh I see, that probably accounts for the sudden draft.

Being a hint for me to go back and shut it like I found it.

Which I did, and I started to look at pop's head and wonder if I'll be as bald as that when I grow up, and I thawt. Oh well, maybe I wont mind if it fails out gradual enough. I wonder how much hair he had when he was as old as me? I thawt.

And I said. Hav noo do you remember yourself when you were just my age?



Yes, indeed, pop said. I always closed doors after me if they were closed before me. I remember very well. And I loved to run errands because they combined exercise with service. In fact I often made a point of asking if there were any for me to run. And I generally never got anything, because I always paid attention to what I was doing, and I'm glad I formed the habit at such an erly age, because it has clung to me ever since, he said, and I said, Well then jimminies, pop, how is it ma claims you wouldn't put ashes everywheres except in the ash trays if you only looked at what you were doing?

That's because your mother keeps the ash trays so spotless and shining I haven't the hart to muss them, pop said. Are there any more questions? he said. and I said, No sir.

That's good, because there are no more 5cners, pop said.

Sounding like somebody that was glad to finish the subject.

British Peer Would Like To Abolish Death Penalty

London—(CP)—Abolition of the death penalty except for crimes involving treason of the state, is advocated by Viscount Templewood, Britain's home secretary 11 years ago.

Giving evidence before the Royal Commission on capital punishment, Viscount Templewood, president of the Howard League for penal reform, declared a state execution, however inflicted, was a repulsive proceeding.

He told the commission that during his tenure as home secretary from 1937-39, when he was known as Sir Samuel Hoare, a reprieve had been granted whenever he had any doubt about the guilt of a condemned person. He believed, however, there was always a real danger an innocent might be hanged.

"The penalty is irrevocable and it is inevitable that mistakes may be made," he said. "I am opposed to capital punishment in peacetime in any form. However carefully the death penalty is inflicted a state execution is a repulsive business. Its only justification would be the safety of the state."

Viscount Templewood cited the following reasons for his opposition for the extreme penalty

It abandons the possibility of reforming the murderer; being irrevocable, it gives no opportunity for reversing a wrong sentence; it places a painful duty on all who take part in the execution; it lowers the moral standard of the whole community.

Reformation Possible

Evidence from 35 states that had abolished capital punishment showed clearly, he said, there had been no increase in the rate of killings. It also confirmed that murderers could be reformed.

He hoped the commission would recommend suspension of executions for a sufficient length to test the effects of life imprisonment as a deterrent against murder. But if capital punishment was to be retained, he suggested differentiation and classification of the crime of murder.

Imposition of the death penalty was suspended for a trial period by the present social administration. It was reinstated, however, two years ago as a result of public clamor following a wave of violent crimes.

Asked by the commission chairman, Sir Ernest Tower, if he regarded the mere loss of liberty as sufficient punishment, Viscount Templewood replied:

"If it is accompanied by a wife reform prison system I can think the deprivation of liberty is punishment much greater than many people imagine. But it ought to be accompanied by a rigid and austere life of hard training."

WORST

A call for aid to surrounding communities was quickly answered and Saturday night 4,000 volunteers battled to hold dykes against the swelling waves.

Worker Unnamed Yet

One of the workers, 21-year-old William Nees, was unaccounted for late Sunday night. He was last seen at Van Wagner's Beach early Sunday morning.

Others of the storm's victims were killed in traffic accidents, most of them the result of windglazed roads. Three men were killed near the Ontario - Quebec border when a car struck a tree which had been blown down. Two women were killed in an automobile accident near Val Morin, Que. A car striking a tree near Oakville, Ont., resulted in another double fatality and other deaths occurred at Toronto, St. Thomas, Ont., and Strathroy, Ont.

The storm, which finally lost momentum over the southern shore of Lake Erie Sunday, struck a savage blow throughout the Maritimes to Lake Superior.

Chimney fires were numbered in the hundreds in widely-separated centres as winds ranged from 50 to 85 miles an hour. Arrival of five navy ships was delayed in Halifax by treacherously rough seas whipped up by the winds, although there was little damage throughout the Maritimes generally. Chimney fires were the chief worry in Saint John, N. B., but other communities reported the winds did little but make a lot of noise.

Some Damage in Quebec

The Quebec area suffered some damage, mostly minor. Low-lying docks along the St. Lawrence River were battered and windows broken. The Franconia docked at Wolfe's Cove Saturday night with no difficulty, although pilots, remembering how the ship went aground in the St. Lawrence a few months ago, took special care.

Montreal felt the force of heavy gale winds and driving rain which disrupted power supply in some outlying areas. Firemen answered 30 fire alarms, mostly chimney fires. But a two-alarm fire caused heavy damage to a large wooden shed at Dominion Glass Company Limited's plant.

The Ottawa valley was hit hard, with power and communications lines snarled, trees snapped and many buildings damaged.

Had Difficult Time

Vessels of the St. Lawrence and Great Lakes had a difficult time against the winds, but only three reported real trouble. The Canada Steamships Line freighter Weyburn limped into Toronto harbor early Sunday, listing 40 degrees to port after her cargo shifted in the gale. No one aboard was seriously injured and the starns of steel plates was intact despite the battering.

In Lake Michigan, 85 miles south of Sault Ste. Marie, the super-freighter Endres Voorhees, of the Pittsburgh Steel Company, was rammed by the ore carrier Troy Hoyt. Both ships took cover in Mackinaw, Mich., to be repaired. The Voorhees was left with an 18-degree list.

Cities along the St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario suffered damages of varying proportions. Cornwall saw its 40-year-old grandstand demolished when the roof was tossed 100 feet by the wind.

Trees were blown down in every section of Cobourg and a large part of the town was blacked out from 5.30 p.m. Saturday until late Sunday afternoon. At Port Stanley, the tug Dungit broke loose from its moorings and was battered against the side of the J. M. Loder.

At Kingston the coal carrier Coalhaven reached port after a heavy battering by the waves.

Lake traffic through Welland Canal was slowed to almost a standstill. Only three vessels cleared lock 8 Saturday.

Western Canada didn't feel the effects of the storm which also missed Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland and parts of the Maritimes. In the west the weather was normally cold for this time of the year.

ALLIES ENTIRE

In Tokyo, Gen. MacArthur's spokesman said the Chinese counter-blows were expected. He said that the U. N. offensive, which MacArthur hoped would end the war by Christmas, was halted "temporarily" but "is continuing".

The spokesman described Sunday's withdrawal as limited, and added that, in any general advance, the foremost positions can be expected to be pushed back. That is what is happening now, he said.

Resistance Stiffening

Only in the northeast were Allied advances reported. But red resistance in some sectors there was stiffening.

In the north-central sector, U.S. Marines drove westward from the big Changjin power reservoir toward a red redoubt in snow-mantled mountains.

It was too early to see whether and to what extent, the Marine drive would help U.S. forces falling back on the northwest front.

Tokyo Gen. Eighth Army headquarters, correspondent Erickson reported at least 10 Chinese red divisions—numbering 8,000 to 10,000 men each—were estimated to be on the eastern half of the northwest front.

The reds evidently were trying to turn the Eighth Army's flank as the Eighth Army in Tokchon area. They wrested Tokchon from the South Korean 7th Division Monday.

The reds moving with small arms and mortar fire, penetrated South Korean positions around the rail and highway city in regimental strength. Tokchon was the main anchor of the east part of the U.N. line.

An Eighth Army spokesman said U.S. 1st Cavalry troops, held in reserve since early November when another red counter attack pulled back the previous line, were rushed to bolster the South Korean 7th Division.

Also mentioned up to the denied Allied line were the British 27th Brigade and the Turkish Brigade. There was no information as to where these forces would be thrown into the battle.

The heavy communist blows on the centre and east flank of the line forced the U.S. 24th Division at the west end, to throw up defensive positions north and west of Chongju.

U.S. CHARGES RED CHINA WITH AGGRESSION

Security Council Called Upon to Face New Menace

Austin Addresses Remarks To Chinese Representative

By MAX HARRELSON

Lake Success, Nov. 28 — (AP) — The United States today charged communist China with open and notorious aggression in Korea and called upon the United Nations Security Council to face the consequences.

In one of the most critical meetings in the council's history, U.S. Delegate Warren R. Austin spoke directly to a representative of communist China, Wu Hsiu-Chuan, who arrived here Friday and sat in the council for the first time yesterday.

Russia's Jakob A. Malik delayed the U.S. speech for more than an hour while a capacity crowd listened tensely.

The Soviet move came immediately after the United Nations Security Council convened to take up a general debate on both the Korean and the Formosan issues. A few minutes earlier it was announced in Washington that U.S. delegate Warren R. Austin had been instructed to bring the charges of aggression.

Revises Speech

Austin hastily revised his prepared speech to include some new sections, dealing with the large-scale Chinese communist intervention in Korea.

Several delegates had before them copies of Gen. MacArthur's communique calling for diplomatic action to solve the three to UN. forces in Korea.

The Chinese communist delegation, headed by Wu Hsiu-Chuan, sat at the council table. Malik demanded that Wu be heard ahead of Austin.

A U.S. delegation spokesman said the United States had no intention at this time of submitting a resolution embodying formal charges or agreeing to a Red China. Instead, he said, Austin would continue to back a six-country appeal for the withdrawal of the Chinese communist troops.

Malik Overruled.

Malik insisted that Wu came to present a complaint that the United States has aggressive designs on China and must be heard before Austin. Malik called "the defendant" could speak.

The majority of the council is understood inclined to go on getting on with consideration of the desperate situation in Korea than with hearing Wu. Any general is considered here to be trumpeting charges of American aggression.

The Russian also was overruled on his plea that Wu be allowed American aggression against Formosa— without inclusion of the Korean question—be debated.

Truckers Will Increase Rates In Near Future

Toronto, Nov. 28 (CP) — Increases in freight rates probably will be announced within a few days by a number of truck transport companies in Ontario, it was learned last night.

The boosts, reflection of generally-increased costs, including a recent wage hike for some 4,000 union truck drivers, likely will be from 10 to 20 percent.

Joseph Goodman, general manager of the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario, confirmed reports that increases are in the offing.

"There may be certain areas of the province in which there will be no boosts," he told The Canadian Press. "The impact of the agreement signed last month with the Teamsters Union (AFL) has been felt most in Southern Ontario and that's where the adjustments are most necessary."

The pact signed last month between the teamsters and the general freight carriers in the Toronto, Hamilton and Windsor districts provided a general wage boost, eight statutory holidays instead of six and time-and-a-half other three cent hourly hike next March 1.

It means, Mr. Goodman said, that wages paid by trucking companies now are about 125 percent higher than in 1940.

Two Men Injured In Motor Collision

Brockville, Nov. 28 — (CP) — Richard Rollins, 18, of Verdun, po ice "issemg qsamsvq pue wnp Montreal, are in hospital here with injuries suffered when their 1934 model car crashed into the rear end of a transport operated by Jan Zandstra, 31, of St. Hyacinthe, Que.

Police said the driver suffered a severely cut face while Rollins is being treated for a badly lacerated scalp.

Two other passengers in the car, L. D. Leduc, 21, of Lachine, Que., and John Prinn, 22, of Dorsan, Que., escaped injury as did Duttlly, the truck driver.

THE WEATHER

The weather over Ontario during the night was mainly cloudy but there were some clear areas beginning to develop. Some showeries in all regions have been light during the last 24 hours with the exception of a 14-inch fall reported at one point along the north shore of Lake Erie.

In northern Ontario the temperatures yesterday were 10 to 15 degrees above normal for this time of year while in the southwestern part of the province they averaged about 5 degrees above normal. The present trend is for a return to seasonable temperatures in all regions.

AIRLINE BOMBING CASE OPENED AGAINST RUEST

152 Jurors Called To Get 12 Members

Quebec, Nov. 28. (CP)—The crown today will start presenting its case against Genereux Ruest, crippled watchmaker on trial for murder in connection with the time-bomb wreck of an airliner that killed 23 persons in September, 1949.

Yesterday the small, 54-year-old man sat in the prisoner's box in Quebec criminal assizes courtroom and through gold-rimmed glasses watched intently while a 12-man jury was picked.

Ruest was ordered to his feet to face each one of the men sworn in for the duty of judging the evidence against him. The business of choosing jurors from a panel of 152 took all day.

Just before the court rose late in the afternoon, crown prosecutor Noel Dorion informed the summary of evidence which brought about Ruest's arrest last June.

Mr. Dorion said he will set out to prove that Ruest put together a time-bomb using the J. Albert Guay, awaiting execution Jan. 12, took all the parts to wreck a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane with Mrs. Guay aboard.

Mr. Dorion witness will file of a remark by Ruest:

"We'll be able to see it all from the terrace."

Trenton Woman Found Dead In Toronto

Toronto, Nov. 28 (CP) — A young woman found asphyxiated in a midtown apartment Monday was identified as Mrs. Robert McLaughlin, 23, of (95 1-2 Bay St.) Trenton, Ont. Her body and that of Mrs. Barbara McWilliams, about 70, were discovered in the elderly woman's Gloucester Street apartment.

Police said they believed Mrs. McWilliams may have died in error accidentally. The women apparently had been dead about 24 hours when found.

Identification of the young woman was made from a pay envelope bearing her name. They also established she had pawned her wedding ring in Toronto a few days ago and had come to Toronto to visit her friend, Mrs. McWilliams.

$5,230,640,000 Aid Plan Proposed by Commonwealth To Halt Communism in East

London, Nov. 28 — (AP)—The Commonwealth today proposed a $5,230,400,000 aid program to give 435,000,000 Asians a better life and to dam the spread of communism in the Far East.

The six-year program—known as the Colombo plan — also calls upon governments outside the Commonwealth to help out with loans and grants. This is a clear invitation for the United States, link to the British plan its own "point four" program for aiding under-developed areas.

The plan will begin next June in the Commonwealth countries of India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Malaya, Singapore, North Borneo and Sarawak.

It suggests that another 135,000,000 people in Burma, Indonesia, Thailand and Indo-China come under the program later. This would bring approximately one-fourth of the world's population into the program.

Of the total, 34 per cent would go to build up transport and communications, 32 per cent for agriculture, 18 per cent for housing, health and education, 10 per cent for industry and mining and six per cent for fuel and power.

The Asian governments would put up $2,195,200,000. The remaining $3,035,200,000 would be obtained by:

1. Drawing on the £248,000,000 ($688,800,000) in sterling balances held in London to the credit of India, Pakistan and Ceylon. These balances represent credits built up during the Second World War.

2. Private investment.

3. Government- loans floated among private investors.

4. Loans from the International Bank for reconstruction and development.

5. Gifts and loans from other governments.

Heavy Defence Spending 'Perhaps for Generation' To Prevent Third Conflict

Toronto, Nov. 28—(CP)—Heavy defence spending "perhaps for a generation" may be inevitable if last night by Defence Minister Claxton.

Canada's present direct defence budget is an "almost-astronomical $567,000,000 and there will be heavy defence expenditures will stop," R Claxton said in an address to the Young Men's Canadian Club.

He stopped in Toronto on his way back to Ottawa from a 14,000-mile inspection tour to Fort Lewis, Wash., where he reviewed Canadian troops serving the United Nations force prior to their sailing. Combined military strength

Protests Campaign Advertising by Board

Sault Ste Marie, Ont., Nov. 28—(CP)—A protest was made here by council last night against what was described a "campaign advertising practice" being followed by the board of education in its drive for a new public school and secondary school in the collegiate and technical institutes. Taxpayers will vote on by-laws amounting to $1,180,000 for the school construction in the December elections.

Alderman Stanley Booth said the Municipal Act forbade such advertising schemes. He said the board of education "is using the taxpayers' money for campaign advertising." Council took no action.

DOZEN BARGES LOST

Anchorage, Alaska, Nov. 28 — (AP) — A dozen or more barges carrying millions of dollars worth of cargo for the United States military sea transport service have been sunk or lost in Bering Sea winter storms. One of the vessels is believed to have fallen into Russian hands.

Social Work School Asks Triple Grant

Ottawa, Nov. 28 — (CP) Canada's eight schools of social work today asked the government to triple its social work training grant to $150,000 next year. They warned that unless action is taken forthcoming the shortage of welfare workers will become more serious.

The committee asked that the government consider transferring the social work training grant to a minimum of $150,000 for next year "on the less serious consideration be now given to a continuing plan which will cover a period of five years."

Operating on "restricted and inadequate budgets, the schools had to get the maximum output from an overworked teaching staff for larger numbers of students than have ever been trained in Canadian history before.

FIRST OF LINE

Robert Rolloc, Scottish lecturer and minister, in 1603 became the first principal of Edinburgh University.

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 28—(CP)— The Commonwealth's six-year, $5,200,000,000 program to succor and save south and southeast Asia was unveiled today, taking Canada to the verge of her first major plunge into Asia's misery and need.

This vast co-operative effort to ward off communism among 435,000,000 people by swelling farm output, harnessing river power, diversifying economies, by irrigation and by improving communications, health and school facilities holds out to Canada a variety of prospects.

With lack of capital and human skills as the plan's two great barrier, Canada would be called on for multi-million-dollar annual contributions, for private investment, for the dispatch of engineers and other technical experts, for a substantial increase in the number of young men brought here from countries to learn new skills.

So far none of the seven countries backing this so-called colombo plan for co-operative economic development in South and southeast Asia is fully committed to anything. But they all are considering their individual contributions now.

Before all of them are recommendations ringing with urgency. Canada's government is expected to propose action to the next session of parliament.

The seven participating countries are Canada, Australia, Ceylon, India, New Zealand, Pakistan and Great Britain. The countries that will benefit are India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Malaya, Singapore, North Borneo and Sarawak.

MacArthur Admits Grave Crisis Faces U.N. Forces; Confers With Field Generals

Enemy Swarming Along Every Road and Ridge Line

Tokyo, Nov 29 — (Wednesday) — (CP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur today warned that the United Nations face "an entire new war" with Chinese communists hordes crushing down on his retreating troops in Korea.

Immediately after making this statement he conferred with his two field generals at a special meeting. The generals were rushed to Tokyo from Korea and met with MacArthur and other members of his staff until the early hours today. No statement was made after the meeting and reporters were not permitted to talk to the generals.

MacArthur's communique said he faced authority to meet the "undeclared Chinese belligerent" with "maximum offensive with immunity from Allied air attack in Manchuria.

The commander of troops representing 53 non-communist countries spoke out at a time of gravest crisis.

His cosmopolitan Eighth Army of 11,000 battle-hardened troops was in retreat all along a flaming 75-mile front in northwest Korea.

His hope of ending the war by Christmas was a shattered dream.

His hopeful "end-the-war" offensive launched only five days ago had turned into bitter reverses.

He urged that the U. N. and all governments seek a solution to the developing crisis of Chinese communist intervention.

The high commander said red China had mustered 300,000 troops against U. N. forces in Korea and is throwing more thousands across the Yalu river from the "privileged sanctuary" of Manchuria.

Field dispatches underscored the developing crisis. They said masses of night-fighting Chinese reds were pouring through a widening gap in the Eighth Army's right flank.

The spokesman said air reports indicated the Chinese communists were swarming "along every road, every gully and every ridge line" for a distance of 35 miles north of Tokchon.

If the Chinese continue to push along the present line of advance they will menace the main supply line from Pyongyang, the former north capital, to the United Nations Chongchon River front.

Wants Authority

Military observers in Tokyo interpreted MacArthur's statement to mean red China must be stopped if possible by political pressure or, as an alternative, MacArthur should be given authority, men and material to fight an all — out preventive campaign against the Chinese in their home bases.

MacArthur's communique mentioned the "privileged sanctuary" in Manchuria where Chinese reds are staged for battle with immunity from allied air attack.

This is taken to be his second veiled request for authority to bomb the Manchurian staging areas. Allied planes are under strict orders not to cross the Yalu River boundary. Russian - made MIG-15 jets have been hitting hit-and-run attacks to take advantage of these orders on their get-away.

Front observers reported the communist offensive was being carried on solely by the Chinese with no North Korean communists known to be among them in battle formations. They described the enemy forces as overwhelmingly superior to the U. N. troops in numbers.

Green U.S. Forces, Tough Enemy Chief Reasons for Early Retreats

(Editor's Note: This is the first of three articles summing up the fighting to date in Korea, written by a Reuters correspondent who up until recently was with United Nations forces there.)

By LIONEL HUDSON

Singapore, Nov. 28—(Reuters) —What really happened in South Korea? What is the story behind the amazing reverses suffered by our troops during July and August?

When I left Korea the roads were filled with wounded coming back from the front, tanks roaring up with fresh-faced peasants trudging in the wake of the seasoned United Nations troops going back to shattered homes and, they hoped, new lives.

Now, after all this, there was a danger that the lessons of the early fighting and the campaign might be forgotten.

Once away from Korea, I found interested spectators clamoring for a post mortem now, while there is still time to use the lessons learned.

The North Korean army was a small one compared with others in Asia which might be under orders from Russia.

When I reached Taejon early in July, the men of the United States 24th Division had faced up to the fact that they were combating against tremendous odds because there had been no warning through intelligence of the attack across the 38th Parallel.

The blunt truth, many American officers told me, was that the North Koreans, superior in numbers, were also tougher, better trained and better disciplined, had more heart for this particular fight and had aggressive leaders.

Young, untried troops, softened by the leisurely life of the occupation of Japan found themselves pitted against a foe who refused to fight according to the training manual. It was hard to realize the Japanese had taught Allied troops the same tactics in the Pacific several years ago.

True, the United Nations forces had air and naval power and the initiative was with the North Koreans but they were committed piecemeal to the defending troops at the front were still suffering from the effects of surprise.

British, American and South Korean troops toughened as the fighting went on. But the bitter little battles round the Taegu perimeter have yet to be sorted out, the ill-nourished communists, out-gunned, out-numbered, but fighting to an inch.

They had to be killed or bypassed.

Gen. MacArthur's steamroller force finally got under way. The boy soldiers who had survived were men now. The dashing marines were there in strength. There was a new spirit on the battlefield.

Sheer weight of numbers, guns and air forces brought about the quick victory in South Korea.

Conservatives Win N.S. Seat In By-Election

Halifax, Nov. 28—(CP)— The provincial seat of Hants West, in political uncertainty since its creation last year, voted Progressive Conservative George Wilson into the Nova Scotia legislature yesterday in a by-election.

His victory makes the standing in the 37-seat house: Liberals 22, Progressive-Conservatives eight, C.C.F. two.

It was a straight two-way fight, Mr. Wilson polling 3,609 votes against 2,892 for Liberal W. C. Dunlop.

Opposition leader Robert L. Stanfield called the victory a "rebuke" to the administration of Premier Angus L. Macdonald.

Hants West, an agricultural area of the Annapolis Valley, was contested as a riding for the first time in last year's provincial election following a redistribution.

Mr. Wilson was declared the winner after a judicial recount by Cole. A recount resulted in a tie and the returning officer cast the deciding vote in favor of the Liberal.

Mr. Wilson appealed to the Supreme Court and in March was again declared the winner. Mr. Cole, in turn, took this decision to the full bench of the Supreme Court and the election was declared void.

Between appeals and counter appeals, Mr. Wilson sat in the House and carried on many committees.

Interest in the by-election brought on a mixture of nations and local labors, was keen.

Voting was quiet. Only two minor scuffles were reported. No arrests were made.

"It's twice as dirty as Italy, if that is possible, and 3,000 years behind the times."

That in brief is the opinion of Korea as expressed by a former "Hasty Pee" in a letter to Alderman Angus Duffy.

The Hasty Pee in question is Private John "Porky" Thomas of this city who served five years in the World War II with the famous "Plowboy" regiment.

"Porky" joined the Special Force of the Canadian Army and C.e first thing he knew, found himself in training in Fort Lewis then Tokyo and now Korea. He is with the Canadian Infantry Brigade headquarters.

The army grub is good, Porky writes, but the local product is something else. Both he and his buddies from the Quinte area have been centred.

For yesterday he completed 30 years of faithful and honorable service to his government department and is now retired from active duty.

Fred Hart will be missed, not only in Belleville but in the outlying corners of the large district which he served. Early morning workers, and the policeman on the downtown beat will miss him for life began at 8 a.m. daily for him. Seven o'clock every morning, rain, snow or shine Fred Hart, his stalwart figure, sitting at his desk in the Inspectress of his office.

Many Friends

Fred Hart will be missed by not only those with whom he came in business contact, but those, and they are many, who know him outside the sphere of governmental endeavor. For he has the rare faculty of making friends—and keeping them.

A jovial personality, eyes that twinkle with irrepressible humor, a sharp wit that amuses, not hurts and a rare gift of repartee, have made for him a host of friends wherever he has been.

But he has his serious moments. On one occasion, when he learned that a friend had suffered a broken leg, he sent him a single skt, with the note, "since you have only one leg that is useful, you don't need but a mitt on it."

Nor is his wit and humor confined to the spoken word. Fred wields a pungent pen, and many occasions has written articles for this newspaper under the nom-de-plume "The Observer" that have been masterpieces of humor.

His job took him far afield. From the humble cross-roads grocery store, to the head offices of large industrial plants in metropolitan centres, he was a well-known figure. For the aproned shopkeeper in a small hamlet, and the immaculate representative of industry behind a gleaming desk, Fred Hart had the same cheery greeting. Both called him "Fred." His philosophy is the Golden Rule. And, he says, it has yet to "run me down."

Apprenticed at 13

One of a family of nine, Fred saw the light of day in Reading, Berkshire, England, in 1885. He attended Christ Church School, but the three R's became irksome and at the age of 13 he became apprenticed in scale-making in the Reading branch of the W. T. Avery Co. of Birmingham.

For five years he drew the magnificent weekly wage of "two-and-sixpence", or .50 cents a week. At the end of his apprenticeship, his salary was raised to "ten bob" or $2.40 weekly.

He was "ambitious, and his initiative and application plus a natural adaptability sent him surging upward. After two years on the road, he was appointed manager of the Huntingdon branch of the W. T. Avery Co., the youngest manager ever appointed by the firm. He was then twenty-one.

In 1911, he married Miss Maud Orris, a school teacher from Depden Green, Suffolkshire.

Canada beckoned in 1913, and the year saw him arrive in Peterborough and become a machinist in the Canadian General Electric Company.

The war bugle sounded and January, 1915, saw him in the 39th Battalion, C.E.F., as armorer sergeant. He went overseas in early 1917 and served 14 months in France with the famous 31st Battalion. He was mopped a piece of German shrapnel at Arras in May, 1918, and the following January found him in Canada, at his job with the C.G.E. in Peterborough.

War service had not affected his knowledge of his craft, and when Fred Hart of a Civil Service examination open to the Dominion he was the successful leader in the name of Fred T. Hart, headed the list. He had "bested" the best applicants in the Dominion.

Kingston Appointment

Subsequently, in September, 1920, to be exact, he was appointed inspector of weights and measures at Kingston, Ont. Five years later he was promoted to senior inspector with headquarters at Peterborough, where he remained until 1938. In that year he was appointed district inspector at Belleville, succeeding F. Davy Diamond, who he has remained until retirement.

Here his outstanding ability drew him many special assignments from his department. He has served on Fuel Boards in London, Ottawa and other important centres and was also chosen on to give a special report on grain elevator weighing at Port Arthur and Fort William.

And so passes into well-deserved retirement a faithful servant of the government, a fine citizen and a good friend. And the 'missing' will be felt everywhere on the part of his many friends. For Fred Hart, too, will miss those long years that carried him to the farthest corners of a district included in the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Leeds, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Dundas, Stormont and Durham, Peterborough, Victoria, Haliburton and the Parry Sound district.

Would he do it again if he had his life to live over?

"I'd be back on the same old track," he smiled. "I've enjoyed every minute of it!"

Next summer will see Fred and Mrs. Hart enjoy a six months' holiday in their beloved England. "I'm going to see the parts of the old land that I missed the last time," he said. "I'm going to see it from Lands' End, to John O'Groats."

Mr. and Mrs. Hart have three children, Rose, at home, Mrs. Hassen Cox, Peterborough and Mrs. Elsworth Deyell, of Orillia.

Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Hart was the central figure at a reception held for him by the staff of the Belleville Divisions of Standards and Agriculture. Mr. F. Davy Diamond, representing the staff presented Mr. Hart with a handsome portable radio. Another "surprise" was a gift of a fine travelling set by Dr. J. Trudeau Company through its president Alex Trudeau, Mr. Hart in his own inimitable manner, conveyed his deep appreciation of the gifts.

Fred T. Hart Quits Post After 30 Years Service, Given Radio, Travel Set

At five o'clock yesterday afternoon, the ruddy-faced stockily-built gentleman, pushed back his office chair, reached for his jacket, looked at his staff and said in a clipped English accent: "Well, gentlemen, that's that."

A business tycoon concluding a big deal; a gourmet finishing a rich repast; a gambler stepping away from the tables broke, would have used more audible feeling in the remark.

But there may have been a glint of moisture in his otherwise merry eyes. There may have been a slight lump in his throat as he reached for his hat. There may have been a slight shaking in the hand that opened the office door.

After all, you can't say goodbye to a job you have been at for thirty years without some inward or outward sign of regret.

And perhaps Fred T. Hart, 214 George Street, District Inspector of Weights and Measures, paused a moment on the other side of that office door, and breathed a silent farewell to the environment in which his life's work had been centred.

For yesterday he completed 30 years of faithful and honorable service to his government department and is now retired from active duty.

Fred Hart will be missed, not only in Belleville but in the outlying corners of the large district which he served. How Hospitals' Money Was Spent During 1949

Toronto, Nov. 2—(CP)—Dr. Fred W. Routley, executive secretary of the Ontario Hospital Association, said today that hospitals spent almost 25 cents on every dollar on salaries and wages of graduate nurses and non-professional employees in 1949.

Dr. Routley's statement added that it was "significant" that non-professional employees such as kitchen help, laundry employees and engineers received 35 of the 53 cents.

Cobalty Warden Clarke T. Rollins, reeve of Wollaston township has donated a silver shield to be awarded annually in connection with the British Empire Dairy Show held in this city, it was announced yesterday by Mayor Irwin, honorary president of the show. The dairy show is being held this year in the city hall on December 6th and 7th.

The Clarke T. Rollins Shield will be awarded to the cheesemaker from Central Ontario with the highest percentage of clean and fairly clean cheese from the period May 1st to Nov. 1st as determined by analysts from the Ontario Agricultural College.

Mr. Irwin said the shield would be awarded this year to a cheese maker but said there was a possibility that in future years the shield may be awarded to the cheese factory having the season's record for clean cheese.

This is the first time that a Hastings County warden has donated a trophy for annual competition at the cheese show.

Young Boy Enters Shop and Says 'It's a Stick-up'

He had possibly been reading too many dime novel stories, but a juvenile still not in his teens, had little success yesterday in what seemed intended to be a holdup. He was accompanied by another boy.

The proprietor of the Darrah's Paint and Wallpaper Store at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Street, stated two lads had entered the store, one with a mask over his face and his hand in his pocket declaring that "this is a stick-up." Mr. Darrah stated the lad demanded money.

But Mr. Darrah had other ideas and the lads were bundled off to the police station and their parents notified. Later it was reported that only the one of the two boys was involved in the incident.

Dedication Service Held at College Hill Sunday School

Last Sunday evening, at College Hill Sunday School, a beautiful pulpit Bible and two hymn-aries were presented in memory of Mrs. James Donaldson. The service was conducted by the Rev. R. Hunter Little and Mrs. Howard Burley, superintendent of the Sunday School. Mr. Burley and Mr. Gordon Miller took part in the dedication ceremony conducted by Rev. Little.

Mr. Donald Dafoe rendered two timely solos "Bless This House", and "The Lord Is My Shepherd". He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Grant Coulter.

Rev. H. Gill Steers gave a most interesting and inspiring sermon to the many friends and relatives of the late Mrs. Donaldson who were there to honor her memory.

Crisis Causes Selling Wave

New York, Nov. 28 (AP) — The grave ordeal in Korea sent the stock market tumbling today in a selling wave that carried prices down $1 to $4 a share.

Trading in large blocks of stock marked the opening rush of business.

After the initial selling rush, there was a pause while some issues recovered from their lowest points.

Among the heaviest losers were Nickle Plate Railroad, Union Pacific, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Motorola, Phelps Dodge, Standard Oil (NJ.), and U.S. Gypsum.

The unfavorable war news was no set off a buying wave in commodities for future delivery as traders anticipated increased demand for raw materials. Prices climbed sharply on major exchanges, with rubber, cocoa, wool hides, sugar and vegetable oils in the lead at New York, and grain prices rising in Chicago.

$23 for good ewes sand wethers. Bucks $1 discount; good light sheep $15-$16.

Ralph Banbury Speaks on Agriculture Today

Marmora — Members of Marmora and district Chamber of Commerce listened to an interesting address interspersed with humor and quotations from Rudyard Kipling's poems, by Ralph Banbury, agriculturist, representative for Northumberland county, functioned as guest speaker at the monthly dinner meeting at the Royal Hotel on Thursday evening. It was "agricultural night" and in speaking of the place of agriculture in the world of economics, Mr. Banbury captured the close attention of his audience. In opening remarks, she showed how the Chamber of Commerce can help agriculture a lot.

Better Understanding

Farmers coming into the movement and therein meeting those who earn their livelihood otherwise, would be able to create a better understanding of agriculture problems. Those with native ability for farming, should be encouraged to stay with it. An agriculturist should not look around him for comparisons, The boy who would like to farm, should be encouraged to work in that direction as those seeking other professions. The speaker said that it hurt him to see such a boy shoved out. He should be given the good start as boys going into other professions. Complex Problems

In farming as in anything else, a man without spirit running his business, won't make a good job of it. Agriculture has most complex problems. A great one being the control of the law of supply and demand. Farmers show a keen for the future as evidenced in their plowing ahead for the next season.

Industry is using all kinds of folk that it embraces to the best advantage. Farmers have not exactly done this. It is essential in the life of a community that agriculture prosper. Farmers should not spend any of their time arguing but continue their endeavors with the hope and enterprise that ensures a good prosperous class of people.

Irwin McCoy reeve of Marmora and Lake township after introductory remarks, called upon Frank Grim, assistant agricultural Representative for Hastings county to introduce the speaker. Thomas Bateman moved the vote of thanks. Alex Fraser, president of the Chamber, was chairman throughout the session.

Santa Claus Parade

The matter of a Santa Claus parade was aired with the opening of general bbsiness. It was learned that the Marmora branch of the Canadian Legion and C.I.O. Local 889 of Deloro desired to co-operate with any move in this direction. A motion was passed that these two organizations be asked to appoint two representatives each to form with two representatives of Chamber a committee to make plans for holding December 16. R. E. Neal and C. T. Nicholson will represent the Chamber. Also in connection with this matter, better decorative lighting for Forsythe Street was decided on.

Decoration Competition

It was decided to sponsor two competitions one for home decoration, in which three prizes will be given and one for business places for which one prize would be awarded.

Concluding the evening's business, were discussions on the town planning for which the village council recently appointed a committee and the by-law of Marmora and Lake township council passed by the municipal Board, relative to building restrictions in the township.

POLICE COURT

Two drunk drivers, one of whom knocked over a telephone pole with his wrecked truck, pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court before Magistrate T. V. Wills this morning and were sentenced to seven days in jail.

Five other persons were charged on LCA counts and with the exception of one, paid their respective fines and costs out of court. Still another charged with illegal possesion of liquor, paid $100 fine and $3 costs out of court.

Evidence that police are cracking down hard on motorists who persist in disobeying traffic regulations was seen in the 12 speeding charges listed on the morning docket. All speeding charges were settled out of court.

A number of other motorists were charged with overtime parking, failing to stop at "stop" street and failure to give the proper signal. The charges were all settled out of court.

SLASHED TO DEATH

The victim was Miss Beryle Atherton. Cregg said her throat was "slashed crosways, crscrcos and down." He said she bled to death from wounds in her neck.

War on All Goats In Mediterranean Declared by U.S.

Charlotteville, Va., Nov. 28— (AP) — The United States Department has declared war on all goats in the Mediterranean.

An authorized spokesman, Arthur Z. Gardiner, described them as the "great enemy, of the whole Mediterranean basin."

Gardiner, who is an aide to George McGhee, assistant secretary of state, said the goat is a nasty animal because "it wanders at will and devours all vegetation." He added:

"The goats were properly dealt with in Cyprus either by complete elimination or fencing."

As a result, Gardiner said, Cyprus is a "conspicuous example of reforestation" in the near east."

NATURE'S FURY

The millions of people who were in the stricken area over which the worst November storm in history has been raging will not forget how rough the elemental forces can be when conditions combine to do their worst. November is the first month of winter weather and as such it is not expected that it will rage as furiously as it did at the week-end. In its trail of destruction lies what meant untold wealth of dollars of destruction of the work of man but also that heavier loss, the hundreds of lives which were lost by the blows struck by the heavy gales and the blockade which the heavy fall of snow was sure to set up to the risk of human beings not only at home but on the highways. Up to yesterday the list of the dead had reached 326 lives and the wealth wiped out set at hundreds and hundreds of millions of dollars.

The terrific nature of the storm, its sudden development and the great sweep it made through the Atlantic coast and through bordering states and Canada, the practical blockade it created everywhere in the area over which the elements raged and the helplessness in which it placed human beings at the mercy of the tempest combined to make it one of the most tragic memories which will long live in the minds of those who helplessly were caught in the storm and somehow survived the blows which maddened nature hurled at man.

In a time of such a disaster when lives are threatened and lost and the labor of man's hand and mind is wiped out in disaster by wind, or wave or fire, humanity feels as one because in such an extremity the victim might be anyone. No one is immune to such a disturbance in the natural world.

Winter as a setting for a disturbance of this nature brought increased hardships. With the bitterly cold winds, home ties add to the sufferings of the people caught in the storm's grip.

Such a storm will not be forgotten. Man while he gives all his resources to rescue the afflicted and injured displays his courage and his resourcefulness in the face of the angry elements. In this presence of the elements when lives are menaced by fire, wind or wave mankind feel as one, men and women go about their duties with courage and hope in the mission of rescue and healing efforts. Organizations for the purpose of restoring crippled services so that the ill-effects of disaster may be overcome are minimized. There is fortunately a great band of heroic folk in the modern services, who go about their mission without hesitation for they know that modern services are the lifeblood of the people of the whole nation. Mad as nature can become she cannot dominate their spirit. As human beings they stand ready to repair the disturbance caused by the havoc of the storm. They know that the public services are the lifeblood of civilization of today.

The sad thing is that there is often a great toll of human lives and a total of human suffering as a result of a disaster such as the storm. Then an appeal is made for the storms cannot always rage. Finally comes the end of the stinging blows of the storm, nature becomes calm again after having created havoc on a wide scale.

To the glory of humanity man has shown himself greater than any storm.

When the storm is at its height, there is man battling the elements with all the lessons by which he has learned to cope with nature, rescuing the injured and stricken. When the storm is over there is found many unstinting relief and taking measures for the protection and healing of the victims.

But the natural elements can never conquer the spirit of man. He is made to go on and on until finally he has survived the shocks and blows of the natural world. Today man, inured to the blows of nature, increases his knowledge and controls as far as he is able her forces and does not hesitate to dwell even on the sides of an Etna or Vesuvius.

The country over which the latest storm passed is one of the most prosperous in the world and it will repair the havoc wrought by Mother Nature's material forces.

The people do not forget the brave who bring the services of a great continent operating for the good of all in the face of natural upheavals.

True generosity is a duty as indispensably necessary as those imposed on us by law. It is a rule imposed by reason, which should be the sovereign law of a rational being. Goldsmith.

There is no such thing as chance; and what seems to us the merest accident springs from the deepest source of destiny.

LIBERTY

What in this life can ever be Better for men than liberty?
What precious can the tyrant make
For which their freedom they'd forsake?
What pledge so subtle and so sacred
That could to slavery one delude?

Who would abandon all
that's here
To live his every day in fear
And give up every human right
To matter under tyrant might?
What can a free man ever see
That's worth the loss of liberty?

What man could heed the teachings grim
That would take God away from him
And give up church and home and school
To suffer under brutal rule,
Leaving his children to the fate of serf
And service to the state?

Men can be tempted more or less
By things they hunger to possess
And will exchange what now they own
For what seems better, once
'tis shown.
But what on earth can free men see
Which better seems than liberty?

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

VISITOR'S MEMO

There is no connection whatever between the closing of San Juan Capistrano and the Mexican border town of Tijuana except that we spent delightful days in both places and I have some notes here about them.

The old mission is truly one of the beauty spots of America.

It is situated in the sun-drenched hills about midway between San Diego and Los Angeles on El Camino Real (the Royal Road), the old and romantic stretch for Highway 101, the coast route which runs from Mexico to Washington State.

This is lovely country with mile after green mile of orange groves, vast cattle ranches beyond and the foaming Pacific combers a short distance away.

The mission, one of 21 such ruins at various points along 600 miles of the California coast, slumbers behind walls that date back to 1776, and to be there (there is only a gate where no woman in shorts has ever entered) is like stepping into the past.

Flowers bloom profusely in all seasons and even now, in "winter" their fragrance fills the air with overpowering perfume. The ancient walls are trawled with purple bougainvillea and the lemon tree of pepper trees. Jasmine and delicate roses bloom alongside thorny cacti.

Everywhere there are snow-white, cream-colored doves, whispering to themselves or fluttering down to alight on the shoulder of the priest who welcomes the visitors who may have prepared for their visit with tidbits.

The mission is such a dream along the mission's paths, through the long, open corridors of the padres' cells, the rooms of the padres (rude cells, but marvellously cool) and you pause for a moment for reflection in the long and dimly lit chapel, the oldest building on the site and a timeless place of meditation.

The legendary swallows are gone from here now, but every-one in Capistrano delights in telling you about them.

They build gourd-like nests which hang like bunches from the limestone arches and cornices of the mission's ruins and the caves of the adobe buildings.

Two families are raised each season and the birds depart for warmer climes by the end of August, the winter rains wash away the little mud nests and Capistrano waits for their return.

"They bring the spring," as one of the townspeople puts it, "and take the summer."

Farther South

The Mexican border town of Tijuana is something else again. It is about as authentically Mexican as Coney Island or any other amusement park. We'd planned on a weekend visit but the plans depressed us so we spent less than a day.

Tijuana's principal industry is gambling. At Caliente race track, a lavish, stucco affair outside the town, you may bet the local horses or book bets the year around on any of the American tracks, in the town itself the most imposing building is used for the sport of jai alai (hi li), that gifted game of handball, with, of course, betting.

Apart from these ornate factories, the town is grubby, crowded and a tourist trap. The main street is lined with open-fronted shops crammed with trinkets of all descriptions and with many of the real examples of native craftsmanship one finds in the "real" Mexico.

Hawkers with trays slung about their necks containing cheap jewelry or dollar leather wallets patrol the crowded streets. The whole town seems dedicated to separating the U.S. tourists from their money.

It is making a quick dip below the border and wants something more than selling you an operation that it will bring.

It is possible, though improbable, that a doctor may form a lucky accurate judgment on the presence of a focus of infection in a tonsil by observance of the appearance of the tonsil. If the doctor (or specialist) is experienced and observant he or she will investigate the lymphatic drainage system of the tonsil and the character of material expressed from the tonsil crypts or openings, in order to confirm or negate the first impression.

But in the majority of cases of tonsilitis it was more or less customary for the family doctor to take a casual look in the patient's mouth or throat and order the poor geek to have those bad teeth or tonsils cut. Worse, a good many poor geeks obeyed the order—in most cases to their sorrow.

I infer from what readers tell me that some of those old timers are still in practice. If they succeed in find evidence of infection in a tonsil or about the roots of a tooth or more than one tooth, they make no bones about advising the victim to have all his tonsils or bad teeth removed.

Probably no reputable physician will dispute the statement that tonsillectomy is, in every instance a major operation. It involves the risk of grave complications. It has its own death rate.

Even the attempt to remove the entire tonsil (it is only an attempt in most cases) is fearfully able only when the tonsil is the seat of cancer, syphilis, tuberculosis, actinomycosis or other malignant disease. It is but fairly justifiable when the trouble is merely a septic focus or focal infection, and never, in my opinion when the trouble is simple enlargement of hypertrophy of the tonsils.

There are two alternatives for the dangerous major operation both of them safer procedures and both at least as effective, a tonsillectomy.

These alternatives are electro-coagulation and ionic ultrasonic Electro-coagulation for infected tonsils; tonsilitomy for enlarged or hypertrophied tonsils.

In talks to follow we'll tell you more about these better ways of dealing with "bad" tonsils.

Meanwhile, don't hurry you into the hospital and operating room.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Coffee Easier

For ten years I have craved coffee grinds and I eat about a pound a week. (Mrs. G. A.)

Answer—I doesn't make you jumpy, and excitable, give you palpitation of the heart, is harmless—has the same effect as drinking three or four cups of coffee daily. Sounds like a safe and more healthful: a handful of plain wheat, either ol' cracked. Try it instead of coffee.

Adulteration

Daughter's high school teacher told the class "a white flour is bad for use for baking purposes, contains plaster of Paris. (Mrs. W. T. H.)

Answer—It sound ridiculous. Perhaps your daughter misunderstood.

Buttermilk

Can one drink too much buttermilk? Is it safe to drink it to lose weight? Eat nothing else for a week then. (Mrs. H. P.)

Answer—Drink all you like. It will help to limit your diet to buttermilk for even one week. You will get better results from a combination of meat, potatoes of your caloric intake than you will by eating meat. She and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet Rules for Reducing.

IS A MAJOR OPERATION REALLY NECESSARY

That warning sign the hotel thoughtfully posts near your room door: Have you forgotten anything? It worked pretty well for me after I quit wearing a hat. Not so well for my first wife—she remembered her coat after we had driven fifty or a hundred miles along 66.

If perchance you are scheduled for a tonsillectomy tomorrow morning I'd like permission to put this sign beside your door: Is the major operation really necessary?

While you hesitate I'll give you odds it isn't.

Mind, I do not mean to imply that your tonsils are not infected. Only your own doctor can determine by study of your condition and examination of your throat whether one or both tonsils harbor a septic or open-focus infection. That is the source of your trouble.

As a general rule a good doctor cannot and will not express an opinion about tonsils from sight of a focus of infection in a tonsil after a mere look at the throat. When a doctor does so in any case, perhaps it is just as well to escape from his side pronto without committing yourself, and give it a wide berth in future; the man is not competent. He is interested in selling you an operation that he will benefit.

It is possible, though improbable, that a doctor may form a lucky accurate judgment on the presence of a focus of infection in a tonsil by observance of the appearance of the tonsil. THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Most of the lobbies of this world are nearly always full. Hotel lobbies, hospital lobbies, and the lobbies of many industries.

The people waiting in lobbies are nearly always alert, expectant eager, intent.

It's a queer thing that about the only institution of them all not interested in the welfare of its opportunities with such a captive audience is the hotel. In hotel lobbies you will find many industries, news stand, but all sorts of attractive little shops and counters. In the average hotel lobby you find displays of many kinds promoting some current activity, selling anything of a bank are never kept waiting. They walk right through. Those who don't want anything of a doctor simply aren't in the medical building lobby.

Some of us have to spend great many hours of our lives waiting in lobbies. And almost without exception, they are wasted hours.

Which reminds us that the Franklinia tree continues to bloom even when its leaves are ago a man named De Morgan began to write very long novels at the age of sixty-three, and he produced them about one every two years for quite a long time. Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes delivered one of his greatest Supreme Court opinions at a time when he was eighty-six. One of my friends, aged eighty-five, has written four books in three years, and when he was eighty-two broke his golf record for all time by playing a Lake Placid course in one under par.

antique books, anything. It would be valuable advertising for the hospitals might make attractive deals with groups or individuals to hang successive small shows of painting and sculpture.

Big business, banks, manufacturing plants have a dull and inhospitable conception of lobbies. If they can think of nothing better to entertain, instruct and contribute to the indignity of waiting, they might set out exhibits of the goods or services they deal in.

For you will rarely find a more receptive audience than in any lobby. They are all waiting for something. Rules relating to the Far East and German rearmament are constantly studied.

The editorial implies that a large and growing section of public opinion, especially in Britain and France, favors the adoption by the Atlantic powers of a policy of neutrality between the United States and Russia.

Well, my observation is that this isn't a true bill, but it comes close enough to make it take an elegant piece of communist propaganda.

Many Ramifications

It's true there are differences of opinion between the United States and Britain over the Far Eastern policy. This isn't strange in view of the fact that it represents one of the most complex problems in years. It has many ramifications, but we may sum up the differences briefly.

British observers say the United States is more convinced of the threat of war with the Soviet Union than is the United Kingdom, believing that a Russian war is imminent but they are afraid the United States will precipitate it by becoming involved with China in the Far East.

Britain, say these observers, doesn't think the U.S. is looking for war with China, but they think the events are taking charge and that such a conflict might develop through Russia pushing China into it.

MacKenzie's Column:

Editorial Makes Elegant Piece Of Propaganda

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The Moscow newspaper Pravda publishes an editorial calculated to give the impression that the United States and her western Allies, especially France and Britain, are at loggerheads on vital foreign issues. Policies relating to the Far East and German rearmament are specifically mentioned.

The editorial implies that a large and growing section of public opinion, especially in Britain and France, favors the adoption by the Atlantic powers of a policy of neutrality between the United States and Russia.

Well, my observation is that this isn't a true bill, but it comes close enough to make it take an elegant piece of communist propaganda.

therefore is anxious to see the Korean war wound up as quickly as possible, for the sake of United States.

There is another difference of viewpoint between Washington and London regarding their attitude toward the communist China. Britain has recognized the Peiping regime, whereas the U.S. has held aloof. That is a position which could cause complications if London should follow the recent action with the Chinese reds. Naturally the U.S. doesn't want to see that happen.

Considerable Opposition

As for German rearmament, there are differences and there is considerable opposition among the Germans themselves to rearmament. Nevertheless, the agreement among the Allies rest largely in questions of what safeguards would be necessary to ensure that Germany never again shall become an aggressor. There is no room to suppose that these differences won't be ironed out in due course.

Yes, there are differences among the democracies. And these are reflections of differences of opinion existing within the various countries. Just as American public opinion is divided on many issues, so is opinion divided in Britain and France and other countries of Western Europe.

The thing which we need to be sure about, and which we can be sure about, is that the great emergency of war the democracies would bury all differences and stand together.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

VOICES

What a thing of wonder is the human voice. Millions of these voices we record in our memory, often calling upon them in after years, for the hope and thrill that they so often afford. Voices that come to us in silent forces, at night time, and when very much alone.

It is impossible to estimate the influence of the human voice in the affairs of the world. Voices that those of Lincoln and Winston Churchill in England, and those of Wendell Phillips, Webster, Teddy and Franklin Roosevelt, and a host of others, on this side of the water. Voices so effectual the voice must have honest, sincere feeling behind it, else it soon becomes a mere echo, soon lost.

A pleasant voice has commercial value, as well as emotional value. The telephone companies select for their operators those with pleasing voices and courteous manners. The voice of the singer is the one that seems immortal. How fortunate that so many of our great speakers and singers have had their voices recorded—perhaps for all time.

The calm, quiet voice gets the most attentive listeners. I have noted this in small groups. Such a voice carries conviction. The speaker who has a pleasant timbre hears the tone of the instrument. It is because of this that we immediately appraise its calibre. It is the same with the human voice. We get a sense of the character of a person the moment that one speaks. Thus it is that many a man has lost a job before he has ever looked.

Our radio and television instruments have brought the voices of the world to our own homes. We can hear at the least notice the voice of the first laps of perfection that man ever knew. Nothing would have been had the radio and television been what they are in the days of the first Abraham Lincoln delivered his immortal address at Gettysburg!

HELPFUL RELATIVE

Lord Durham, Governor of Canada in 1838, was the son-in-law of Earl Grey, who became prime minister at the time that Abraham Lincoln delivered his immortal address at Gettysburg!

THE FRANKLINIA TREE

A Franklinia tree (said to be named for Benjamin Franklin) which grows at the side of our garage put out blossoms late this fall after its leaves had withered. Withered leaves and blossoms still coming — that was an unusual sight indeed. Yet it is said not to be unusual for that tree.

And if we start to think about it for a moment, it is not unusual in human affairs that people, supposedly well beyond any period when creative effort might be expected of them, suddenly do great work. Advantages of St. Lawrence Waterway Outlined to Rotary

With the development of the St. Lawrence waterway, Belleville in the not too distant future will become as noted an ocean port as it now is a railway centre and the home of cheddar cheese, W. A. Gunn, Toronto, public relations counsel, predicted here yesterday.

Speaking to the Rotary Club, Mr. Gunn intimated that the Canadian government awaits some indication of public support to undertake its own action on the matter.

"Canada already has representation on the International Joint Commission to which application for legal rights should have been made long before this," he said. Canada has the manpower, materials and money with which to complete the St. Lawrence Deep-Seaway forthwith.

"We have seen indications of leadership and have been encouraged by the faint glimmer of independent action. Therefore, is it not possible that the government but awaits some indication of the support you and I can give it?" he asked.

Want Protected Route

The Canadian people are demanding statesmanship, Mr. Gunn declared. They want a short protected route from the heart of the continent to overseas ports, the cost of which is to be self-liquidating. They want greater dispersal of facilities vital to the industrial defence potential and greater industrial development in the less vulnerable inland areas, and greatly enlarged facilities for the construction of naval and merchant shipping.

The Permanent Joint Defence Board of United States and Canada, on more than one occasion, has recommended the early completion of the waterway and power project, he said.

"The Canadian people," he went on, "have at long last come to realize that nothing stands in the way of the government commencing at once to do whatever is necessary for the completion of the St. Lawrence Deep Waterway. No other natural resource can favorably compare. The millions of revenue that would result from its completion under fair treaties, and the development to Canada that would naturally follow, will make for solidarity that is greatly needed in the very heart of the nation. Canadian finance and government bonds would be strengthened and the heel of the imaginary tyrant would be lifted."

He regretted, to find, the speaker said, that Belleville has not got a larger stake in this project. Toronto has forty millions in the "jackpot" while Quebec and Montreal, too, have millions invested.

Big Canadian Investment

Canadians, he said, have made the St. Lawrence navigable. It has dredged more than 1,000 miles and built the Welland Canal at a cost of more than $150,000,000 while only one paltry million has been spent jointly with U.S.A. Canada's investments total more than $200,000,000 which for decades has been under development and maintenance by taxation. The railways are the largest taxpayers, which in reality subsidized not only the St. Lawrence route, but almost every ship that sailed the seven seas. Tools were collected from 1847-1902 but in 1903 an order-in-council abolished them.

Mr. Gunn explained the geographical situation and other details, also explaining to the club men the various canals which have been built.

He pointed out that in 1929 the Canadian Deep Waterways and Power Association warned: "The real danger lies not in building an improved St. Lawrence waterway, but in failing to build it."

"The economic loss of the present ill-balanced St. Lawrence route is amply demonstrated by the fact that a bushel of wheat moves from Fort William to Port Colborne for three cents, while the rate from Port Colborne to Montreal (half the distance) is approximately 6.6 cents."

Mr. Gunn was introduced by Mr. William Lawson and Mr. Brummell of Trenton were in Toronto Saturday to see the Grey Cup football game between Toronto Argonauts and the Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Special Permission Given Fiancee To See Soldier

It was to have been his wedding day but overseas orders cancelled it. Instead, his fiancee came to Seattle from her Vancouver, B.C., home for the farewell.

His sweetheart, Donna Detzer, got special permission of the colonel to see her boy off to war. Both are 20.

Pte. Rivers, before his cheering buddies lining the rails of the transport ship, kissed his girl, hugged her tightly, and then sprinted up the gangplank.

Soon he was at the front of the rail on the first deck—a place made for him by the other infantrymen.

Harpist Gives Flawless Program

(By EUGENE LANG)

The second concert of the 1950-51 series of recitals sponsored by the Belleville Community Concert Association was held in the Collegiate Auditorium last evening. The internationally renowned harpist, Miss Mildred Dilling, was the soloist and markedd this as her second appearance in the city during the course of the last ten years. Miss Dilling has appeared as soloist throughout North and Central America in her concertising, besides having toured the British Isles and Europe where she has been acclaimed everywhere as one of the greatest harpists of all time. She is a regular radio personality on most of our networks, has appeared in television, besides making a short film along with other famous living musicians, has a roster of many distinguished people among them being the famous Harpo Marx, and has written, two best selling books about the harp, all this making for a very diversified and busy career in the world of music.

Wide Variety of Selections

Her program consisted of many different types and styles of music for the harp, including both original compositions by leading virtuosi and writers for this the oldest of all instruments; and arrangements and transcriptions of standard works of the classical repertoire written during the past two hundred years. Of the four pieces that comprised the first group, three were transcriptions from the vast output of operas of J. S. Bach and W. A. Mozart. Saint-Saens's arrangement of the Bourree from one of the solo violin sonatas of Bach was played with a virtuoso gusto coupled with a more lyrical restraint in the Trio Section.

The familiar "Arioso" of the same composer (not to be confused with the Air for the G String) was given a most sensitive and appealing interpretation, in an arrangement for harp by Miss Dilling. Mozart's delightful little Sonata in C Major for piano had its first movement (known more familiarly as the "Eighteenth Century Drawing Room" vis - a - Vis Pan Alley Lingo) given a crisp and sparkling rendition.

Closing this portion Miss Dilling played in a fluent and very facile manner the "Impromptu Caprice" of Gabriel Pierne, a number which showed technical qualities that could easily be conquered by one of the masterful accomplishments that this great artist possesses.

Outlines History of Harp

Before commencing with the second part of the scheduled recital, Miss Dilling explained in a very easy to understand and informal manner the history of the harp from earliest Biblical times through the odd 57 centuries that have elapsed from its first known use (from excavations at Ur of the Chaldees) to the present day, To makes this explanation more interesting and informative she had three types of harps with her from 18th century Dutch, 12th century Scandinavian, and an Irish model of ancient vintage,) two of which she played later to demonstrate their peculiar tonalities and qualities. Then she gave a short description of the magnificent instrument that she had with her for her recital, a modern harp that incorporated all the latest innovations and technical additions of the last hundred and fifty years. Tipped off with her inimitable humourous this short discourse was highly enjoyable besides being instructional.

Contrary to the general belief, the first problem of the harpist is his tone, and not his technique. Of all the instruments, the harp requires the closest co-ordination between the inner spirit of the performer and his physical or technical equipment. It is by means chiefly of his tone that the harpist is able to state the color, warmth, and sensitivity of his given musical thought. Therefore, he must always set himself to the very important task of building his tone. And it was just this beautiful building in tones combined with a high degree of technical proficiency that gave each number that Miss Dilling played a finish of clearness equal to the sharp precision of the delicate etchings on a Japanese fan, yet with that humanity and sensuous warmth that one would associate with the 18th century school of Flemish and Dutch paintings—each being of a different artistic nature, yet the inspired treatment of one making a fitting aesthetic complement to the highly polished finish of the other.

Brilliant Interpretation

Whether it was the "March of Men of Harlech", the familiar old Welsh air in its robust ruggedness, dressed up with arpeggic and appealing interpretation, in an arrangement for harp by Miss Dilling. Mozart's delightful little Sonata in C Major for piano had its first movement (known more familiarly as the "Eighteenth Century Drawing Room" vis - a - Vis Pan Alley Lingo) given a crisp and sparkling rendition.

Closing this portion Miss Dilling played in a fluent and very facile manner the "Impromptu Caprice" of Gabriel Pierne, a number which showed technical qualities that could easily be conquered by one of the masterful accomplishments that this great artist possesses.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

Vinegar — from the French "vin" meaning wine and "aigre" meaning sour.

Only a small proportion of the vinegar that we use is made from wine. Cider vinegar made from apples is the most popular, although vinegar can be made from such foods as malt, beer, raspberries and even celery.

Many vinegars are named from the flavoring ingredients such as tarragon vinegar, garlic vinegar and shallot vinegar.

Vinegar must contain at least 4 per cent acidity or acetic acid. This acid content is sometimes called "grains". Thus vinegar of 4 per cent acidity is called 40 grain vinegar, five percent acidity is 50 grain, etc.

The acid in the vinegar is the ingredient that helps break down the tough tissues of meat in such preparations as sauerbraten—meat marinated in a vinegar mixture before it is cooked.

Use vinegar to marinate individual round steaks. Do not use too much vinegar, however, or it will have an excessively sour taste.

Marinated Round Steaks
Serves 4.

2 lbs. top round steak
2 teaspoons salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper
1-2 cup sliced onion
1 bay leaf
1 smashed clove of garlic
3-4 cup water
3-4 cup vinegar
Vegetable fat
1 teaspoon meat extract
6 gingersnaps
1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons sour cream
Divide steak into 4 equal portions. Put in a covered jar or container with the salt, pepper, onion, bay leaf and garlic.

Bring the water and vinegar to a boil. Pour over meat. Store meat in refrigerator 6 to 8 hours or overnight.

Remove meat from liquid.

Melt 1-4 cup of fat in a heavy saucepan. Brown meat on all sides. Add 1-3 cup of the liquid in which meat was marinated, the sliced onion, 1-2 cup fresh water and meat extract. Simmer covered over a very slow flame until meat is tender 1 1-2 to 2 hours. If liquid evaporates, replace with water as needed. Remove meat from gravy. Strain gravy.

Crush gingersnaps. Add to gravy. Add sugar, Add salt and pepper to taste. Bring gravy to a boil. Remove from flame. Stir in sour cream.

ROYAL DEFINITION

London — (CP) — Princess Marie Louise, a grand-daughter of Queen Victoria, gave this definition of modern music at a recent luncheon: "It's like modern life — lovely melody, then discord and a crash. Like modern life, it is sometimes hard to understand.

Worst Eruption In 40 Years Of Mt. Etna

Catania, Sicily, Nov. 28 (AP)—A molten finger of lava, spewed up by Mt. Etna's worst eruption in 40 years, snaked its way toward the hamlet of Milo today while scores of trucks stood ready to evacuate the 600 villagers.

The smoldering stream was reported moving at 130 feet an hour toward the little village on the volcano's northeast slope, shrivelling trees and vegetation in its path.

The creeping lava head measured 5,000 feet across and 17 feet high as it roared from 37 fiery holes in Etna's side. Half way down the mountain it split into smaller streams of molten rock. Part headed toward Milo and neighboring Rezzano. Another flow, moving at only 20 feet an hour, coursed down the valley of the Oz.

Decision whether to evacuate towns in the lava's path will be made by authorities from Rome and the volcanic institute of Catania, who are keeping an on-the-spot vigil.

Sicilian peasant women continued to visit a little crossroads church barely a mile from the advancing lava stream to pray that their homes might be spared.

New explosions in the torn crater of the volcano last night—so violent they could be heard in the city 20 miles away—sent the lava flowing out with new force.

Clouds of smoke and steam through which flashes of fire could be seen continued to billow out of Etna. The 10,741-foot-high peak came to life again Saturday night in the latest of more than 80 eruptions on record.

Three-Unit Hospital Plan Answer to Costs

Toronto, Nov. 28 (CP) —Ontario Health Minister Phillips said last night the three-unit hospital system being considered by the Ontario government may be the answer to hospital costs which have quadrupled in the last 10 years.

Addressing members of the Federal Women's Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Phillips said the public is entitled to more hospital beds.

The plan would involve provision of three types of hospital beds: active, for seriously ill patients; convalescent, for patients not requiring attention, and a third for elderly and chronic patients.

This could sharply reduce unit costs of hospital beds, said Mr. Phillips. He noted hospital costs had risen from $13,000,000 to more than $51,000,000 in the last decade.

The number of patients had doubled and now was 600,000 in addition to 12,000 hospital employees, twice the number in 1940.

Korean Students Given Sanctuary In Dominion

Vancouver, Nov. 28—(CP)—An odyssey in search of freedom from fear has ended happily for two young Korean students.

Pong Cheyue, 21, and Yong Wang Lee, 22, have been granted sanctuary in Canada. Months of detention and harrowing escapes behind them, they are settled at a home in the Fraser Valley.

An order for their release from custody was received by officials here from Immigration Minister Harris. Yong and Pong were freed after sympathizers posted bond of $1,000.

The odyssey began last January in North Korea. Anti-communists, and recognized as such, they fled south to the west-recognized republic. But they said they were unsafe there, and when the chance came they stowed away on a freighter. The ship docked in Vancouver.

They sought to remain, saying death awaited them in the country of their birth; in the north they were traitors, in the eyes of the south they might be considered spies.

But the deportation order stood. They became desperate. Only hours before they were due to sail, they escaped and found jobs as farm laborers. Then Koreа became a battleground.

The two students surrendered. They appealed the deportation order and waited in suspense the following months. Their ap was successful.

When Yong and Pong arrive they said they were wil to return to Korea to fight the United Nations forces.

And they may yet.

Dismisses Three Damage Suits Over Drownings

Chatham, Ont., Nov. 28 —(CP)— Mr. Justice F. E. Smiley of Ontario Supreme Court Saturday dismissed three damage suits for $15,000 each arising from the drowning of three women in St. Clair River accident in March, 1949.

Ernest Benoit, J. K. Schram and Sidney Jamieson, all of the nearby Wallaceburg district, sued Bob Dawson and his son, Kary, boat operators at Port Lambton, Ont., on behalf of themselves and 13 children.

Evidence was that the women were carried to their death when their boat crashed into the old-model automobile and it hurdled the ripple of the Dawson ferry and plunged into the river. Jamieson, in the car at the time, escaped.

Mr. Justice Smiley held that the accident was Benoit's fault. He refused to believe the evidence given by the three men during the five-day hearing, saying that it had been revealed that they were "bordering drunk cases" at the time of the drownings.

George T. Walsh of Toronto, counsel for the ferry operators, argued successfully that there was no negligence on the part of the ferry men and that the children "met little" in the drowning of their mothers.

Witnesses had testified that a drinking party the day of the fatality was financed by family allowance cheques. Social welfare workers said the home environment of the children — now in the care of Children's Aid societies — emaciated, undernourished and covered with bugs. One testified that she found a baby's carriage full of maggots."

Offer Declined By Hamilton

Hamilton, Nov. 28 (CP)—When Winnipeg suffered severe flood damage last spring, Hamilton pitched in with the rest of Canada in providing millions of dollars of aid.

Yesterday, Winnipeg offered to return the favor in part, but the offer was declined with thanks.

Acting Mayor C. E. Simmonite of Winnipeg sent a telegram to Hamilton offering assistance to the victims of the storm which battered homes at suburban beaches during the weekend, causing thousands of dollars damage.

Mayor Lloyd D. Jackson replied that with individual offers pouring in from all parts of Canada, he didn't think the financial aid from a municipality would be needed.

The campaign set up to give aid to the victims of the storm which wrecked many homes at Wagner Beach has already received pledges for $12,000.

Police Suspect Wild Parsnip In Poisoning

Toronto, Nov. 28 (CP) — Police are still trying to establish where a Toronto real-estate dealer bought an unidentified vegetable which took the life of his wife and made him critically ill.

Mrs. Harry M. Lee, 45, lapsed into unconsciousness 10 minutes after eating the vegetable at Sunday dinner. She died in hospital and an autopsy performed by Dr. Harold Gold, provincial pathologist, showed death from asphyxiation from food particles in the larynx.

Mr. Lee, who collapsed five minutes after his wife, regained consciousness late Monday, 16 hours after lapsing into a coma.

Prof. Joseph Rogers, provincial analyst, will examine contents of the woman's stomach in an effort to determine what caused the poisoning.

Police suspect it might have been wild parsnip bought by Lee on an out-of-town trip.

Forty Germans Walk Out of Meeting

Berlin, Nov. 28 — (AP) Forty Germans walked out of a right-wing political party meeting in West Berlin Sunday in protest against the playing of "Deutschland Ueber Alles" by a string quartet. The song—its title means Germany Over All — once was a German national anthem. Thirty-two million people died under the national hymn, shouted one objector. Others shouted "Nazi," and "Fascist."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself with a satisfied expression, and ma said, P. Willis Hinkle is another article about smoking in his collum today.

That fellow never has the slightest idea what he's writing about, so everything he says is very irritating, pop said, and ma said, Now William, is that any suppose to be sarcastic?

Not at all, my dear, if anything it's allitle flattering, pop said, and ma said, Yo unite at least listen to his thawts on the subject, just as a faint indication of brood mindedness. P. Willis Hinkle claims that if smoking was an art, as so many smokers pretend it is, they would just naturally smoke with their eyes closed, the same way they injoy music. But no, they have to see the smoke poring out of them. In other words, smoking is on the same childish level as blowing smoke bubbles. P. Willis Hinkle claims that the only time a man really injoys a cigar is when his mind is in a sennny vaccum, ma said.

In that case, he must of been smoking a cigars in one of the ads he wrote that, pop said. By golies, I'll be broad minded and close my eyes for a while and see if he said.

And he closed them and kept on smoking, saying, Yee gods, the fellows was rite. Say, how beautiful. I see a flock of perfectly proportioned angels flying with infinite grace in the a glorious sunset and carrying fragrant platters of livver and onions as they sing Roll Out the Barrel in indistirbable harmony, combining the arts of music, painting, sculpture and smell with the poetry of motion. I don't deserve it. I open my eyes again till a warning sizzle from my mustash warns me that this night I have lived its artistic naturfulness, he said, and ma said, Oh, hush and keep quiet and go ahead and laff.

Which he did.

Sarnia, Nov. 28—(CP)—Unless government controls are re-imposed quickly it may be too late for this country to pull out of inflation brought about by re-armament and the peace of mind, T. B. COMMIES

The warning came as Chinese reds in overwhelming numbers smashed for the third straight day against the shattered U. N. line in northwest Korea.

In Retreat Along Line

Field dispatches said the Eighth Army — 110,000 battle - hardened Allied troops — was in retreat all along the flaming 75-mile-long northwest front.

The war had reached its bravest crisis.

MacArthur said 300,000 Chinese communists thus far are arrayed against the allies in North Korea.

"Heavy reinforcements are concentrated" in Manchuria were "constantly moving forward." Allied intelligence has estimated there are 500,000 Chinese troops massed in Manchuria within striking distance of the Korean front.

This mighty communist force in Korea and in close reserve has with it the remnants of previously-beaten North Korean troops, elements of an estimated seven divisions.

Before U. N. Council

The crisis gravely undiscovered by MacArthur already was before the U. N. Security Council. U. S. delegate Warren R. Austin came up with a bitter denunciation of Chinese intervention in Korea. A communist Chinese delegation was on hand to press its own charges of American aggression in Formosa, last stronghold of Nationalist China.

MacArthur said the strength of Chinese red forces in Korea "has shattered the high hope we had that the intervention was only of a token nature on a volunteer and individual basis as publicly announced."

Eighth Army intelligence has identified 14 Chinese communist divisions along the northwest Korea front, but new Chinese divisions have swelled the number in the last 24 hours.

The Chinese division has 8,000 to 10,000 men.

AIRLINE BOMBING

A remark by Ruest after the plane crash, said Dorion, was: "If hadn't it was to happen, but not like that. Developments will show what I mean."

The formal examination against Ruest, read when the court met yesterday under Judge Fernand Choquette, was that the watchmaker wilfully helped make a time-bomb to wreck the Quebec-Sept-Iles plane and kill Guay's wife.

Pleads Not Guilty

Asked what was his plea, Ruest answered in a low voice "non coupable" (not guilty).

The jurymen who will hear his trial are Gualtose Langlois, a barber; Joseph Gingras, a railway agent; Noire Barrette, a pensioner; Cirille Gagnon, a carpenter; Herard Gerwin, an electrician; Delphis Renaud, a night watchman; Armand Marquis, and Henri Dore, farmers; Leopold Fortin, a river; Joseph Jobin, a laborer; Ivan Lavallee, a plant foreman; and Louis Caudreau, a doorman at Quebec railway station.

Prosecutor Dorion said that one of the 72 crown witnesses summoned for Ruests' trial will be Mrs. Arthur Pitre, a sister of the accused.

Mr. Dorion said Mrs. Pitre will tell of buying 10 pounds of dynamite for Guay, a jewelery salesman, and of delivering to Quebec airport on his instruction a 25-pound parcel shipped by express aboard the plane wrecked at Sault au Cochon.

Mrs. Pitre awaits trial herself next January on a charge of intimidating witnesses laid during Ruest's preliminary hearing last June.

WHAT ABOUT NATURAL GAS?

HOW WILL YOU VOTE?

What is natural gas?
It is the cheapest, cleanest, most efficient and most convenient fuel known today. It is "stored sunshine" which has been underground for millions of years waiting to be tapped by modern civilization. Today pipe lines can bring it thousands of miles from its source and it can be used for many home and industrial purposes.

How does natural gas compare with other fuels?
In addition to the above advantages it performs all the heating tasks of other fuels without the problems of storage and replenishment. At less than one-half the average price of manufactured gas it provides over twice the energy content.

What will natural gas mean to the housewife?
It is a faithful and dependable servant which will heat your home, do your cooking and provide a constant supply of hot water.

What will natural gas do for Belleville?
Most industrial processes involving the use of heat can be performed more efficiently and more cheaply with natural gas. It will mean new industries and greater employment. It will provide increased prosperity, greater opportunities for your young people and a better way of life for everyone.

What will natural gas cost your municipality?
Nothing! The entire cost of installing the mains will be at the expense of the distributing company, without any cost to the rate-payers.

Whether or not you intend to use natural gas in your own home, you cannot help but benefit by its introduction to your community. You can help make this possible by supporting the natural gas by-law at your forthcoming election.

WHAT IS THE STORY BEHIND THE FRANCHISE APPLICATION?

Natural gas, one of the latest additions to the list of Canada's vast wealth of natural resources, has been discovered in Alberta in quantities substantially in excess of the requirements of the consumers of that province. You may have read of the various proposals to get the surplus gas to market, particularly to the Northwest United States where there would be a critical fuel shortage in another national emergency. In exchange, American gas could be made available to Eastern Canada. By such a reciprocal agreement we propose to bring Texas gas to Ontario and Quebec by way of a pipe line from Windsor to Montreal and Ottawa, tapping the line to supply important towns and cities en route.

This is a Canadian project designed to benefit Canadians. The availability of this "wonder fuel" in Eastern Ontario should not only relieve the present heavy load on our Hydro facilities, but, it should also make possible an industrial development far beyond the present capacity. To get this tremendous project under way, we have applied for a franchise in your community, the granting of which is subject to the approval of the electors.

This franchise takes the form of an agreement between your County Council and ourselves, permitting us, under certain terms and conditions, to enter upon your streets for the purpose of installing the mains. This agreement, which has been amended to best protect the interests of your community by your Municipal Solicitor upon the instructions of Council, has already appeared in this newspaper. However, the following highlight is of interest to the rate-payer:

The entire cost of installing the distribution system and the restoration of the areas disturbed to their previous condition will be solely at our company's expense and no work can be started until plans and specifications have been submitted to and approved by your Engineer. In this way it will be possible to co-ordinate a portion of our operations with the regular public works undertaken by your Municipality and thus minimize any inconveniences during the installation.

If you consider that natural gas will be of benefit to your Community, you can help to make this franchise possible at your forthcoming election.

They discovered Aluminum!

AN "INSIDE STORY"

1900—It wasn't only Grandma's cooking that drew the crowds. She had the first aluminum sauce pan in town! In Texas' other Canadian homes, too, this was the beginning of a bright, new era of better cooking utensils.

1925—When mother got married, she already knew how to enjoy life with aluminum. She received Ma's coffee in an aluminum pot... cooked those big family meals more easily in quick, even-heating aluminum.

1950—Today, daughter's kitchen belongs to the "aluminum age". She enjoys a larger selection of aluminum utensils. This "food-friendly" metal also protects the flavour, quality and purity of the foods she buys.

HINTS TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Whenever you see aluminum on the outside of a food or a drink, there's an "inside story" of cleanliness and purity.

Aluminum utensils clean easily. To remove natural deposit left by foods and water, use a tablespoon of vinegar in boiling water.

PICTON

Male Quartet, Toronto, Gives Splendid Concert

Picton — Bloomfield United Church was filled to capacity as more than five hundred music lovers gathered to hear the Connaught male quartet from Toronto. Sponsored by the United Church Sunday School, proceeds amounted to $320. The Superintendent, J. Donald Baxter welcomed the noted artists who include a former Bloomfield boy, Harvard Reddick.

A year ago this quartet was heard in a secondary school concert at Picton and many who heard them on that occasion took the opportunity of hearing them again. All parts of Prince Edward County, Belleville and Trenton were represented.

Brilliant Arrangement

Once again the brilliant arrangement of second tenor, Carl Scott, enlivened the groups of songs presented by the quartet. The other members all of whom are soloists in their own right, are Harvard Reddick, a very high first tenor; Donald Parrish, a good low bass, who also acts as master of ceremonies, and John Ringham, baritone.

The Commodores' range and flexibility in ensemble singing was particularly appreciated in the group of Negro spirituals.

The program included several classical selections by Handel and Schubert, medleys of Scottish, Irish and French Canadian folk songs. A humorous number included the barbershop quartet "MacSmarasel Swell".

Brilliant Accompanist

Their brilliant accompanist, pianist Leo Lighter, played a group of piano solos.

Mr. Reddick, by request, gave a beautiful rendition of "The Lord's Prayer", as well as other favorites.

The quartet was generous with encores and applause was enthusiastic.

Afterwards, the artists were entertained at a social half-hour in the church hall.

Frau Koch Denies Charges Levelled By Crime Court

Augsburg, Germany, Nov. 28 — (AP) — Frau Koch denied in court today that she had ever heard of the "singing horses" of Buchenwald concentration camp.

According to charges against the widow of the camp's former commander, the "singing horses" were teams of Jewish prisoners required to sing as they pulled heavy wagons at running speed.

The plump, red-haired woman, who said yesterday she was "directly a housewife" in the camp, insisted she had nothing to do with any of the cruel punishments at Buchenwald.

She admitted to the German court that she saw prisoners forced to carry heavy building stones, but claimed she had nothing to do with the camp administration and "no influence" on the way her husband ran it.

Frau Koch is charged with inciting 45 murders and 135 attempted murders of camp inmates — Germans and Austrians — and with responsibility for scores of other cruelties. She already has served four years of a life sentence — now commuted — given her by a United States war-crimes court for acts against Allied nationals.

The woman whom Buchenwald prisoners called the "red witch" defended herself in a soft voice before the German court. German spectators snickered in derision at some of her denials.

Yesterday her countrymen shouted "Kill her" as she was led from the courtroom at the end of the first day of her trial, which is expected to last at least six weeks. Since West Germany has abolished the death penalty, she faces a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

Socialists Call For Resignation W. German Govt.

Munich, Germany, Nov. 28 — (AP)—Bolstered by three straight election victories, the anti - rearmament Socialist party today campaigned for the resignation of the West German federal government.

In a last-minute spurt, the Socialists last night tossed out Federal Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democrats for first place in the voting in Sunday's state parliamentary elections in Bavaria.

Complete official tabulations gave the Socialists 2,366,899 votes, the pro-rearmament Christian Democrats 2,536,780. Bavaria's peculiar proportionment system gave the Christian Democrats 64 of the 204 Parliamentary seats. The Socialists received 63 seats.

The Socialists, already heartened by similar victories in Hesse and Wuerttemberg - Baden, again demanded new federal elections to let the German voters say directly whether West Germany should contribute troops to European defence.

The election results "have showed that the government parties no longer have the voters behind them, and on the other hand that the Socialist party does have their support," said the Socialist party chairman, Kurt Schumacher.

Schumacher laid the defeats of the government parties to their "remilitarization politics."

Under Bavaria's laws, three elections generally are interpreted as a vote against West Germany's rearmament, and a crushing blow to allied hopes of bringing West Germans into the European defence.

Plainfield Ball Team Feted, Jackets Presented

Plainfield—The Plainfield ball team, champions of Sidney Township, was feted at a chicken supper Friday night by the ladies of the Women's Institute.

About 200 people gathered to honor the team, with a head table reserved for the players, wives, umpires, guest speaker, Rev. A. C. Campbell and chairman Harry Harrison. Guest speaker was Mr. Homer Townsend, athletic coach at Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School.

Mr. Townsend, introduced by Bob Sullivan, spoke on "True Sportsmanship," and his talk was enjoyed by everyone. He was thanked by Mr. Frank Hazard. Others who spoke were Dr. J. D. Empson, team coach, who expressed appreciation for the fine services arranged for the players, and then presented each of them with a sport jacket, and Mr. Rose Osborne, M.L.A. for Hastings East, who paid special tribute to Dr. Empson and his helpers for building a fine ball park. He said that he hoped some time soon it could be a fine community park for all occasions.

Mr. Campbell thanked all those who had helped make the evening a success, and Mrs. Clayton Hall, president of the W.I., on behalf of the ladies, voiced appreciation for the fine remarks.

A sing-song during the evening was led by Mr. W. Chumbly, with Mrs. Harry Harrison at the piano. Solos were sung by Eric Moodie, with Mrs. Moodie at the piano, and by Garth McCreary.

Members of the ball team were M. Rigby, F. Hazard, O. Glass, G. Hall, B. Sullivan, G. McCreary, G. Kerr, H. McWilliams, J. Treacy, R. Reid, R. Richardson, E. Flindall, Dr. Empson, Jack Gow and mascot John Hazard. Another member Joe Marsh was unable to be present, due to injuries suffered in a motor accident recently.

After the chicken supper, tables were cleared and music for dancing was provided by Mrs. Harry Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Kerr, and Ken Kleinatuker.

Canada and U.S. Have Stability To Revolutionize Farming, Raise World Living Standard

—GARDINER

Chicago, Nov. 28 (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner of Canada said Saturday Canada and the United States could revolutionize agriculture and bring a higher standard of living for mankind if they would take the trouble to co-ordinate their efforts and pool their results.

The more than 160,000,000 people living on this continent probably are the best nourished in the world, he said in an address prepared for delivery before the American Society of Animal Production.

Canada, he said, produced great surpluses of wheat, cheese, pork and cattle products. The natural markets for wheat and cheese continued to be the United Kingdom. The market for cattle and beef was the United States. Canada also sold apples and potatoes to the U.S.

He noted that when Canadian potatoes or apples were being sold to the U.S. there was "naturally some comment."

"It is interesting to note, however, that 14,000,000 people in Canada consumed $209,000,000 worth of United States agricultural products in 1949 whereas more than 10 times the population in the United States only consumed $258,000,000 worth of Canadian agricultural products."

Broadens Rule For Screening Of Delegations

Washington, Nov. 28 (AP) — The government today published 60 new immigration rules designed to broaden greatly justice department powers for arresting the retinues of diplomatic and United Nations delegations who enter the United States.

The regulations took immediate effect by their publication in the Federal Register, official government gazette. The action was taken under the new internal security law, enacted by Congress last September over President Truman's veto.

Truman described the law, which sponsors said would protect the U.S. against subversion and sabotage, as unworkable because of its numerous complex provisions.

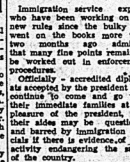
Five Points Be Worked Out

Immigration service experts who have been working on the new rules since the fatality law went on the books more than two months ago admitted that many fine points remain to be worked out in enforcement procedures.

Officially - accredited diplomats accepted by the president may continue to come and go with their immediate families at the pleasure of the president, but their aides may be questioned and barred by immigration officials if there is evidence of staff activity endangering the safety of the country.

Any delegate to the United Nations, including the chief delegate, may be barred by immigration officials if his purpose is to engage in activity against the welfare or safety of the U.S.

As to the diplomatic and international organization groups, the regulations do not raise any bar to admission solely because of present or former membership in a totalitarian organization, as the law does with aliens generally.



However, in the cases of advisory experts, clerical help, reporters and photographers accompanying foreign delegations here, the justice department may place restrictions on their physical movements because of such affiliation, and may exclusion upon evidence of subversive activity.

For the first time, the new regulations specifically list present or former membership in the communist party as an absolute bar to U.S. admission for the alien private citizen. The law also bars present or former members of "other totalitarian parties."

Missing Man's Body Found Near Cave

Brockville, Nov. 28 (CP) Body of Melville Johnston, 52-year-old resident of the Elgin district, some 25 miles north of here, was found by a neighbor Sunday a short distance from the Johnston home. He had been missing since September.

David Hughson told police he had stumbled across the body in a rocky area near the Johnston farm in the vicinity of a large cave. It was thought that Johnston, who was known to wander and live as a hermit, had been hiding in the cave and foraging the countryside for food at night.

A post mortem has been ordered by Crown Attorney Harworth Atkinson.

"A Good Place to Deal"

The Case of the Part-Time Mother

SHAMEFACED, the lad stood quietly waiting for the judge to deliver a verdict. Jane Williams looked at her son through tear-filled eyes.

True, the offence was minor . . . the judge almost certain to suspend sentence. But the hard fact was that there he stood . . . her son Tom . . . charged in a courtroom. How could this have happened? Tom had always been a good boy . . . the dependable one in the family. It had been Tom who cared for the other children when she had to go to work, after her husband died.

Jane Williams realized now that Tom had needed care, too . . . the constant, watchful care of a parent for a growing boy. But she never saw him during the day . . . and the younger children took every moment she had after her day's work downtown.

If only Tom's father had provided for their future. If only he had foreseen the essential need for a continuing income while the family was growing up. She would have been able to stay home then — where she belonged — and give Tom all the loving care he deserved — and needed!

Think! Could this happen to your wife?

Toronto Leafs Hold All Laurels In Scoring Race

Montreal, Nov. 28—(CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs hold just about all the laurels in the National Hockey League to date, from the prize-fly position in the team standing to the dubious honor of being the most-penalized club.

Statistics show that four consecutive victories during the week helped the Leafs increase their lead to seven points over Detroit Red Wings; they hold down the first five places in individual scoring; they have scored the most goals; they have the most penalties; and they are the only team not to have been shut out.

In addition, Toronto's Tod Sloan, with 13 goals, is the League's top sniper; Max Bentley has the most assists with 21 and Gus Mortson has spent 57 minutes in the penalty box to lead in that department.

The Toronto squad missed out in the goal-tending average although they have four shutouts. Detroit's sensational freshman, Terry Sawchuk, has had 32 pucks get by him in 18 games for an average of 1.83

Al Rollins, who shares Toronto's goaltending with Turk Broda, played in all four Leaf wins last week and has yet to lose a game in seven starts. Broda has the most shutouts with four.

Leading scorer Max Bentley picked up two goals and four assists during the week for a total of seven goals and 21 assists. Sloan is next with 22 points. Last week he tallied five times.

Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens are tied for third spot with 20 points apiece although the Hawks have played two game less than Canadiens. They trail Detroit by four points. New York Rangers are next with 12 points and Boston Bruins occupy the cellar, one point behind Rangers.

The Leafs have scored 69 goals in their 21 games, highest in the league.

In penalties, Toronto Leafs with 224 minutes while Boston has the least with 143.

"THIMBLE"

"Thimble", meaning a protective cover for the finger, derives from the Anglo-Saxon thymel, a thumb-stall, from the Anglo-Saxon thume, thumb. The ly indicates the instrument by and with which one works, as in handly, fain finely.

The early "thimble" was a leather covering, while the Old Norse thumall was the name of a glove. Thus the word "thimble" is called because it was originally worn on the thumb.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

APPOINTED COACH

Tall, quiet-spoken Walter Bent, who has been assisting with the coaching duties of the Redmen senior hockey club since Moe Gobeil left the fold, was appointed permanent coach of the squad yesterday. President Harper McIlraith of the Redmen Club officially announced the appointment yesterday afternoon. Permission of the YMCA Board of Directors was given to Bent. He is, as you know, program director at the Y here.

Wally's previous coaching experience has stood him in good stead with these rambunctious Redmen. He has steadied them down and whipped them into a semblance of a shape that augurs well for the future. He plays no favorites and if fifty - one per cent of the stock it makes no difference to the imperturbable Wally. A player either makes the grade—or else.

A firm believer in a player finding his proper niche, Bent has been experimenting with his forward lines — and is not yet satisfied. He believes the Redmen material is as good as any in the group, but to date it has not been sorted out and placed in its proper slots. He is a great believer in speed in his front lines and his idea of the good player is one who can skate both ways at the same rate of speed and do scoring and defensive work.

A wingman, in his opinion, is a wingman and not a rover. He believes in having his defencemen hit 'em and hit 'em hard — but cleanly. He is as strong as he can be on the line and no player has as yet added to his scoring points while sitting in sinner's alley. He realizes that it is quite natural for a player to lose his head during the heat of battle, but any player who deliberately strays from the clean path, generally hears about it.

He has confidence in the Redmen team and believes they are as good as any in the league. Now that he has cured the blanks with the redskins, you can look for a few startling changes, perhaps, and at least a tightening up of regulations.

One organization he insisted on from the start, one that is working to the betterment of all concerned, is the elimination of player smoking in the dressing room. Heretofore, you had to almost fight your way through a blue haze to seek a player, but now that is all changed. Even the boys like it.

However, Wally is now in full charge of coaching operations and will be able to exercise to the fullest extent his capabilities as ice mentor. He is popular with the players, and he has engendered a spirit of harmony among the whole team that was sadly lacking in former years. More power to him.

Bent has been associated with hockey for a long time. Before the war he organized and was president of the Jr. Dan, N. B. Junior Hockey Association, besides being sports director of the St. John Boys' Training School. He was associated with the St. John Beavers Hockey Association and coached the Junior Beavers for two years. Later he was coach of the Fredericton, N. B. juveniles which won the Maritime championship.

Wally is a "herring-choker" being born in St. John, N.B. Going overseas as an auxiliary officer with the YMCA, he coached the 31st Army hockey team in England which won its division but was defeated in the championship finals. Coming back to Canada, he was appointed a supervisor in the Bowmanville Boys Training School, later going to Galt in the same capacity. Removing to Peterborough he took over the direction of a "Boys Town" there and coached its bantam team to the city title.

A FINE RECORD

Don't be surprised within the next four or five years, after the Jacobs, Flichuks, Trawicks, Krols, Dekdebruns, et al have more or less faded from the gridiron limelight, that the lad the experts are writing about will be a fleet-footed ball-carrying kicker named Gary Schreiber.

* * *

For the modest 170-pound ball-totin' offspring of Eddie Schreiber has already caught the eyes of the boys who are supposed to know their pigskin provtechnics with his sensational performances in his initial year with the St. Michael's College team of the Ontario Catholic Conference.

Garz, who learned his football with Jack Doran of St. Michael's Academy here, flashed over the Catholic Conference horizon an unknown meteor. Fleet afoot (he does the 100 in 10.1) his speed and ball-carrying ability caught the eyes of the St. Michael's College coach at the first practice. From that point on, Garz was "in".

* * *

During the playing season, young Schreider amazed the sidelitters with his brilliant broken field running. He ripped around the end and through the line for touchdowns after touchdown. He made the sports headlines in every city in which St. Mike's played.

And he wound up the season in a blaze of glory. He was top scorer of the Conference with 55 — count 'em — 55 points. Of the six St. Michael's College team players named for the Conference All - Star team, the name of Gary Schreiber was the first selected. He has achieved the rare honor of getting his "letter" in his first year at school. Not bad for a sixteen-year-older.

The crafty Garz hung up his football gear and reached for the pads and stick of a hockey goalkeeper. Right now he is trying out with St. Michael's Buzzers and hopes to make good. Meanwhile he has dug out his track spikes and will go in training with Gar Ryder's famous school of trackmen in Toronto. Gus spotted the youngster at a track and field meet last fall and liked him. If Garz makes good, (he's best at the sprints) he will be in the big Conference Track and Field Meet slated for Madison Square Gardens next spring.

Garz will receive his f - - - "letter" at St. Michael's College Sports Night on December 7th. And while he will be a proud youngster, he won't be the proudest guy in the hall. Way back in a corner will be a happy gentleman, chest justifiably expanded and a big broad smile on his face.

And when Garz is presented with his letter, the Mainsky Eddy (Ole Pop himself) will nudge his next-seat neighbor and grin, "That's my boy". And who can blame him?

Durocher Wants Another Good Hitter

New York, Nov. 28 (AP)—Manager Leo Durocher of the New York Giants—never accused of lacking for words—told today in 2,000 well-chosen sentences why his club will win the 1951 National League pennant.

"I'd like another good batting pitcher and a little more strength on the flanks," Leo said. "Then I'll be all set. As it is, I've got a very good club.

"I know this much—we had the best club in the league the last three months of the season. Once we got rolling nobody could beat us. And we are going to be better next year."

The Giant skipper stopped off here en route from his Los Angeles home to attend the winter baseball meetings in St. Petersburg, Fla., next week.

Leo couldn't explain why his charges changed from a drab, sorry-looking outfit to an almost-unbeatable team practically overnight.

"I've had two months now to think about it," he grinned, "and I still can't figure it out. It all began on July 19 after we had taken a double licking from the St. Louis Cards. They whipped them badly that day. Then again the next. All of a sudden we began to play like a good club. We started to hustle like hell. As we continued to win, the boys began to believe for the first time that nobody could lick us. It was right then and there that we became a good club.

"We never had a meeting after that. Never even talked over the hitters or anything. It seemed they just knew they could whip any team alive."

The Giants, after losing their first five games and languishing in the second division for more than half a month, came storming like a prairie fire to finish a strong third.

Leo said he expects to start with the same squad that finished so strong last year.

"Just give me another top starting pitcher to go with Larry Jansen, Jim Hearn, Sal Maglie and Sheldon Jones," Leo concluded, and I'll show 'em who is boss."

Everybody Wants To Get in Press Box for Contest

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 28 (AP)—Try putting three pounds of something into one-pound bag and it'll give you an idea of the squeezing to get in the press box at the Army-Navy football game.

Navy is host for next Saturday's game in Philadelphia. So John Cox, publicity man for Middie sports, is buried under the requests for passes.

They pile in from newspapers no bigger than the circular from your corner grocery, sharpsters, would-be scalpers, non-existent news agencies and long-lost friends.

"Dear John" even is asked to help cupid. One correspondent has promised his bride-to-be attendance at the Army-Navy game as part of their honeymoon.

"Should I tell the one and only that she is about to marry a nobody who can't get tickets?" He writes. "You wouldn't want to see a happy home busted up before it's established, would you?"

Besides the "please rush tickets," Cox is asked to get a hotel reservation for the couple, too.

Small-town newspaper reporters admit they aren't going to cover the game. Just want to see the spectacle.

Cox's job of sifting the legitimate working-press requests from the panhandlers is a feverish chore. The press box in Municipal Stadium seats 245, and at least three times that many want to get in.

The radio space must include Western Union wire operators. One newsreel crew (Movietone) will number 15, a television outfit (NBC) 25 to 30 and a radio unit (Mutual) 11.

The evening bulletin of Philadelphia will use the two-platoon system—22 men—to cover the grid classic.

Upon submitting some requests by agencies claiming to represent hundreds of newspaper or radio stations, Cox found they were pure phonies. They serve nobody and operate with nothing more than a letterhead, typewriter and gall.

Joe Culmone Gives Shoemaker Real Going Over

Bowie, Md., Nov. 28 (AP)—Fortified with a new lead in his duel with Willie Shoemaker, Joe Culmone went back today to the routine business of riding the pants off the best jockeys in the Eastern United States.

He tried to give the same treatment yesterday to Shoemaker, the sensation from the west—and he did.

In a whirlwind program witnessed by 8,588 fans at Bowie racetrack, the 19-year-old Sicilian won just about everything but the paddock. He booted in six winners, including Jamps Jenkins Jr.'s Child II in the match race with Shoemaker, who was aboard Mrs. Ellyou Christopher's favored Curmudgeon.

After piloting D. H. Adams' Parkie, a 2 to 1 shot, to victory in the first race, Shoemaker failed to score the rest of the day. So when it was all over, he trailed Culmone in their battle for the year's riding championship, 350-342.

Joe's other victorious mounts were Red Swing at 8.80, Bluejay's Ik at $5.60, Steadfast $2.80, Blue Hills $3.40 and Love Lock $10.20. Besides the six firsts, he had a second, fourth and fifth.

Shoemaker's victory was followed by four seconds, a fourth, fifth and seventh. He did not ride in the fifth, which Culmone won with the top-heavy favorite, Steadfast.

The day's work hardly seemed worth the trouble for Shoemaker, who made a 6,000-mile round-trip flight from California at the invitation of the Bowie management to compete against Culmone.

Willie's only comment on the match race came when a reporter asked if the event billed as the Bowie Special proved anything.

"Not much," he replied. After riding in the eighth regular race, right after the special, he hurried off to board a plane for the west coast and his work at the Hollywood Park racing plant.

Culmone's only comment was that he "pushed hard" in the special race, just as he did in all the others.

Hill Prince Voted American Champ By T.R.A. Board

(By The Canadian Press)

Hill Prince, the bob-tailed galloper from Virginia which could not take the Kentucky Derby but came back to grab most other U.S. racing honors, has been voted "American Champion" by the Thoroughbred Association's selection board.

Hill Price, the three-year-old son of Princequillo — Hildene, is owned by Chris T. Chenery, New York and Virginia sportsman. He is trained by Casey Hayes, and has been ridden in most of his major races by Eddie Arcaro.

Voting was conducted by the T.R.A., in a poll of its racing secretaries—the men who handicap the horses—and see them race throughout the year. This was the first annual poll.

Moon Glow over Citation four times was named handicap champion.

Through Nov. 20, Hill Prince started 19 times, won 13 races, and earned a total of $309,940 for two years. His earnings this year are $263,715, in winning such races as the Wood Memorial, Preakness, Withers, Jerome, American Derby and Jockey Club Gold Cup.

Middleground beat him in the Derby and Belmont, but couldn't touch him later in the year. Hill Prince beat Middleground in the Wood Memorial, Preakness Withers and Jerome.

In Paris, welterweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson stopped France's Jean Stock in 1.33 of the second round of a non-title 10-rounder Monday night.

Stock, a middleweight who was put up as a sacrificial lamb as Paris boxing fans could see the famed Sugar Ray in action, was downed three times in the second round. The Frenchman was on his feet at the finish but the referee stepped between them and halted the uneven match.

Bill Klem, dean of baseball umpires, is seriously ill at his home in Miami Beach, Fla. The 76-year-old retired arbiter has been suffering a heart and kidney ailment for more than a year.

Joe Louis, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, and Cesar Brion, Argentina contender, finished heavy training yesterday for their 10-round battle in the Polo Grounds Monday night. Louis, attempting a comeback after losing to Ezzard Charles in New York last September, said he expected to weigh in at 218 pounds, two pounds lighter than when he faced Charles.

In Lethbridge, Alta., Leth. bridge Maple Leafs, slated to represent Canada in the World Amateur Hockey championships in Paris next month, defeated Edmonton Mercurys 5-1 in an exhibition match Monday night. Mercurys won the world championship last year.

Rocky Graziano of Brooklyn, former middleweight champion, knocked out Honeychile Johnson of Philadelphia in 48 seconds of the fourth round in Philadelphia Monday to record his eighth straight victory of 1950. Graziano weighed 158 and Johnson 153 for the scheduled 10-rounder.

The Illinois Racing Board has cleared Sportsman's Park of alleged "irregularities," but reprimanded an auditor of the track for his $80,000 loan to Paul (The Waiter) Ricca, a paroled extortionist. The board granted 1951 racing dates to the Cicero, Ill., half-mile track, inclusive April 28-May 14, and Oct. 15-Nov. 3. At the same time, two of the board's three members suggested that the National Jockey Club which operates Sportsman's Park dismiss Hugo Bennett, the auditor. Bennett last Friday testified before the board that he loaned the $80,000 to Ricca for "farm improvements" because of an old family friendship. The hearing was launched following suspension of Sportsman's Park from its membership in the Thoroughbred Racing Association.

Unbeaten Oklahoma will make its third straight appearance in the Sugar Bowl, Michigan and California are the two Rose Bowl opponents and Miami will be the host team in the Orange Bowl Jan. 1 following developments in the United States Monday.

Horses Run More Often but Public Bets Less at Canadian Tracks in '50

Ottawa, Nov. 28 (CP)—The horses ran more often and probably as fast, but bettors were a lot more careful with the bank in his Canadian 1950 turf flutter last year.

In fact, $8,081,446 more careful. Part-mutuel betting this year dropped to $53,469,032 from the $59,550,478 record wagered at Canadian tracks in 1949, the agriculture department reported today. A total of $56,178,491 was bet in 1948. In 1939, $21,696,523 went through the mutuels.

The drop in the betting take this year occurred despite the fact that there were more races A total of 31 racing associations held 2,761 races during 356 days of racing, compared with 29 associations holding 2,760 races in 355 days last year.

Only in Alberta was more money spent on the horses this y ar. Betting in that province rose to $4,226,203 from $3,940,570

More than half the money going through the part-mutuel windows was wagered in Ontario In that province's 145 days of racing, bettors put up $32,925,116 compared with $28,578,514 in 146 days of racing last year.

The biggest amount was in the spring meeting at the Ontario Jockey Club at Woodbine Park, Toronto, when bettors placed $2,281,940 on the line. The smallest take was at a two-day meeting at Red Deer, Alta., when only $13 was wagered.

Of the $53,469,032 bet during the year, bettors got back $45,766,396. The provincial governments collected $5,024,093 in part-mutuel taxes and the racing associations retained $4,777,812 as their legal percentages. Of this, the associations paid $3,003,903 in purse money to owners of winning horses, $46,595 more than in 1949.

Following are the 1950 racing statistics by provinces showing the number of days of racing, the amount wagered and the prize money, with last year's figures in brackets:

Quebec: Days 56 (56), amount wagered $3,153,593 ($3,357,232); prize money $323,200 ($321,900).

Ontario: 145 (146); $32,925,119; ($32,578,514); $1,654,700 ($1,640,550).

Manitoba: 28 (28); $4,270,010 ($4,286,960); $221,200 ($218,100).

Saskatchewan: 14 (13); $16,200 ($842,336); $37,850 ($32,500).

Alberta: 43 (43); $4,226,203 ($3,945,570); $230,000

British Columbia: 70 (70); $8,-037,909 ($8,638,230); $507,930

He has achieved the rare honor of getting his football "Letter" in his first year at college.

New Ski Run Faces North On Clem. H. Ketcheson Farm

City and district skiing enthusiasts who in the past two winters have been disappointed in the short season at the tow hill north of Frankford will be skiing on a different run this year.

The ski tow has been moved from its location north of Frankford and has been set up at Wallbridge where better skiing conditions and a much longer season is expected.

Two years ago the Hastings County Ski Club was organized and members put in considerable work in preparing the run and ski tow two miles north of Frankford. But the ski run faced the south and snow melted on the face of the hill with result that skiing was enjoyed only on a very few weekends.

The new location for the ski tow is on the Clem Ketcheson farm at Wallbridge and the ski run faces north with a ring of evergreens at the top of the hill to retain the snow. Snow remains on the hill almost throughout the entire winter.

Officials of the ski club say the new site is a very good ski run which is perfectly smooth and free from stones or other obstructions. The ski tow has been moved and will be ready for operation with the first good snowfall.

President of the ski club is Chas. Phillips, of Northern Electric vice-president is Robt. Pringle with Wm. Argue as secretary-treasurer.

A SAILOR'S LIFE IS A MAN'S LIFE—AND A SATISFYING ONE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Your second bid in bridge should be as easy as the first. In Horse Sense the pattern is laid out for you. You are first told how many tricks you need for your first bid. Here is your basis.

If your first bid is an opening of one you promise, among other things, five tricks. If your first bid is a response to your partner's opening of one, you promise more than two tricks.

All bids follow the order of takeout first, assist next, no-trump last: T-A-N. When you can T, go so. With one T, look for A. If you can neither T or A, you N. Unless you pass.

When forced to bid by a signal you must bid. When not forced, you may pass unless you have something to show and can show it honestly. Each raise in this last partnership number shows another trick.

Suppose you open with a bid of one heart. You show five tricks. Suppose your partner responds with a bid of two clubs. A takeout to a new suit forces partner to bid again. You must bid.

So you are guided by T-A-N. Do you have another biddable suit or a rebiddable heart suit? If not, you have no T. Do you have the adequate support for an assist in clubs? If you have, you A.

However, before you' A, you look to see if you have more than the five tricks your opening projected. Because an assist here requires you to raise the number. The raise would show another trick.

Suppose you lack a sixth trick when you have support for clubs. You are unable to make an honest raise. So, you must not A. Thus do you know that your bid is a no-trump, since you dare not pass.

Your opening bid is one spade with this hand:

- ♠ K Q 7 4
- ♥ 10 9 5
- ♦ 9 6 3
- ♣ A K 10 8

If partner's reply is two diamonds, your bid is two no-trump. Although you have a 7 in clubs, you lack a sixth trick to show it with a raise in number.

Have you the tricks you say you can take.

STORM BATTERS GREAT LAKES SHIP

The storm that caught most of Ontario almost wrecked this ship in Lake Ontario. The Weyburn, bound for Montreal with a 1,500-ton cargo of steel plates, builders' supplies and soap, wallowed helplessly for hours after her engine-room was flooded. With a 40-degree list she reached Toronto harbor when her crew managed to get up steam enough to make headway. — Central Press Canadian.

The two are shown in Admiral Barbey's office. Mr. Claxton had arrived earlier in the day at Sand Point naval air station on a tour which will include McChord Air Force Base, Fort Lewis, Muroc Air Force Base, and Los Angeles. — Central Press Canadian.

AT THE BELLE — A youthful romance, beset with adult problems, is shared by Farley Granger and Ann Blyth in "Our Very Own," emotional drama of two sisters who were rivals in love. The film, featuring Joan Evans and Jane Wyatt is closing tonight at the Belle.

Movie Column

BY BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 28 — (AP) — Some folks around town are wondering why William Bendix is playing before local footlights.

It's not that Bill needs the money. His stage pay is a pittance compared to the money he gets from the movies. Certainly the novelty of the play didn't do it. He is performing in "Born Yesterday," which Paul Douglas established on Broadway and which Broderick Crawford recently played in the movie version. (In fact, the film was previewed the night before Bendix opened on it.) So I asked him why he learned to legit.

"It presents a challenge," he confessed. "I haven't been on the stage since 20 years ago, when I was in 'Time Of Your Life.' You forget a lot in that time."

Academica

The academy faces another dilemma this year: What to do about George Sanders? The Briton is getting raves for his work in "All About Eve" and will undoubtedly be up for academy contention. But what category will he be in — star or supporting player?

He is given star billing in the picture but some might argue that his role supports Anne Baxter and Bette Davis. (Also, he might have a better chance of winning in the supporting race, which is less hotly contested.)

The dilemma has arisen many times. Six years ago it produced an absurdity when Barry Fitzgerald was nominated for both the starring and supporting Oscar for "Going My Way." (He nabbed the supporting one and Bing Crosby the other.)

Truman Sets Aside Sentence Of Army Lieut.

Washington, Nov. 28 (AP) — President Truman yesterday set aside the death sentence of Infantry Lieutenant John Dinges, convicted by a United States military court of "misbehaving in front of the enemy" in Korea.

Instead, Gilbert, 21-year-old Negro lieutenant from York, Pa., was ordered confined 20 years at hard labor and dismissed from the service, with all pay and allowances forfeited.

He was accused specifically of failing to obey orders from superior officers to return to his post with a forward platoon of the U.S. 25th Division. He had been in the army more than 10 years, an officer more than four years.

Interviewed in a Tokyo army stockade after his conviction, Gilbert said: "I thought I was doing the right thing. I still think so."

"I did not refuse to obey the order," he said, "I was trying to explain why it could not be carried out. There were 12 men in my command then. I considered it my duty as an officer to show why the order meant certain death."

"I am not a coward and I was not afraid at the time. I would walk back to combat now if they would let me. . ."

Chief Officers Ordered to Tokyo By MacArthur

An Airport in Japan, Nov. 28—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur summoned his two chief field commanders in Korea to Tokyo tonight for urgent conferences.

Lt.-Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of the retreating U.S. Eighth Army, and Maj-Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the 10th corps in northwest Korea, arrived by planes from their separate headquarters.

Walker arrived at 5:30 (6:30 a.m. EST). Almond, who also is chief of staff of the far east command, arrived at 9:15.

Almond said he had been summoned from his headquarters only an hour before.

Both top field generals returned at a time when their forces are being hard-pressed by a powerful Chinese communist counter-offensive.

Hydro Chairman Using Personal Approach

Toronto, Nov. 28 — (CP) — Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, is using the personal approach in an attempt to get people to conserve power.

Letters to 2,700 municipalities and industries were mailed during the weekend asking their aid in cutting down the record consumption of electricity.

He asked the industries to leave a gap between the end of the day shift and the start of the night shift so that industrial consumption would not compete with super-hour domestic power use.

He asked the municipalities to undertake a program of voluntary conservation particularly between the hours of 11 a. m. and noon and between 4 p. m. and 6 p. m.

Deer Brought Down, Runs Off With Gun

Manistique, Mich., Nov. 28—(AP)—This deer really outsmarted the hunter. He stole his gun.

Harry G. Thompson and Charles F. Massey, both of Grand Rapids, Mich., were hunting Sunday north of this upper Michigan city. Massey brought down a buck.

As they approached the animal, Thompson noticed it was still kicking and thought he had better shoot it in the head.

"Don't do that," said Massey. "The hide will make a fine wall piece for the cottage."

So Thompson laid his rifle on the deer's antlers and got out his knife to slit the throat.

But the buck snorted, jumped up and dashed deep into the forest—bearing the gun aloft.

Tribunal Finds Tenant Desirable And Lowers Rent

London, Nov. 28—(Reuters)—A London landlord yesterday accused a tenant of being undesirable because "he does his own shopping."

The landlord, M. Sabner, said he often met tenant J. McGurgan "carrying things in the street."

"He even carries bottles," said Sabner.

McGurgan asked his landlord to tell the Tribunal what kind of bottles.

"Milk", said Sabner.

But, claimed the landlord, it is detrimental to this class of house for people to carry shopping."

The rent Tribunal didn't think so. It not only upheld McGurgan as a desirable tenant, but reduced his rent as well—by three shillings a week.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 28 (AP) — Eight prisoners smashed out of the county penal farm last night, overpowering two guards, stealing a truck and ramming through an iron entrance gate, Farm office manager H. R. Campbell said the convicts with a stolen gun exchanged shots with guards as the men ducked into the truck and slammed full speed into the gate.

Plan 4,200 Miles Of Rural Hydro Lines in 1951

Toronto, Nov. 28 — (CP) Rural electrification in Ontario will be speeded up next year to the extent where it may overtake the backlog of applications for power and also care for new applicants, Robert H. Saunders said last night.

In a radio address aimed at rural Ontario, the chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission said:

"It is our aim to construct some 4,200 miles of new rural line and connect over 25,000 new rural customers in 1951."

During 1950, he added, 3,300 miles of rural lines and 34,000 customers were added to hydro's system. Since 1945, hydro had spent $85,000,000 on extending rural services, increasing its customers from 144,000 to 238,000.

DON'T LET THIS HAPPEN TO YOU!

Wrap PARCELS carefully!

It's a shame to see gifts broken in transit yet it happens so often because they haven't been properly wrapped for mailing. Avoid possible damage to parcel contents by using a strong container. Protect documents, pictures, etc. with stiffening boards. Tie securely with strong cord or twine.

Send a POSTAL MONEY ORDER instead of cash!

Envelopes can accidentally break or tear in handling—money be lost. Whenever you send money through the mails, it's safer to use Postal money orders. You can get them at your Post Office.

CORRECT POSTAGE saves embarrassment!

Be sure to use the correct amount of postage. If you are in doubt, always have your letter or parcel weighed because the recipient must pay double the deficient postage. This is especially important on overseas air mail.

Be sure ADDRESS is clear . . . correct and complete!

You can help your Post Office by writing clearly when you address letters or parcels. Put name, street address, Post Office Box number or Rural Route number and return address in top left hand corner should always be included.

YOUR Post Office is your friendly servant. Ask for help with your postal problems at any time . . . and ask about the various services available, such as: Air Mail, Canada Air Letters, special delivery, registration, Rural Directories, insurance of parcel post, C.O.D., gift parcels for overseas, international and Imperial reply coupons, and the Post Office Savings Bank.

AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT . . . MAIL EARLY FOR CHRISTMAS!

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

"What are you thinking of, Myles?" Gene slipped her hand under his arm. "Whatever it is has slashed two deep lines between your eyes and changed your lips in a hard line."

"That's a tough-looking face you've described. I was watching the two boys on the high-diving platform at the pool and thinking they should be ordered off. When the game starts half this audience will be holding its breath watching them instead of paying attention to the players."

"Somebody else had the same idea, they're coming down. Relax. Not that I believe that concern for those boys has turned your face to a granite mask. Look up for sunset supper spot Dunbar on top of the mountain Myles. We're waiting until Kitty Saunder's friend arrives to set the date."

"Isn't it a jungle now?" He could see a glint of gold where sunlight struck a window of the bulfding on top. "Part of the road up?"

"Jungle is right, the underbrush has grown so in the last three years that it's a trackless wilderness; as for the road, it's full of shell holes and dark as Hades from overgrown trees."

"Wasn't that make it bad coming down? Why wait for sunset? Why not lunch?"

"We'll start earlier but Blake won't go unless Fran will and she won't side-step the morning service. You know she sings in the choir."

"Yes. I've heard her."

"Will she join the picnic supper?"

"She's for it, insists that she will drive up in her own car, does not want anyone to wait for her and lose the sunset, she may be late."

"Why should she be late?"

"Page her for the answer. She says she has an important date for each Sunday afternoon. I suspect she devotes that time to cramming on the lives and loves, dates and style of clothing of famous artists—Hal and Matilde are entering the court. Dear me, sight of my one-time sister-in-law shoot up your blood pressure?"

"Not a shoot. Why should it?"

"Oooch, there goes my head into the guillotine basket. Your years in the army have made you the gruesome critic, Myles."

"Could be. It wasn't all joy ride. Here come the opponents. Let's give the contestant's a hand."

Myles's eyes were on the players but the disk jockey of memory put on a record. Miss Tassie's voice:

"When Matilde put her arm around your neck a little ripple of sound ran around the room and I knew the story that you had broken up Ben Sargent's home had reared its finsky head."

Had Fran heard the revival? Nat would straighten it out and quick, but it was such a lie, fashioned by Matilde to protect Andrews and herself. Fran wouldn't believe it if she loved him. He would make her trust him without proving to her that the gossip was a lie. Right off, quick.

"Where are you going Myles?"

"Going? What do you mean? I'm here."

"You started as if you were about to jump up and run to a fire."

"Did I? Must have been a job from my conscience when I remembered I had forgotten an important date for this afternoon. What is the score?"

As he watched the games, saw Matilde and Hal Andrews lose by a few points; later on the clubhouse terrace, his mind was busy with the significance of the note from the mysterious sender. Sure he would be in the summerhouse in Miss Trent's garden at midnight.

That wouldn't be easy of accomplishment. The garden had a watchman, Augustus, who guarded it as jealously as the three-headed dog guards the entrance to the infernal regions. The person who had suggested the rendezvous must be a stranger in the village. Every resident, summer or permanent knew of Tassie Trent's precaution to protect her property.

Before Myles had solved the problem of how to keep the date without taking anyone into his confidence or raising a riot in the garden, Fran appeared in a white tennis frock with a racket under her arm.

"Nothing to drink, now thanks" she answered the chorus of suggestions for her refreshment. "You all look so warm and lazy I've lost the courage to suggest a game."

"Say no more, lady, I'm your man." Myles commandeered her racket.

"Fran always plays with me at this time of day, Jaffray," Sinclair reminded acidly.

"Make it 'practically' always, right Fran?" Boy, but he had taken a chance to ask. She nodded and his heart picked up its beat. "Why not make it doubles, Gene? Sargent and Sinclair versus Phillips and Jaffray."

"That's the thing for the day. Come to the locker room while I pick up my racket, Fran. We'll meet you boys at the court."

They played until it was difficult to see the balls.

"That was fun." Fran deared as she and Myles lowered the net while Gene and Sinclair were arguing heatedly at one of the court. "It's bad to keep on our toes to win, though."

"That's the most worthwhile victory to win after a hard g[ame]. That was a shot in the arm for myself. Did you come [by] car?"

"No, I walked."

"I'll drive you to the gallery to change; then we'll somewhere for dinner."

"I can't, I have—"

"You must. I need your advice. I've had a mysterious letter. Not Ken, darling, Gene and Sinclair are coming this way. He did he had a date with you. Quick, tell him you are not going."

"I didn't have a date wit him.

"Oh Fran," Blake Sinclair interrupted. "I'll have to resign on our plan this evening. Got reminded me that I had promised to join a party at Kitty Saunder's."

"Don't give it a thoug. I didn't know we had one. told the Major I would din with him."

Had she agreed to his proposition because she was hu by Sinclair's defection, or cause his hint of a mystery ate intrigued her or because she wanted to go with them? He would like to believe the last. Myles told himself.

"Let's go somewhere to dance," Fran proposed. "I placed another Blake's name on the dates a celebration; besides I've heard that your dancing is out of this world my dear. Sinclair did not warn him, he knew it was the purpose of turning a knife in Sinclair's self-esteem if not his heart.

He left her at the gallery to dress and returned to Shore Acres to shower and change.

"Myles!" Natalie called as he entered the hall.

"What's up? What's happened to make you cry, Nat!" he asked tenderly.

"Tears that have parked behind my eyes the last few years put on their act at the slightest opportunity." Her smile was tremulous. "Morrie Grove came back from the tournament with me. He was convinced that seeing Hal and Matilde playing together hurt me horribly—It didn't—ask[ed] me again to marry him. I can't marry anyone. In spite of the divorce I still feel that I have a husband living. If opportunity presents try to convince Morrie that I mean what I say Myles. But I didn't stop you to sob out my reactions on your shoulder. I'm left this note for you. Said to be sure you had it the moment you came in, it was important." He took the envelope she offered.

"He tried to find you after the tournament but you had disappeared. That's all. Run along. I see you were charging for the stairs when I stopped you."

"I'm taking a lady out to dinner."

"Fran? Is she the answer to your prayer?"

"Yes. It will always be Fran, Natalie, has been for several years, I discovered suddenly. She doesn't know it yet, though. Suppose I bring her back here after we have dined and danced?"

"It would be perfect."

He thought of his date in Miss Tassie's garden at midnight, of what had happened to Si Pond of the mystery of the gallery. Was Fran safe there at night with only the Digby's and the new watchman? He stopped on the lowest stair.

"Telephone her while I am dressing, ask her to spend the night here, will you Nat!"

"With pleasure, but I doubt if she will come."

"Try. I want to get her away from the gallery."

"Is your reason connected with the mystery."

"What mystery?"

"Your astonishment is well done, but it is an act, isn't it? A whisper was going the rounds at the club this afternoon that the night of the storm Si Pond was not knocked out by a branch, but was attacked by someone in the house."

"That really is something." He grinned. "As I mentioned earlier, I have a date to take a lady to dinner, if I don't appear soon she will walk out on me." Halfway up the stairs he stopped and looked at Natalie looking up at him.

"Telephone at once will you Nat? Make her come. Tell her you are low in your mind and spirit."

"I will not, I won't play Aunty Doleful for anyone, even for you who are the biggest thing in my life, Myles. I'll tell her we had the family to dinner from the bank today to catalogue them, that I think she may get a thrill out of the Jaffray Adirondack aids before they go back tomorrow. If she can resist that lure she's no woman."

In his room Myles opened the note from Morrison Grove and frowned over its contents.

"I'll be away for a few days. Got a line on you know who. Stand by for cash. M.G.

Slowly he tore the note to shreds. Did that information tie in with the appointment in Miss Tassie's garden? He would know at midnight.

Fran was waiting in the entrance hall in a white gabardine frock with a bouffant skirt, pearls about her throat, a long green wool coat over her arm, an overnight case at her feet.

FRESH RED ATTACKS THREATEN ESCAPE GATE

$10,000 Stolen in Toronto Bank Hold-Up

Bandits Line Up Customers, Staff Against Wall

Force Tellers to Hand Over Cash, Then Escape in Car

Toronto, Nov. 29 — (CP) — Four men, masked and armed, stole $10,000 in cash from a west-end branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce today after forcing 15 staff members and five customers to line up against a wall.

They fled from the bank, at the intersection of Roncesvalles and Wright Avenues, in a maroon-colored automobile which was reported stolen last night. The car later was found abandoned a short distance from the bank. Police believe the men transferred to a dark blue or black car that followed the one used in the holdup as it pulled away from the bank.

Police assigned all available men to track down the thieves. They pressed the hunt in a swirling snowstorm.

No Shots Fired

There was no shooting in or around the bank. Nor did the robbers try to get into the vault.

The four men walked into the bank just before 10.30 a.m. and drew their guns.

Alexander Marshall, a bank messenger said he was sitting with his back to the door when he heard a shout. He turned and saw the robbers.

"They were waving guns and each had a handkerchief over the lower part of his face. Two of them took the staff and customers covered while a third jumped over the counter and scooped all the bills from the teller's cage. One man held a gun pressed into my back."

After forcing the staff and customers to huddle against a wall at gunpoint, the gunmen ordered everyone to lie on the floor except three tellers whom they made hand over the cash. Among those forced to lie down was the manager, E. J. Leonard.

One a Dark Man

Employees described one of the robbers as a dark man of medium height with a scar on his face. He wore blue coveralls.

The alarm was given by Roy Morrison, who said he was just about to enter the bank when he spotted the bandits. He raced to a phone and was still phoning when the robbers left the bank.

British and American Aims In Korea Identical, Bevin Says

London, Nov. 29—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin today assured the House of Commons that there was no split between Britain and the United States on policy in Korea.

Speaking as United Nations forces in Korea were falling back before a Chinese communist offensive, he said that the U.S. government had reaffirmed that its aims in Korea were identical with the British.

Britain still hopes a settlement on "political lines" will end the threat of a third world war over Korea, he added.

Supports MacArthur

Opening an important two-day debate on foreign affairs, he also emphasized to the crowded chamber that the British government supported the strategy of General MacArthur which is "no more and no less than the objectives of the United Nations."

It had been necessary to leave control of operations very much in MacArthur's hands, providing that where his plans involved questions of general policy there was proper consultation on such matters, Bevin said.

"This, in fact, is what has happened."

Bevin said that within the last 24 hours the United States government had reaffirmed that their purpose in Korea remained the same as British aims.

These were to resist aggression, to localize hostilities, and to settle the Korean question on a basis satisfactory to the United Nations.

When the North Koreans did not respond to the U.N. surrender offer, it became necessary "in order that the purpose of the United Nations should be achieved, for the United Nations forces to restore peace and order in the whole of the country."

Confident of Solution

Bevin said he was confident a solution could be found to the problem of China.

"Is there a Russian-Chinese conspiracy on a world-wide scale?" The burly Foreign Secretary asked. He did not answer. He did not know the answer.

Bevin maintained Britain had not been in collusion to try to recognize communist China and shepherd her into the United Nations.

Despite developments of the last few days, he said, he had not altered his opinion that the solution to Korea would be on political lines.

"It is to that end that we must seek the solution," he said.

"If the Chinese are of a mind to co-operate, I am hopeful that extension of those hostilities can be avoided."

Lake Fishermen Watch Ice Thicken As Opening Of Season Nears

Big River, Sask., Nov. 29 — (CP) — About 500 fishermen in this district daily watch the ice thicken as the opening of Northern Saskatchewan's commercial fishing season nears.

All about the wind-whipped, ice-covered lakes of the vast area around this northland community, about 100 miles northwest of Prince Albert, fishermen have their nets mended, their heavy parkas ready and basin holes picked.

Final preparations are being made to get the season under way soon after Dec. 1.

Here in Big River, the annual hustle-and-bustle of swinging from summer's lumbering to winter's fishing is almost at an end.

The two fish firms have just completed mailing the annual catalogue. That involves a fortnight or so of licking stamps, folding circulars and price leaflets — more than 500,000 of them —for distribution to markets over the Prairie Provinces.

FOUR CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH IN ROOMING HOUSE

Mother Away Only for Minutes

Oshawa, Ont., Nov. 29. (CP)—Four small children died Tuesday when fire swept through an upstairs kitchen and tiny bedroom in the crowded rooming house twice condemned by municipal authorities.

The four, unattended at the time, were children of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Burns.

Marie, 11 months, was burned to death in a high-chair beside a stove. Donna, 3, and Linda, 4, were asphyxiated before firemen could reach the bedroom. Bobby, 7, died on the way to hospital.

A fifth child, Donna, 6, was saved.

Mrs. Burns, expecting another child in a month, was at a neighbor's house to borrow a clothes-horse when fire started. When she returned and saw flames and smoke pouring from the second floor, she tried to rush upstairs but was restrained by Steve Jagoda. She collapsed and was taken to hospital suffering severe shock.

Her husband, a truck driver for the City Works Department, also collapsed and was treated at hospital when told the tragic news. He was released later.

Fire Chief C. R. Elliott called the three-storey building, which housed 21 persons, the "worst fire trap I have ever seen."

Condemned 20 Years Ago

He said he condemned the building in a report twenty years ago.

The Medical Officer of Health Dr. A. F. Mackay said his department condemned the house three years ago. Repairs were made, he said, and the house again was occupied.

He said his department received another report on conditions in the house a week ago and had started another investigation.

Chief Elliott said cause of the fire had not been determined. However, preliminary findings indicated three possibilities: paper behind the stove igniting; an overheated electric hot-plate or the children playing with matches.

The house, dwelling, in the southeast section of the city's working-class district, was built in 1913 and originally had only some rooms were partitioned to provide four basic apartments.

Mr. and Mrs. Burns, their five children and a boarder occupied the four upstairs rooms.

Canada Could Tap Lucrative Tourist Market for Hay-Fever Sufferers Conference Told

Ottawa, Nov. 29. (CP)—Hay-fever sufferers seeking a pollen-free vacation spot have found a champion in the Canadian government Travel Bureau.

Leo Dolan, director of the Bureau and himself a former hay fever victim, yesterday told delegates to the fifth annual Federal-Provincial Tourist Conference that Canada can attract more tourists by stamping out ragweed in tourist resorts.

The three-day conference ends today with the adoption of a series of resolutions.

Mr. Dolan, as a former sufferer, knew that a victim of hay fever would travel miles to get relief. He believed Canada could tap a lucrative market among hay-fever sufferers in United States by building up pollen-free areas.

Dr. C. Frankton of the Federal Agriculture Department said the Federal government is now in charge for the control of ragweed—one of the chief causes of hay fever. The department did collect information on its prevalence in different areas.

A questionnaire of inquiries had been received by the department from tourists seeking pollen-free areas. The department issued bulletins describing the pollen-free areas in Eastern Canada. Ragweed was not a problem in the west.

Sections of Gaspe in Quebec now were pollen-free, but Ontario resorts were "all pretty badly" polluted. In Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick selected areas had been had been taken to control ragweed.

Candidates for Municipal Offices Address Large Crowd In Collegiate Auditorium

A renewed public interest in the administration of city affairs and in Monday's municipal elections was forecast Tuesday evening when at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium more than 1,000 citizens turned out to the pre-election meeting to hear the candidates for the various public offices.

They heard the two aspirants for the mayoralty — Mayor H. Jack Allin and Dr. R. T. Potter—express their views on what could be done to make Belleville a better city in which to live and heard what had been done and what had not been done during 1950.

They heard the 16 candidates for the seven aldermanic seats, either give an account of their past year's stewardship, or present platforms for the coming year, and also listened to the seven candidates offering themselves as members of the board of education.

Pros and Cons

Then, as a climax to the evening's program, they heard the pros and cons of the proposed health department and civic court by Alderman William Argue who urged the electors to give it their approval on election day and Ex-Mayor Jamieson Bone who took the opposite side of the debate.

The meeting saw the largest attendance of any pre election gathering in well over a decade. It was sponsored by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, past president Arthur Bateman acting as chairman. Alec Gordon acted as secretary. A feature of the collegiate organ as a prelude to the program of speechmaking.

Stewardship Account

Expressing appreciation for the support given him at the polls one year ago, Mayor H. Jack Allin gave an account of his stewardship as chief magistrate during the past year. In doing so he assured the 1950 council had made a conscientious effort to stay within its budget and with the exception of the public works department had done so. Snow removal and backlog of work had been responsible in this department mount.

During his term of office the mayor said he had been responsible for the setting up of Public Utilities commission with the county of Hastings. This commission he said, was responsible for the removal of the $2 surtax for county patients at the Belleville General Hospital, and in negotiating with respect to cost of administration of justice between the city and the county.

Given Leadership

He had also shown leadership in setting up a joint committee consisting of the parks board, the board of education and city council with the view to establishing playgrounds. The splendid playground operated by the department had been the result of this committee's labors.

Mayor Allin referred to the Board of Education and its decision to go ahead with the new contract for the proposed new school in North Belleville to the second lowest tenderer. He had been opposed to this on the grounds of principle and also economy.

As chairman of industries the mayor said he had made every effort, often at his own time and expense, to interest new industry in coming to Belleville. He was certain his efforts would bear fruit as over the contracts had been made with three new industries considering locating in this city.

RUSSIAN ARMIES READY TO STRIKE IN WEST EUROPE

Six Armies in Winter Quarters in E. Germany

Berlin, Nov 29 — (AP)—Six Russian armies are in winter quarters in east Germany today but military intelligence rates them strong enough to seize most of western Europe in a single blitz action.

This potential sweep from the Elbe River to the Pyrenees is regarded here as Russia's ace card in the mounting world crisis.

It is an article which many European observers dread may be touched off in the United States by the Communist drive against Red China.

And these observers say the western invasion is virtually certain to come if the U.S. threatens the Soviet itself with an atomic ultimatum to halt the spreading Asiatic war.

Military sources agree that western Europe is pratically as defenceless now as at the outbreak of Korean hostilities last June.

There has been a small build-up of allied occupation forces in west Germany, But the four U.S. divisions that were to have tripled the combat strength of the American army on the Rhine in a few months are still fighting rear-guard in Korea or pinned down as a strategic reserve at home.

The Soviet armies in east Germany are authoritatively estimated to total 33 divisions, of which at least 10 are heavily armored. Their tanks, the Joseph Stalin Mark Three, are superior to any in the west.

The total manpower of these armies is put at 320,000, exceeding the manpower of the allied armies in west Germany by about 100,000. However, the allied forces have a much higher proportion of service troops, making their overall combat effectiveness correspondingly lower.

The allies moreover, are still spread out in occupation posts and supposts, thereby exposed to piecemeal annihilation in case of sudden attack.

Exciting Drug for Heart, Arteries Given Science by Perfumery Trade

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 29—(AP) — Perfumery has given science one of its most exciting new drugs—good for hearts, arteries and blood things.

This discovery was made at the University of Utah's College of Pharmacy by Dr. Mark Nickerson.

The Swiss perfume firm, Givaudan, has several hundred different synthetic, well-overs from making piesant odors. These chemicals resembled water, and were odorless. What they were was unknown, because their strength and purity had been changed by the essences that go into perfume.

The Utan College of Medicine received a lot of these bottles and began trying the chemicals on animals, heart-wise and blood vessel-wise. Nickerson came to No. 13. This chemical had no effect, and it is the rule with the rotation in which he picked up this bottle.

No. 13 was placed along with several othey chemicals for tests on blood pressure. Presently something appeared to be going wrong. Epinephrine, the doctor's best drug for raising blood pressure was occasionally doing just the opposite.

No. 13 was suspected, but when tested it failed to lower pressure. Dr. Nickerson then studied the records he had been keeping for weeks on the effects of all the chemicals in the pressure tests, and discovered that No. 13 had a delayed action. The living body was changing this queer chemical, and after that change No. 13 would reverse epinephrine's effects.

Nickerson was found to be chemically similar to the newest poison gas, nitrogen mustard, but lacking the poison. It was given the jaw-breaking name of dibenamine, and then more than 200 modifications of dibenamine, with still-longer names, were made in search for finer things.

This perfumery chemical acts on the vascular system—which means heart, arteries and blood vessels—the system whose disorders kill more than 500,000 in the United States each year. It has been used for glaucoma, which causes blindness by hardening the eyeball. In surgical operations it keeps bleeding in rubber dams, but also helps diagnose cancer.

Allies Hope Winter Defence Lines Can Be Established

Withdrawals in Eastern Section Nearly Complete

Seoul, Nov. 29 — (AP) — United Nations forces escaped across the icy Chongchon River in northwest Korea today under swarming attacks mounted by 200,000 or more Chinese communists.

AP correspondent Tom Lambert, with the United States Eighth Army, reported at 6:43 p.m. (4:43 a.m. EST) that the withdrawal in the eastern sector was all but complete.

But fresh red attacks from three sides threatened the escape gate at Kunu, road centre south of the Chongchon. Communist tanks rumbled on the city from the west. They were the first reported in the Chinese drive.

There were no immediate reports on the fate of the U.S. 24th and South Korean 1st Divisions on the western flank.

The 24th Division, first American unit to fight in Korea, last was reported in the Pakchon area north of the river, holding open an escape route across the Anju bridge.

Fight with Back to River

The South Korean 1st Division was fighting on the 24th's right flank, with its back to the river.

It was from this bridgehead north of the river that a 110,000-man allied force launched Gen. MacArthur's projected "end of war" offensive only six days ago.

The offensive stalled after two days when U. N. forces ran into masses of surging Chinese communists.

MacArthur warned Tuesday: — "We face an entirely new war."

He called upon the U. N. and all governments to seek a solution to the growing crisis.

There was hope of salvaging enough allied manpower and material to set up a winter defence line and hold off the Chinese somewhere in North Korea.

Military authorities considered such a defence could hold with allied superiority in the air and in firepower against the Chinese who had depended at the outset on the swarming weight of their lightly-armed infantry. But now red tanks are reported in battle.

There was no indication as the battlefront stood, A. M. or in western diplomatic capitals that the Chinese red tide would be stopped by negotiations.

Orderly Withdrawal

An end sweep by the red Chinese hordes, through the Tokchon gap which was torn on the right flank when South Korean 2nd divisions crumpled, had threatened to trap the four allied divisions north of the Chongchon River.

Lambert said it was hoped that the last troops of the two divisions clsoing the Kunu sector would be across the river by nightfall.

He described the withdrawal as orderly and without panic.

Lambert said he left Kunu, eastern anchor of the shrunken northwest front, at 4 p.m. He said it was doubtful if the city, south of the river, could be held long.

Eighth Army headquarters said Wednesday night: "The situation in the Kunu area is confused." It reported communist tanks rumbling on the road centre from the west.

Lambert said Chinese attacks from the northeast and east seriously threatened Kunu this afternoon.

U.S. 2nd Division elements fought an eight-mile delaying action into the town, blasting through strong communist ambushes in flanking attacks.

Fight Off Savage Attacks

The U.S. 25th Division fought off savage Chinese red attacks Tuesday night and Wednesday morning north of the river while its units were being ferried across the Chongchon.

The Chinese hurled massed attacks at the 25th, but without tank, air or artillery support. They used swarms of troops armed with rifles, automatic weapons and mortars.

Five miles south of Kunu, the U.N. Turkish brigade repulsed a night attack and dug in as defensive positions. Earlier it had fought its way with bayonets out of a red Chinese trap farther east.

Masses of communists were streaming through the Tokchon gap in support of this triple thrust.

One Chinese communist force, in at least battalion strength, smashed all the way to Samso, eight miles south of Kunu. U.S. 1st Cavalry troops shot troopers and tanks killed or wounded about 600 reds.

The hot troopers were protecting the vital supply route from Pyongyang to Kunu. Communists 27th brigade also was guarding the route.

Chinese reds in the north-central area attacked on three sides of the Changjin reservoir, which supplies power to Hungnam.

Marines fought off heavy attacks on the west and south sides of the reservoir.

The U.S. 7th Division fought off night assaults on the east side of the reservoir.

Gives Talk on Special Insurance Income For Bereaved Family

Mr. George Wilson, assistant sales manager of sales and education, of the Canada Life Assurance Company's head office was the guest speaker at the Quinte Life Underwriters Association's November meeting.

The speaker, who has had a broad experience in the life insurance industry in Canada, was welcomed by past president Frank Creegan and was introduced by Ralph Mumford, Cobourg.

Mr. Wilson chose as his topic "Readjustment, Dependency Period—Basic Life Income." He stressed the importance of the readjustment income to the average family but said that every insurance program should include a liveable income for two or three years at least immediately following the death of the wage-earner rather than a smaller income over a longer period.

"Executors have said that the most neglected provision in the average insurance program has been the period during estate settlement. It is our job as advisors to render this professional service to our clients," concluded Mr. Wilson.

The thanks of the members present was expressed by Harold Carruthers.

Snowflakes Make City and Country Real Fairyland

Soft clinging snow falling gently from grey skies converted the city and district into a veritable "winter wonderland" overnight. From four to five inches of the white mantle greeted citizens this morning, the first real snow of the winter, and one which had a real "Christmassy" touch.

Drab leafless trees were converted into things of glistening beauty as the white snow clung to branches and twigs. Coniferous trees, their white habitments bowing branches slightly, provided a real yuletide atmosphere.

Clean-looking under its white mantle, the city took on a new appearance with the fall of snow. Drab dirt and debris, residue of Autumn's passing, is beneath the white glistening mass.

Snow-shovels and scrapers made their second debut as householders took their first "exercise" of the winter season.

Traffic was not affected by the fall as the snow packed readily under vehicular wheels. No tie-up or delay on the main highways was reported, from this district at least.

City Public Works Department sidewalk plows were out bright and early, but road-plows, while not in action, were held in readiness in case the fall increased.

Training School Subject of Talk At Kiwanis Club

Jack Estaugh, supervisor of the training schools at Bowmanville and Galt, Ontario, was his talk given one time ago, at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday. Members of the club who are candidates for municipal office were allowed to address the club for one minute but their remarks were drowned out due to the noise created by the rest of the members. It was real fun and the candidates had as much fun as the members.

A musical treat was afforded the members when Ulisses Espaillat of the Dominican Republic, West Indies, gave two solos. Mr. Espaillat has been a student at Albert College but has been called home by his father. He was to have sung at the music festival being arranged by the local club but on account of his leaving he was unable to do so. Espaillat's solos were delightful and the thanks of the club were expressed by Taylor Franklin, president. The singer was accompanied by Mrs. Ewing Hamilton.

Working For Same Objective

Mr. Estaugh told about the service club and the training school are closely associated because they are working for the same objective. The speaker dealt at length with co-educational feature of training schools and told of his visit to Kentucky where a co-educational school has been in operation for 23 years. He stated that the girls' school at Cobourg is quite inadequate and the government has set aside expenditure of $500,000 for a new building there or increase the building at Bowmanville and Galt. The administration of these schools are all set up and the government would be able to save some money by making it co-educational. The consequents co-educational, "There is no reason why there should be any matter, said the speaker, and I would not want to express an opinion. The question will require considerable study.

President Kerr

He praised the Key Club of Kiwanis and stated that it was very gratifying to see the training school at Bowmanville. The Oshawa club was in charge and after a lot of thought the boys at the school now have a project, that of collecting old toys and giving them to needy children and they are happy.

In conclusion he asked the members to assist the C.N.I. in every possible way because he was sure that Mr. Lockyer and his staff here were doing a worthwhile work. Mr. Estaugh stated that at the school there had never been any corporal punishment and that the boys were continually being put on their honor and the principle was working fine. The speaker was introduced by Everett Fairman and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Lawrence Kells. Jim Jarvis won the attendance prize donated by Fred Symons.

Youth Fellowship Executive Meets

An encouraging report on the work of "Youth for Christ", in Toronto, was given by the new director.

Permission was given Mr. Ambrose to approach the Board of Education regarding the use of the High School auditorium for monthly rallys.

Names Sought For Regimental Scholarship

Officials of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Association here are anxious to see as many as possible, the names of those whose fathers were killed in action or died of wounds while serving with the regiment overseas.

One of the first activities of the association following its organization soon after the cessation of hostilities, was the groundwork of a scholarship fund for sons and daughters of those who were killed or died of wounds resulting from action.

The scholarship fund, contributed to yearly by special effort has now reached the amount of $4,500. The 1950 reunion contribution amounted to $1,500.

Association officials feel that the time has come when the purpose of the fund should be exercised, ut, they also feel that a number of those eligible for the benefits of the fund have not yet been contacted. In fairness to all, officials are anxious to secure the names of all those who can benefit.

Eligible applicants for the scholarship, or those knowing the whereabouts of such, are requested to contact Mr. George Spencer, Trenton High School, or Angus Duffy, Belleville.

Acoustic Ceiling Recommended By Grand Jury

Recommendation that an acoustic ceiling be provided for the jurors' room at the county buildings and also for the family court offices, was contained in the report of the Grand Jury made to Judge J. C. Anderson at the General Sessions of the Peace session this week.

The Grand Jury, with Harry Kaye of Trenton, as foreman, made their report to the Judge following an inspection of county buildings.

The recommendation with respect to the acoustic ceiling indicated that this would enable juries to hear to better advantage when sitting on cases in the main court room.

At the same time, however, the report commented on the state of preservation and on the well-kept grounds of the Registry Office, of Shire Hall, and the women's public block.

The report recommended repairs to the furnace smoke pipe and noted that the protection for the court building was not very good with a suggestion that this be looked into. It was recommended that every block of cells have a fire extinguisher. The Grand Jury room was stated to be badly in need of plaster and paint, the exterior of the court building needs new eave-troughing in two places also the entrance way needs repair.

Seating in the main court room needs repairs and the banister on the back stairs is loose and dangerous. Some windows are needed to save fuel; new floor covering is needed in the family court office and the corridor on the outside of buildings needs paint and repair.

A new Union Jack was recommended for the court building.

Fourteen Cases Are Listed Here For Sessions

A total of 14 cases, including two criminal cases involving charges of theft and fraud, six jury and seven non-jury cases, were listed for hearing during the General Sessions of Peace and Assizes for the county here at Hastings which commenced Monday at the court house before His Honor Judge J. C. Anderson, county judge.

One of the criminal cases was laid over to the January court sitting, and seven of the jury cases were settled out of court.

Nine applications for Canadian citizenship certificates were granted before Judge Anderson with five of the applications being approved.

Swings into Ditch To Avoid Collision

Swerving to avoid collision with a taxi emerging onto the highway from No. 8 R.D. road, east of Trenton, a Montreal-owned transport last night turned over on its side in the highway ditch. The driver was uninjured.

The driver of the Trenton owned taxi apparently failed to see the approaching transport with the result that the transport driver was forced to swing into the ditch to avoid a collision.

Factory Watchman Is Suspicious

Toronto, Nov. 29—CP—A factory watchman was suspicious when "the boss's son" showed up last night asking $227 to cover a worthless cheque he had issued in payment for a drinking bill.

John R. Dempster, 21, whom the boss had never seen, was arrested on two charges of fraud, one of attempted fraud and one of theft.

Police said he gave a worthless $40 cheque for board and room, stole $20 from a fellow lodger and ran up a $23.55 bill at a downtown cocktail lounge—all in one evening—before approaching the watchman.

Shortage Effects Felt in 6 Months Speaker Declares

Montreal, Nov. 29 (CP) —Manpower and material shortages such as the world knew during the '40's are in store for Canada once again, Geo. G. Rogers, program director of the American Economic Foundation in New York, predicted here last night in a speech before the Foreman's Club.

He was outlining the problem to be faced by industry once the Korean war and the west's policy of armament against aggression take their toll of Industrial supply. More efficient methods of production were essential if Canada and the United States were to maintain their present high level of output.

He said the first effects of material shortages may be felt in less than six months.

Male Clerk Makes Purchases for Shy Guys

Margate, Kent, England, Nov. 29—CP—Shy male shoppers who want to buy the little women's filmy "unmentionables" for Christmas are no longer embarrassed when they visit one department store.

The store has solved the problem in this way:

The timorous male shopper goes to the men's-wear department, where he explains his needs to an understanding male clerk. Then the clerk trots in to the women's department and makes the purchase for the shy guy.

Federal Cabinet Meets to Discuss Korean Situation

Ottawa, Nov. 29, (CP)—The Federal Cabinet went into session today with the Korean crisis heading its agenda.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told reporters as he entered the council chamber that the international situation "looks confused".

"I can't go beyond that," he added.

External Affairs Minister Pearson, following the Prime Minister into the chamber, said that the Korean picture now was "not too happy."

He could not say immediately whether he would return to New York, where he had been heading the Canadian delegation to the United Nations until last week. The Korean issue now is before the U.N. Security Council and Canada is not a member of that council.

Mr. Pearson said he would go back to New York if the Korean question came before the general assembly by virtue of a Soviet veto in the security council.

While this was a regular meeting day for the cabinet, the Korean developments heightened the importance of the sessions, expected to continue throughout the day, with only a break of lunch.

Mr. Pearson carried into the chamber a bundle of official documentse bearing the red governmental seal denoting secrecy.

Among them undoubtedly were reports from Canada's U.N. delegation reporting specific and kindred-the-scenes developments on the quickening drama that has played out before the security council, where a red China delegation is attending the discussions.

As far as Canada is concerned, these consultations probably are under way between high U.S. officials and Hume Wrong, Canadian ambassador in Washington. Mr. Wrong will pass the U.S. views, reported in Washington to involve the use of political and economic sanctions against red China by the U.N., on to Ottawa.

Nor is the International Livestock Exposition able to cope with the changing times which produced only 127 draught horses for the show this year. Once there were 1,200 here.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 29—CP—Prices levelled off and improved a little from their opening sharp plunging streak as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Following yesterday's heavy war scare selling they opened in continuation of the downward push. At noon signs of support appeared, however, and extreme losses began to cut down.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,903,000 shares.

Losses ranged to more than $2 in industrials with steels and papers showing the greatest decline.

In base metals Noranda lost the most with a drop of ⅞. Consolidated Smelters, which lost a spectacular $5 yesterday, opened $2 lower but recovered to settle was unchanged at $2.80⅛.

at a 50-cent loss.

McIntyre dipped 75 cents to lead senior golds down. Junior producers sagged with a wide list of penny declines.

Western oils also sagged in active dealings.

Market Jittery Stocks Decline

New York, Nov. 29 AP—A war-jittery stock market dropped sharply again today.

Trading hit a fast pace with blocks of 1,000 or more shares peppering the ticker tape.

Yesterday's plunge, worst since the start of the Korean war in late June, was touched off by the ominous turn of events in Korea.

Today's relapse was preluded by tumbling prices in the London stock market.

New York, Nov. 29—CP—The Canadian dollar was down ¼ of a cent at a discount of 4¼ per cent in terms of United States funds in foreign exchange dealings today. The pound sterling was unchanged at $2.80⅛.

One 1951 Model Car Will Have Entirely New Body

Detroit, Nov. 29—(AP) — At least one more 1951-model automobile will have an entirely new body. Another will emphasize extended rear fenders and redesigned brakes.

Heavy outlay for design changes was not part of the 1951 plans of any manufacturer. Yet the altered rear fenders on one car alone cost more for new dies than often was spent before the Second World War for some complete retooling jobs.

Next of the new models to appear probably will be Chevrolet's 1951 vehicles. They will be shown by dealers Dec. 9. Dec. 11 will come Pontiac's new models. Pontiac originally planned the dealer showing for Dec. 4, but had to delay it because of a body shortage.

The procession of new models yet to come includes Cadillac, Buick, Oldsmobile and all the Chrysler units. Some will run into January, although just about all will be on the assembly lines before the year-end.

Several hand-built models of the new cars already have been previewed by industry writers. Mostly they show only face-lifting to distinguish them from the 1950 models.

But even with minor changes all the new models have enhanced eye appeal. Changing a fender line or the design of a radiator grille long has been standard practice in the auto industry when the least expensive alterations have been sought for new models.

Most manufacturers will challenge the statement that few changes have been made under the hood for 1951. They will point to improved engine mountings, new-type piston rings and perhaps an increase in horsepower or compression ratio. However, with few exceptions there haven't been many changes in the power plant or its accessories.

Among the major changes already shown are Studebaker's new V-8 engine, Hudson's new Hornet model and Packard's entirely-new body styling. The Hornet line has an entirely new power plank, and hydramatic transmission also has been adapted to the 1951 Hudson cars.

ALLIES HOPE

North of Chonglin port on the Sea of Japan, the South Korean Capital Division ran into a force of 700 reds who attacked with small arms and mortars. There was no report on the outcome of this action.

Allied bombers and fighters, held down Wednesday morning by bad weather, roared to the attack along the northwest Korea front in the afternoon. Fliers reported they killed several hundred red Chinese.

A Turk liaison officer who fought through to American lines early Wednesday with the remnants of his platoon said his commanding general had been wounded. The general was not identified.

AP correspondent William J. Waugh, with the U. S. 9th corps, said the U. S. 2nd and 25th divisions were badly mauled.

The retreat was carried out in near-zero weather.

Helicopters shuttled back and forth removing the badly wounded from the front.

U. N. forces held virtually nothing east of Kunu. Contact with the U. S. 10th corps in northeast Korea was broken.

Besides the frontal attacks along the Chongchon, the Chinese were throwing at least three columns behind the allied forces there.

These were streaking in from the east. The eighth army rushed up tanks and troops in efforts to hold open a corridor to Pyongyang, the former North Korean capital less than 50 miles to the south.

MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo said the Chinese were developing a three-column smash toward the Yellow Sea south of the Chongchon River.

This threat was mounted from fallen Tokchon, former eastern anchor of the allied offensive line.

One column was smashing west toward Kaechon, four miles southeast of Kunu. A second thrust southwest toward Pukchang, 14 miles south of Kunu.

The third was driving toward either Sunchon, 18 miles south of Kunu, or Songchon, 35 miles southeast of Kunu.

TRENTON

MEN'S ATTIRE

The vagaries of men's clothes are known to everyone. The hat, once in great favor, declined in favor for some years and now the word is that it is coming back. The Halifax Star-Mail writer is the authority for the word that the headgear is returning, that sales have increased. He says, "Whether the majority like it or not hats which can be misplaced, which can be knocked off on entering an automobile if the owner is not watchful, are on their way in again. That is not to say there are not gainers outside the ranks of the hatters. The youth with the crew-cut may disdain to cover his half-shorn locks. The one whose sleekly-parted hair is the objective of every vagrant wind, cannot afford to be indifferent to headgear, that is if he wishes to make an impression on his elders, and, as important in his eyes, the feminine half of the population. In the same way, a youthful hat beneath a hat brim may cause arm observers to be acutely revealed when a thinning that is bared to the breezes.

"The hat, therefore, seems more important than the vest, however indispensable the latter's many pockets may have seemed in other days.

Like women's handbags, vests seem largely to have been the repositories of the unneeded but cherished, the slips of paper, old envelopes, pencil stubs and the like, that it was hard to part with.

Vests have gone; pockets have gone; hoards they held have disappeared. No one seems any the worse off than the vest makers."

BRITISH FORCES IN KOREA

More reinforcements of British troops, including a tank regiment, have arrived in Korea. The total number of British ground troops now engaged in the fighting now totals approximately 6,000-7,000, according to United Kingdom Information Office.

A Royal Air Force squadron of "Sunderland" flying boats is known to be operating in the Korean zone, while warships of the British Royal Navy have been in action since the outbreak of hostilities. It was divulged recently that Britain's total naval fighting force in Korean waters consisted of one aircraft carrier, four cruisers, one aircraft maintenance ship, seven destroyers and eight frigates.

During the 14 days covering the Inchon landings and subsequent operations up to September 30th, ships of the British Commonwealth fleet steamed 56,456 miles, while the carrier-based aircraft of the 13,190-ton flat-top H.M.S. Triumph made 112 sorties over an area of some 251,000 square miles.

The guns of the Commonwealth Fleet poured 2,690 six-inch and 1,274 smaller calibre shells on enemy strongpoints, gun emplacements, ammunition dumps, tanks and shipping, plus 215,000 rounds of Oerlikon and Bofors fire.

During these operations the 8,000-ton British cruiser H.M.S. Jamaica shot down a Russian-built "Stormovik" airplane — the first enemy plane to be destroyed by gunfire from any of the United Nations' warships.

Together with the 8,000-ton British cruiser H.M.S. Kenya, Jamaica formed part of the force which bombarded Wolmi-Do and Inchon, while the cruiser Ceylon bombarded Fankochi Point.

British Royal Marine Commandos carried out diversionary landings at Kunsan, alongside American Special Troops, from the frigate Whitesand Bay.

The aircraft carrier Triumph, which sent "Firefly" and "Seafire" navy planes into the battle, has been relieved by another British carrier, H.M.S. Theseus, from which "Sea Fury" planes will operate.

CANADIANS IN U.K. ROLL OF HONOR

A roll of honor containing over 2,300 names, of which more than 90 are of Canadians, now lies in an illuminated glass case in a corner of London's St. Martin-in-the-Fields' Church, one of the historic edifices in the British Isles.

It is the roll of honor of the Parachute Regiment, and it was laid in a resting place by Field-Marshal Lord Montgomery of Alamein, Colonel-Commandant of the regiment, at a recent special dedicatory service held in memory of those of the Airborne Forces who lost their lives in World War II.

The roll of honor lies open at a beautifully illuminated page on which is inscribed the prayer of the Airborne Forces: "May the defence of the Most High be above and beneath, around and within us, that our going out and in our coming in, in our rising up and in our going down, all our days and all our nights, until the dawn when the Son of Righteousness shall rise with healing in His wings for the people of the world, through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen."

TWO-GUN TERRY

Two-gun Terry! Two feet two,
Wooden horse, but cowboy hat;
Rope, a clothes line, good as new.
Chaps and spurs. Just think of that.
Cold and calculating eyes
Gazing at me as he stands
Saying: "Stranger, you be wise!
Drop that gun and raise your hands!"

Two-gun Terry! Left and right
Pistols swinging at the crook;
With all villains, glad to fight.
Heels to the finger tips.

In his speech a cowboy drawl;
For foe to every bandit bold.
Little boys, when I was small,
Never searched for stolen gold.

Countless deaths a day I die,
Grandpa being glad to play.
Slow to raise my hands am I?
Two-gun Terry fires away.

But when we have had our tea
Mother from his room will come
And Saying: "Safe once more are we,
Two-gun Terry's sound asleep."

HIGH FLIGHT

Another way to get your overheated, twentieth-century nerves cooled down to an eighteenth century gavot is to go fly a kite. I have been doing a lot of it this autumn. My nerves are in splendid shape, ready to cope with at least eight of nine catastrophes and maybe even Gabriel Heatter.

We'd decided to stay over a couple of days in the pleasant state of Jazz just north of Capistrano Beach on the California Riviera. The weather here is just about perfect. Cloudless and warm with a brisk westerly breeze coming in off the Pacific. Admirable for kite-flying weather. So we made an expedition into nearby Laguna Beach, bought a kite for 39 cents and two ball of twine, each with 200 feet in line.

This was one of those diamond-shaped kites made of a very light paper and eager to fly. It was that running or jumping it in the air. This kite simply felt the wind in the fingers. The response of its tail, spread its frail arms and took off into the blue, growing smaller and smaller until it was 400 feet overhead, a live thing oozing into the bright, invisible wind.

All this was performed by the Kid. It was her 39 cents and her kite. For my part, she delivered us in that never-to-be-forgotten zest of conversing some fundamental wordlessly with the physical reality.

My coaching over, I retired to the trailer to write a column and read the morning paper — Sunday, a.m. edition Los Angeles Times.

The UN air forces had just completed the bombing of Pyongyang, the city known as the "Paris of the Orient." Also, the Americans were studying the prospect of using the atom bomb — a city at a time—if the occasion for its use arose. Elsewhere the Russians had accused the Americans of attacking a Soviet transport plane in the Sea of Japan, and Britain had replied by rushing tanks and troops to Berlin, until the same old happy-go-lucky world.

Going Back

As I'd expected, it didn't take the Kid long to tire of the kite. Her interest had been sated with the trembling fingers we all get these days after regular flying sessions and soon cut to hold the string awhile.

The kite flew beautifully. The wind was dying down, but it came in gusts. The kite would float listlessly far out over the ocean, now and then a gust of the ocean, now and then a gust of the ocean, now and then a gust of

Many Municipalities Will Exercise Franchise on Sunday Sport in Coming Months

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto, Nov. 29 (CP) Sunday sport fever is gripping staid old Ontario.

At municipal elections, starting next Monday and continuing intermittently until Jan. 1, 31 cities and smaller communities will vote on whether to permit commercial sport on Sundays from 1:30 to 5 p. m., local time.

In the last year Sunday sport has been legalized in Toronto, the provincial capital and Ontario's largest city, Windsor and nine smaller communities — six of them popular summer resort spots.

Ten of the forthcoming votes are in Northern Ontario, five in the eastern section of the province, three in southwestern Ontario and two in the central area. All are being held under provincial legislation passed this year to give effect to the votes a year ago in Windsor and Toronto, which pioneered in the Sunday sport movement.

The question that will go before voters reads:

"Are you in favor of public games and sport on the Lord's Day to be regulated by municipal by-law under authority of the Lord's Day Act (Ontario) 1950."

Here is the voting lineup:

Dec. 4 — Brockville, Guelph, Kitchener, Lindsay, Port Hope, Prescott, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, Waterloo, Whitby.

Dec. 5—Hamilton.

Dec. 8—Kapuskasing, Port Colborne.

Dec. 9—South Porcupine.

Dec. 10—Hearst.

Dec. 11—North Bay, Cochrane, Ansonville.

Dec. 13—Timmins.

Dec. 18—Oakville.

Jan. 1—Thessalon.

Windsor voted 13,939 to 10,981 for Sunday sport last Dec. 7. Toronto came up with an 88,106 to 81,793 affirmative vote Jan. 1. The Ontario Legislature followed that up by passing a bill empowering municipalities to decide what sports are to be permitted and where they may be played.

Camel Lengthen Time

However, two options are withheld from municipalities. They may not permit horse racing. And they may not lengthen the 1.30 to 6 p. m. time limit, although they have authority to shorten it.

The bill provides that the issue be settled on a straight majority vote. Eligible voters are those qualified to vote at municipal elections — in other words, property owners or tenants occupying premises assessed at $400 or more.

Nine smaller municipalities have voted for Sunday sport since the bill became law — the summer resort centres of Port Dover, Crystal Beach, Port Stanley and Fort Burwell on Lake Erie, Port Dalhousie on Lake Ontario, Wasaga on Georgian Bay; Delhi in the heart of Southwestern Ontario's tobacco fields; two paper mill towns, Dryden in northwestern Ontario and Sturgeon Falls in northern Ontario.

Generally Petition Presented

Most of the forthcoming votes were called at the urging of sports organizations — notably baseball clubs and leagues. In some cases city councils ordered them at the request of those organizations; in others the decision was taken after receiving a petition bearing signatures of 10 per cent of qualified voters.

In all centres, the sports organizations are leading the campaign for a "yes" vote. Ministerial Associations are spearheading the opposition.

Until the Ontario bill was passed earlier this year, Sunday observance in Ontario was regulated entirely by the Federal Lord's Day Act which forbids commercial sport although it does not ban sport for which there is no admission price. The Ontario Legislation frees municipalities which hold "yes" votes on the Sunday sports question from the more restrictive provisions of the Lord's Day Act.

Pleven Will Ask Confidence Vote To Keep Office

Paris, Nov. 29—AP—Premier Rene Pleven decided today to ask for a vote of confidence in an effort to keep in office France's fifth post-liberation government, tottering from a communist-brewed storm over defence minister Jules Moch.

The National Assembly vote, decided on at a cabinet meeting today, will take place Friday. Pleven submitted the cabinet's resignation last night after the National Assembly voted disapproval of Moch, but president Vincent Auriol refused to accept to walkout because of the tense international situation.

By seeking a confidence vote, Pleven will try to utilize the desire of most deputies to avoid new general elections, which a government defeat might bring on. Most deputies would rather delay the poll until the end of the assembly's regular term next fall.

The troubles centres over a scandal the French call "the affair of the generals." It involves the theft or sale of secret military report on Indo-China war, black-market money deals, the honor of the former army chief of staff and the mysterious agent named Roger Peyrefitte who is reported to have fled to Brazil last year while Moch, as interior minister, headed the police.

THE BEST IN USED CARS BATEMAN

Swears Ilse Koch Called Lamp Made of Human Skin, Bone Most Successful Gift of All

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

Augsberg, Germany, Nov. 29—(AP) — Guests at a birthday party for Ilse Koch declared a lamp made of human skin and a human shinbone was the most successful gift of all, a witness at her trial testified today.

The red-haired widow of the former Buchenwald concentration camp commander is on trial before a German court, accused of instigating the murder of 45 inmates, the attempted murder of 135 others and brutality.

Trial by Germans

She served four years of a commuted life sentence on a U. S. war crimes conviction. The Germans are trying her for crimes allegedly committed against German and Austrian Nationals.

Joseph Ackermann, inmate-secretary to the camp's chief surgeon, Dr. Waldemar Hoven, told a three-judge German court of the birthday party and said he had been charged with seeing that the lamp was sent to the Koch household.

It was a complete shinbone and fan, he said, with a shade made of tattoed human skin.

A camp doctor who attended the party told him "it was the best present of all" and a great success, Ackermann said.

Later, Ackermann went on, Nazi authorities in Berlin heard of the story and ordered an investigation. He said prison physicians hurriedly recalled the lamp from the Koch household, removed the base, and declared it was only part of a medical exhibit used in studies of tattoed skin.

Ackerman said that Dr. Hoven, later executed for war crimes, also experimented with the heads of executed inmates after a German explorer had explained a head-shrinking process he had learned in foreign lands.

Gifts of Shrunken Heads

The witness said Hoven told him he had made presents of several shrunken heads "to my girl friend."

The 43-year-old defendant listened impassively as Ackermann testified. She has denied ever having seen tattoed skins or ever having such a lamp in her home.

Ackermann described a grisly laboratory where "hundreds" of human skins were draped over two broad tables and selections were made by camp physicians for tanning experiments.

He said he had been told that human skin from the back "is as tough as pigskin."

AND THERE'LL BE NO VOTE

Ridgetown, Ont., Nov. 29—CP—The Junior Chamber of Commerce here is an unhappy group of young men.

They made extensive preparations for a "get out and vote" municipal election campaign, including the printing of large posters and a brochure giving a brief history of each candidate. Last night in every municipal office was filled by acclamation.

USING NEW BRIDGE

Napanee, Nov. 29 (CP) — Traffic began rolling Tuesday across the new Napanee River Bridge on No. 2 Highway at the east end of this Eastern Ontario town.

The new structure, one of the few curved bridges in the province, is built of reinforced concrete and replaces a narrow steel type, eliminating a sharp turn on the highway.

Highways Minister Doucett of Ontario will preside later at the official opening of the bridge.

Barlow, president, was in charge and the Hunter Choir led in singing also rendering "The Lord's Prayer" and "Make Me a Captive, Lord". WEDDINGS

VANDERWATER—REDNER

Before a background of ferns and white chrysanthemums in tall standards, the first wedding of Centre United Church was solemnized on Saturday, November 25, at 2:30 p.m., when the Rev. J. P. Sanderson, M.A., minister of the church united in marriage Rosabelle-Joy, elder daughter of Anita Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Redner, of Carrying Place, Ont., to Lieut. Roscoe Vanderwater, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Vanderwater, of Wellington, R.R. 1, Ont. In commemoration of this first wedding in the church, the bride was presented with a white Bible, by the congregation.

Mr. Keith Redner, of Colborne, Ontario, was pianist, and Mr. Alan Redner, also of Colborne, was soloist, and sang before the ceremony, "I'll Walk Beside You", and "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her bridal gown of white brocade featuring a fitted bodice buttoned to the high neck with Peter Pan collar; and long, petal pointed sleeves. The gathered skirt fell gracefully to a short train. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was caught to a bonnet brim, and she carried a shower bouquet of American roses and white poms.

Miss Barbara Redner, Carrying Place, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing an orchid gown with bodice of Brussels lace and nylon net skirt over satin with matching headdress and mittens. She carried Johanna Hill roses and orchid tinted poms.

Mr. Ross Pierson of Wellington, Ontario, was groomsman, and the ushers, Mr. Robert Barber and Mr. Bryan Cronk.

The reception was held at the home of the bride, where the bride's mother gowned in a soft taupe afternoon frock, and the bridegroom's mother, in a forest green afternoon gown, received the guests. Those who served at the reception were: Misses Joan Redner, Ruth Payne, Beverly Payne, Betty Dempsey, Reta Christie, Shirley Bennett and Vi Osier.

The bride's gift to these were cups and saucers; to the bridegroom, a green onyx ring with Masonic emblem; to her bridesmaid, a rhinestone necklace with matching earrings. The bridegroom's gift to his bride was an amethyst necklace and matching earrings; to his groomsman and ushers, fountain pens.

For travelling to points east and northern New England States the bride chose a dress of forest green lace, green feather hat, lizard shoes and muskrat topcoat. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Vanderwater will reside at the bridegroom's farm, Wellington.

Out-of town guests were present from Toronto, Ottawa, Guelph, Kingston and Napanee.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was the guest of honor at a cup and saucer shower at the tastefully decorated home of Miss Florence Hall, and also prior to leaving the Bank of Montreal, Miss Redner was honored by the presentation of a rose satin comforter by the staff of the bank.

A surprise shower was also held for the bride-to-be by the girl employees of the Bank of Montreal in the beautifully decorated rooms above the bank, when she was the recipient of a lovely pink carnation corsage and a walnut table and apron, autographed by all present.

The little tots, who were small, were assisted by Mrs. George Noble and Mrs. J. S. Whitehead.

When the boxes had all been given, Rev. A. J. Anderson advanced to the altar and placed the gifts dedicating them to their work of love. Rev. Mr. Anderson spoke to the children and mothers of the work of the Little Helpers.

Two hymns "Jesus Loves Me", and "Jesus Bids us Shine", were sung. After the singing of the last hymn they all gathered in the Parish Hall where refreshments were served.

Black Persian Fur Bicorne

By PRUNELLA WOOD

NO END to this Spanish feeling for fashions, and we like this bullfighter effect in glossy black Persian, calling it not only one of the least cumbersome fur hat fashions but also one of the less costume-minded Spanish derivations.

The bicorne shape is accentuated with black silk fringe, very Iberian, and we salute the jet beads and earrings which have been chosen to set off the hat and its matching fur coat. Very young for black Persian, all of it.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

They drink butter in Tibet.

A favorite beverage is made with tea, butter and salt, whipped until thick.

In one of the Buddhist monasteries of that country, an annual feast is celebrated with large statues carved in butter. The sculptors keep their hands in ice water to prevent the creations from melting. The day after the feast, the butter is thrown away.

Two of the best known French sauces, Hollandaise and Bearnaise, are simply melted butter thickened with egg yolks and seasoned.

Because of their obvious richness and cost, such sauces are served in small quantities.

To make Hollandaise sauce, egg yolks are beaten in the top part of a double boiled with melting butter, as the eggs cook, they thicken the butter. Too strong a flame will cause the eggs to separate. The greatest care should therefore be taken to see that the water in the lower part of the double boiler is heated only until hot, not boiling. The smooth, incomparable flavor of this golden sauce is worth the cost and effort required.

Broccoli, Hollandaise, Broiled Ham—Serves 4

4 slices ready cooked ham about 3 ounces each, 1-4 inch thick
Brown sugar
1 medium size head of broccoli
1 cup butter—
4 egg yolks
1 tablespoon water
1-2teaspoon lemon Juice
Salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
Sprinkle ham with brown sugar.
Broil under a moderate flame 3 to 4 minutes. (Cooked ham must merely be heated through.) Keep in warm place.
Wash broccoli. Cut off leaves. Cut thick ends of stems lengthwise into quarters. Place broccoli in a saucepan with 1 inch boiling water to which 1-2 teaspoon salt has been added. Cook broccoli covered until just tender, 12-15 minutes. Drain. Keep warm.
Divide butter in 4 equal parts.
Beat egg yolks slightly in top part of double boiler. Place over bottom section of double boiler containing simmering, not boiling water. Water should not touch upper part of boiler.
Add one part of butter to egg yolks. Beat with a rotary beater until butter melts and mixture thickens. Repeat until all butter is used up. Add water, lemon juice, 1-8 teaspoon salt and mustard. Beat well. Remove from fire.
Place broiled ham on plate. Put broccoli on ham. Pour Hollandaise sauce over broccoli.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A restless wife is behaving foolishly.

When a wife just happens to fall in love with another man—or thinks she's in love with him—is that any reason for her to pick up and leave her husband?

Not a few women apparently believe it is. Their viewpoint seems to be that just because someone else has caught their interest the only thing to do is to follow that interest whenever it may lead them.

Some such wives at least have the sense to realize that there might be two sides to the matter and want to consider both sides carefully before coming to a decision. In such cases, it's fair enough for a woman to write and ask for advice. Involved as she is in the emotional problem, she can hardly look at it in the detached fashion calm judgment demands and that someone outside of the situation may be able to bring to it.

The woman I find hard to understand, however, is the one who will write asking for advice and at the same time declare, in effect, that nothing anyone could say would affect her own decision.

Listen to this story, for instance, which a woman of 31 writes to me. Married for eleven years, and the mother of three children, by her own admission she has everything she could wish. Yet she says she has recently fallen "madly in love" with a young man five years her junior. For some time she has been making regular dates with him on the sly, and while he has never told her "in so many words" that he loves her, she is quite certain that he is eager for her to leave her husband and marry him. She closes her letter wailing that she doesn't know what to do, and adds that there is no use in my telling her to forget her young man because she can't do it, which seems to slam the door with a loud bang in the face of any comment I might make.

Since this woman has written me, however, I shall go right ahead and express my opinion of her story, even though she will probably not care at all for what I have to say.

And what I have to say is this:

It is nonsense for anybody to take the position that they can't put a thing like this out of mind. I am not saying it is necessarily easy. I am saying it is far from impossible, if the person really wants to do it.

Obviously, this restless wife does not want to do it. If she did, the first thing she would do would be to stop making dates with the man. There is no power on earth except her own wish that forces her into any such course, and if she made up her mind once and for all that she would quit seeing him, she might be surprised herself to find how soon she would get back to normal. Without encouragement most romance quickly withers and dies.

Since she appears to have nothing to complain of in her present marriage, she would be a very weak and disloyal person to break it up, or even to play with the idea of doing so. And there is this to think about, too: The man in question is a young fellow of 26 to her 31. No doubt he is in the somewhat adolescent period of development where it seems extremely sophisticated and glamorous to go out with a married woman. It is practically certain that if this one left her husband for him, he would soon tire of the whole thing and leave her flat.

Make a dash to the cosmetic counter.

Let your slogan be "Use make-up for the purpose for which it was intended—to glamorize—but don't abuse it". Restrict the use of rouge in the daytime when it is too obvious; indulge it more generously when the lights are on and the party is going full tilt. Mascara that shows up plainly during the daytime hours affords an alluring frame for the eyes later on. Lips that carry the natural color in the afternoon can be vivid at night. Mauve powder will sometimes give the skin a beautiful transparent appearance, especially if the complexion is pale. One can indulge in these little diversions.

Marking the far corners of the eyes ever so slightly with a black crayon will "do something", give the eyes sparkle and depth. You have to be clever, of course, in achieving these effects. They are not for the girl who follows the slap-dash method when she makes herself a new face. One needs a strong light—a magnifying mirror is a help—and a restraining hand. A little crayon goes a long way.

Remember that there must be color harmony between rouge and lipstick. The girl with the golden skin should select an orange-red. If the skin is delicate and pale, a wild rose rouge is best, with the lips tinted a darker shade. The true brunette with brown eyes and dark hair can choose American beauty tones that will enchance her appearance.

The redhead must consider the color of her hair, which is her chief asset. Rouge and lipstick must complement her flaming thatch.

BEAUTY

Improving on nature.

When cosmetics were taboo, the plain lassie had to be resigned to her fate. She could not resort to synthetic aids without being somewhat of a social outcast. Life certainly could not have been very gay or hilarious. We've marched along the beauty road since then. Woman is a more entrancing spectacle than she was in those so-called good old days. What was so good about them?

If you have started the day wrong, have awakened with a feeling of depression, it is wonderful what a dash of lipstick and a flip of the rouge pad will do to boost morale. Looking better, you feel better. You fancy your birthdays aren't really catching up with you after all. Old Man Time may be peeking around the corner, but you'll escape him if the good-looks overhead holds out. Even if it doesn't, you can sneak cash out of the household budget and

"And now I have some good news for the electors," he said in conclusion. "The assessment in the city has been increased $1,500,000 over the past year and this will mean a reduction of roughly five mills in the tax rate providing no additional expenditures are incurred next year."

Lack of Parks Noted

Dr. Alfred E. Potter, as candidate for the mayoralty, said that on return home from overseas he had felt that Belleville had high taxes and little else to offer. One year in council had not changed that opinion.

"Belleville," he said, "has a lack of parks, of playgrounds, a lack of sewers and hospital beds and nobody seemed prepared to do anything about it. There is a lack of leadership in council with a tendency to sidestep the important issues."

To bear this out he referred to the hospital, the old wing of which was "long overdue" for replacement. He spoke of the proposed convalescent home and referring to the former county home purchased by the city, asked if "we are going to have a convalescent home, a museum or what."

An incinerator was needed in the city as was a sewage disposal plant. "Are we going to continue to pollute our fine waterfront?" he asked. Some day the government will compel the city to put in a sewage plant. But before this could be done storm sewers were needed.

A Costly Item

"Storm sewers will be a costly item, yes," Dr. Potter went on. "But is it right that only the sections of the city should be without storm sewers? The ill-advised spending on the part of council was attacked by Dr. Potter as he referred to the $8,000 expenditure in renovating the police station and the $12,000 cost of the new floor in the market square. He defended anyone to see where the $8,000 was spent on the police station and stated the lavatory on the market was falling apart.

"What is the solution?" he asked. Then in reply to his own question he admitted he did not know. "But I do know," he said, "that turning our backs on the problem is no solution."

He referred to the statement being made that he had no experience in municipal affairs. He then pointed out that men with municipal experience were turning their backs on the city's problems. He was certain that he could attend his medical practice and still find time to look after the city's business.

Mayor in Rebuttal

Mayor Allin in rebuttal pointed out that Dr. Potter had been an alderman only for 10 months, which was insufficient time to contest the election. In that time he said Dr. Potter had missed 10 out of 44 council meetings.

Referring to Dr. Potter's charge that nothing was being done to provide the city with an industrialist or with a sewage disposal plant, Mayor Allin said nobody would like to see the city have to would for Belleville to be provided with these services.

"But we must remember," he said, "such things must be paid for by the taxpayer. If the taxpayer wants these services and is willing to pay for them, then fine."

A Stuart Robb, speaking as a candidate for the board of education, said there were several reasons why he was offering his services as a school trustee.

The first reason was a sincere desire to be of some service to the community. He felt that his training and experience as an engineer qualified him to be a member of the board and the board of commissioners of police as the building of new schools, modernizing existing ones, improved lighting and sanitation facilities.

Another reason was his desire to contribute what he could in seeing that his two children (he has two in public school) have opportunity of a first class education. He wanted them to study under teachers of the highest calibre and under the best of conditions.

Be sure you", he concluded, "that if you give me your support next Monday, I will do everything in my power to see a strong representation by you on the board of school trustees."

Wilbur J. Counsyman, as a newcomer in the aldermanic field, said he was offering himself as an alderman-at-large in the belief that he could deserve a "new and better deal."

Though the 1950 tax rate was nearly 30 per cent up over the year previous, and council members were still not satisfied and were spending money unwisely," he said.

He said that sound judgment was needed in city council that the business of the city may be conducted wisely and to the best advantage of the tax payers. If elected he promised to consider all city problems carefully and that certain the necessary economies could be effected to provide a more reasonable tax rate.

Newton Wilbur said his reason for offering himself as an aldermanic candidate was his interest in the city and in the city's business.

He pointed out that he had served as member of council and had acted as chairman on several of the more important council committees.

"I feel that my experience as chairman of these committees should assist me in my judgment of city business and in consideration of its many problems," he said.

If elected he promised 100 per cent attendance at council meetings.

Arnold C. Campbell, in offering himself for re-election as school trustee, spoke of his experience as chairman of finance and as head of the property and supply committee. Such experience would be valuable in future service he said.

Since being a member of the board he had attended all meetings and had given every problem his best consideration.

He referred to the contract for the new school which was a topic of much discussion last spring and pointed out he had been the only member of the board in favor the award of the construction contract to the lowest bidder.

Members of the school board gave much of their time in a purely voluntary capacity in looking after school matters and were not deserving of much of the criticism received. On the contrary constructive criticism or suggestions would be welcomed.

Next year there would be much work entailed in seeing proper repair to school buildings was carried out. There would also be the problem of additional accommodation at the collegiate and the possibility of the formation of a larger high school area. If elected, Mr. Campbell promised to give to these problems his best judgment.

Mr. C. C. Clarke, offering himself for council, felt that the city public works department was by far the most important department. Belleville as a growing city required vast expenditure for public works.

He pointed to his 26 years' experience with Bell Telephone and of his knowledge of construction. He felt sure this qualified him as an alderman — not on the public works department — but as supervisor with respect to the many city projects where money is spent.

"If like Belleville," he said, "and would be glad to serve."

Angus Duffy in offering himself for re-election to council pointed to experience gained as chairman of the welfare committee and as head of the fire committee. As chairman of welfare he had combined the office of welfare and sanitary inspector resulting in a considerable saving to the city.

He pointed to the local fire department as one of highest efficiency and best equipped of any between Toronto and Montreal. Good fire equipment and high efficiency means saving in insurance rates and money in the pocket for tax payers.

Mr. Duffy said he had favored a lender system in all city purchases and had been responsible for the introduction of the pension scheme for city employees. He had also supported housing.

For the future he made no wild promises which "could not be kept". Claiming that if

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

"I suppose you know your sister invited me to spend the night at Shore Acres!" she greeted him. "It was your idea, wasn't it? Something tells me it is tied up with our mystery."

"You're psychic." He picked up the bag. "Have you told Betsy Dig you will by away tonight?"

"Yes, and Lem and the new watchman. I even phoned Henry Sargent—may his tribe increase—for permission to leave."

"Feeling on top of the world aren't you? What was his reaction?"

"Go to it, or words to that effect, but he warned me to be sure and lock the door of my apartment. That deed is done."

"Then we are on our way. Just a minute, have you had a chance to sound out Betsy about the fake phone call, has she told you the name of her suspect?"

"I asked her. She wouldn't tell me, said Lem warned her again that they could get into a heap of trouble if they talked. You might try, you are perfection in her eyes."

"You bet I can't acquire top rating with another person —who shall be nameless for the present. Hang it, there's the phone. Don't answer Fran, or we may be held up."

"It could be your sister trying to reach you."

Sargent gallery. Yes, he is. Just a minute."

"Jaffray speaking."

"Keep away from the Trent place tonight," a low voice said. A click and the line was silent.

"What was it, Major? Anything to change our plans?"

"Change them woman? Not a chance. Come on, the night is young and I'll tell you the rest later."

They dined and danced at a most lavishly decorated night spot a few miles north on the coast. Each table skirmed musicians were giving out with brass and strings. "You were Meant for Me," tenderness, love and longing in every note.

"You said you would explain why you needed my advice and about what later," Fran reminded. Isn't this late enough?"

"Not quite. I'm saving the story for a conversation piece on the way home so you won't be bored. One more dance. Then we'll go."

"You were meant for me," Myles repeated softly. "Are you? I think you are," he added as he put his arm about her.

Was she? Why not let herself go and really like him? Suppose he did "love and leave"? She'd have fun while with him, would she? She would be the only one to suffer when it was over. Crazy thought.

"I'm still here"—Myles voice in her ear. Myles's arm tightening in reminder.

"I'm sorry, I was absorbed in thinking—"

"Absorbed, you're telling me. Let's go."

In the parking place made brilliant as day by floodlights he held her long green wool coat. "Better put this on. You are warm after dancing and there's a bit of breeze."

"Look! Quick. Front seat of the limousine just pulling out. The black one. Did you see him?"

"Him? Who?"

"Our ex-butler, ex-Dunkirk, in chauffeur's livery."

"Boy, did he see you?"

"I think not. He had all he could do to get out without hitting a car."

"Hop in. We're following." He kept a discreet distance behind the large black car, its taillight a red polka dot ahead.

"I'd give a hundred dollars if the top of this convertible were up," he declared. "We are conspicuous as two gulls perched on the bell buoy."

"May be, but the top down makes deliciously cool driving. It was hot inside. What a sky, bespangled with stars. There goes a shoot—" The windshield mirror reflected his grin.

"Remembered the penalty that goes with the mention of a shooting star just in time, didn't you, Miss Phillips?"

"I'm really a very quick thinker," she appraised herself with exaggerated modesty.

"I'll say you are. I'm pretty quick myself as I would prove if I didn't have to keep my eyes on that light ahead."

"Can you talk as you drive," she chanted in waltz time, "because if you can now is the time for the conversation piece you were saving."

"Don't tell me you are bored so soon."

"I'm not bored. I'm curious, no, intensely interested is better."

"Wait till we see where the limousine ahead is going. If you are right and the man Barth is driving, I'm all at sea about what what is scheduled to take place at midnight." She sat up straight and expectant.

"Midnight. Myles, what do you mean?"

"I like the feel of your hand on my arm, Fran." She snatched it back and clasped it hard with the other in her lap. "But don't do it so suddenly. It started the car on a slight detour. Steady again. Put it back. Golly, I looked at you for a split second and lost the light."

"The moral of that is, don't look at me. What do we do now that we've lost it?"

"Go on until, or if, we come to a crossroad. The black limousine must have turned off."

"And if there isn't one?"

"Go back. This highway leads to Canada and way stations. Too late to start for that."

"Canada. Our man Barth would be safe across the border, wouldn't he?"

"Safe from what?"

"Arrest."

"Do you still believe he is responsible for the break at the gallery?"

"I have done a lot of thinking about him and have concluded that he is a D.P."

"A Displaced Person? That's a new angle. I don't get it. What object would he have in telling so many contradictory stories about himself?"

"He may have slipped into the country without credentials, it's being done. With his free-wheeling mind—if free-wheeling is what I think it is—he could — Look! At the right. A road!"

"It is. Some way back I noticed the break in the treetops. Shall we follow? Are you game?"

"I wouldn' miss seeing the elusive Mr. Barth's when we catch up with him for the choicest Byzantine enamel in the gallery."

"I still wish we had the top up."

He turned the roadster into the side road. "You may bet your last dollar I wouldn't take you you into this if I thought there was danger, D.P. or Dunkirk. I'm sure Barth is not a criminal."

"This road can't have been used much, it is so narrow. Ooch! What happened!"

"Don't stop, nothing, really. A branch brushed my shoulder, gave me the jitters, angered the man we are after had grabbed me."

"Is that all, thought for a minute you'd been hurt." He drove forward slowly, looking to the right and left.

It wasn't "all," but this was not the moment to tell him that it had been her cheek, not her shoulder, the branch had grabbed and grabbed hard. Oooch, how it smarted. Felt moist. Bleeding? She didn't dare touch it for fear he would see her. He mustn't suspect. Nothing must interfere, surely not this little scratch, with his pursuit of the man whom she believed to be guilty if he did.

"Fireflies are out with their lanterns, swarms of them. Look. See something shining?" she whispered.

He nodded, drove on slowly. Stopped when a large black limousine blocked the road perhaps twenty feet ahead. The lights of the convertible illumined the license plate.

"For sir. We're following." He kept a discreet distance behind the large black car, its taillight a red polka dot ahead.

"I'd give a hundred dollars if the top of this convertible were up," he declared. "We are conspicuous as two gulls perched on the bell buoy."

"May be, but the top down makes deliciously cool driving. It was hot inside. What a sky, bespangled with stars. There goes a shoot—" The windshield mirror reflected his grin.

"Midnight. Myles, what do you mean?"

"I like the feel of your hand on my arm, Fran." She snatched it back and clasped it hard with the other in her lap. "But don't

"New York," Myles said softly. "Stay here. I'm going to investigate."

"I'll come with you."

"No." He held the door he had partially opened. "Stay where you are, Fran, I may have to dodge back. If you are with me I'll be handicapped."

"Do you mean that I would be excess baggage?"

"That's just what I mean, Franny. Many a man in a dangerous situation has lost his life because he had to look out for a person who through the mistaken idea that he or she could help had come along, while had he only himself to look out for, he would have pulled through. Understand?"

"Yes, sir. After that, nothing would tempt me to leave this seat sir."

"Now you are off my mind. Listen, hear anything?"

Nothing but the hard beat of her heart at first, then the cautious rustle of unseen living things on the ground the crack of a twig; the distant barking of a dog, the faraway wail of the siren of a police car, the whisper of leaves as a light breeze stirred them.

"Nothing human," she whispered.

"Then here I go. Move into my seat. I'll leave the lights on and the engine running. If you see me hot-footing in this direction back out, I'll catch up with you. We can't turn here."

She watched tensely as Myles walked forward, his white clothes turned to gold color in the beams of light. He was making no secret of his approach, he was whistling softly. "You were Meant for Me."

Was the man, Barth, hidden in the shrubs lying in wait for him? Had her blood turned to ice? If not why would she shiver this hot night? She shouldn't have let him go alone, she might be of some assistance if the situation got rough.

She swung open the door, thrust out her foot, withdrew it slowly. Myles had said that many a man had lost his life trying to save a person who had come along thinking he might help.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1950

Tourists Do Not Complain Of Food Quality but Prices Says Travel Bureau Director

Ottawa, Nov. 29—(CP)—Food, its lastness and its price from a tourist point of view, came in for a round-table discussion Tuesday at a federal-provincial tourist conference.

D. Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Travel Bureau, said tourist complaints were not about the quality of Canadian food but about its price.

Mr. Dolan thought provinces should do more to publicize their own particular dishes. And he disclosed that he had a plan to send about three railway cars across Canada to give demonstrations in cooking, cooking equipment and dining room fixtures.

The only thing that had to be figured out was who was going to pay for it?

The three-day conference, which opened yesterday with a private meeting of federal and provincial government representatives, heard a warning from Resources Minister Winter that competition for the tourist dollar will be keener than ever in 1951.

Figures presented to the conference showed that most provinces received more tourists in 1950 than they did in 1949. No national figures were given.

British Columbia reported 1,170,000 tourists, an increase of 2.5 per cent over 1949. Alberta estimated its tourist entries at 1,100,000, an increase of 10 per cent over 1949. Saskatchewan's entries at 66,000 were up 9.6 per cent.

Manitoba Had Decrease

Manitoba, ravaged by serious floods last spring, had 390,000 visitors from the United States, a decrease of four per cent.

Ontario had the largest number of tourists—21,000,000, an increase of three per cent. Quebec was next in line with 3,585,000 tourists, an increase of 7.2 per cent.

New Brunswick attracted 500,000 tourists, an increase of 17.4 per cent. Nova Scotia said its final figures were not yet available. Prince Edward Island had 105,324 tourists, an increase of 3.6 per cent.

Newfoundland said it had no statistics for 1950, although a heavy increase in correspondence was indicative of an excellent tourist season.

T. J. Courtney, director of the Nova Scotia Bureau of Information, said something should be done about teaching tourist establishments, restaurants and hotels how to prepare food.

No grandiose scheme was needed, Mr. Dolan said. It was necessary was two or three people to go around the country showing how food should be prepared. The greatest complaint by tourists was about the food.

E. C. Rowebottom, deputy minister of trade and industry in British Columbia, said Canadians should show more imagination in menus. Railway dining cars, for instance, advertised simply "panfried fish" when actually they were serving British Columbia salmon, halibut or trout.

Mr. Dolan said the matter was one for the provinces. He said more could be done to prepare foods for which the provinces were noted.

Ask Cafes to Co-operate

Hon. L. H. Eyres, minister of trade and industry for British Columbia, feared the effect the publicity about Canadian food might have on the tourist industry. He suggested the Canadian Restaurants Association should be approached and asked to co-operate.

Mr. Dolan said publicity on the discussion about food would show that Canada was alive to the problem and was doing something to improve the food.

R. P. Gross, director of the Manitoba tourist department, said a survey conducted by his department in United States had shown that 75 per cent of the tourists believed Canadian food was good. The same survey showed that the tourists spent an average of $2.80 a day on food. If a tourist bought a meal for 50 or 60 cents naturally he was not going to get the best of food.

MADE TO PICK UP HIKERS

Vienna, Nov. 29 — (AP) — United States military police said last night that American motorists are being forced to pick up unwanted Russian soldier hitchhikers on the international highway between Vienna and the west. Police said Soviet sentries halt American cars and refuse them permission to go ahead unless they make room for the hitch-hikers.

New Protestant Church Formed In Cleveland

Cleveland, O., Nov. 22—AP—The National Council of Churches of Christ, manifesting "the essential oneness" of 29 protestant and Eastern orthodox churches, was born today.

Formal information of the council, which will co-ordinate the work of 31,183,227 communicants, came here this morning in Cleveland's giant auditorium.

This is one of the most significant movements by the protestant churches since the Reformation wherein Protestantism itself was born.

Some say today's ceremony marks a more-important religious event than the forming of the World Council of Churches at Amsterdam, The Netherlands. The National Council, they say, is an action organization.

"This National Council of Churches of Christ . . . has just been growing," said Dr. Ralph W. Sockman of New York, pastor of the Christ (Methodist) Church last night in a sermon at the constituting convention's opening worship service.

"The religious world has been waiting and praying for some great act of faith to arouse and inspire the churches. This is the upward step toward religious unity which America has yet seen, and may well prove epochal."

Work of 10 Years

Today's action crowns the work of 10 years by eight interdenominational church agencies and an idea that took part of the protestant scene for two decades.

The chief spirit which took the intitative in planning the council are the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ, Foreign Missions Conference, Home Missions Council, International Council of Religious Education, Missionary Education Movement, National Protestant Council on Higher Education, United Council of Church Women and the United Stewardship Council.

This is what the National Council will do:

Each of the eight charter organizations—plus perhaps as many as nine other groups—will disband and join the National Council, while immediately will move into the vacated fields of religious work with its own department.

Generally speaking, the staffs of the disbanding organizations began working on their idea of unity, four other organizations have joined: The Church World Service, Inter-Seminary Committee, Protestant Film Commission, Protestant Radio Commission.

National Council officials say "four or five others" are contemplating joining.

MAN BELIEVED KILLED

Sudbury, Ont., Nov. 29 (CP)—One man was believed killed last night when the car in which he and two companions were riding skidded through the guard rail of a bridge a few miles west of here, plunging into the north river.

Sam Levigne, age and address unknown, was believed still in the car which is lying upside down in five feet of water. His companions, Gordon Hamilton and Leo Roy, escaped from the vehicle and walked several miles to Sudbury police. The three men were on their way to a job in a lumber camp 58 miles west of Sudbury.

Crown Continues Case Against Genereux Ruest

Quebec, Nov. 29 (CP) —The Crown will continue today to lay before Quebec criminal court details of a September, 1949, airline crash in which Genereux Ruest is accused of murder.

The 54-year-old crippled watch maker is accused of manufacture of a dynamite bomb controlled by an alarm clock while knowing it would be used to destroy a Canadian Pacific airliner.

Twenty-three persons died in the crash.

Police photographer Maurice Hebert yesterday showed the jury of men photographs of the C.P.A. plane wrecked at Sault Au Cochon, 20 minutes out of Quebec, Sept. 9, 1949.

Hebert also displayed photographs of some of the 23 victims of the crash, including 28-year-old Rita Guay, whose husband awaits execution Jan 12 for hatching the time-bomb plot with her death as its goal.

Most of the evidence was presented before when J. Albert Guay, the woman's 33-year-old husband, went on trial for murder and was convicted earlier in the year.

It is being repeated for the benefit of the Ruest trial jurors so they will be able to have a full picture of the case when they are called on to decide if the watchmaker was Guay's accessory.

Pretty Lucille Levesque, a C.P.A. ticket-seller at a Quebec hotel counter, told yesterday how Guay appeared Sept. 6 to buy tickets for his wife on a Quebec-Sept. Iles flight and $10,000 travel insurance on her life.

The dark-haired witness said Guay at first tried to get passage on a Sept. 7 C.P.A. flight from Quebec.

She said no space was available for Mrs. Guay until a cancellation was made, and when she telephoned Guay about it the morning of Sept. 7 he said:

"It is too late."

The girl testified that she then put Mrs. Guay down for a flight to Sept. Iles Sept. 9.

Cross-examination by Irenee Simard, representing Ruest, the witness said she had not tried to sell the travel insurance to Guay but that he ordered it without suggestion from her.

Dairy Industry Threatened by Cheap Substitutes —Turnbull

Toronto, Nov. 29—(CP)—F. S. Turnbull of Ottawa, president of the National Dairy Council, said yesterday the Canadian dairy industry is threatened by cheap dairy substitutes allowed into the country without proper tariffs.

Mr. Turnbull told the Ontario Milk Producers Association that commercial bakeries are using cream substitutes and there are hardly any dairy products for which a substitue is not now on the market.

He charged that the public is being "defrauded."

The Association adopted a resolution expressing "keen disapprobation and entire disapproval" of the refusal of milk producers at Chatham, Ont., to accept an arbitration board price award.

"Such unwarranted action," the resolution said, "if allowed to go unchecked, can lead only to chaos, confusion and a disregard for the laws of the country."

New Treatment Shown For Ringworm

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 29 (CP)—A new treatment for ringworm was demonstrated before a group of mothers yesterday by Dr. Ruth Wolfe of Montreal. About 500 children are under treatment here for the skin disease.

The new method involves use of an ointment for medication and a liquid that kills fungus growth.

Public clinical treatments were discontinued last Thursday on grounds they were unsuccessful. City council then recommended that the board of health order quarantine for the children still suffering from the epidemic that has raged here for several months.

Special Session British Cabinet Held by Attlee

London, Nov. 29 (CP) —Prime Minister Attlee and his cabinet met in emergency session for an hour and 45 minutes this morning to discuss the China-Korean crisis.

Attlee then hurried to a caucus of Labor members of the House of Commons. There he is believed to have imparted to his followers decisions reached by the cabinet.

The government ministers were called together on short notice after Foreign Secretary Bevin had talked last night with Julius Holmes, minister of the United States Embassy.

Cabinet members were gravefaced as they entered No. 10 Downing Street, Attlee's official residence.

All declined any comment to waiting reporters.

It was assumed that Bevin would make a statement on the British view at the start of a two day foreign affairs debate in the Commons this afternoon.

Meantime usually well-informed quarters here believed Britain is still fundamentally opposed to granting Gen. MacArthur permission for any form of air activity over Manchuria.

Britain's view that the Korean incident must be localized whatever the provocation is known to have been conveyed to Washington in the past when MacArthur asked for the right of pursuit for combat planes.

SEVERAL SIGN PACT

London, Nov. 29 — (Reuters)— Several sterling - area countries have signed an agreement with occupied Japan for the conduct of trade during 1950 - 51, the Board of Trade announced today. The sterling countries involved are Australia, Ceylon, India, New Zealand, South Africa, Britain and British Colonies, excluding Hong Kong. The new arrangement, which covers the year from July 1, 1950, to June 30, 1951, provides for exchange of goods estimated at £185,200,000.

Italy's 'Invisible' Blockade Snarling Up Tiny Communist Country of San Marino

By JAMES M. LONG

Rome, Nov. 29, (AP)—An "invisible" blockade by Italy is putting a serious kink in the economy of the tiny mountain republic of San Marino.

The basic reason for the blockade is that Italy's Christian Democrat government is not in sympathy with the 1,650-year-old republic's communist-dominated government.

The reason the blockade works is because tiny San Marino is one of the few states in the world wholly surrounded by another state. It perches on 38 square miles of mountain slope 11 miles inland from the Adriatic Sea. In every direction its 12,000 inhabitants look to Italy.

Up to now, San Marino's 60-member governing council has managed a balanced budget, San Marino has no public debt. Health services and similar benefits are socialized. A single "national bakery" bakes bread for the whole populace.

Recently the problem of running the little country became more difficult. Its budget began to go above the previous average of $1,000,000 a year total government costs.

Fancy Casino

So the practical-minded San Marinese set aside some surplus normal to their quiet, unpretentious way of life and put in a fancy casino to attract international gambling trade. That filled in the budget gap.

But now the Italian blockade is affecting that as well.

Tourists of many alike are finding it harder every week to get into the state.

Italian police jeeps and control points block the roads. There's no law against letting tourists or supplies across the San Marino border. But papers and documents and permits are demanded. Then they have to be countersigned by officials who aren't there at the moment.

For tourists it runs into a two to four hour delay, and is discouraging. For supplies, the permits holds up truckloads by the day, until shippers figure it isn't worthy trying to get through.

It is hard for San Marino to find a basis for protest, because none of this control takes place on the San Marino-Italian frontier, nor even in sight of it.

The road blocks are five to ten miles away, in Italy. They just "happen" to cover all the roads that go on in the direction of the little mountain state.

So far it's an impasse.

NO CHIEF APPOINTED

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 29 (CP) — The Windsor Police Commission adjourned Tuesday after a one-day meeting with no announcement on whether a new chief of police had been chosen. The commission set no date for its next meeting.

Judge Archibald Cochrane, commission chairman, and Magistrate Roland A. Harris met in private to discuss applications for the full-time job made vacant a month ago by the commission's dismissal of police chief Claude Renaud and deputy chief W. H. Neale. The third member of the commission, Mayor Arthur J. Reaume, was not present at the meeting.

Farmers Prepared For Snowfall

Toronto, Nov. 29 (CP) — Most Ontario farmers were well prepared for the season's first heavy snowfall last weekend, the agriculture department said today in its weekly crop report.

Elgin, Kent and Lambton counties in the southwest reported, however, that some crops were left unpicked when the snow fell. An estimated 75 per cent of Elgin's corn was left in the fields.

Good feed supplies were assured for the winter in most parts of the province and best cattle drew high prices at regional sales.

Modernistic Trend In Journalism

It could be the answer to a newspaper reporter's prayer.

City editors should welcome it, if for nothing more than accuracy.

At least, it is the peak of the modernistic trend in newspaper reporting, and it happened in the news room of the Ontario Intelligencer this morning.

In short, it was off the record, literally speaking, to on the record.

It was a wax recording of a reception tendered to a well-known citizen on the eve of his retirement.

The recording machine was brought to the news room, the record was played, and there was the story, correct in every detail.

Perhaps in the future a machine may be developed which will not only record the story, but write it and bring it to the news room.

Electrification In Rural Areas Will be Extended

Toronto, Nov. 29—(CP)—Rural electrification in Ontario will be speeded up next year to the extent where it may overtake the backlog of applications for power and also care for new applicants, Robert H. Saunders said last night.

In a radio address aimed at rural Ontario, the chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission said:

"It is our aim to construct some 4,200 miles of new rural line and connect over 35,000 new rural customers in 1951."

During 1950, he added, 3,300 miles of rural lines and 34,000 customers were added to hydro's system. Since 1945, hydro had spent $85,000,00 on extending rural services, increasing its customers from 14,000 to 288,000.

NEW ORDNANCE DEPOT

Ottawa, Nov. 29 — (CP) — A new Canadian Army ordnance depot, to be concerned for the time being at least only with the packing and maintenance of army parachutes, now is being organized at Shilo, Man., Army headquarters announced last night. It will be known as No. 22 Central Ordnance Depot and will be commanded by Maj. R. N. Brooks, 36, of Ottawa.

Mrs. Waynick says some of the phone conversations are more interesting than the radio programs.

Detroit Red Wings Wonder What's Happened to Line Of Howe, Lindsay and Abel

(By The Canadian Press)

With less than one-third of the 70-game schedule over, Detroit Red Wings, National Hockey League champions, have become statistics-conscious.

Their season record—10 victories, five ties and four losses in 19 games—is no cause for alarm They're firmly planted in second place with 24 points, seven back of Toronto Maple Leafs, who have played three more games.

But after a check of scoring statistics, they're a bit disconcerted to find only Gordon Howe of their once-great goal-production line among the league's first 10 scorers.

Ted Lindsay, Sid Abel and Howe monopolized the first three places in the scoring race almost throughout last season, and they finished one, two, three.

Without Abel, replaced at centre by Metro Prystai, the line has been scoring only 33 per cent of the points this season compared with 45 per cent in the 1949-50 campaign.

This is said to have given rise to the question in Detroit: Has the switching around of Abel and Prystai at centre upset the line?

To date, the Wings have been averaging 2.26 goals a game compared with 3.37 last season. They're not blaming the defence because, even with Black Jack Stewart and goalie Harry Lumley gone, the team's goals against has dropped from 2.34 for the whole of last season to 1.52.

The Wings tonight are in Boston for a game with the cellar-entrenched Bruins, while in the other scheduled engagement Chicago Black Hawks invade New York for a tussle with fifth-place Rangers.

Both the Wings and Chicago fans have an opportunity to get close up on the Leafs, who don't swing into action until tomorrow night when they clash with Canadiens at Montreal.

Former Rockets star, Jud Smark will be out there doing his stuff on a Redmen front line tonight in Peterborough when the redshirts tangle with the league-leading Eagles of that city. Jud will team up with Peter Jones and Doug Day on one of Coach Bent's revamped front lines.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers defeated Ottawa Rough Riders 18-16 in the Grey Cup final at Toronto nine years ago today. Then McCance fired a 35-yard field goal for the victory before 20,000 fans. It was Winnipeg's third Canadian rugby title. The previous one being in 1935 and 1939.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Both Belleville hockey teams leap into action on diversified fronts tonight with the senior Redmen trekking to Peterborough to take on the high-flying Eagles of that city, and the Junior "B" Rockets at home in Memorial Arena to the equally high-flying Oshawa entry.

DON'T MISS THIS!

"Smiley" Meronek's beardless buckaroos have won one of their first three starts and tonight sees their first clash with the Oshawans. Vic Berry's crew defeated the Peterborough Three Links in a close 5-4 battle and set-back the Port Hopers by an 11-8 score last Friday night. They are ridin' high, as it appears, but perhaps this plaudits will see them headed for the first fall. The Rocks have been plugging away faithfully in practice licks and Meronek hopes to have a strong squad out there tonight. There apparently isn't much to choose from as far as strength is concerned in this Junior "B" set-up, if games thus far are any criterion. The scores in nearly all the games have been close and strength appears to be more or less evenly distributed. Time will tell, however, and the season is too little advanced to get any real angle on the strength of the different clubs.

The Rockets can't afford to lose this game tonight, and you can bet your cranspeppie's store uppers that the kids will be out there giving all they've got for that important victory. Oshawa, it appears, has always been a more or less tough nut to crack for the Belleville younkers, but they've beaten 'em before and they feel they can do it again—and tonight. They will be at full strength, and if the Oshawans put up the typical battle which they should, then the faithful should be in for a good evening's hockey entertainment.

WHO'LL BE THE FIRST?

Coach Wally Bent has made a change or so in his Redmen lineup for tonight's important tussle against the loop-leading Peterborough Eagles. After the bitter battle of last Friday night, which the Eagles admit, via the column of the Perdueville Pillar, was the toughest they have had this year, Bent figures that with a change or so, the Rambunctious Reds can defend the haughty Eagles right in their own nests. The high-flying birds of the senior group have yet to taste the cup of defeat, but that victory mug has been plenty shaky on a couple of occasions, and last Friday night was one of them.

Tonight will see La Petit Maurecse LeFort, b'lar, in dose net and in front of him Vern Goyer will team up with Tommy Schreiber, Doug Basiedo and Lou Schmidt will alternate in the behind-the-blueline duties.

The first-line shock troops will be Jackie Wardhaugh flanked by Johnny Green and Brian Mulvihill. Peter Jones will centre Dougie Day and Jud Semark on the second line, with a newcomer, Kinz, ex RCAF player centering Doug Free, who has been moved up front and Keith MacDonald.

Coach Bent announced today that Tim Williams, Leo Goyer and George Graham will be benched for tonight's tussle. Jerry Mosher, Jack Sharp and a player named Capp will also be temporarily sidelined, but will be retained on the team's roster.

* * *

As a matter of fact, Bent said, the above-named playing team and other players now constitute the roster of the squad and in future all practices will be confined to the Memorial Arena alone. It looks though Bent has made some sort of a final selection, which he must in a short time and is narrowing the field down to what players he figures can make the team.

* * *

'NO FATHER, NO MOTHER'

The Belleville Merchants entry in the, Trent Valley Hockey League are not letting the alfalfa sprout under their numbers. The boys have had their entry accepted and paid the fifteen - dollar entry dues. They have a fine roster of players eligible for the squad and on paper the Belleville entry should give the best of the Valley teams a run for their money.

* * *

President Ronnie Fralick and his executive are working hard trying to make something out of that shoestring they started with and it is hoped hockey-minded merchants and others will co-operate with the lads. Tomorrow they start a canvass of the business section with the hope they will be received courteously. If they do not leave financially better-ed. Al. Kelleher and Bill Hurst are the accredited representatives of the club and as such, will call upon the business section of the town.

* * *

The Merchants team will be comprised of players who have been unable to make the senior or junior grade in the city, and they hope, through the medium of the Trent Valley League to get a chance to play hockey and also to represent their native city.

* * *

Harry Semark will coach the squad which will include besides others, such well - known city players as Art. Wright, Bill Hurst, Don Adams, Harry Wardhaugh, Huck Reeves, "Forky" Yorke, Earl Cousins, Moe Garvin and Don Semark. It is expected that some players at present with the Redmen, and who will be cut loose will join the team. Jack Whalen, Checker Taxi is the business manager and secretary treasurer of the club, and any generous - minded citizen desirous of helping the boys can leave their donations with John.

The team will hold its first practice in Memorial Arena on December 7, starting at 10 p. m. Any player wishing to try out will be given a cordial welcome.

Driver Features Harness Meet With 4 Winners

Toronto, Nov. 29 (CP)—Driver E. L'Heureux featured harness racing at Dufferin Park Tuesday by guiding home four winners. He won two heats with Wintercot in the first race, and another double with Amos Pointer in the third event.

The feature race, a classified pace event, provided two of the most thrilling races of the day. In the first heat, Mac Hyatt, owned by Jimmy Cruise of Sheperdsville, Ky., and driven by Bob Forbes, went away with his field.

In the second heat Mac Hyatt made a break as the field was sent on its way and lost all chance, finishing sixth, with Byrondale, owned by Wells and Hess of Morrisburg, Ont., winning another photo over Guy Mac, who finished third in the first dash. Byrondale was driven by Percy Robillard and was first in the summary with a 5-1.

Director Smythe Has Real Problem On His Hands

(By The Canadian Press)

A year's managing director Conn Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs had fat-man goalitending worries; now he's into a thin-man problem.

The burning question is whether to keep six-foot-two Al Rollins in the team's goal or send pudgy Turk Broda back into action after four games on the sidelines.

"It's a tough one," Smythe said said Tuesday. "I've got to decide whether to keep the thin man in there and let him get thinner or whether to go back to the thinned-down fat man."

When the National Hockey League season started, the Toronto plan was to use rookie Rollins in about 25 of the 70 games.

But Rollins, improving every time out, was forced fresh consideration of the matter.

Right now, the problem is whether to send Rollins against the Canadiens in Montreal Thursday night or to call back Broda who was beaten 5-2 in his last start there. If Rollins plays and loses, the critics will have a field day. It'll turn out the same if Turk goes and he loses.

And from a long range standpoint, if Rollins keeps working Broda may go stale from lack of action. The same thing applies the other way too, because Rollins improved considerably in his busy four-games-in-five days stretch.

Cincinnati Reds let one coach go Tuesday and got word that another has decided to stay with them instead of going to Cleveland Indians. Dismissed from the coaching roster was Gus Mancuso, former major league catcher. Tony Cuccinello, a Cincinnati coach for the last two seasons, notified club officials that he would be back for 1951.

In Montreal, Myer Insky, who next February will take over the presidency of the Canadian Rugby Football Union, said he will bring up the matter of field conditions for the Grey Cup final at the C.R.U.'s annual meeting in Toronto. Sharp criticism was voiced by football officials after last Saturday's Dominion championship game at Toronto's Varsity Stadium. Playing on an extremely muddy field, Toronto Argonauts won the Grey Cup by beating Winnipeg Blue Bombers 13-0.

The St. Paul Hockey Club announced that defence-man Ray Hamilton has been returned to New York Rangers of the National Hockey League so that coach Clint Smith could remain on the active list. One player has to be dropped to bring the team within the required numbered.

The Vanquished Blue Bombers came home to Winnipeg yesterday and received a victory welcome. Hundreds of noisy fans crowded into the C.P.R. station rotunda to say "well done" to the blue-and-gold depilte their 13-0 defeat last Saturday in the Grey Cup final against Toronto Argonauts. Bomber president Ralph Misener promises a better team next year. But he would not comment when newspaper men asked whether coach Frank Larson will be back in charge.

In Brooklyn, it was announced that Ev Palica, 22-year-old Brooklyn pitcher, has been turned down by the United States Army because of high blood pressure.

The Cape Breton Senior Hockey League says it is "most willing" to co-operate with the Maritime Senior Hockey League in working out an interlocking schedule "to improve league calibre and interest in Maritime hockey." In a prepared statement the three-team league said it would accept "the most practical plan offered" for such a schedule with the four-team M.S.H.L. The Cape Breton loop embraces Glace Bay, Sydney and North Sydney. Halifax, Charlottetown, Moncton and Saint John make up the Maritime League. The statement said "it considered a foregone conclusion that either a three-team league or a four-team league is doomed to failure in a comparatively short time because the public tires of watching the same players every night."

In Kitchener, retirement of Mike Dmitro, 31-year-old left winger, was announced by Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association major circuit. Dmitro learned his hockey in minor leagues in Kitchener and turned professional with New Haven Eagles of the American League. He returned to Ontario senior hockey with Stratford, now disbanded, before joining the Dutchmen in the 1947-48 season.

Guelph Biltmores Defeat Barrie By 9-7 Count

(By The Canadian Press)

For anyone who likes plenty of scoring and wide open hockey there's no need to look further than the Ontario Hockey Association's 10-team Junior A circuit.

With the season about a quarter finished, the kids are pushing the puck past the goaltenders at a rapid rate. They've played 79 games so far and the puck has been in the net 1,026 times for an average of more than eight a game. That compares with less than five a game for the National Hockey League.

Guelph Biltmores and Barrie Flyers did more than their share for the scoring statistics last night when the seventh-place Blits made a remarkable recovery to whack the league leaders 9-7.

It was the 20th time this season that 10 or more goals have been scored in a single game and the third in which the total has been 16 each case either Barrie or Guelph has had a share.

The victory moved the Biltmores up a couple of notches in the league to fifth place, one point behind Stratford and six behind the Flyers who missed a chance to extend their two-point lead over Toronto Marlboros.

The game was the only one in the junior circuit. Four games are scheduled for tonight. Barrie head home for another meeting with Guelph, while Galt is at Windsor, St. Catharines at Waterloo and Marlboros at Oshawa.

Two of Coach Smiley Meronek's dashing young Rockets, Peter Green and Billy Strachan will help in the Junior "B" bid for victory tonight against the loop-leading Oshawa youngsters. The Oshawans have won their first two starts and will be gunning for the third tonight. But the Rockets may have something to say about that — but plenty. Should be a tight little tussle in Memorial Arena tonight when the teams clash in a scheduled Junior "B" fixture.

St. Mikes Extend Lead

One game in the OHA major series saw Toronto St. Michael's extend their first-place lead to seven points by eking out a 2-1 triumph over second place Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen at Waterloo.

A pretty third-period goal by ager Bill McCracken gave the Irish their win after the teams had fought on even terms from the first period when John Uhrich, leading scorer, tallied for St. Mike's and Don Oberholtzer tied it up for the Dutchmen, only team to defeat the league-leaders so far this season. The other two teams get into action tonight when last-place Toronto Marlboros visit Hamilton Tigers.

The junior game appeared to be developing into a rout for Barrie as they took a 5-3 lead in the first period. However, Guelph came back with four in the second while Barrie got one, making it 7-6.

Dean Prentice, who got three goals for the winners, tied it up in the last period and then got the clincher shortly after. Ken Laufman got a pair for Guelph with the others going to Herb Dickenson, Andy Bathgate and Harry Howell.

Jerry Barber and Doug Towers got two each for Barrie, Gerry Toppazzini, Real Chevrefils and Chuck Woods getting one apiece.

Dressen Promises To Put '50 Team Through Wringer

Brooklyn, Nov. 29 — (AP) — Brooklyn's disappointing Dodgers of 1950 "are going the collapsible pitching staff, will be put through the wringer in 1951.

This was promised yesterday by new manager Charlie Dressen, who was named to succeed Burt Shotton in a move that surprised nobody. Salary terms were not disclosed, but it was reported the figure is $40,000 a year.

"I've read everywhere that Brooklyn should have won the pennant by 10 games last year," Chuck told reporters. "I wouldn't know. But I can tell you this. I'm going to find out.

"You ask me about the pitching staff which was such a disappointment last season. That's something I can't answer right now. All I know is that when I left the club, we had a 20-game winner in Ralph Branca and another sensational pre 20-game winner in Rex Barney. Something happened to them since I left. I know what it is. I sure am t, to find out."

Dressen said he will discontinue the Dodger police of having the players on all the Brooklyn farms train together with the parent club during the spring.

"The Brooklyn club will train at Vero Beach, Fla., by itself," he said. "Not until it leaves for Miami on March 10 will the minor-leaguers be permitted to start. The Dodgers will then remain in Miami until we head north."

Asked what he thinks of his team's chances for '51, Chuck laughed and replied:

"I see where Leo Durocher already has named us as the team to beat. Funny thing, all the Pacific Coast scouts have told me that the Giants will be the team to beat next year. However, I think we've got as good a chance as anybody else to win the pennant."

Dressen said he is well acquainted with the Dodger personnel although it has been four years since he served in the National League. After leaving Brooklyn in 1947 to join the Yankees in a similar coaching capacity, Charlie moved on to Oakland, where he managed the last two years. Oakland won the Pacific Coast League flag in 1950.

McFATER WINS DECISION

Toronto, Nov. 29 (CP) — Alan McFater, 19-year-old lightweight scored a unanimous decision over Tom McMenamey of Belfast, Ireland, in the main bout of a professional card before 3,500 fans here last night.

Results included:

Bryan Kelly, 133, Niagara Falls, Ont., decisioned Tilton Leblanc, 129, Moncton, N.B. (6).

Gordon Wallace, 153½, Brantford, Ont., decisioned Ray Byran 163, Brooklyn, N.Y., (6).

Brion Predicts Kayo in Seven Over Joe Louis

Chicago, Nov. 29 — (AP) — Young Cesar Brion, full of vim and confidence, predicts a kayo within seven rounds of Joe Louis in their scheduled 10-rounder in Chicago Stadium, tonight.

The 23-year-old Argentine heavyweight is at the short end of 4-1 odds to defeat Joe. Louis, trying a second comeback at 36 after being decisively beaten in 15 rounds by Ezzard Charles in September still thinks he packs enough dynamite to chill Brion.

Although not appearing impressive in training sessions, Louis may be will try to end the fight as soon as possible. He would not name the round.

"I'll shoot for a knockout from the very start and throw as many rights as possible," promised Louis.

A crowd of possibly 10,000 and a $250,000 gate, largest since the International Boxing Club began stadium promotions 18 months ago, may be realized. Louis will receive 27 1-2 per cent of the net gate. His pay-off may amount to less than $10,000 — the smallest purse for a regular bout he ever has received. He made more in some of his exhibitions two years ago.

Both fighters will get a flat $1,000 each from radio and television fees.

Brion will weigh 194, spotting the ex-heavyweight champion some 21 pounds. Joe expects to be three pounds lighter than when he met Charles.

"I believe my bad showing against Charles was because I just had an off night," said Louis. "I'm going to find out for sure tonight."

This will be Joe's first fight since the Charles bout in New York. After that bout he announced, for the second time, that he was retiring. A poor showing against Brion may make it definite.

Brion is an aggressive, stand-up fighter who lacks a chilling punch. His main bid to fame was a second-round knockout of Tami Mauriello in 1949. He has won 31 out of 34 bouts.

The "Mayor" is back.

Remember "Mayor" Tripp, who was the cage cop for the Junior "B" Rockets last winter, and who was regarded as one of the outstanding pipe policemen in the loop? Well, he's back inhaling the balmy breezes of the Bay of Quinte and will be seen in action tonight with the Rocks against the Oshawa Bees.

"Hizoner" who has been cavorting out where the deer and the antelope play" arrived in town last night. He should be a tower of strength to the Rockets defence.

Carl Galbreath Wins Imperial Oil Trophy

Toronto, Nov. 29 (CP) —Carl Galbreath, all-star backfielder for Toronto Balmy Beach, is the 1950 winner of the Imperial Oil Trophy, awarded annually to the most valuable player in the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

D. F. Downey, O.R.F.U. president, announced last night that Galbreath, a U.S. import, was selected in a poll of the players of the three senior teams in the league— Windsor Rockets, Sarnia Imperials and Beaches.

Galbreath, who came to Canada after playing football for University of North Carolina, was the league's second highest scorer with 54 points.

The Negro halfback came to Beaches from Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four. Noted for his speed and deceptive running style. He was outstanding in every game as Beaches picked up speed after a slow start and won the O.R.F.U. crown.

He was a unanimous selection, along with the league's leading scorer, Johnny Chorostecki of Sarnia, on The Canadian Press O.R.F.U. all-star team. And was selected for the second team in CP's eastern Canada all-star squad.

The trophy is usually presented to the winning player at the O.R.F.U. annual meeting each spring. However, should Galbreath not return to Canada to play next season, a silver tray will be sent to him as a personal tribute to the part he played in the ORFU.

Galbreath joins distinguished company as a winner of the trophy which goes to the most sportsmanlike and gentlemanly as well as valuable player.

Last year Ken (Sleepy) Knowles, tricky Sarnia backfielder, was the winner. Knowles played this season for Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Previous winners include Frank Filchock, Arnie McWatters, Al Lenard, Frank Gnup, Joe Krol, Bill Stukus, Syd Reynolds, the late Ormond Beach, Hugh (Bummer) Stirling, Norm Perry and Nick Pathouski.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

In expert bridge company, the laws and penalties are upheld to the extent of their knowledge. Except for tournament directors, few experts remember all the laws. They must look in the book.

A letter just reached me reading: South dealt and before anyone else said anything, north bid two hearts out of turn for which there is a penalty. The north hand is shown here:

♠K J 10
♥A K Q 6 3
♦A Q
♣K Q J

North was told that south must be silent. East did not say a word. Neither did south. West simply said pass. And north then bid three no-trump. Was this legal? My answer is definitely yes.

A bid out of turn is void. The auction reverts to the player whose turn it was to call. The offender's partner must pass to the end of the deal. But it does not bar the offender from bidding.

In other words, the offender is penalized only by having his partner prohibited from any action in bidding during that deal. His out of turn bid is as if he had never said it.

Thus, the two heart bid by north is void. The first call is supposed to start with the dealer. But in this case, south was the dealer and is barred from saying anything.

Therefore, the next player in turn starts. In this case, it is west. With a pass from west, north is then the next legal caller. North has the legal permission to make any call his heart desires.

If now the north player says three no-trump, therefore, it is perfectly legal. He could have bid seven-or five or one. Or could pass if he so elected in this spot.

North knows his partner is not permitted to say anything. So, south will not keep the bidding alive. Opponents would be chumps to do so. North should bid game ..while he has the chance.

Now or never.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 29 — AP — Again and again we have heard stories of stars who must lose weight for a picture. But here is one who has to shelve 250 pounds.

Rather than carry the gag any further, I'll explain that the star is Francis, the talking mule who made a comedy hit a season ago. Ever since then the famed quadruped has been resting on his laurels, among other things, on the Universal-International back lot.

But now the studio has cooked up an opus called "Francis Goes to The Races" to cash in on the initial film's success. And Francis has to slim down to his photogenic weight of around 700 pounds.

On a Diet

Francis is working off the poundage by taking forced runs and eating less hay. (He is never allowed such fattening foods as barley and oats.)

Although Francis is not allowed fattening foods, he is pampered in other ways. He is the only U-I star tucked in every night. A studio worker covers the mule with a blanket to keep him from catching cold.

Francis also requires make-up. Cameramen declare his coat is too light for photographic purposes, and so he is darkened with a vegetable dye.

Nothing, it seems, is too good for Francis.

Public Reaction Feared if Shotton Named Manager

New York, Nov. 29 —(AP) — Only fear over possible public reaction prevented the Brooklyn Dodgers from renaming Burt Shotton as manager for 1951.

The Associated Press learned from a reliable source today that Shotton had the inside track to return for his fourth full season as Brooklyn boss until as late as 10 days ago. It was only when club officials became convinced that the idea of rehiring Brooklyn's most successful pilot was dropped.

"Shotton is Walter O'Malley's (club president) man," the source said: "O'Malley is of the opinion that Shotton is a fine manager and did a good job last year. However, bad publicity has hurt Burt with the fans.

O'Malley allowed it to trickle out that Shotton might be rehired. He wanted to get the fans' reaction. And brother, he got it.

"A flock of letters, mostly criticising such a move, finally convinced O'Malley to discard the idea of retaining Shotton."

The story took on more credence when O'Malley held a press conference yesterday that he still considers Shotton a fine manager. But O'Malley named Charlie Dressen as his new manager.

O'Malley, privately, has little hope of inducing Shotton to remain in the Dodger organization. It is his belief that Burt will rejoin his old pal, Rickey, either as manager, coach or chief scout of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

KNOCKED OUT OF CAR

West Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 29 — (AP) — Actor Ray Milland was knocked out of his car in a collision in the fog yesterday, but suffered only a big bruise, police reported. Milland proceeded to the studio in a taxicab and was certified for film duty by studio physicians.

Century-Fox's "Two Flags West," now playing at the Odeon-McCarthy Theatre. Filmed on location in New Mexico, the hard-hitting Civil War epic co-stars Jeff Chandler and Cornel Wilde.

AT THE CAPITOL — Difficult moment in United Artists' "So Young, So Bad" is enacted by Paul Henreid, the psychiatrist, and Anne Francis, inmate of a home for delinquent girls. Tense film drama is at the Capitol Theatre for its first Belleville showing. On the same program "The Clay Pigeon," a suspenseful, thrilling drama, starring Bill Williams and Barbara Hale.

AT THE BELLE

Fun and Thrills Blend in "Mystery Street" and "The Skipper Surprised His Wife"

"Mystery Street", new M.G.M. thriller, showing at the Belle Theatre, is more than an exciting motion picture. It is a dramatic story behind the story of thousands of newspaper, headlines—the hidden murders which annually are written off the records as "accidental deaths." It brings to the screen for the first time in film history the most modern methods of crime detection as developed at Harvard's famed department of Legal Medicine.

Sequences taken in the department, as well as other scenes of Harvard, Boston and the Cape Cod area, were filmed on actual location.

The cast is headed by Ricardo Montalban and Sally Forest, with other featured roles filled by Bruce Bennett, Elsa Lanchester and Marshall Thompson.

M.G.M.'s Zany Domestic Comedy

It's a battle of the Sexes, with love, laughs and the U.S. Navy caught in a melee of fun when M.G.M. shows how "The Skipper Surprised His Wife" in the hilarious romantic comedy starring Robert Walker and Joan Leslie, the 2nd M.G.M. feature attraction on the same program.

Not since his memorable "Pte Hargrove" has Walker had a role so tailored to his talents as that of his current "Commander Bill Lattimer", in which he steps first into a naval officer's uniform then into a kitchen apron to prove that a home can be run just as efficiently as a ship.

And what a mate he has in Miss Leslie. Versatile star of such pictures as "Sergeant York," "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and "Bed of Roses", she now has an all-out comedy role as the young wife driven to desperate measures to prove that a woman's place is in the home—unhampered by a husband's advice!

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Your Venus only planet favorably aspected today gives you a generous lead over many, but by some token, you should work harder, perhaps lend an extra helping hand where needed.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—A day for sane caution, particularly in connection with legal and business matters, and where family's interests are concerned. Advancement can be made in familiar activities, your job.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Mild influences in your particular sector but some irritating influences prevail to be astutely on guard. Don't permit ill temper, surly unkindness or jealousy to hamper your usual kindly doings.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Irritating tendencies likely today but with sensible and adroit forethought and management you should be able to turn in a satisfactory day. You are clever, make the most of opportunity.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo)— Be on the watch, some very favorable tendencies, other influences not so helpful. Don't worry if you can't meet all demands. Laborious work, domestic chores may be easier than mental tasks.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra)—Your Venus is singularly in auspicious aspect today and things should hum with your capable help. It will be advisable to avoid extremes, and of course, do not indulge bad temper.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Friendly influences for home and private interests, artistic professions, not too helpful perhaps for money transactions. Be especially careful signing important papers, contracts.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn)— The conscientious, industrious Individual need not lose heart at difficulties, for often more can be attained on the supposed "toughest" assignments when application is right. Romance rules high.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Dealing in foods; handling farm products and sales for home and personal use first favored this most all-auspicious day. Mind promises, be punctual, accurate and all should go well.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces)—Extra caution urged in confidential matters, work for government and military forces. Care also needed in sciences, travel. Day can be progressive for home, religion, familiar interests.

You have today's versatility, application and agreeableness are among your fine attributes. You are outspoken, willing to aid ful, charitable. All this, of course, your Sign.

If you are living true to God's commandments and your inherent good characteristics, it is fair to yourself and family that you not wear yourself out striving, perhaps being imposed upon. We find fine writers, artists, musicians, able business executives in Syndicate, Inc.)

NO PASSENGERS KILLED

London, Nov. 29 — (Reuters)— No passengers were killed in train accidents in Britain last year — a record which has not been achieved since 1908. The annual report for 1949, issued by the chief inspecting officer of railways, showed 1,178 train accidents were reported in 1949. Twelve resulted in fatal injuries to persons other than passengers.

FRANKFORD

Wind Causes Much Damage

Frankford — The great wind-storm which struck this part of the country over the weekend took its toll in damage to Frankford and district. A limb blown off a large elm tree onto the roof of Bill Rowe's new dwelling, severely damaging one section of the roof. West of Frankford, the roof was blown off 4 machine sheds on the farm of Arthur Osterhout. The roof of Mr. George Arnott's dwelling also damaged. Trees were blown down in many sections, and Gordon Davies had a close call as one narrowly missed landing directly on top of his car. In Rawhawa, a family had a close call, as the wind blew coal gas and smoke back down the chimney of their dwelling, and scattered ashes out in front of their furnace.

Deer Kicks Car

Ralph Puffer had an exciting experience on the way back to Frankford, following a weekend visit to Lakefield/ On Sunday night, Ralph was driving south on Highway No. 14, and as he was pulling up a slight grade a short distance out of Marmora, he saw the shadow of something running alongside the car. Suddenly, a large deer bounded over the hood of the car, landing a healthy kick on the car as it departed.

The Bingo held for the Frankford Hockey Club Friday night was not as successful as hoped for, possibly because those who would have most benefited from it did not put in an appearance. The committee for the draw worked hard, and had a fine array of prizes. The biggest supporters of the Bingo, were members of the Lions Club. It is unfortunate that this worthy project was not better attended, but no event can be a big success unless the persons who will be benefiting from it at least make an appearance.

Plans are going ahead for party for the Frankford Bowling League, possibly between Christmas and New Years. Any member of the league who has suggestions along this line is urged to contact President Jack Farley as soon as possible. •MAY USE A-BOMB AGAINST CHINESE—TRUMAN

Says Russia Unlikely to Start War Now

Will Only be Used If Step Necessary President Warns

Full Co-operation With U.S. Urged By Churchill

Favors No Man's Land Strip to North in Korea

London, Nov. 30 — (Reuters) — Winston Churchill said today in the House of Commons that "it certainly does not seem in the Russian interest to begin a major struggle now."

Churchill said the United Nations should avoid by every means in their power becoming entangled inevitably in a war with China.

He said he regarded the "fundamental change" in United States policy as the best hope for saving western civilization from "communist and Russian conquest and control."

Rainbow debate on foreign affairs, the Conservative leader, who is 76 today, said the danger facing the world was not new.

It had been visible "in all its terrible potential" from the end of the Second World War, when the western armies were demobilized, but Russia maintained its military strength.

Restrained by U.S. Strength

"On top of this the Russian imperialists, clothed in a new garb, advanced to carry the creed of communism and the authority of the Kremlin forth in every direction until some solid obstacle was reached.

Churchill said that the Russians so far had been restrained by the "immense United States superiority in the atomic sphere" and by the consolidation of the western territorial gains they had made without military action.

Both these factors were diminishing and "the Soviet stockpile of atomic bombs is growing—how fast I do not profess to know.

"On this basis the war, if it ever comes—which God forbid—will come at the moment of their choice," he said solemnly.

He admitted, however, that "it certainly does not seem to be in the Russian interest to begin a major struggle now."

Churchill predicted it would take them three years to reverse the balance of military power in Europe in favor of the west.

"Dangerous as it may be to make such a prediction, I will venture to express the opinion that a major attack by Russia in Europe is unlikely in the near future, and that it will not be provoked or produced by the most insincere or contrived movement being so slowly, so tardily and ineffectively developed up to the present by the divided and feeble Atlantic Powers," he continued.

Hopes for Terms With Russians

He said he hoped the western nations might come to terms with Russia before she had accumulated a stockpile of atom bombs sufficient to terrorize the free world if not to destroy it.

He made a strong plea for continued full co-operation with the United States.

American superiority in the atomic field, combined with predominance in other military resources, Churchill said, enabled it to give us the means to talk together in a friendly and dignified manner, and "to talk together at least as equals."

Discussions should take place "in confidence, in privacy and even in secret, and not conducted at the highest level," he said.

Despite the military developments in Korea, he did not feel Russia would be in a hurry "to depart from their present policy of expansion by means of the cold war and of using others to advance their ends." He added:

Advises Against War With China

He said the United Nations should not get "entangled inexricably" in a war with China. The situation in the Orient was a "diversion," Churchill claimed, and "it is in Europe that the world course will be decided."

He said he had always hoped the allies in Korea would stop at the "neck waist" of the peninsula, leaving a "no-man's-land to the north."

He warned the Commons not to be too critical of the U.S. military command. Although the fighting was under the name of the United Nations "the burden falls almost entirely on the U.S."

Like his deputy, Anthony Eden, did not comment, directly or indirectly, of making to the common cause of the U.N."

Brantford, Nov. 30 —(CP) — Convicted of stealing apples from a farmer's orchard during a family picnic last month, James W. Barker of Toronto Wednesday was given suspended sentence and ordered to pay $50 costs. The farmer's neighbor in the St. George district, after he had toted down the licence number of an automobile whose occupants were helping themselves to apples.

TOP DIPLOMATS, MILITARY CHIEFS TO MEET DEC. 7

Will Discuss Latest Developments in Asia

London, Nov. 30 (CP)—British's top diplomatic and military chiefs of the three services in the Far East will meet Dec. 7 to discuss the latest developments in Asia, the foreign office announced today.

The meeting, which will be held at Bukit Serene, Malaya, near Singapore, will also be attended by the high commissioner of the area.

The urgent talks will be held under the chairmanship of Malcolm MacDonald, Britain's commissioner general in southeast Asia.

The purpose of the talks is to exchange information and ideas on the immediate military and diplomatic problems facing Britain and her friends in the Far East and what should be done to meet the situation.

The generals and the chiefs of staff points to a reassessment of British military strength and resources in the area.

Prime Minister Attlee meanwhile summoned Britain's service chiefs of staff to a cabinet meeting today of the Korea situation.

They discussed the latest dispatches on the large-scale Chinese intervention in the Far East.

The service chief are Lord Fraser, Admiral of the Fleet; Viscount Slim, Field Marshal; William Slim and Sir John Slessor, Marshal of the R.A.F.

Unofficial observers here are discussing the possibility of a meeting between Attlee and opposition leader Winston Churchill to consider the Korean crisis on an all-party basis, but the prime minister has given no signs so far of arranging such a meeting.

High up on the agenda of the meeting of cabinet will be the subject of red China's behavior and timetable, not only toward the western powers, but also towards her neighbors, Korea, Indo-China and Tibet.

Britain's roving ambassador in the Far East, Malcolm MacDonald, now in Tokyo, is expected to attend meetings of ambassadors from countries in Burma, Siam, Indonesia and other states in the area. Similar meetings among the Commonwealth countries, Britain, Canada, India and possibly Australia and New Zealand, will be there too.

Britain's chief of missions, both in Peiping and Tokyo, also have been summoned.

Higher Marketing Costs To Hit Retail Food Prices Government Expert Predicts

Ottawa, Nov. 30—(CP)—Higher marketing costs will leave their mark on Canadian retail food prices in 1951, C. V. Parker, Bureau of Statistics Agricultural Director, predicted today.

In a report to the ninth federal-provincial agricultural conference, he anticipated that Canada will suffer little from agricultural surpluses and that consequently fewer expenditures will require any special price or marketing assistance.

A strong Canadian demand for foodstuffs will help maintain farm prices next year. And though the prices the farmer receives for his products will be little changed from 1950, he believed that at the retail level "food prices will be affected by the increased marketing costs."

Dr. J. F. Booth top agriculture economist, reporting on the international scene, said raw material prices likely will be pushed upward next year, though these climbs may vary among individual commodities.

Mr. Parker's report on the domestic farm front emphasized the possibility of increased expenses for operating farms.

He believed that the general economic situation will be more favorable in the beginning of the new year than it was at the beginning of 1950. Wages and employment would increase, but the amount of money people would have to spend might be measures designed to reduce spendable income."

Stronger Than Ever

"In these circumstances, the demand for goods and services for personal consumption is expected to be stronger than ever. However, with defence requirements exerting their heaviest impact on hard-goods industries and on steel in particular, supplies of durable consumer goods may fall short of what the market would absorb.

"This factor, together with the recent tightening of credit control will have the effect of leaving more money available for purchase of non-durables including food."

Dr. Booth, looking at the world situation, predicted the possibility that rearmament may continue to strengthen the demand in the U.S. and western Europe for the kind of raw materials Canada and the sterling area, of which it is a part.

As for the future, "it is obvious that international political divisions, the character of which cannot yet be foreseen, will play a major part in determining future world trade."

Government Believes Russia Stock-Piling Atomic Bombs

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 30 (CP)—The government today indicated unofficial belief that Russia is stockpiling atomic bombs, and told Canadian communists to get out of the country.

Issuing a 46-page manual on "organization for civil defence," the defence department said Canada has a score of communities which, in the event Russia launch large-scale preparations swiftly.

It didn't name them, but said only that they now are considered targets for "deliberate atomic attack." It advocated that new communities, industries and installations be located outside them.

For smaller communities, the long-awaited manual advised the establishment of first aid, medical disaster plan and a skeleton organization.

It said the next few years do not threaten Canada with either a series of saturation air raids or a major land offensive, but warned that it would be foolish to neglect the possible air and submarine attacks probable should war come in that time.

"At the present time no potential enemy is believed to have the aircraft or a stock pile of atomic bombs sufficient to permit a series of saturation raids on North America," it said. "Moreover, compared to several other nations, Canada and her allies have many targets that would appear to justify the employment of an A-bomb out of present stocks."

But guide and nuisance raids were possible, in fact probable, in the event of war, and the whole booklet is predicated on the belief that that is what Canada has to face up to the next few years.

May Rattle Few Skeletons in Closet

By HAL BOYLE

With American Troops in North Korea, Nov. 30. (AP)—Behind the crushing defeat of the American Eighth Army in Northwest Korea are two great questions.

And some high-ranking officers believe the answers, when they come, will rattle a few skeletons in the American military establishment and perhaps force a revision in the American technique of waging ground warfare.

The questions they raise—and the fighting troops raise them to a man—are:

1. Why, before launching its disastrous "end the war" offensive didn't the American high command know the enemy had massed more than twice against it that victory was impossible?

2. Why was the enemy able unchecked to build the weak spot in the United Nations line while the Allied attackers were unable even to locate with certainty the general areas where the reds had massed their strength?

A number of officers give this as a general answer to both questions:

"Our intelligence was faulty and we again made the mistake of under-rating what a well-trained Oriental foot army can do." The same classic error was made early in July when American troops first ran up against the invading North Korean army. One officer said afterward:

"We honestly believed that all we had to do was stand up and they would run. Instead, they got the gooks would turn and go back across the 38th parallel."

Under-Estimated Ability

The Americans under-estimated the ability of the North Koreans then to compete successfully with a machine-equipped, mechanized force. They doubted the North Korean's ability to march and log long when they had to pack their supplies on human backs. They also under-estimated operations by foot at night. They did it.

Why then did the Americans under-estimate the ability of the Chinese communists to launch their Chinese communist attacks in Korea.

He said:

"We hope that the Chinese people will not be forced or deceived into serving the ends of Russian colonial policy in Asia."

He said there is no indication that the Chinese communist decision to send troops into Korea to engage in the normal "peaceful process of discussion and negotiation."

There was no reference in Churchill's statement to the atomic bomb. It was in response to questions that he said the situation in Korea is being giv-

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Nov. 30 (CP) —Synopsis: This area cloudy over Ontario on Wednesday and brisk winds made for a chilly day.

This morning's map indicates little change in the weather picture over the province for today, but on Friday light winds with occasional sunshine will give a pleasant day.

Storm warnings displayed on all the Great Lakes this morning will be repeated this evening as westerly gales of 35 to 40 miles per hour diminish during the day.

cher bearers carrying helpless wounded from the front lines up the long slopes of hill stations.

Ambulance drivers painted over the red crosses on their vehicles. Chaplains removed the red and white Red Cross armbands and equipped themselves with rifles. Non-combatant war correspondents who often found themselves in isolated areas felt safer with a gun for self-protection.

During the Taejon retreat, a Chaplain with the 24th Infantry Division stayed behind, unarmed, to care for wounded who could not be shifted back with the withdrawing troops. He was murdered.

Capt. John G. Burkhalter, Baptist padre with a 1st Cavalry Battalion, was one of the many decorated chaplain in the United States Corps. He rarely moved in the forward areas without either a .45 colt or a carbine.

"I don't like guns, but I feel that while it is against the policy of the chaplain corps to carry guns, it was generally accepted in Korea that it was up to the individual to choose.

"Those of us who have fire-arms have them so that we can look after the wounded if necessary," he said. "We have to remember that these Korean soldiers have never heard of the Geneva convention."

Fierce Resistance by UN Forces Checks Red Efforts to Envelop Flank, Pin Allies Against Sea

Seoul, Nov. 30 (AP)—A strange wintry quiet settled today over the bloody battlefields of northwest Korea. Communist Chinese massed on retreating United Nations forces all but stopped.

A U.S. military spokesman said the puzzling lull came after fierce resistance by American, Britons and Turks checked Chinese efforts to envelop the right flank and pin the allies against the Yellow Sea.

There is no ready explanation for the abrupt "time out" in the Chinese offensive—attempted which the United States Secretary of State, Dean Acheson, said created a situation of unparalleled danger" to world peace.

There were no reports that the Chinese had over-extended their lines from Manchuria and were pausing to regroup and resupply—or perhaps some under-cover decision on the diplomatic front stayed the troops.

However, at mid-day Thursday the lull seemed confined to the shrunken front along the Chongchon River in northwest Korea. In the northeast, American marines and infantrymen were battling armies of Chinese around the Changjin reservoir. And the allied supply line was cut.

The peril to the northwest was underscored by Maj.-Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the 10th corps in that area. He estimated that up to 60,000 Chinese "suddenly confronted" his forces.

But the main threat to the entire United Nations armed peacekeeping campaign was in northwest Korea. Heavily hit, the 110,000-man eighth army was trying to establish a new line south of the Chongchon River.

New Withdrawn

When the allies kicked off on the "end the war" offensive last Friday, they were arrayed along an 80-mile front inland from the Yellow Sea.

Overwhelmed by the Chinese counter-offensive, the bulk of the eighth army now has withdrawn to a line running 17 miles along the south bank of the Chongchon, with another 25-mile front slanting southeast from the river to Sinchang.

The slanting section is the right flank. In standing firm on that

1,500 Men in Dash From Red Trap Lose Hundreds of Dead, Wounded

On the Northwest Korea Front, Nov. 30 (Friday)—(Reuters)—The United Nations Command announced today hundreds of dead and wounded were left on the battlefield by the U.S. 2nd Division remained in the trap sprung by communists.

The wounded among those who survived the desperate journey were first treated by British medical orderlies.

But after over 100 badly-wounded men had arrived in the first 20 minutes, the casualty clearing station of the Middlesex Regiment ran out of morphine and bandages, and the wounded had to be sent straight to the rear without treatment.

He said: "What's just happened brought tears to my eyes. I went through it for nearly seven miles."

Tonight, the wounded were lying in the freezing cold in the open air at the casualty station, and the main body of the Turkish brigade and the U.S. 2nd Division remained in the trap sprung by communists.

Will Only be Used If Step Necessary President Warns

Says U.N. Have No Thought Of Abandoning Korea

Washington, Nov. 30 — (AP) — President Truman said today the United Nations forces will not back down in Korea, and that the atom bomb will be used if necessary to meet the military situation.

Truman's firm stand and mention of the most fearful weapon in the world's history came at a press conference filled to overflowing by 200 reporters.

The President said that whether the bomb was used was up to American military leaders in the field, but that personally he hoped it would not have to be employed.

This appeared on its face to mean the decision on dropping the bomb was one for Gen. Douglas MacArthur, but some two hours after the press conference the White House took pains to make it clear the final answer had not been left up to MacArthur.

A White House spokesman who declined to be identified, said Truman's remarks did not mean MacArthur himself can order use of the bomb. He noted that under the law all A-bombs are in custody of the atomic Energy Commission and that only the President himself can order their use.

Will Speed Armaments

Truman was drawn into discussion of the A-bomb by questions from reporters after he had read a statement denouncing the Chinese communist attacks on U.N. forces in Korea, attributed them to Soviet imperialism, and announced that the U.S. will speed up its mobilization of troops and armaments.

Truman also made clear he is strongly backing Gen. Douglas MacArthur who has been under some criticism chiefly abroad. The president sharply denounced a complaint by several Republican Senators that State Secretary Acheson had been critical of MacArthur, the United Nations Commander.

In a statement, the president said that the Chinese communist attack, made in great force, may lead to further reverses but that forces of the United Nations have no intention of abandoning their positions in Korea.

Fighting for Security

He said if the Chinese aggression is successful in Korea, "we can expect it to spread through Asia and Europe to this hemisphere," said Attlee.

"We are fighting in Korea for our own national security and survival."

The president plainly laid on Russia the responsibility for the Chinese communist attacks in Korea.

He said:

Senator Davies Weds in Toronto

Toronto, Nov. 30. (CP)—Senator W. Rupert Davies, publisher of the Kingston Whig-Standard, and Margaret Esther McAdoo, formerly on the administrative staff of the University of Alberta, were married today at St. Paul's Anglican Church.

Miss McAdoo, daughter of Mrs. Robert Wood, of Calgary, and the late W. H. McAdoo, of Kingston, was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Keith Wood-ington, of Ottawa. Her cousin, Miss Helen Ford, of Port Arthur, was bridesmaid. Senator Davies was supported by his nephew, Fred, of Brockville.

Senator and Mrs. Davies will leave for Bermuda for the honeymoon shortly after the year-end. Senator Davies is high sheriff designate for Frontenac County.

In a statement, the president said that the Chinese communist attack, made in great force, may lead to further reverses but that forces of the United Nations have no intention of abandoning their positions in Korea.

Magistrate Says Crown Failed To Prove Point

Just what constitutes the King's Highway was a fine point of deliberation in the county magistrate's court today as evidence was heard on a charge against Clifford Reid of Thurlow township of allowing two horses to run at large on the highway.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills dismissed the charge, ruling that the Crown had not proven that the horses were on the highway.

The provincial police traffic officer stated he had been patrolling the highway east of the city when he observed two horses standing on an abandoned portion of the former highway. He had found the owner of the horses, Clifford Reid, and the animals had been placed back in the field. Under cross examination the officer said the fence was in good condition.

The charge was dismissed by the magistrate, he ruling it had not been proven the horses were on the highway.

The magistrate also dismissed a charge against Russell Patrick of Frankford of driving without headlight. Dismissal of the charge was on the ground that the Crown had not proved the accident resulting in the laying of the charge had occurred "after dusk."

The interpretation the court spoke of the highway act was that "after dusk" meant "dark." Two witnesses for the defence, and also the defendant, stated the accident occurred while it was still dusk.

Diver Employed To Search Water Under Bay Bridge

Provincial Police and members of the immediate family of the missing woman have now given up the hope of finding the body of Miss Rachel Fox, who disappeared from her home on Donald Street last Saturday evening and has not been seen since.

The car owned by Miss Fox was found floating several days later and since that time police have searched both shores of the Bay of Quinte, east and west from the bay bridge.

Today a diver, Fred Jones and his helper, Arthur Pritchard of Peterborough, were brought to the city and for half an hour Jones searched beneath the swing bridge without success. The local fire department provided the diving equipment for the diver to make the descent into the water.

Owing to the strong current running beneath the bridge the diver did not believe a body could remain in the water at this point and this afternoon it was expected to search in the bay off cottage docks east of the bridge.

If there is still no success plans are being made to drag the area.

Choir Festival Under Direction Kiwanis Club

Belleville's first choir festival will take place next Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the collegiate auditorium.

It is expected that more than 200 voices and instrumentalists will take part in the festival, with massed choirs from city churches singing each evening. Church choirs will represent Tabernacle United, Victoria Avenue Baptist, Bridge Street United, Christ Church, St. Michael's and St. Andrew's. Each night the massed choirs will sing a special arrangement of the "National Anthem" under the direction of Ted Robbins and Clifford Templer.

Incident in the programs will be barbershop quartettes, xylophones, euphoniums, a cellist, nurses' choir, and various other vocal groups.

Evangelist Paints Grim Picture Of Conditions

An overflow crowd that jammed every inch of space in the Wesleyan Methodist church on Tuesday night heard the Rev. John Woodhouse of Batavia, N.Y., give a forthright Gospel message, during which he painted a grim verbal picture of present day world conditions and predicted an even grimmer outlook for the immediate future.

"America is not going to escape in the great world upheaval that is almost upon us," warned the evangelist. He quoted Governor Dewey of New York, as saying that he could not see anything beyond ten years of our present civilization. He had been saying some years ago that 1951 would see the end of this civilization. Dr. Hutchins of Chicago University, gives us nine years and Albert Einstein is equally pessimistic.

Not Fanatical

"These are not fanatical, pulpit-pounding preachers," he said, "but statesmen, educators and historians, hard-headed men of the world. Dr. Hutchins of Chicago has said 'we have had our last chance; the battle of Armageddon is close at hand.' Unless your sons are saved they will be fighting in the battle of Armageddon."

"In some countries people are creeping up back alleys trying to get something to eat, while they refuse to forsake Christ. In many parts of the world Christians are serving God at the cost of their lives. Persecution is great in Communist Russia, where the satellites they worship at the point of a gun."

"Czechoslovakia and Hungary were wide-open to the Gospel a few years ago, so Christians in Budapest. It was not unusual to see four or five people kneeling and praying all night. Since the communists have taken over it is almost impossible to hold a Gospel service.

"Before the communists attacked in Korea, the greatest revival in the history of that country broke out. Many of the converts accepted Christ as Saviour and they had to build five hundred new churches.

Work Accelerated

"In spite of the doors that have been closed, to the Gospel, however, missionary work is being accelerated. Whereas in the past it took weeks and months of missionaries to traverse jungle trails, they now use transport planes, helicopters and jeeps. They use radio and take phonograph records which tell the Gospel story in native tongues.

"There remain only four nations left in this world which have not been penetrated by the Gospel of Jesus Christ and wicked equipment for the diver to make the descent into the water.

Owing to the strong current running beneath the bridge the diver did not believe a body could remain in the water at this point and this afternoon it was expected to search in the bay off cottage docks east of the bridge.

Municipal Candidates Given Lively Reception at Bun Feed

By "OBSERVER"

Sardines in a can are usually so packed they can't get out. But even though the Wharf Street Debating Club was sardine - packed on slight short candidates and heckles, there was still room enough for lots of fun. The club is celebrating its 40th anniversary, was bulging at each wall, and the seams may think it was the most impossible to see the chairman at times.

Since no "bun feed" would be complete without heckling, several men upheld the old traditions and, at times, unmercifully outshouted the candidates. One redheaded man started the evening off with a bang by shouting 'Peach Point', and from there on in, everything was free and easy.

Unintentional Distraction

An unintentional distraction to the candidates was the flickering of one set of lights, due either to faulty wiring or poor light reference scratching his back on the switch. No one ever found out and besides, it added to the atmosphere.

Ex-Mayor George Tice in the chair, opened the meeting with a moving tribute to the late W. C. Bell and George Field. One minute of reverent silence was observed.

Mayor Jack Allin was the first speaker. He mentioned what he had not done and what he had done but he promised that a storm several years ago, that he would not run out. He spoke highly of his council and made special mention of the sterling work of secretary Jack Trudeau as chairman of the Planning Board. A spirited discussion ensued between "Duke" Smith and the mayor. No quarter was asked or given. The mayor concluded his address with: "You must make your choice between experience and inexperience."

Dr. Potter stated that the people of Belleville must be fed up with promises made but never fulfilled. He would like to see the spare time to city business as he had no affiliation with any lake or bois. "Vote for me if you so desire" was his final word.

Wilbur Countryman next brief and to the point. "It's time for a change" and the "Vote Countryman and you won't be sorry."

A. Stuart Robb appealed to the voters to back him to the Board of Education. As a technical man he could give professional advice regarding the building of new schools and the modernization of the old ones.

Newt. Wilbur for city council contended that the people could criticize his record while in office and he was willing to stand again and continue his good work.

Angus Duffy, in serious vein, stated this was not the time to be stood by h's record as an alderman. The Belleville Fire Department was the best between Montreal and Toronto. He was pleased with the progress in the housing of veterans and Belleville had kept its word to the old soldiers. As for a local municipal government is concerned he contended that it was out of date and a change should be made. Taxes should go down from 3 to 3 mills. "If you are satisfied with my record as alderman," he said, "then vote for me—if not, then vote for somebody else."

Bruce Smith stated it was the second time he had offered himself for civic honors in the municipal. He would like to have a go at the job.

Alderman Harold Armstrong congratulated the club on its fortieth anniversary and stated that housing and industrial expansion had been such that it compared favorably with any municipality in the Dominion of Canada.

Chris Leggat was brief, "vote for somebody who will take care of the finances of the city," was his theme.

Everett Liddle mentioned that he was a member of the local Legion who had turned over $1,700 to children's welfare. He was strongly in favor of a health department and was behind the housing scheme.

Ernie Tice—chairman of the Board of Education stated he was proud of the record of the board. He took exception to people who took credit for that which was never accomplished. Special thought was for the welfare of the children and planned recreation and the for present school was right behind him.

Harry Allen was brief and to the point. At welfare chairman he stated he had done a good job.

John M. Wood in a fine speech mentioned he was a war veteran—he appealed for votes saying that he did not think much to say if elected.

Alderman Ken Clarke stated he had served eleven years on the council and had only missed one meeting.

George Wishart was also brief. His record was well known as a member of the Board of Education and if re-elected would give a good service as he had in the past.

Alderman Don Thomas in a witty speech mentioned that two years ago he had promised Foster not'ing. If elected, he promised 'em twice as much! Again he promised nothing but, "if you want me back—vote for me, were his closing words.

Willis Jackson stated that he had kiddies attending school and was vitally interested in education and welfare. He disagreed with those who were all for experience. If elected he would enter municipal politics with an open mind.

Clare Clarke came across with "if I win—O.K., and if you don't put me in this year, I will come back again and again."

Alderman Bruce Latimer was extremely brief and his name was on the list and all present knew what that number stood for.

E. Ellis stated he was keen for the support of the voters.

A. Robert Temple said the meeting to be held in Bain or Fisher ward. He said he was 24 and was not too young to serve on council. He is college graduate ready to work hard if elected.

Maurice Callaghan was right in there. His "beef" was that Foster Ward paid high taxes and received little value for their money. Pinnacle Street was a disgrace. Foster Park has never had a fair deal. Ward representation on council was a solution for the present inequalities.

Art Keegan was one of the best speakers of the evening. He said that Foster Ward has been crying for improvements for years and nothing has been done by previous councils during 40 years. Outside toilets are common and many homes have absolutely no modern conveniences.

Ex-mayor Thompson spoke of his happy relationship with Foster Ward and criticized the state of the public lavatory on the market square. The contemplated has a real washroom, Belleville's is just a dump!

Warden Clarke Rollins was the final speaker and his welcome was very enthusiastically received. Rollins with the Belleville council had always been most helpful and had given much help to the county.

After the meeting concluded the club and guests enjoyed a "bun feed" and soft drinks.

Long-Lost Cousins Bump One Another, Their Cars Collide

Oklahoma City, Nov. 30. (AP) —A couple of long-lost cousins bumped into each other yesterday but it wasn't a happy reunion.

After their cars collided, they were arrested for not having drivers' licences.

Chris H. Rains, 29, Washington, Oklahoma, said he hadn't seen his cousin, Mrs. Carol Dodson, 32, Oklahoma City, for many years.

Grassland Farming Stressed At Meeting Cattle Breeders

The advantages of breeding a bigger size cow with cheaper feeding by a changeover to grassland farming, was stressed to members of the Quinte District Guernsey Breeders Club at their annual meeting on Wednesday at Shire Hall in Belleville.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was Harold Clapp, manager of Fraserdale Farms at Concord, near Toronto.

Mr. Clapp told how Fraserdale Farms was being changed over from grain to grassland farming and how it was expected that cattle could be fed much cheaper in this manner. The financial advantage of year round milk production was also stressed. Mr. Clapp also pointed out the importance of keeping R.O.P. records.

Breeders from the five counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac composse the Quinte district club which has been formed only one year.

Bigger Prize Money

The club showed cattle last year at the Belleville Fair and Erie S. Denyes, fair secretary, said the fair board appreciated having the club show at the fair and said he was in favor of the Guernsey show being continued at the fair with bigger prize money.

Mr. B. B. Hodgins, secretary of the Ontario Guernsey Cattle Club, told how membership in clubs was increasing from year to year. At club shows in 1947 only 259 cattle had been shown. This had been increased to 695 being shown in 1950. "There are now 11 Guernsey clubs in Ontario," he said.

Directors Named

Directors appointed are, Hastings, Ralph Sills, Alex Vandervoort, Thos. Leach and Elmer Huggins, president of the club; Prince Edward, Gordon Fox, Neil Parks and George Flowers; Northumberland, Bruce Butcher and Wm. Matthews; Lennox and Addington, Orville Shea and Roy Elsey; Frontenac, Hugh Wilson and William Crooks.

Several members of the club pointed out that there was a continually greater demand for Guernseys with farmers offering big prices for good foundation stock.

Find Woman Assaulted and Beaten to Death

Cleveland, O., Nov. 30—(AP)— A red-haired divorcee waitress in the Greyhound restaurant here was raped and beaten to death early today.

Mrs. Fanny Whitley, 38, bloodsmeared and gasping for breath was found by two employees of the terminal in the locker room.She died before a police ambulance arrived.

Homicide detectives were seeking an itinerant seen loitering around the terminal a short time before the crime was discovered.

Mrs. Whitley obviously had been raped, detectives said. Her diamond engagement ring and wedding band were ripped from her fingers and her wrist watch was missing.

The detectives said the victim originally came from Charlotte, S.C., and has a 15-year-old son living with his father from whom Mrs. Whitley was divorced two years ago.

Red China Clamps Down on Exports Of Tungsten Metal

New York, Nov. 30 (AP) — Red China's clamp-down on shipments of strategic tungsten to this country "is causing grave concern in some industrial circles," the Iron Age says today. "China has been our biggest supplier of tungsten," the national metals weekly points out. "In 1948 she shipped us slightly more than half of our tungsten imports; today she is supplying none. In 1948 Korea supplied 17.6 percent; today she is shipping none."

Canada has Both Championships In Wheat

Chicago, Nov 30—(CP)—Who's your choice for champ, the Wheat King of the World or the World's Wheat Champion? Canada has both.

As far as the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto is concerned, the best wheat growrr in the world is 12-year-old Ricky Sharpe, a shy, brown-eyed schoolboy from Munson, Alta.

The International Hay and Grain Show in Chicago says that for its money the best wheat is grown on the farm of T. P. Robbins in the dry belt of southwestern Saskatchewan at Shaunavon.

The two champs live only a few hundred miles apart, but their claims to the wheat crown have widely-divergent backgrounds.

Young Rickey won his Royal Winter Fair award for a sample of red hard spring wheat, Marquis variety, the kind of wheat that has made Canada one of the top wheat countries of the world.

Veteran farmer Robbins, who grows and shows red hard spring, also provided durum wheat, a soft variety used in making macaroni and not a type of grain with which Canadian farmers have much to do.

But it was a sample of Durum wheat, Mindum variety, which made Robbins wheat king at Chicago, and as far as that show is concerned Master Rickey is an also-ran.

The difference between the two grain shows goes further than a discrepancy in the wheat division. Boundaries of other grain kingdoms also overlap and conflict.

The Chicago show, run in conjunction with the International Livestock Exposition, has been naming a wheat king since 1918. It also names rye, barley, oats, sorghum, corn and soybean kings.

Thinks Buck Deer Falls in Love With 2-Year Heifer

Carthage, Mo., Nov. 30. (AP)— Mrs. Claire Jackson says a four-point buck deer apparently has fallen in love with a two-year-old heifer on her farm five miles southeast of here.

Mrs. Jackson says that for the last two days he has remained by the side of the Shorthorn heifer and occasionally chases her about the pasture, but never bothers the other cattle on the farm. She backs up her story with pictures.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY

The revolving year brings again the anniversary of St. Andrew's Day, which is an occasion of inspiration and kindling in many parts of the world — in the homeland and wherever Scots may be. The recollections of their heritage from abroad remains an inspiration from generation to generation. It means that wherever Scots may be found there is forever Scotland, rich in blessing and influence which flow down the generations.

The choice of patron saint by Scotland was fortunate and is a proof of the deeply religious character of this land in the period of the British Isles. Saint Andrew was one of the heroes of the Christian faith, one of that little band of men who spread the Gospel throughout the world of their day so that it has left its marks in many lands. Andrew was the first of the disciples of Jesus and spent the Apostle's years in the early church was prominent and to him is owing much of the inspiration which fired the apostolic band as they set out to spread the Gospel which had been delivered to them.

In the early church Andrew was one of the great figures who spread the Gospel in that momentous era. St. Andrew and his fellow apostles and leaders of the church pondered in the early days of Christianity. Tradition says he preached in Scythia and Southern Greece and that he suffered martyrdom on the cross at Patraes in the year 70 A.D. As far back as the year 740 he was chosen patron saint of Scotland, a significant fact indicating as does the reason why from the earliest days he has exerted an influence over the people of Scots and of the rest of the Christian world. This choice by the people of Scotland is an index of the deeply religious influence his life and work had exerted in the early church when Christianity was spreading.

Today as in the past Scotland exerts a benign influence upon the world through her sons and daughters and through those who have gone into the outer parts of the earth, taking with them the spirit of Scotland. Her name is great in story and she has played no small part in the development of the Christian Church.

It is one of the glories of the British people to number the Scotch, the English, the Welsh and the Irish components of the race which has played no small part in the making of the history of the world.

The sense of kinship in the Scotch is one of the strongest ties known. Scotland has created a spirit which endures. Her contributions to the literature and culture, the thought of the world are a honor and a glory to the name of her people. Though small in territory she has given the world many great men and women whose names will endure.

As St. Andrew's anniversary brings to a focal point all the merits of this great people, their high standards of life, their fine sense of freedom, their high sense of family life, and their unstinted vigor and their courage. That land has given the world many great poets, commanders, administrators, philosophers and poets and a noble civilization.

BIRDS, WINTER AND FOOD

With December and with snow at hand and the stores and homes heated against the chill of winter thought is given to the birds which remain here in the wintertime when most of their companions have long since departed for the south and are enjoying life in the deep south of this continent and in South America.

Snow covers not only roads but the earth where there are seeds which the feathered creatures need to keep them alive, bodies the heat their pickings provide them in the winter season.

A writer in the Guelph Mercury has a word for these birds which agree with the arrangements and the thoughtfulness of people every where. It is a plea to think of these birds that stay with us while their feathered companions have fled to autumnal flights, are enjoying the balmy air of the more southerly habitation they pick for the season when they are away from the north. The kindly thoughts expressed will find a response no doubt in many human hearts. So little food will go a long way to make comfortable these winter residents who stay with us through the year.

VERY PRACTICAL

Kileg lights hold no fascination for British children, at least, that is the conclusion drawn in a recent U.K. government survey.

Statisticians reviewing the declared ambitions of some 5,000 5-to-15-year-old boys and girls found that only .5 per cent of the girls hoped to become movie queens. The boys were even less interested in a film career — only 2 per cent had any desire to appear on the screen.

"The children's ambitions proved on the whole to be very practical," states the report primly.

There is no such thing as chance; and what seems to us to be the merest accident springs from the deepest source of destiny.

WAR

Why go to war when at its close
The victors have to feed their foes?

Why hail that victory with joy
Which means: "Restore what shells destroy!"

Why town and city blow to dust

Which after peace re-build you must?

Why crush a nation when 'tis plain
You'll have to lift it up again?

Why slaughter and destruction choose,
When it you win the war you loose?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Everything begins to point to electricity as the mechanical power of life. That makes gadgets of us all.

We are, as it were, plugged into a universal current, and are good for the duration of our filaments.

While the physicists are busy exploring electronics all the way from the vilifainous atom up to the vulgar television set, the medical doctors find a mysterious area of our hearts from which a tiny little electric impulse emanates, causing our hearts to beat. Ah, sweet mystery of life, at last they've found you!

We may now look upon ourselves, say, as light bulbs. Most of us are the plain eighteen cent type, the twenty-five and sixty watts. (Our price has gone up recently.) A few of us are the hundred watt type, at 23 cents. Here burn, shedding our little light upon the mortal scene for such time as our filaments last. Some a poor light, some a little better light. Others of us come in the more expensive brackets — the big, blue bulbs you will see in factories, the long flickering tubes you find flooding with lambent beauty the desks of bank presidents. Highest of all come those of us who are the blazing bulbs of Klieg lights, the wall bracket would include movie and television stars, presidents of the United States and hockey players.

If you don't like to imagine yourself a light bulb, subject at any moment to a blown fuse, a short circuit, or being bashed by some guy passing with a ladder, then there are other similes that might serve. We might be electric toasters, curlers, soldering machines. We might even be little dynamoes. At all events, it is horrible to suspect that we are mere electrical plug-ins. It is pleasanter to believe in the stork.

Montreal, Nov. 30. (CP)—Montreal's mayoralty campaign, to be decided in voting Dec. 11, boiled down to a two-way fight Wednesday when nominations closed. Candidates will be colorful Camillien Houde, seeking re-election, and Sarto Fournier, Liberal member of Parliament for Montreal Maisonneuve-Rosemount.

At the last minute Maurice Bourbonniere announced his withdrawal from the mayoralty contest because he said he "resented some very uncomplimentary allegations" directed against Mayor Houde.

Councillor Raoul D. Gadbois, head of the newly-formed Metropolitan Party, appeared at the city hall today with a bleeding eye and a cut on his face. He claimed he was attacked by four men near city hall.

The Metropolitan Party's main platform plank in the election is a program under which Montreal would take in all the many suburban communities into one civic administration.

WIDOW EXONERATED

Toronto, Nov. 30 — (CP)—Mrs. Ruth Abernethy of Alliston, Ont., in a stranger's blonde widow, was exonerated yesterday of a charge that she enticed a wealthy 64-year-old farmer away from his wife.

Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow of the Ontario Supreme Court ruled that Mrs. Gertrude Brydon, 54, is entitled to no part of the $50,000 she claimed as damages. Both Mrs. Abernethy, 33, and Andrew H. Brydon, at a recent court hearing, denied Mrs. Brydon's charges of intimacies.

Canadian Grain Export Picture Said Disastrous

Montreal, Nov. 30 (CP)—The Montreal Star Wednesday said the export picture for Canada's grain export picture for the coming months is "nothing short of disastrous."

More than a score of ships originally scheduled to load in eastern ports have been rerouted by fast passenger and the Star's newspaper story said.

Grain officials said elevators were being plugged with non-exportable grades because farmers feared they won't get paid for them. The non-exportable crop was held back until the other had been disposed of.

With the inland shipping season now at an end, the paper claimed, it is too late to begin an all-water movement to Montreal. Shipping men said they believe the situation is "without precedent" in Canadian maritime history.

The Canadian ports of Halifax and Saint John were said to be without enough grain to fill half a dozen ships. Elevators are usually well filled at this time of year.

Meanwhile, non - exportable grades are reported flowing into lakehead elevators. About nine tenths of the grain received in that area is the non-exportable grades, the report said.

HEALTH TEACHINGS AND QUEER NOTIONS

The medical outlook in the earlier years of the century was based upon pathological anatomy —the Structural changes in tissues and organs, found on physical examination, determined the diagnosis. The doctors in that era gave scant consideration to mere functional troubles.

But a little later dawned the era of pathological physiology and the newer knowledge of how the body works brought new refinements in diagnosis. Today the competent doctor endeavors to diagnose disease in the early stage when it is still only functional, before change in structure occurs, the change which makes the disease "organic."

The old timers dismissed the patient with nervous incompetence, insufficiency or "leakage" with a prescription of digitalis and advice to take it easy, avoid strains, live carefully . . . and the patient walked on gingerly for the rest of his or her life. The well trained doctor today doesn't use the heart's reserve power the heart has, advises the patient what kind of daily exercise and how much will be beneficial, and the serious ways and means for treatment of the prospect of long life with moderation in all things.

A man whose original coronary occlusion occurred in 1933 had 7 grand years, completed bed rest, and a month later began taking gradually increasing walks. Throughout 1936 he attained at rest—in bed at night, sitting around by day—15 hours a day. He continued with his daily walks. Since 1935 he did considerable flying, as passenger and as pilot, about 100 hours a year, at altitudes to 5000 feet, and feels basically up to 15,000 feet. He did considerable skiing in 1935, at Lake Placid and in Switzerland, and noticed quickened breathing when skiing at 5000 feet altitude.

He indulged in occasional swimming and dancing.

In 1935, two years after the coronary attack, heavy vegetables and fruit were substituted for a substantial part of the consumption of refined carbohydrate (starches, sugars) and the excess of protein (lean meat) in his diet — green vegetables instead of most of one meal a day, and fresh fruit in place of refined carbohydrate desserts at dinner. He gave cows' milk freely in puddings, freely in oysters and clams several days a week in season.

His skiing holidays in 1936 and '37 brought marked increase in his feeling of well-being. The change of diet in 1935 improved not his physique, and condition too. By 1938 he required only 7½ to 8 hours sleep to keep him in fine fettle. In 1940 he said:

be held for them. The remainder is for domestic purposes.

It is believed here, said the newspaper, that Pacific ports will not be affected as badly as those on the Atlantic.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WHAT HAVE I DONE?

I look at the several thousands of books that line my library walls and they challenge me. Each volume represents what some man knew of history. Biographies that tell the stories of the deeds people have achieved since the dawn of history. Biographies that tell the stories of the great. Books of poetry and fiction that have stimulated and blessed the minds of millions.

What have I done? I have asked myself this question again and again. None of us has to be wealthy or famous in order to do something that is worthwhile and helpful to others. No matter what our calling in life, we can do something each day of our lives that will help to make this a better world in which to live, and for others as well.

We can each plan to be useful in our own way, according to our circumstances and opportunities. We can be valid, and give encouragement to others. We can lend a hand. We can be considerate, taking care not to misjudge. We can give an example of courage, cy."

We can share our happiness in a number of ways. We can give ourselves away!

We would all live happier lives, and in more contentment, if at the end of each day we asked of ourselves: what have I done today? Not for ourselves, but for those about us, or within our influence. How sacred are our obligations to ourselves, our friends, to society as a whole, and to the land we love! We are our heritage. What privileges are ours, that might be passed on to others as well say: What have I done to merit them?

Here is a favorite passage from Stevenson's "A Christmas Sermon," which I long ago committed to memory: "It is better to be kind—to earn a little and to spend a little less, to make upon the whole family happier for his presence, to renounce when that shall be necessary and not be embittered, to keep a few friends, but these without capitulation—above all, on the same grim condition to keep friends with himself—here is a task for all that life can show us of fortitude and delicacy."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GUIDANCE

From the beginning of time philosophers have been inquiring about the meaning of life. Why are we here in this world, and being here, what are we supposed to do?

The Biblical answer to such questions is comparatively simple. Taken as a whole, the Bible teaches that we are here in the world to grow souls. We are given a set of circumstances and told by the Great Master to go to work and see what we can do with them. Can we handle poverty? Can we handle the multiplication of wealth? Can we submit to pain without getting bitter? Can we face disappointment and keep our courage? Can we fashion our conduct on the basis of certain ideals and accept the narrow road of self-discipline, while all the rest of the world appears to be going joyfully along the broad highway that leadeth to destruction?

The poet puts it this way:

"I go to prove my soul!
I see my way as birds their trackless way.
I shall arrive! What time, what circuit first,
I ask not; but unless God send his hail
Or blinding fireballs, sleet or stifling snow,
In some time his good time, I shall arrive;
He guides me and the bird. In his good time!"

Swedes Take Lead in Latest Survey of Sex Education

London — (Reuters) — The new enough to arouse protests countries of northern Europe are blue-printing the facts of life for their children. In the south, however, it seems they don't need to.

A survey by Reuters news agency shows the Swedes in the lead when it comes to telling junior about the birds and the bees. The Danes and Norwegians are close behind.

Only The Netherlanders raised shocked hands at the suggestion that sex is a subject to be discussed in school classes. The French and Italians seem to think it isn't necessary.

Swedish children start getting lessons on birth at the age of seven. Official handbooks guide teachers in both primary and secondary schools. For adults the Swedish Association for sexual information has advice centres in all big towns.

Denmark starts its sex lessons when children reach their teens. Unlike Sweden — where teachers do the explaining — the classes are addressed by doctors. Adults also have a "school for marriage" started last year by a pastor.

Norway is starting on a similar program for children. Youngsters from 12 to 16 now are required to receive instruction in the schols.

The Norwegian plan is still

MADOC

Seed-Sowers M.B. Holds Tea, Bazaar

Madoc — On Friday afternoon last, the Seed Sowers Mission Band of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, held a successful tea and bazaar in the Sunday School room of the church.

The work table under the supervision of Mrs. Gordon Love, assisted by the boys of the band had a fine display of candy, potted plants and articles made by the boys and girls of the band, and everything was sold.

The girls waited on the tea tables under the direction of the mothers of the members. Two of the first band members, Mrs. Fred Curry and Mrs. A. McCaffrey, assisted later on by Miss VanEckeek, the president, of the W.M.S. poured tea.

Mrs. Mezza Finch gathered the children on the platform and recited an Irish poem which was much enjoyed by all.

Great praise is due the leader of the band Mrs. Heslip and the mothers for their untiring efforts in study and work.

Reeve Jack Kincaid and Mrs. Kincaid spent the weekend in London. Mrs. Kincaid will spend a few days visiting her mother and relatives in London.

Women's Institute

PHILLIPSTON-ZION W.I.

The November meeting of this branch was held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Ketcheson with the president, Mrs. Simmons, presiding. Regardless of most inclement weather, the attendance was good.

Items were concluded for the purchasing of more community chairs, card tables, teaspoons and tablecloths. A lovely donation of gifts of ivory soap and wash cloths, prettily wrapped, are to be forwarded to children of Europe.

Highlights of the area convention were given by those who had attended.

Citizens as Christian Workers

Mrs. Ralph Sills, in discussing the subject, "An Empire Moves Forward on the Feet of its Children", urged mothers to visualize their children, not only as doctors or lawyers etc., but as Christian workers in their communities, God has entrusted mothers with this stewardship. Prayer habits should be established and these prayers should not be self-centred "if our lives are an outward show only, our children detect this fault and prayer is ineffective. Let us lead our children to the realization that prayer, along with their church life today, is for them a real opportunity. Communism is spreading like a cancer while God is being left out of family life."

Mrs. Percy Hay and Mrs. Clifford Ray attended the Winter Fair in connection with the girls' work, the department and the local institute sharing their expenses.

Members of the branch enjoyed a chartered bus trip to the fair and a special "thank-you" goes to Mr. Wannamaker and Mr. Preet, his driver, for their courteous service upon which one can so much rely.

Progressive euchre parties are held every two weeks in the community hall. Hostesses for last week's party were Mrs. Don Sills, and Mrs. Clarence Ketcheson.

Prize winners were as follows: ladies, Mrs. R. Cranston; men, Mr. L. Wilkinson; consolation, Mrs. W. Phillips and Mr. Earle Ray; lone hands, Mrs. R. Cranston.

The December meeting of the Institute will be held at the home of Mrs. Harry Ketcheson on the second Thursday.

Unseen Actress Finally Appears On Movie Screens

Hollywood — (A P) — After eight years, Howard Hughes' most beautiful investment is about to begin paying off. Known as Hollywood's most unseen actress," she is shapely Faith Domergue.

The Texas multi-millionaire signed her to a screen contract in 1943, starred her in "Vendetta," an epic that cost several millions and took two years to film, then mystified the film colony by not releasing it.

The news now is that 26-year-old Faith is to be seen at last, but not in "Vendetta." She'll debut in a second film produced early this year, "Where Danger Lives," Hughes, who works in strange ways, is still holding back "Vendetta."

For the public, meeting Miss Domergue should be a pleasure. Hereabouts she's considered the most beautiful creature since Hedy Lamarr. Also, she can act.

Like other Hughes discoveries —the most notable of whom are Jean Harlow and Jane Russell— the Domergue gal is made to order for adjectives like sultry, exotic and languorous.

Where as the late Miss Harlow won fame for her platinum hair and Miss Russell for the way she filled a lowcut blouse, Faith has, as yet, no trademark. The poor girl is uniformly sensational.

Latin Glamor

Miss Domergue, who was born in New Orleans, gets her Latin glamor from her French-Spanish parents, who brought her to Southern California when she was four. The remarkable series of circumstances that have kept her on salary but out of pictures since she was 17 began in 1941 while she was still in high school.

The actress, her husband, Hugo Fregonese, their daughter, Diana, 23 months, a shepherd dog and a siamese cat occupy the upper half of a duplex in West Los Angeles. Faith's parents live below and "get stuck with all the baby sitting."

The Fregoneses are a busy couple. He is under contract to a major studio and Faith, who signed a new seven year contract this spring, has a busy picture schedule ahead.

I.O.D.E. Chapter Has Native Name

St. John's Nfld. — (CP) — The Beothic Chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire has just received its chapter. The first I.O.D.E. primary chapter in the province, its name commemorates the tribe of Indians that lived in the interior of Newfoundland in past centuries.

Known either as Beothics or Beothuks, a Micmac name meaning simply "red men," the last of this tribe is believed to have died in 1828.

Mrs. John H. Chipman, National President of the I.O.D.E. officiated at the ceremony for bestowal of the charter. Lady Outerbridge, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor of Newfoundland, is honorary regent, and the regent is Mrs. John Boyd Baird.

PIONEER BUILDER

Miss Nazla Dane Addresses Charter Meeting of B.P.W.C.

Tuesday evening the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club held their charter meeting and luncheon at the Kiwanis Centre, with Miss Joy Nichols, president, presiding.

Prior to the address by the guest speaker, Miss Nazla Dane, president of the Toronto Business and Professional Women's Club, the serious and solemn ritual of the presentation of the Charter and the lighting of the Belleville candle in the Friendship Circle was conducted by Mrs. Margery Pewtress, of Cobourg, Regional Director, of the B.P.W.C. Mrs. Pewtress gave a succinct and comprehensive survey of the different clubs of the district, stating that "there is no life without friendship," and that any organization was only as strong as its foundation."

The ideal of the business and professional woman was one of sincerity, security, sanity, steadiness and efficiency.

After the presentation of the charter, which Miss Joy Nichol graciously expressed her thanks and appreciation, Miss Dora Drummond, of Cobourg, gave the interpretation of the emblem represented by an equal shield having an encircling scroll of maple leaves and trilliums surrounding the map of Canada on a yellow ground, showing the face of a woman gazing into the future with seriousness of purpose. Behind the map of Canada were the beams of the rising sun shedding a glow upon this land of opportunity, promoting welfare, friendship and sisterhood, faith in womanhood, hope for the future and love for all. The eight sides represented God, faith, ability, harmony, uprightness, vision, membership and revenue. Miss Drummond closed her fine interpretation with a quotation from Plato: "Having received the truth, give it out."

Following the short, but pleasant sing-song under the direction of Miss Norma Arkles, club secretary, Miss Mary Moult introduced the guest speaker, Miss Nazla Dane who brought sincere greetings from her Toronto club. Miss Dane, who spoke on "Women—Partners or Prattlers?" prefaced her remarks by stating that since marriage was run on a fifty-fifty basis, or should be, she considered this the world should be run in the same manner, and smilingly referred to a remark of Miss Agnes Macphail's who had said that "it was a fifty-fifty basis all right, $50 for you men, and 50 cents for the woman."

Turning to the serious side, she spoke pointed out that more and more women were drawing pay cheques today than even before; that 1,000,000 are gainfully employed; that 85 per cent of all estates are left in life insurance with women as the beneficiaries; and that in the last federal election women's votes counted for 50 percent of the total, and for about 51 percent of the vote of this country.

Since men and women belong together in the home for greater happiness and security, they also belong together in business, for women do much buying for themselves, their husbands, and children; why, then asked Miss Dane, should not out national housekeeping —our government —be run by men and women, 131 of each? What is needed is less talk and more action. Women are closer to the humanities, and have a greater sense of race, and therefore could help men to learn better the things of the future. Their duty is to accept responsibility inherent in leading positions and to be willing to serve in public affairs. Women are not so easily daunted. If men "get taken in," their pride refuses to let them acknowledge it, but women, when they are stung' get angry and demand a 'show down' which tends to discourage a repetition of the escapade."

Miss Dane mentioned several outstanding women who had added their quota to science, industry and medicine, Madam Curie in Science; Emily Murphy broadened the political frontiers, became the first woman magistrate in the British Empire; Cora Hind became agricultural editor of the Winnipeg Free Press. Women live longer than men; own 70 percent of the world's wealth; have the control of 85 percent of every dollar, and even wish to know about the other 15 percent: set the styles, and eventually win at arguments, and have more bank accounts than men. This shows that women, when they so desire, can do a job, and do it efficiently.

Miss Cecilia Maloney moved a vote of appreciative thanks to Miss Dane for her intensely interesting address; to Mrs. M. Pewtress who presented the charter, and to Miss Drummond for her spendid interpretation of the emblem, and to the president, Miss Joy Nichol for her capable handling of this new club.

A delicious luncheon was enjoyed previous to the business of the evening and the address.

Those who occupied the head table included: Miss Joy Nichol, president; Mrs. Margery Pewtress, Cobourg, Region Director; Miss Drummond, of Cobourg; Miss Nazla Dane, president of the Toronto B.P.W.C.; Miss Norma Arkles, secretary; Miss Mary Moult; and Miss Helen Lintz, treasurer.

Presentations Made To Mr., Mrs. Warren

At the November meeting of the Sidney Teachers' Association, held at S.S. No. 12, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Warren, the supervising principal and his wife of Frankford, were presented with gifts by the teachers for their service in Sidney.

Mrs. Warren was given a pair of rhinestone earrings, and Mr. Warren an initialled leather writing case and a military case. The occasion was prompted by the dissolution of the Sidney Township School Area and the re-establishment of single school units.

Mrs. T. Spafford presided over the meeting, which saw the October attendance banner presented to Mr. Everson, whose school had an attendance percentage of 99.2. Centenary and Wallbridge schools were runners-up for the month.

Other plans discussed were visits for pupils of Grade seven and eight in Sidney to the Bata shoe plant during the next month; the absence of films for December, due to the short number of teaching days in the month; and bowling and work at camp by Mr. Warren and Mrs. Coombs; and the invitation of Mr. Everson to hold the January meeting at Glen Miller.

An address lauding Mr. and Mrs. Warren was read by Mrs. Good, prior to the presentations, which were presented by Miss Gunter and Mrs. Campbell. The address was signed on behalf of the teachers of the area by the president, Mrs. T. Spafford, and the secretary, Nina Hudgins. Mr. and Mrs. Warren expressed their thanks for the gifts. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Clare and the lunch committee.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

The pastry cook's secret isn't a secret at all. A good pie baker utilizes a common fact known to everybody, namely that warm air rises.

This is the reason a pie dough becomes flaky. The cold air between the layers of fat and flour expand when the pastry is put in the oven, causing the crust to form layers or flakes. In order to create greater expansion, the prepared dough may be placed in the refrigerator for an hour or two which makes the trapped air even colder. If the dough remains in the refrigerator too long or is uncovered, it may absorb moisture and become tough.

Prepare the pie dough for veal pie before the meat is cooked. Store the dough in the refrigerator. As soon as the meat is tender, roll out the chilled dough, handling it as lightly as possible, in order to keep the little air chambers intact.

Veal and Green Pepper Pie
Serves 4.

1 1-2 cups all purpose flour
2 tablespoons fat
1-4 cup cold water
1 1-2 lbs. boneless veal
1 medium size onion chopped fine
Vegetable fat
Salt—pepper
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
2 cups hot water
3 bouillon cubes
1-2 teaspoon thyme
1-2 cup tomato juice
2 medium size green peppers
3 medium size potatoes

Sift 1 1-2 cups flour and 3-4 teaspoon salt. Cut in shortening until pieces of shortening are the size of peas. Sprinkle water over the mixture stirring lightly until dough holds together. Use only as much water as is needed. Wrap in waxed paper. Store in refrigerator.

Cut veal into 1 inch cubes. Melt 2 tablespoons fat in saucepan. Add onions. Saute 3 minutes. Add 2 tablespoons flour and 2 tablespoons parsley chopped fine. Add 2 cups hot water, 3 bouillon cubes, 1-2 teaspoon thyme, and tomato juice. Bring to a boil. Skim. Reduce flame and simmer until nearly tender about 1 1-2 hours. Cut peppers into 1-2 inch squares. Cut potatoes into 1 inch cubes. Add vegetables to stew and cook covered until tender. Add salt and pepper to taste. Add brown gravy color.

Put stew in 4 individual casseroles or 1 large baking dish. Roll out dough to fit tops of casseroles. Pierce with fork. Fit dough over casseroles.

Bake in a hot oven 425 degrees 20-25 minutes or until brown.

Rebekah Initial Bazaar Nets Lodge Over $200

Last Friday afternoon, despite the dreary rain and snow flurries (first signs of the big storm coming to Stirling and vicinity) over 200 ladies wended their way to the Community Hall to enjoy the bazaar attractions and afternoon tea sponsored by Lenrock Rebekah Lodge No. 211. This was their biggest money-making adventure in many years and it was a decided success and the group are thinking seriously of making it an annual affair.

Bower of Loveliness

The hall was a bower of loveliness with a dozen or more plumbing pine trees (fresh from the forest)-transplanted in red and green buckets placed across the centre to divide the tea-room from the bazaar. These trees were strung with Christmas garlands and scintillating silver roping and were electrically lighted.

The white Lodge gates were used as an entrance to the tea room. The gates were flanked with more pines and a background of red, white and green tissue with silver trim. On the top of the piano reposed a colorful artificial seasonal bouquet and here during the afternoon delightful music was rendered by Sisters Mildred Morrow, Cleta Elliott, and Aileen Vanderwater.

The tea table was centred with a silver vase of chrysanthemums set on a reflector with small pine sprays and silvered Christmas bells. This was flanked by tri-bracketed candelabra holding aloft the red and green tapers.

Small quartet-tables were scattered throughout with pretty linen-chess cloths and atop each table was a pine cone from "Georgia" in various hues which added to the attractiveness of the setting. The serviettes were folded to reveal the emblem of the Order.

The hall throughout was decorated in a galaxy of Christmas decorations which was a forceful reminder that December 25th was just "around the corner."

Dane Collected

The treasurer, Sister Eileen Demorest and her assistant, Sister Olive Whitehead collected the customary dues from members and friends and they were all graciously welcomed by Sister Hazel Mumby, Noble Grand, and Sister Marion Wells, Vice Grand, Sister Debbie Bowen seated nearby, was in charge of the registration when guests registered from Stirling and vicinity, also Belleville, Madoc, Perth, Tweed, Peterborough, Springbrook, Mt. Pleasant, Rawdon, Salem, Bethel and Wellman's.

Sister Evelyn Bailey and her assistants were in charge of Christmas card sales, reminding the group that very soon these little honey greetings will need to be speeded on their way to relatives and friends in various parts of Canada.

Sisters Mary Vandervoort and Kathleen Zoner were busy selling tickets for the Past Grands Club on a beautiful end table.

Gem Dress Trees

The candy booth was decorated in red crep-streamers interlaced with tinsel and held vases of evergreens and poinsettias. Small artificial fruit trees and a miniature Santa Claus with a large red and white striped candy cane and here and there, genuine "gem drop" Christmas tree greeted the guests. The tables were loaded with delectable homemade candy in decorated boxes, baskets, cups and various containers. There were many varieties of fudge, chocolate, cream and other sweets and this booth was busy all afternoon under the direction of the convener, Sister Edna Fox, with her assistants, Sisters Helen Neal, Marion Carlisle, and others.

Attractive Fancy Work

Sisters Edith Bradshaw, Audrey Elliott, Thelma Ketcheson, Vera Bailey and their assistants were in charge of a bountiful selection of needlework, daintily arranged on a white background with Christmas streamers and deep red bows of cellophane.

There were pot holders, crocheted, quilted, and some had accompanying holders of oilcloth, while others were arranged in decorated paper plates.

There were pretty tea pot-stands in a variety of shades and designs; handkerchiefs in gorgeous array, many folded and tied with Christmassy ribbon bows, already to mail to that friend in some distant spot. Fancy ornaments to adorn your bed made of crepe paper, dolls of various homemade varieties to delight the heart of some wee girlie. Towels were a good seller with a particularly charming Huckaback Towel done in a beautiful black trim which would catch the eye in any bathroom. Crocheted doilies in many fancy patterns, crocheted lace for pillow slips as well as pillow slips done in embroidery; a pretty set of socks and sweater for a very young Miss, and several cute sets for the wee tots in white and colors consisting of bonnet, jacket and bootees.

Plastic Aprons

There were beautiful plastic aprons, a delight of white organdy; several tea aprons in mauve flowered print with mauve organdy hands and yellow bias binding trim; pretty over - all types for kitchen duties, many were trimmed with black rick braid and all were of good material in a variety of colors.

A three-piece embroidered buffet set, knitted articles for children, and a fete accessories and needle work was a good advertisement for those gift gifts which come in handy at this season of the year

The "Touch and Take", table, convened by Sisters Cora Eggleton and Gena Spry, was decorated in red and silver with a basket of poinsettias on a mirrored centre-piece drawing with a miniature Santa Claus. The table top was covered with silver foil and here a large assortment of Christmas packages was displayed.

Delighted with Bargains

There were various prices but the perennial quarter was predominant. The parcels were wrapped in red, green and flowered tissue with Scotch tape and Santa's seals and many of the guests purchased a surprise package and were delighted with their bargains.

Country Store

The country store occupied one full corner and a large Christmas tree with colored lights blinked a welcome to one and all. Sisters Neva Vanderoot, Erma Clancy, Hazel Shortt, Tillie Baker and Mabel Barlow took charge here and the counter displayed luscious red apples, golden Spanish onions, pails of honey, potatoes, cabbage, canned goods, packaged soaps, eggs, turnips, pumpkins, wedges of cheese, jars of pickles, jams, relishes, horseradish, and creams, bottles of homemade catsup, biscuit mix and a variety of vegetables.

Fine Plant Display

Sister Helen Lamb sold the plants which she had artistically arranged around the outside of the long tables. Here were pots of parsley for the kitchen window, bouquets of bitter-sweet, potted plants in a large variety of cacti; colorful foliages; African violets, all in small containers with foil trim. This display added a touch of green to the scene and many of these plants will grow and brighten the various homes during the winter months ahead. The veritable loveliness of this display added greatly to the attractiveness of the "Country Store". Despite the weather nearly everything was sold to interested buyers.

Home Cooking

This booth was artistically arranged to represent a diningroom with a large picture of colorful poppies and two silk flags as a reminder of Remembrance Day.

The white linen cloth topped with silver miniature trees, Christmassy streamers and large red bows was convened by Sisters Lyda McKee, Minnie Morrison, Doris Sager, Lela Belcour, Edna

Delightful Dinner Dress

Silk and velvet and lace.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

IT'S quite demure this dress, for all of its very scooped-out neckline. Fashioned of black silk velvet, the demure touch is acquired through the kind offices of the white Venise lace that extends to form short, puffed sleeves. The bodice is form fitting curving down to form a V. The skirt is flared. Lace gloves to match complete a delightful dinner and dance dress.

McDonnell and their assistants, who sold all their wares during the afternoon. A heart shaped chocolate cake, draped with white icing and dotted with red cherries sat on a footed glass plate in the centre and on either side were luscious chocolate and white cakes, one iced in yellow and a grand assortment of cookies, macaroons, date squares, taffy, lemon and raspberry tarts, an assortment of buns. There were delectable pies, lemon predominating with swivels of meringue and the ever - present berry, raisin and apple, all mouth-watering. Fancy jam - filled cookies, small gem cakes, the old standby oatmeal and a glorious assortment of eatables to carry home to embrace the meals Pat Dad and the boys.

At 3:15 p. m. the little white gates swung open and for the next two hours the guests were invited to the tea room by Sisters Mabel Megginson and Effie Bailey.

Presiding at Tea

Seated in front of the silver tea service, was Sister Vera Graham, Tweed, district deputy president; Sister Hazel McGowan, Madoc, immediate past district president; Mrs. A. J. Anderson and Mrs. W. Walker, Stirling.

Sisters Edith Ulman and Ethel Duffin convened here and among those who attended tea, sandwiches and dainty cakes were Sisters Florence Dafoe, Dorothy Green, Pearl Fraser, Mildred Mitts, Olive Thompson, Luella Tompkins, Josephine Lavery, with their assistants.

The tables were occupied steadily during the two hours and the visitors enjoyed a warmth of fellowship at their partook of this social treat.

Sister Bessie Patterson with her assistants, Sisters Della Johnston, Isobel McIntosh, Mary Pitcher, Maude Bell and a group of other willing workers were busy in the kitchen replenishing the plates and cup pots and in this domain reminded one of a veritable avalanche of dainty cookies, macaroons and sandwiches of all shapes and varieties.

Gentlemen Guests

During the first hour, two of the town's gentlemen braved the host of women and partook of afternoon tea. They were given a royal welcome and had no trouble finding lady partners to help in the enjoyment of the refreshments.

The bazaar and tea were graciously convened and over $200 was added to the treasury. Those who planned the event were most grateful for all the assistance they received from both members and friends.

This first bazaar was successful beyond dreams and had the weather man co-operated the lodge members would have been greatly pleased and no doubt many others would have availed themselves of the privilege of attending this notable function.

Red-Controlled, Tax-Free Enterprises Hamper Austria

Vienna (Reuters) —Tax-free Russian – controlled enterprises from Austria on the claim that they are "former German assets" are hamstringing the Austrian economy.

Known as "USIA" these enterprises are part of the normal Austrian economy, yet they pay only such taxes as they choose and often refuse to pay even such charges as freight on the state railways.

They are manned by Austrian workers. They use either Austrian raw materials or raw materials imported under the Marshall Plan or paid for by ill-spared dollars; they use Austrian produced electric power and fuels from the country's scanty stocks.

These "USIA" concerns number about 285 and vary from a one-man cafe on the Danube bathing beach to heavy industry factories employing many thousands of workers. They have been variously described by Austrian economists as "a cancer on the body of economic Austria," "a spanner which the Russians have thrust into the wheels of Austrian industry," and "a vacuum cleaner with which the Russians are sucking immense profits from Austria."

These are in fact merely three aspects of the ways in which the "USIA" organization harms Austrian economy.

Biggest Slice

Through "USIA" Soviet Russia has become the greatest industrial and commercial concern in Austria—except for the state itself.

The Russians have extended the principle that the vanquished people must pay the costs of "occupation" to mean that many of the costs of their industrial and commercial enterprises, which normally would have to be paid by these concerns themselves, must also be borne by the Austrian people.

The cancer-like activities of USIA take away the sustenance which would maintain Austria's economic development. USIA retail stores, for instance, sell foodstuffs, consumer goods and above all drinks and tobacco at much lower prices than Austrian shops can possibly afford to do. They can do it—and still make a very good profit—because they pay no licence tax, no turn-over tax, no income tax, no import duties on goods which they bring in from Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria.

The vacuum cleaner angle is typified by purchases by USIA concerns, at prices above those set by the Austrian government, of wheat, rye and other grain.

Unfair Scheme

Nearly two-thirds of Austria's bread grain is imported at low exchange rates under the Marshall Plan. Being thus heavily subsidized, the internal price for grain has been kept low. But USIA concerns, being extraterritorial, offer the peasants a higher price—though still well below the world price— and then export the grain to Trieste or Czechoslovakia where they sell it at the world rate.

As the transport through Austria is free this leaves a handsome profit for the Russians. At the same time it acts as a spanner in the works of the Austrian economy tending to produce a shortage of bread grain. This will either force the Austrian government to import grain at high prices from abroad or resort to forceful means to make the peasants deliver their grain at official prices.

Tells of Hardships in Red Area

Nanaimo, B.C. (CP) —Hardships behind the Iron Curtain were described in a letter received by a Nanaimo man from his sister-in Balkan nation, satellite of the U.S.S.R.

Because of possible reprisals against his relatives, the resident here asked that his name and the country from which the letter was sent should not be identified.

The letter, translated, said in part:

"Today we are working hard and we have to give the crop to the government. They want their share regardless. Whatever they figure the land should grow you have to give.

"We have only eight bushels of wheat left to last a year and besides we have to pay tax.

"You remember the mountain 15 miles away. Well, every family has to bring down 22 cords of wood from the mountain to give to the government. All that would be bad, but on top of that we have more sorrow.

"The piece of property we had at the edge of town was taken away from us. In its place they gave us a piece of land five miles away that never grows anything.

"We still have to give the same amount of wheat; if it won't grow we will have to buy it. We also have to give 15 bushels of Sunflower seed to the government. It wasn't hard this year because we had our good land, but next year we will have to buy it.

"How are we going to grow anything on that worthless land? I have to peas it every day and I can't even go there any more because the devil came and sat on it. . ."

Mud, Water Fight Oil Well Fire

Redwater, Alta., Nov. 30. (CP) —An Imperial Oil crew prepared to use mud and water to put out an oil well fire in the Skunanna area of this oil field, 45 miles northeast of Edmonton.

The fire broke out early Tuesday at Imperial Simmons Fo. 36 well. Gas began to blow from a pocket about 600 feet-below the surface, and a rock is believed to have struck the steel drilling rig, causing a spark which ignited the escaping gas.

Imperial drilling officials described the burning well as a "baby wild well". Flames are shooting 30 feet into the air.

'Arthur Currie' is Strong Biography of Great Soldier

(Written for The Canadian Press)
By COL. W. W. MURRAY, M.C.

It is 16 years since the late Col. Hugh M. Urquhart (known as "Sandy" to all who knew and admired him) was assigned by a group of former officers of the Canadian Corps to write the biography of the late Sir Arthur Currie. From midsummer of 1917 until demobilization in 1919 Gen. Currie commanded the corps in the First World War.

Few men were as well qualified for the task. Col Urquhart served with outstanding credit in the Canadian Corps, first as a company commander of the 16th (Canadian Scottish) Battalion, then as a staff officer of the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade. When he was seriously wounded at Amiens, in August, 1918, he was commanding officer of the 42nd Battalion. He knew Sir Arthur intimately and was one of the corps commander's most ardent admirers.

Heavy Load

The bond between them was close and warm.

He has produced an outstanding work in "Arthur Currie; The Biography of a Great Canadian" (Dent). When one has said that, however, one must hasten to add that, in a way, it is an unhappy book. The biographer knew long before he assumed his task that that would be so; but he carried out the assignment with that painstaking thoroughness which was always one of his distinguishing characteristics. The question that inevitably arises following a reading of this volume is: has not too strong an accent been placed on the bleaker aspects of the late Sir Arthur's career?

Certainly tremendous emphasis and an intensely large amount of space have been given to Sir Arthur's pre-war financial difficulties, to certain slanders circulated by his enemies— frustrated politicorties for the most part— and to the latter's success in turning many Canadian soldiers against him. From this distance —17 years after Gen. Currie's death—one may wonder if, after all, these things have such a great importance for posterity. Unquestionably Col. Urquhart had a heavy task. On more than one occasion he confided some of his problems to this reviewer, and they appeared then to be both large and complex. However, his treatment of them was indeed, by and large, the right one. It was that Sir Arthur Currie's standing and his qualities of character and his place in Canada's history so firmly established that he could but good could eventually, derive from telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

The book spans an entire century, from the days when Sir Arthur's grandparents came to Canada from Ireland, and settled in the backwoods of Strathroy in western Ontario — backwoods that are today renowned for their fruitvelled orchards. The story exhibits Sir Arthur as descended from two pioneering stock, from ancestors who accepted their responsibilities as citizens and made their part modestly and with great credit. His education and training as a teacher, his move to British Columbia where, after several years on Vancouver Island, he established himself in Victoria in the business of real estate and insurance, are set forth.

Clashed with Hughes

Currie joined the non-permanent active militia in Victoria, and Col. Urquhart portrays with great accuracy the latter's interest and enthusiasm he had for "soldiering." He early clashed with Sam Hughes, then minister of militia, and although the minister is said to have thought none the worse of Currie for opposing him at that time, one gets the feeling that here was born that annoyance and irritation which later were fanned into dislike and eventually into envenomed hatred.

All that, however, is preliminary to the lustrous moments of Currie's life which came with the outbreak of the First World War, and Sir Arthur's appointment to command the 2nd Canadian Infantry Brigade. The biographer goes into every little nook and cranny for evidence to justify the sub-title of his book —The Biography of a Great Canadian."

He shows that Currie was nobody's "yes-man." He was capable of appraising situations and men—less capable, perhaps, of sharing the thoughts of that species known as the 'Common Man.' This, too, Col. Urquhart frankly admits. When it came to making decisions, Currie, and no one else, made them; and he made them stick. He clashed, violently on occasion, with the "top brass," protested against being ordered to throw his men into fighting for which preparations had been inadequate this was particularly so at Passchendaele— one of the most dismal episodes of the First World War. However, there were international implications that surrounded Passchendaele and made it necessary.

The persecution of Currie by his enemies lasted far beyond the close of the war. It culminated in the libel action at Cobourg, in 1928, an action whose effects eventually brought about his death in 1933.

Col. Urquhart portrays Sir Arthur Currie in many roles, but chiefly as a world war soldier and leader. Those were the years which by his subject established himself as a "great Canadian" and those are the years which will mark his memory—those and his success as a university administrator, during the decade or more that he was principal of McGill.

The book is admirably printed and has some excellently executed maps and photograps, all of which combine to make an outstanding job.

Man Injured When Trucks Collide on Hill

Campbellford—An accident involving two trucks on the highway about two miles west of Campbellford on Tuesday afternoon sent one man to hospital while another received a shaking up, after a truck driven by Andy Clark and owned by the Dept. of Transport collided with a larger and heavier vehicle owned by the township of Percy and driven by James McCleary.

The light Dept. of Transport truck was going up a hill, and apparently lost traction on the icy surface and skidded into the larger truck which was coming down the hill Both were extensively damaged.

Andy Clark was attended by Dr. W. W. Baker and removed to the Campbellford Hospital. His condition is reported as satisfactory. He is reported to have suffered badly bruised ribs, a fractured jaw and hand injuries.

Another accident earlier in the day did considerable damage to two cars, one a new 1950 model only a few days out of the factory. Robert Pettey of R.R. 4 Warkworth was travelling west approaching an intersection on the Hastings-Campbellford road about six miles from Campbellford, The brakes were useless on the icy road surface and Pettey's new car received about $300 damage when it collided with another driven by Doug Hutchinson of Campbellford. Neither driver was injured.

CAMPBELLFORD

Dr. Smith Speaks To Rotary Club

Campbellford — Guest speaker at the Campbellford Rotary Club at the Monday meeting was Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith of St. John's United Church in Campbellford. Dr. Smith was introduced by Rotarian W. A. Kingston. He spoke on the relationship of the church in community service. He stated that there was a great need for community service. Rotary was one organization that was doing its best, as far as it went. We should not limit our community spirit to our own circle, he said, but should look beyond us to other lands, where people are also in great need of help. "Religion is practice and its theory is not one and the same thing", he said. "We do not always practice our own theories."

Sense of Community Service

Dr. Smith said the basic belief in Christianity was a sense of community service. We must establish a social order for the welfare of the people about them. Communism is now forcing us to view the needs of people in other lands, and labor is doing the same thing.

"The church still possesses the high ideal of service", said the speaker, "but often falls short in this respect because of the people who are a part of it. The church is an inspiration to the sick, the bereaved and the destitute. Groups must work together for community service. There are too few institutions for the handicapped and the deficient in our land."

Rotarian Archie Meyers moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, and president A. K. Loucks extended the thanks of the club to Dr. Smith.

YOU AND YOUR MONEY
under my administration as
Mayor of Belleville

During my term of office the commitments made by previous administrations have had to be met. The only way to meet them was out of taxes. I inherited, as Mayor, the City's overdraft of $170,000.00 at the bank. This has been paid off. .....

You Have Had Full Value for Your Money

1.—In improved municipal services.

2.—In careful consideration of every dollar before it was voted to be spent.

3.—In a new spirit of economy at the City Hall. Travelling expenses to Conventions by the Mayor and members of Council, for instance, have been kept to a minimum.

This Economical Administration Must be Continued

In order to co-ordinate expanded municipal services to serve a greatly expanded city.

FOR THIS YOU NEED THE CONTINUANCE OF AN ADMINISTRATION WITH PRACTICAL, WORKING EXPERIENCE OF MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

The 10 years I served the City as Alderman — the 3 years I have served as Chairman of the Industrial Commission bringing new industries to Belleville — My experience as Member of the Traffic Committee and Chairman of the School Board; my work this year on the various Boards and Commissions.

ALL THESE HAVE GIVEN ME EXPERIENCE IN MUNICIPAL ADMINISTRATION SUCH AS NO OTHER CANDIDATE FOR THE OFFICE OF MAYOR CAN OFFER.

DO YOU WANT THE TAX RATE REDUCED?

Belleville is a growing city. The property assessment for 1951 will show an increase of $1,500,000 —bringing total assessments up to $16,832,309.

This, under careful, experienced administration will make possible A REDUCTION OF 5 MILLS IN THE TAX RATE. This reduction can be made. It WILL be made if you RE-ELECT JACK ALLIN MAYOR.

WHAT ABOUT THE MATTER OF RE-ASSESSMENT?

A complete re-assessment of the City of Belleville would cost at least $30,000, to be paid for out of CURRENT TAXES as the Department of Municipal Affairs will not permit a Debenture Issue for an intangible. The Minister for Municipal Affairs, the Hon. George H. Dunbar, at a meeting in Cobourg on April 17th. said: "I want to warn you because re-assessment has come to be a racket and is spreading into the smaller communities. We will not put up with it, even if it means doing the work ourselves.".

When re-elected, I propose to ask Council to give serious consideration to a re-assessment in accordance with the Manual prescribed by the Department of Municipal Affairs, and consider the Government's offer of furnishing help. This will accomplish the desired effect of assuring an impartial and equalized assessment, without laying a heavy financial burden upon the taxpayers.

re-elect JACK ALLIN
Mayor of Belleville

HERE IN BELLEVILLE WE FACE A SET OF CONDITIONS WHICH MUST BE MET. ONLY A MAN WITH SPECIALIZED MUNICIPAL EXPERIENCE CAN DEAL WITH THEM. I AM THE ONLY CANDIDATE WITH THE NECESSARY EXPERIENCE. THEREFORE I ASK YOU TO RE-ELECT JACK ALLIN MAYOR OF BELLEVILLE.

Accused Official Says He Traded Spy Reports

By WILLIAM OATIS

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 30—(AP)—A secretary of Archbishop Joseph Beran of Prague testified Tuesday that he had traded spy reports with the Roman Catholic Prelate.

Dr. Jan. Boukal, 44, the Archbishop's first secretary, gave this testimony as the fourth of nine Roman Catholic defendants on trial for high treason and espionage. He pleaded guilty.

Another defendant, 70-year-old Dr. Joseph Cihak, Archdeacon of the Metropolitan Chapter of Prague's St. Vitus Cathedral, pleaded guilty Monday. Still another, Bishop Stanislav Zela, Vicar-General of the Moravian Archdiocese of Olomouc, testified that he had led an "illegal organization" and was "deeply sorry" for what he had done.

Dr. Boukal told the seven-judge court he began spying in 1937 on orders from Charles Cardinal Kaspar of Prague, who died in 1941.

He said he gave "political reports" both to Archbishop Beran and to the Apostolic Internuncio here.

The Archbishop has not been seen outside his palace since early June of 1949. The Internunciature was closed by government action last March.

On one occasion, the accused said, he gave the Archbishop o file on a criminal case obtained from an employee of the Ministry of Education. He said he was convinced that Dr. Beran "gave reports on that to the Vatican ex-pionage network."

Non-Stop Service Authorized by Aeronautic Bd.

Washington, Nov. 30 (AP) — The United States Civil Aeronautics Board today authorized American Airlines to provide non-stop service between New York and Toronto. It denied the application of Colonial Airlines for a similar route.

The decision is the last in a series stemming from a civil aviation agreement signed with Canada June 4, 1949. Both countries then abandoned the long-standing policy of non-competitive trans-border air services.

Under that agreement Trans-Canada Air Lines were permitted to parallel Colonial's Montreal-New York route and an American carrier was given permission to parallel T.C.A.'s non-stop service between Toronto and New York.

Colonial sought the Toronto-New York route to compensate for competition it faced on the Montreal-New York run.

American Airlines has been flying between Toronto and New York for some years but under the previous Canadian agreements it was required to make at least one intermediate stop. T.C.A. has non-stop an advantage in attracting through-traffic.

American's route between New York and Toronto will continue to serve Albany, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, Wilkes-Barre Scranton-Binghamton, and Elmira-Corning on some flights.

Britons Rush To Buy Clothes

London —(CP)— From Land's End to John O'Groats, Britons are buying new clothes.

Before the bells toll farewell to 1950, thousands will have added to their wardrobes. This sudden buying spree is a direct result of a sharp rise in raw wool prices.

Since June, British wool textiles have increased in price from 15 per cent for lower-grade woollens to 35 per cent for all-worsteds, and further increases are expected. All that now stands between the consumer and the biggest rise in clothing prices since 1939 are the existing stocks in shop and warehouse.

Although this fact is fully realized, there is no panic-buying. Stocks are good and customers are choosing with care. Men are choosing useful dark lounge suits, women favor the all-purpose blacks.

West End tailors say they have 50 to 80 per cent more orders in hand than they had at this time last year. People are ordering top-grade flannels and worsteds that will remain in the tailors' hands until late in the coming year.

This premature buying is causing much concern in the trade. Retailers predict the greatest sales resistance in trade history, when the full impact of new prices is felt around March of next year. A rise in price of nearly £1 ($3.10) is expected on every £5 of merchandise.

"Some merchants are taking unfair advantage by increasing the price of existing stocks," said Harry Ellis, a London tailor.

Talk About Turkeys

(From the Wall Street Journal)

The season being what it is and our contemporaries being occupied on the weighty matters of the day, we are inclined to make some remarks about turkeys.

In the first place those pictures of the Pilgrim fathers with blunderbusses going out to shoot a turkey are all wrong — at least the historical authorities say so. The Pilgrims did not waste their ammunition that way. Turkeys were plentiful and they merely contrived to bash one over the head.

To get a turkey close enough to bash him, one would have to appeal to his curiosity. We have seen turkeys walk up to a fox in order to find out what nature of animal he was and what he might be doing. By the time they found out the knowledge was no longer of use, to them.

If a turkey senses danger, the job of getting him is not so easy. Let him get ten feet away in the underbrush and he is lost. Neither is the turkey defenceless. The family cat once strayed into the turkey flock and when we rescued her she was surrounded by a ring of turkeys closing in on her step by step. This was by no means a cowardly cat but on that occasion she was a scared cat. We have read that turkeys have been known to give similar treatment to a bear and that the bear, like our cat, became panic stricken.

We have read that a turkey came to be called a turkey because the commission merchants of Spain thought he was a kind of peacock. They called a peacock a "toucan" and when they say the first turkeys from America they called them "toucan," which finally became turkey.

Perhaps this is so. But one of the calls of a turkey is a distinct "turk, turk."

The turkey rather than the eagle was once strongly suggested as the national bird; Benjamin Franklin is said to have been in favor of it.

Knowing something of the mental calibre of turkeys, we are just as happy that it did not happen that way.

Hamilton Group Gathers Riches In Bygone Lore

Hamilton — (CP)) — A scientific organization in this industrial Ontario city is celebrating its 93rd birthday this year.

A nucleus for the gathering and dissemination of knowledge in this district since 1857 has been provided by the Hamilton Association for the Advancement of Science, Art and Literature.

It started in the fall of that year when Hamilton as a city was just 11 years old. A few eager citizens met in a private home and decided to form an association to look into the finer things of life.

On Sundays in the summer months the members of the Scientific Association, its popular name, used to gather at the shore of the bay and walk through the area to observe the large number of birds. They collected ferns and flowers and even poked into the geology of the region.

Fossils, rocks and specimens for microscopic examination were preserved by the group, and as a member became familiar with one field of study he branched into another. So their knowledge grew.

Valuable Records

At one time the association held meetings in the Alexandra Arcade, where a large department store now stands. By 1873 it had become incorporated, and took over a section of the old library building on Main Street.

The records compiled by these citizens have become invaluable. Papers prepared and read before the association were frequently published, and in some cases remain the only accounts of conditions of the time. The geology and natural history of the district has been well charted through their efforts.

One volume published in 1886 has become a classic of its kind. This is "Birds of Ontario," written by Thomas McIlwraith, -Sr., president of the association in 1880.

Adventures of Dr. J. Rae

The story of the adventures of Dr. John Rae, a physician who was the second president, forms part of Canadian annals. Once a geographer and explorer of note, he was the first man to discover the fate of the Arctic explorer Sir John Franklin. Dr. Rae, who had covered thousands of miles of northern territory by boat and on foot, found Eskimos who knew of Franklin's party and then discovered traces of its members.

First information about the baring papers which belonged to the great British family of financiers and diplomats was delivered to the association and then to the world. Dr. Adam Shortt of the Bureau of Archives at Ottawa was the first to study the papers and he passed on his knowledge to the Hamilton association.

Under the leadership of A. Z. Wood, president, the association continues the practice begun 85 years ago of cultivating science, art and literature, keeping alive an important phase of civic life.

Acheson Declares Free World Must 'Prepare For the Worst,' US Will Drive For More Arms

Washington, Nov. 30. (AP) — Secretary Dean Acheson's declaration that the free world must "prepare for the worst" heralds a United States administration drive to speed an even greater arms program both at home and in Western Europe.

Officials say that will be the government's initial response to the new global crisis created by communist China's intervention in the Korean conflict.

The growing war crisis also appears to be pressuring up a tremendous expansion of atomic facilities for which Congress may be asked to lay out $1,500,000,000.

This was indicated today in advance of a closed meeting of the Atomic Energy Commission with the Atomic Energy Committee of the Senate and House of Representatives.

Earlier congressional reports had set at $1,000,000,000 the amount President Truman would ask the present session of Congress to provide for atomic bombs and development of hydrogen weapons.

Regardless of the size of the figure, two things appeared certain: first, the alarmed Congress will provide the money and second, that another whopping A. E. C. money request will be made to the new Congress which convenes January 3.

Gravity of Crisis Outlined

The gravity of the crisis was pointed up by Acheson's warning last night that "no one can guarantee that war will not come."

Linked to this immediate danger, he pictured the free world as being under dark threat of Russian military power with great "capabilities for conquest and destruction".

The intention of free men was to preserve their institutions by peaceful means, but history has proved that "if we must, we will fight for them."

"We must hope and strive for the best while we prepare for the worst," he said in a speech delivered from his office to the National Council of Churches of Christ in America, meeting at Cleveland and broadcast by radio and television. He had cancelled plans to go to Cleveland because of the crisis.

Acheson called for the arms speed-up which appears to be in the making. Declaring that the only test of defence preparations is whether they are adequate to meet the danger the free world faces, he said:

Efforts Inadequate

'So measured, the defence efforts of the United States and other free nations are inadequate.

"A greatly-increased scale and tempo of effort is required on the part of all free nations to enable them to overcome this inadequacy at the earliest possible moment."

There was little direct comment from congressional leaders on Acheson's speech. But three Republican Senators—Kenneth C. Wherry of Nebraska, John W. Bricker of Ohio and Joseph McCarthy, of Wisconsin—accused Acheson of trying to oust Gen. MacArthur as commander of United Nations forces in Korea.

In his speech, Acheson did not hint at such criticism of Gen. Arthur.

It is understood that President Truman will shortly confer with congressional leaders on new rearmament measure to be taken, including an urgent request for $10,000,000,000 more for the armed forces and up to $1,500,000,000 for expanded atomic production.

The State Department is reported to have advised the White House that urgent steps toward a greater defence mobilization are necessary.

FIND NO TRACE

Edmonton, Nov. 30—(CP) — Four weary searchers returned here last night without finding any trace of a light plane and its five occupants, missing in the Northern Alberta bush since Oct. 14.

The search was organized after Ken Pryor, Peace River taxi operator and friend of one of the missing men, said he dreamed where the plane came down.

DR. R. L. DICKINSON DIES

Amherst, Mass., Nov. 30 (AP) —Dr. Robert L. Dickinson, a prime mover in the birth control and euthanasia movements, died yesterday. He was 86. He was honorary chairman of the national committee on maternal health.

BELL CRACKED

Paris, Nov. 30 — (CP) There's a crack in the shaft of the Paris town bell which has rung faithfully for years. It's missed by townspeople, many of whom se their weights by striking the bell. Particularly perturbed is Mrs. Ida Bell, one of the few women bell-ringers in Canada, who gets $130 a year for ringing the bell. A move is under way to have the bell repaired.

Third Battalion Of P.P.C.L.I. Will Be Organized

Ottawa, Nov. 30 — (CP) — Formation of a third battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry to bring Canada's Special Brigade back up to full strength, was announced today by Defence Minister Claxton.

The new battalion will be commanded by Lt.-Col. G. C. Corbould, 43, D.S.O., of New Westminster, B.C., and will replace the second battalion now en route to Korea.

The minister's announcement also disclosed the second battalion no longer will come under command or direction of Special Brigade, now training at Fort Lewis, Wash. It will operate with an allotted formation in the Far East, taking direction from army headquarters on administrative matters.

Most of the officers and men needed to fill the ranks of the new battalion — about 1,000 — are available from the 25th reinforcement groups and the Special Brigade's reinforcement stream in Canada.

Brigade training officials do not believe addition of the new unit will lengthen the year-all training period of the brigade by any appreciable time.

They point out that personnel forming the new battalion were recruited along with all other formations of the Special Force last August and have been training in camps across Canada until the recent move to Fort Lewis.

The new battalion is already well along in the process of formation. It will occupy accommodation at Fort Lewis originally slated for use by the second battalion of the P.P.C.L.I.

Lt.-Col. Corbould has been commanding the 25th Reinforcement Group at Fort Lewis. He commanded the Westminster Regiment during operations in Italy and northwest Europe and has a distinguished war record.

He retired from the army after the war but re-enlisted this year.

U.K. Trade Unions Are Prosperous

London, Nov. 30 — (Reuters)— Socialist business enterprises and trade unions in Britain prospered last year. Ministry of Labor figures today showed funds of 417 leading trade unions climbed to £58,119,000 last year. This compared with £54,398,000 ($152,-$14,400) 12 months earlier, and only £32,183,000 in 1939. Total assets of retail co-operatives stood at £396,178,000 at the end of last year, compared with £366,340,000 the previous year.

Urges Research On 'All-Dairy' Spread for Bread

Toronto, Nov. 30 (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Agriculture today told the Ontario Cabinet that competition from margarine "continues to threaten the foundation of the dairy industry in Ontario."

To combat this competition the federation asked that the government provide technical and financial assistance for research to discover "an all-dairy" spread for bread.

"We would ask also that, pending the production of such a spread and an eventual ban on margarine, the government take steps to strengthen the present regulations respecting margarine and to see that these are enforced."

"Nothing has appeared since the time margarine came on the market to indicate that those who predicted a critical situation for the dairy industry were wrong," V. S. Milburn, secretary-manager of the federation told the cabinet. "To the contrary there is every reason to believe that the result of almost uncontrolled margarine sale may be even more disastrous to the whole national economy than they first expected."

The federation said that the expansion of margarine sales at the expense of butter sales was draining Canadian purchasing power to foreign areas producing cheap edible oils.

All dairy groups were united in the opinion that the sale of the butter substitute should be prohibited, the cabinet was told.

David McCool, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McCool, was tobogganing on a hillside near his home and slid onto the street when the accident occurred.

The tragedy was witnessed by the boy's mother. She rushed out and brought the lad into the house, but took him to hospital on seeing that he was seriously injured. He was dead on arrival.

RED CHINA ACCUSED OF AGGRESSION

RED DELEGATION ATTENDS U.N. FORMOSA DEBATE

The Chinese communist delegation was seated in the United Nations political committee as debate on the matter of U.S. "aggression" in Formosa got underway. Gen. Wu Hsiu-Chuan, leader of the red delegation, is seated at left. Behind him are two members of the delegation, Chiao Hsiao-Hua, left, and Pu Shan. Britain's representative, K. Younger, is at right. Formidable Andrei Vyshinsky of the Soviet Union carried the ball for the communist bloc, branding President Truman's action on Formosa of June 27 a "flagrant violation" of the U.N. charter. He was referring to the president's order to the U. S. Seventh Fleet to prevent invasion of Formosa by the communists. Vyshinsky omitted mentioning that the Seventh Fleet was also ordered to prevent Nationalist action against communist China from Formosa. — Central Press Canadian.

SHERMAN TANK BATTLES DRIFTS

A 30-ton Sherman tank of the U.S. National Guard is shown trying to plow through the heavy snowdrifts which has caused Cleveland, O., to practically close shop. Drifts as high as 25 to 30 feet were reported in some parts of the city. The National Guard has been ordered to "shoot to kill" looters. — Central Press Canadian.

"NOSE-HANGARS" SAVE SPACE

No, these North Stars haven't plunged through a couple of apartment blocks. They are merely undergoing maintenance work in their newly built "nose hangars" at McChord air force base near Tacoma, Washington, where the R.C.A.F.'s 426 Thunderbird Squadron is based for its operations on the Korean airlift. With a cold winter coming on and hangar space at a premium because of the large number of planes on the airlift, these "nose hangars" were built to give snug-as-a-bug shelter for mechanics working on the planes. — Central Press Canadian.

Recent Events Shake Confidence Of MacArthur

New York, Nov. 30 — (CP) — The New York Times today in a Washington dispatch there is no doubt that confidence in Gen. Douglas MacArthur, United Nations leader in Korea, has been shaken badly as a result of the events of the last few days.

The dispatch says that similar doubts have been felt in United Nations leadership in the western world has been damaged by President Truman's acceptance of the bold MacArthur offensive and Truman's rejection of the more cautious British strategy.

It says that ever since the landing of U.S. troops at Inchon in mid-September suggestions have been made through the U.S. State Department and President Truman to MacArthur of the necessity of caution in approaching the Manchurian and Soviet frontiers.

Britain circulated a paper a month ago proposing that U.N. troops halt well before the Manchurian frontier and leave a buffer zone between the U. N. and Red China armies. In each case, it was said, MacArthur took the view that these suggestions were jeopardizing the victories he had won.

Crew of Tanker Abandons Ship

Halifax, Nov. 30 (CP) — The crew of the United States tanker Esso Rochester abandoned ship in the Gulf of St. Lawrence early today, and a rescue craft radioed that the stricken vessel's decks were awash.

Marine radio reported that the Montreal-owned tanker, Maruba aboard, the stranded crew — believed to number about 40—from Sept. 11,946-ton Rochester appeared to be standing by. No casualties were reported.

The trouble occurred 60 miles northwest of Anticosti Island. Its cause was not definitely known but it was thought here that three-day gales which lashed the area might have crippled the vessel.

Imperial Oil officials said the Rochester, owned by Standard Oil of New Jersey, left Anuay Bay, Venezuela, Nov. 15 and was scheduled to arrive at Montreal Nov. 24. They said the tanker, well known at this port, may have been diverted by the measures to Newfoundland, supply point for the Goose Bay airport.

Earlier reports identified the distressed ship as the Houl, but more definite information con-

No Survey Made Of Hermatite Body In Remote Yukon

Ottawa, Nov. 30 — (CP) — A huge deposit of hematite iron ore is known to lie in the Yukon Territory but whether it is commercially practical is "another matter," a geological survey engineer said today.

The engineer, H. S. Hostock, said extent of the field, northeast of Mayo, Y.T., is not known. There had never been a geological survey of the area but engineers knew it was there because of the finding of huge blocks of hematite in creeks in the Mayo and other areas.

He said an unidentified company had sent engineers into the area to look over the deposit about a year ago. But no report had ever been made public and so far as he knew the company had not gone ahead with any plans for possible development.

The field was in a remote and almost inaccessible area. If a railway were built from Alaska it would have to branch down about 800 miles from Skagway to pierce the deposits.

Hematite ore is the top grade of ore used in the making of iron and steel.

First Child Born In Lake City, Colo. In Seven Years

Lake City, Colo., Nov. 30. — (AP)—Linda Joyce Pavich has proved it's possible to be born in Lake City—but when folks were beginning to doubt it.

She's the first baby born in this old mining town in seven years; most mothers go to city hospitals when their time comes.

Not so Mrs. Lawrence Pavich. Just to give you some idea of how unusual the thing was, when the Paviches asked the Hinsdale County Clerk, Mrs. Mable Rawson, to record the birth, the clerk said there were no record books maintained for such purposes.

C.T.F. Presents Brief to P.M.

Ottawa, Nov. 30 — (CP) — Amendment of the Criminal Code to provide for drinking drivers was asked in a 2,500-word brief presented today by Prime Minister St. Laurent by the Canadian Temperance Federation.

Leader of the delegation was the federation president W. C. Good of Brantford, Ont. Other members included Dr. John Coburn, Rev. John Linton and Mrs. W. R. Lang, all of Toronto.

Specifically the brief suggested that province should be made for scientific tests to determine the amount of alcohol in the blood stream of anyone involved in a highway accident at the time of the occurrence.

In order to convict a driver of driving under the influence of alcohol, it should not be necessary to prove he was drunk or intoxicated in the ordinary sense of the term.

"If it can be shown that his driving ability was impaired to any degree by the alcohol, he should be convicted," said the brief.

The terrific wind on Saturday broke a window in Mount Pleasant United Church. The rain and snow made motoring a bit hazardous on the new built-up highway.

Drunk Driver Given 10 Days

Something more than the minimum penalty of seven days for drunk driving was handed out in county magistrate's court this morning by Magistrate C. V. Wills, when he sentenced a driver to ten days in jail, dating from last Saturday, the day of his arrest.

The accused was charged with drunk driving, and with dangerous and careless driving. He pleaded guilty to drunk driving and to careless driving, being assessed $5 fine and $5 costs on the latter charge or four days concurrent. The charge of dangerous driving was withdrawn.

The court was told that the truck driven by the accused had broken off a telephone pole and had skidded a distance of approximately 275 feet.

"This is more serious than the ordinary charge of drunk driving," stated the magistrate as he passed sentence.

Former Moderator Of United Church Dies in Toronto

Toronto, Nov. 30 (CP)—Very Rev. Peter Bryce, a former moderator of the United Church of Canada and a leader in social service work, died at his home here last night.

He would have been 72 Dec. 31, and until a recent illness had been active as minister of Toronto's Metropolitan United Church.

A kindly man who never lost his Scottish accent, even though it now is 47 years since he left his native Blantyre, he was one of Canada's best-known clergymen. During his two years as moderator it was his custom to visit congregations in little towns and hamlets who rarely saw a high church officer.

He said on his election to moderator at Ottawa in 1936: "I believe the church of Christ is the greatest international brotherhood in the world."

Dr. Bryce combined an interest in the physical comfort of his parishioners with their spiritual welfare. The author of many studies on social legislation, he was the first chairman of Ontario's Mothers' Allowance Board and several times represented the province at child-welfare conferences overseas.

As 60 he came to Metropolitan United Church in Toronto—a city where he spent his earlier ministerial years in Earlscourt Central Church and despatched his duties with an energy that enabled the church to retire an $80,000 mortgage.

He had gone to Newfoundland in 1903 as a missionary and three years later entered Victoria College, Toronto, to prepare for the Methodist ministry. He was a leader in Methodist Church campaigns and committee work and in 1925, when the United Church was formed, became secretary of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund.

As moderator, he represented the church several times at assemblies in Britain, also representing it at the coronation of present King.

His widow and two sons live in Toronto. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

WILL ONLY

en to the use of it. Quickly then, he expressed a devout hope it would not have to be used.

He said consideration of the use of every weapon is being given constantly and that the decision of whether to drop atomic bombs was one for the commander in the field.

Decision Up to U.N

In replying to other questions, the president said the matter of whether the United Nations troops should bomb across the Manchurian border is one for the United Nations to decide.

Asked about criticism of MacArthur growing out of the Chinese communist invasion across the Manchurian border, the president said there are always people who are for a man when he's winning and who are ready to jump on him when there are setbacks.

MacArthur, he said, has done a good job and is continuing to do a good job.

A reporter said there had been criticism that MacArthur exceeded his authority and went beyond the point to which Korea he was supposed to go. MacArthur, the president declared, did nothing of the kind.

The president also made clear that the policy against accepting the offer of nationalist Chinese troops has not changed.

The offer was not accepted, he said, in the hope that such a course would prevent involvement of the world in a third world war. That policy, he said, continues.

Keep Formosa Neutralized

He said it still is the policy to keep Formosa neutralized. Formosa is the big island off the China coast where Chiang Kai Shek's nationalist government set up headquarters when forced by the communist to flee the China mainland.

Truman said that from the time the North Koreans invaded South Korea the United States has been doing all it can to avert a third world war. The U.S. is still trying to avert a third world war, he said, and hopes that it can be averted.

London Astounded

London—(AP)—President Truman's statement that the commander in the field can decide whether to use the atomic bomb against Chinese communists shocked and astounded British government officials today.

Responsible officials in a number of key government departments including the defence ministry, war office and foreign office, all expressed the same stunned reaction.

There was, however, no formal statement by any government department.

FIERCE

flank Wednesday night, U.N. forces checked a wheeling Chinese movement aimed at cutting below the line of retreat and trapping the eighth army.

The Chinese had wrecked three South Korean divisions in turning the flank. But the reds were checked by the U.S. 1st cavalry division, the commonwealth 27th brigade and the Turkish brigade.

On the southeast end of the line cavalry troopers, attacked by Chinese east of Sinchang, 34 air miles northeast of the former communist capital of Pyongyang, Sinchang is 12 miles east of Sunchon, on the main supply road from Pyongyang to the front.

Two regiments of the badly-mauled South Korean sixth division were reassembling at Sinchang.

On the left flank of the 1st cavalry division, the Commonwealth brigade and Turks checked the Chinese in the Kaechon and Kunu areas.

The bayonet-wielding Turks slowed the reds east of Kunu while the U.S. 2nd division pulled back across the Chongchon. However, two battalions of the 2nd division were overrun Wednesday after rushing to the aid of Turkish elements near Kaechon, five miles southeast of Kunu.

The Turks had cut their way out of a trap north of Kaechon, Thursday morning their main force pulled back south from Kaechon.

Elements of the commonwealth plugged gaps southeast of Kunu and at Samso, eight miles south of Chongchon.

Excessive Caution of Banks And Govt. Acts as Brake On Canada's Progress--Eaton

Toronto, Nov. 30. (CP)—Cyrus S. Eaton, Canadian-born American industrialist, said today that Canada "is held back by the excessive caution of her banks, railroads and utilities, and by her federal and provincial governments, especially in their approach to electric power development and highway construction."

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Rotary Club, he added:

Canada, like the rest of the world, was laid low by the economic depression of the '30s. Now, 20 years later, it is time for public institutions to abandon the inhibitions and unprogressive policies of a contracting economy, and to embark on a bold and courageous course of expansion to bring the economic status of every Canadian to the highest in the world."

Noted Industrialist

Mr. Eaton was born in Pugwash, N.S., in 1883, attended school and college in Canada, left when he was 16, and has been connected with electric power, railroads, lake shipping, iron ore and steel since he went to Cleveland as a young man.

In recent years he was largely responsible for development of Iron Ore at Steep Rock Lake, Atikokan, Ont., 120 miles west of Port Arthur. One of the mining companies are interested. He is chairman of the board of Steep Rock Iron Mines, Ltd., and operates a 3,000-acre farm near Chester, N.S.

Mr. Eaton said that his part in Steep Rock was brought in once to face with the difficulties of creating and developing a new industry in Canada, and he has given me first-hand knowledge of the problems of transportation, communication, electric power, finance and markets for a new Canadian enterprise."

He stated: "Steep Rock reserves of high-quality iron now are known to exceed those of any other range, old or new, on the continent.

"In five years we aim to have at least six mines shipping a minimum of 10,000,000 tons annually."

Advocating an expanding economy for Canada, he said in part:

"My observation is that the individual Canadian is in an optimistic mood and is ready to move rapidly forward on the economic front. But the big institutions, without whose wholehearted participation there can be no progress, are holding back.

"The federal and provincial governments and the appropriate privately-owned companies owe it to the citizens of Canada to provide railroad facilities, telephone service, electric power and highways on the vast scale required, and the nation-wide banks must extend the credit needed to enable the Canadian economy to make the most of its unprecedented opportunity.

Would Expand Production

"If transportation, electric power and credit are provided in adequate amount, there can be tremendously increased activity in the production not only of raw materials and semi-finished products, but also of manufactured articles, both for domestic consumption and export. With the modern trend toward decentralization, there is no reason why every Canadian community of any size should not have a thriving industry of its own.

"An essential is that Canadian economic progress will be the closest harmony and co-operation between labor and capital. Canadian business leaders would be well advised not to rely solely on governmental agencies to handle labor matters, but to get to know and understand their employees and the leaders of the labor organizations to which their employees proudly belong.

"I think the educators and churchmen of Canada have an important part to play. . . Functioning properly, capitalism can produce more of the good things of this world than any other system. The life of the mind and the spirit will flourish if there is material progress in nations which combine the capitalistic system with the political system of democracy."

Canada May Sell U.K. More Food In 1951--Gardiner

Ottawa, Nov. 30—(CP)—Agricultural Minister Gardiner said today that Canada might be able to sell Britain as much or even more food in 1951 than at any time in the last few years.

Welcoming more than 100 delegates to the ninth annual federal-provincial agricultural conference, Mr. Gardiner referred specifically to the increase in Britain's dollar reserves.

"The dollar problem in the United Kingdom is easing up somewhat," he said.

"Suggestions are being made that Britain may desire supplies of Canadian food, as great or even greater than Canada has been able to persuade her to take in the last few years."

This appeared to be a direct reference to current negotiations between Canada and the U.K. to cover Canadian shipments of bacon and cheese in 1951. An announcement on the conclusion of the negotiations is expected in the next few days, probably tomorrow.

Loss of Trained Personnel Blamed For Corps' Defeat

New York, Nov. 30 — (CP) — The New York Times says today in a dispatch from headquarters of the Republic of Korea Army that casualties in the South Korean's 2nd Army Corps is attributed to previous loss of trained officers and experienced troops.

The Army was holding the vital right flank of United Nations defensive positions on the northwest front.

The dispatch says there had previously been heavy casualties among trained officers and experienced men. In addition, it says, the corps' disintegration was due to flight Chinese troops contributed to flagging morale that preceded the corps' disintegration.

The dispatch quotes informed military sources at Pyongyang as saying the experience of the 2nd Corps demonstrated in large measure the effect of the long, bitter campaign on the South Korean Army, which has seen continuous fighting since the war's outbreak.

China Red Delegates Arrive at United Nations

General Wu Hsiu Chuan, leader of the nine-member Chinese communist delegation from Peking is surrounded by newsmen at the New York Idlewild airport on arrival of the group for U.N. conferences. The delegation was welcomed by a group of U.N. officials, composed chiefly of Soviet bloc representatives and headed by Russia's Jacob Malik. General Wu issued a brief statement in Chinese, in which he expressed the hope that the group's mission (discussion of the charge of armed aggression against Taiwan) will be helpful "to the peace and security of the Pacific and in Asia." — Central Press Canadian.

Main Transformer Burned Out By Overload

Peterborough, Nov. 30. (CP)—Life was returning to normal here today after yesterday's mid-afternoon explosion in the municipal hydro sub-station which blacked out this city of 37,000.

Power was restored to most residential areas last night and was expected to be supplied to the business section early today.

The explosion occurred about 1:30 p.m. and blacked out the whole of Peterborough. As darkness descended there was a run on stores selling coal oil for stoves and lamps.

Harold Wilson, 60, one of two hydro employees in the three-storey brick sub-station at the time of the blast, was the only person injured. He suffered burns about the face.

It was believed a main transformer blew up, probably because of an overload.

Virtually all business places and factories were disrupted by the blackout. However, the city's two main industries, Canadian General Electric and Quaker Oats, were able to carry on. They, like Civic and St. Joseph's Hospitals, have their own power plants.

The Peterborough Examiner, normally published around 3 p.m., was delayed six hours and was delivered to subscribers late last night. Editors had set up world news received over wires of the Canadian Press before the explosion occurred. The presses began rolling when power was restored partially about 8:30 p.m.

Schools were closed up after the explosion, theatres gave their patrons rain-checks, and extra police were assigned to downtown intersections where stoplights were not operating.

Churchill Marks 76th Birthday, Plans Vacation

London, Nov. 30 (AP) —Winston Churchill turned 76 today—and made plans for a sunny Mediterranean vacation during the Christmas holidays.

Despite increasingly-threatened war clouds in the Far East, a secretary for Britain's wartime Prime Minister said he would observe the yuletide in some place sunny and warm, where he can do some painting.

Neither the vacation spot nor the time of departure has yet been decided.

Churchill opened a sheaf of congratulatory cable and telegrams this morning and spent the day as usual—writing in the forenoon and attending the House of Commons in the afternoon.

Mrs. Churchill planned a dinner party at their London home tonight for 15 persons.

The first of many gifts received by the staple-putting Conservative leader was a large, ornate cigar cabinet from a suburban Conservative Association.

Fifty Planes In Mock Raid Over Toronto

Toronto, Nov. 30 (CP)—A mock air raid on Toronto Saturday will be the largest aerial exercise in this district since the war.

The R.C.A.F. said today that five reserve units will take part. Fifty planes, including vampire jets, Mustangs and Harvards of City of Westminster Squadron, City of London, City of Hamilton and City of Toronto fighter squadrons will be involved. A radar unit here will warn of the approach of the "attacking" planes.

Division of Army Commands In Korea One of War Puzzles Sharp Criticism Being Voiced

By DON WHITEHEAD

With the U.S. Eighth Army, Korea, Nov. 30 (AP) —Collapse of the United Nations offensive has drawn sharp criticism here of the divided command in Gen. MacArthur's military forces in Korea.

Many military men are questioning the set-up in which the United States 10th Corps is operating in Northeast Korea entirely independently of the Eighth Army on the northwest front.

The 10th Corps, commanded by Maj.-Gen. Edward M. Almond, frequently operates as it in this theatre as a "Special Police Force."

In effect, MacArthur has two forces fighting in Korea — one labelled as an army and the other as a corps. The co-ordination of these forces is left handled in the field, but from Headquarters in Tokyo.

This sharp separation of command responsibilities in the field has been one of the puzzles of the Korean war. No one yet has given an official explanation of why 10th Corps is divorced from Eighth Army.

AP correspondent Stan Swinton, who has covered 10th Corps since Almond's men went ashore in the northeast, pointed out today that there was a physical reason for the separation of commands. The north-central Korean mountain mass splits North Korea in two so the Eighth Army and 10th Corps could not operate as a single unit.

Swinton said many officers of the 10th Corps privately believe there should be closer liaison between Eighth Army and 10th Corps, but a popular opinion there is that the 10th Corps actually operating as an army and not as a corps—should be given army status and an overall army command set up at a central point in Korea.

Lt.-Gen. Walton H. Walker commands the Eighth Army, but actually he is responsible for only half the fighting front despite his three stars. The other half of the responsibility rests on the "two-star command of Almond.

No officer dares talk for publication, but privately they have begun to question the wisdom of this cleavage in field command.

This is where the spot decision must be made in fighting the enemy.

No Money Sent Her For Seven Years Wife Tells Magistrate

Sudbury, Nov. 30 (CP) —Edward Marinoff, 32, of Toronto, Wednesday was sentenced to six months with hard labor for non-support. His wife testified that he sent no money to her and their seven children for three years.

She said Marinoff, married 12 years, worked as a butcher in the Sudbury district before going to Toronto early in 1947.

ATTACK PROVES FATAL

Toronto, Nov. 30 — (CP)—A mysterious attack of bronchial pneumonia, reportedly similar to the seizure which took the life of a Peterborough, Ont., child recently, proved fatal Tuesday to four-month-old Joan Downer. Dr. F. W. Tickett, assistant coroner, said that in both cases the cause of the pneumonia was not known.

Press Gallery Will Make Tour Chalk R. A-Plant

Ottawa, Nov. 30 — (CP) — Security restrictions at Canada's atomic energy project in Chalk River, Ont., will be relaxed tomorrow to permit members of the parliamentary press gallery to take their first tour of the plant.

Ever since the project was started after the Second World War, newspaper men have been barred for security reasons. A parliamentary committee visited the project two years ago, but newspaper men were not allowed to go along.

Arrangements for the visit to the plant, 125 miles northwest of Ottawa, were made through Trade Minister Howe, who reports to parliament for the Atomic Energy Control Board and the National Research Council.

Mr. Howe said that since the parliamentary committee visited the project various items have been taken off the secret list. It was felt that a "sufficient amount of declassed material" was available now to warrant a visit by newspaper men.

This did not mean, said Mr. Howe, that from now on newspaper men will have free access to the project.

Death Was Due To Natural Causes

Brockville, Nov. 30 — (CP)—Crown Attorney Hayworth Atkinson announced today that a post-mortem on the body of Melville Johnston, 52, of Elgin, disclosed that the Leeds county farmer died of natural causes.

Found dead near his home, some 20 miles south of here, after being missing for three months, Johnston was known to have hidden in barns and caves during the day while foraging at night for food. Apparently he managed to elude police who were trying to locate him.

He was believed to have been dead about a week when found by a neighbor last Sunday.

Neighbors' Aid Celebrates 20th Anniversary

2nd Thurlow—The 2nd Line Neighbors' Aid celebrated their 20th anniversary with a pot-luck supper held in the Front Road church hall on Wednesday night. About sixty were present to enjoy the many good things provided by the members. The tables were tastefully decorated with potted chrysanthemums, of various colors which were later used for presentations. The centre table was reserved for the chartered members and their husbands.

The president, Mrs. Harry Thomson, called the gathering to order while all were seated at the tables, for the following program and gave a hearty welcome to all, and, on behalf of the present officers, expressed the feeling of gratitude and appreciation to the mothers and neighbors, who 20 years ago had gathered at the Donaldson home to form this group. "The 2nd Line Neighbors' Aid". "May we of the next generation", continued the speaker, "hold high the torch which has been lit for us and carry on that which was so nobly started for us and hold as our motto, 'Goodwill and an ever helpful spirit'."

Musical Numbers

The Belleville Salvation Army Band contributed several musical selections during the evening, and Miss Helen Salmon, Belleville, favored with several readings, which were well received.

Mrs. Arnold Mitchell gave the history of the Neighbors' Aid which was formed in November 1930, the first president being Mrs. John Donaldson, who is the mother of the present president. Other presidents over the twenty year period were, Mrs. Jim Bonnett, Mrs. W. Taylor, Mrs. W. Gray, Mrs. Frank Dexter, Mrs. Percy Sprackett, Mrs. Archie Greatrix, Mrs. Harry Grills, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, Mrs. Orrin Cook and the present president, Mrs. Harry Thomson.

The past secretaries and treasurers were, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, Mrs. E. Leeming, Mrs. Douglas Atkins, Mrs. Robert Atkins and the present secretary, Mrs. Maurice Dent and treasurer, Mrs. C. Grills.

Memorial Silence

Mrs. Mitchell asked for a minute silence in honor of former members who have passed on, Mrs. W. Bennett, Miss S. Lynch, Mrs. Fred Haight, Mrs. Archie McDonnell and Mr. George Greatrix.

Mrs. Mitchell then read the names of the chartered members Mrs. Robert Atkins presented each with a chrysanthemum plant.

The gathering was dismissed with the Salvation Army band playing "Onward Christian Soldiers".

MARMORA

Wells Brothers Complete Unique Three-Purpose Bldg.

Marmora—Wells Brothers have recently completed a building on Forsythe Street, which is unusual in this part of the country at least. It is a combined office, showroom and warehouse and is unique in the fact the building is finished inside and out so as to give prospective customers and visitors a visual demonstration of the various kinds of building materials which they have for sale.

New Material Used

The front of the building is covered with log cabin siding, a comparatively new material which is proving popular in the building of cottages, and other buildings. The south wall of the building is finished in bevelled siding and the north wall is of sunset insul brick and the east wall or rear of the building is of imitation stone insul material. The roof is of popular asphalt shingle material.

Six Kinds of Wood

The office which is a bright attractive room has the walls finished in six different kinds of wood. The woods demonstrated are butternut, basswood, poplar, knotty pine, silver cord fir, and oak. Two large picture windows give plenty of light and add a touch to the appearance of the office which has a plywood ceiling. The floor or subfloor has walls of silver cord plywood. The ceiling is of tentest and the floor is covered with rubber tile flooring.

In the room is a large showcase, designed and made by the firm, and they carry in stock quite a display of electrical appliances and other articles including refrigerators and ranges, radios and vacuum cleaners.

The Wells Brothers carry on an extensive lumbering business as well as wholesale and retail business in builders' supplies, glass and paints.

LATE IN RESIGNING

Sarnia, Nov. 29 (CP)—Because he was late in resigning his position as assistant building inspector of Sarnia township, Michael Romanyszyn stands small chance of being a member of township council next year. According to the qualification rules a municipal employee must resign at least three days before nomination day. Mr. Romanyszyn accepted nomination on Nov. 24, but did not telephone his resignation until Tuesday.

VALUABLE TEAM

Here is a classic example of R.C.A.F. teamwork in action. Storing film in the vaults of No. 1 Photo Establishment, Rockcliffe, Ont., are jockey-sized LAC Lawrence Orr of Winnipeg, and towering LAC Dick Holt of Pesticodiac, N.B. Standing five feet, two inches, LAC Lawrence Harvey Orr easily takes care of the lower shelves, while his buddy uses his six feet, eight inches of height to reach the upper storage cans. As the centre of the R.C. A.F.'s entire aerial and ground photo activities, No. 1 P. E. has millions of feet of film catalogued and locked away in its vaults. — Central Press Canadian.

RAWDON

J. A. Corrigan Visits Springbrook

Rawdon—On Friday evening last, despite the unfavorable weather, a large number of Orangemen and their friends gathered in Springbrook Orange Hall where an open meeting to the public was held.

Mr. John Hagerman, county master for Centre Hastings, welcomed the guests at 9 p.m. and was master of ceremonies.

Guest of Honor

The special guest of honor was J. A. Corrigan, Grand Master of Ontario East, who was making his official visit to this part of the province and incidentally it is the first time that a Grand Master has attended a public meeting at Springbrook.

Mr. Corrigan gave a special message dealing with the Orange Order in relation to the Bible, and quoted many scriptural passages to prove his points. He stressed the value of the Christian church, the Orange Order, Protestantism and the Union Jack. His message was clear and concise and deeply appreciated.

The county was well represented with Stirling, Eldorado, Ivanhoe, Wellman's, Tanner, Marmora, Belleville, Queensboro, West Huntingdon and other lodges in the group and they all sang in unison "The Maple Leaf Forever".

Rev. Howard Beare, pastor of Springbrook United circuit, and Mr. Frank Carr, county master, South Hastings, each spoke briefly.

Fine Music

Mrs. Lindsay Tanner, Messrs. Lorne Hagerman, Delbert Hess and Kenneth Belcour delighted with orchestra music during the program and after refreshments they played for round and square dancing with Mr. Lindsay Tanner calling the squares.

Mr. Fred Bateman, Stirling, Deputy Grand Master of Ontario East, spoke on the theme "Why I am a Member of the Orange Order?"

Mr. and Mrs. Bateman entertained Mr. Corrigan at their home during his visit to Centre Hastings.

At the close of the program the ladies served appetizing refreshments and many friends were presented to the guest of honor.

It was regretted that there were so many other functions that evening and even the weather was unfavorable, but despite it all there was a good attendance and this public meeting free to all was a real success.

Burt Repudiates Support So-Called Peace Petition

Ottawa, Nov. 30 (CP)—George Burt, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers' (C.I.O.) Local 27, today in a statement publicity repudiated his support of the so-called Stockholm "peace" petition.

"Certain communist party publicity is attempting to make political capital out of the fact that I signed a 'peace petition some months ago," Mr. Burt said. "The petition I signed was sent me through the mails and I signed it in good faith, believing as do most Canadians in peace and the outlawing of the bomb.

"The union director's statement was distributed following an executive meeting of the Canadian Congress of Labor. Mr. Burt said he had placed his name on the petition prior to the holding of the Stockholm "peace" conference.

The statement added:

"That conference proved that the peace campaign being conducted in Canada and other countries was merely a phoney and was merely a political appeal to the world to support communism.

"I am sure a very large number of other people who had signed the petition in good faith found that they had been duped.

"Personally I fully support the policy statement passed at the Montreal convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor and the principles of the International Confederation of free trade unionism.

"While continuing to desire peace and true outlawing of the bomb I wish to publicly repudiate my support to the Stockholm peace petition. The fact that its sponsors are now using it for purely political purposes makes it abundantly clear that their primary interest is not in peace; such tactics are typical of the communist party."

TWO-YEAR TERM

Laviolette asked to be sent to penitentiary so that he could learn a trade. He will go there on completion of his present Burwash term.

Something to remember

This is one of a series of words and expressions whose origins and meanings are published in the interest of a better understanding, use and knowledge of the English language.

"KINGFISHER"

Everyone knows that the "Kingfisher" is one of the world's most beautiful birds. Possessing brilliant blue and green plumage, it gets its food by plunging almost perpendicularly into the water and emerging a moment later with its catch.

The "Kingfisher" is the subject of many legends. A medieval story tells that at the time the "Kingfisher" was a plain grey bird. Its amazing coloring came about, according to this story, when it was inhabited from Noah's ark and flew towards the sun. Then, we are told, its upper surface assumed the hue of the sky above it, while the lower plumage was scorched to a dull chestnut red by the heat of the setting orb.

DAWES Kingsbeer BREWERY

JET SQUADRON IS "SEMPER PARATUS"

Just four and one-half minutes from a card game in the ready room at George air force base at Victorville, Calif., the pilots of the 94th Air Squadron have their Sabres off the ground, wheels folded up, and the deadly planes headed seaward. As the speed indicators move toward 700 miles per hour, directions and location of the enemy are fed to them by radio. In the three photos you will find the first line of defence for the city of Los Angeles. At top, with ringing of phone, pilots of 94th Squadron of first fighter interceptor group dash for planes from their ready room. At centre, flight a la jeep is made by pilots, after receiving warning of "enemy" craft. Pilots pile into vehicle for ride to their planes. Jeep horn alerts mechanics. At bottom, while third jet stands by for emergency, fighters of the 94th Squadron streak for "foe" — loaded with ammunition, speed and teamwork, all just 4½ minutes after the squadron receives the alert call. — Central Press Canadian.

Faster Air Trips Over Pacific Are Forecast

Victoria, Nov. 30 (CP)—Grant W. McConachie, president of Canadian Pacific Airlines, yesterday forecast faster air trips over the Pacific when the new weather station "Peter" reports on atmospheric conditions.

He said jet aircraft will be operating on the runs to Australia and the Orient within 18 months. British jet-powered Comets will be used in the service.

"They can operate only if we have accurate information on the weather above 40,000 feet," he said.

The new weather ship St. Catharines at station "Peter," 900 miles off the coast, will probe upper air levels from 40,000 to 60,000 feet, never before investigated commercially over the Pacific.

"The St. Catharines, with her radar and radiosonde balloons, will supply the information," said Mr. McConachie.

Tarps at Least Partial Answer To Question

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—American football teams have found tarpaulin-protected gridirons at least a partial answer to pre-game weather worries.

Last weekend three major games were threatened by snow and rain. Several other games at central and eastern points were played in adverse weather.

At Knoxville, Tenn., where Tennessee beat Kentucky 7-0, tarps were laid 48 hours before game time Sunday. Snow started 24 hours before the whistle, and an estimated 250 fans fell by the time the teams hit the field.

Ninety men worked for 15 hours clearing the snow. The field was damp but in good condition for the match.

At Columbus, O., the covering was put down 24 hours before Saturday's game. Snow started during the night and 100 men worked several hours before the game. Their method was to roll back the tarps—in sections—as far as possible, then shovel away the piles of snow. Michigan defeated Ohio State 9-3 there in a raging gale.

At Chicago the snow started Thursday, and tarpaulins were laid immediately. They were pulled off the field before game time Sunday with some trampling by to cart the piles of snow away.

Officials reported the field was dry and semi-hard, with players requiring cleats for traction. Chicago beat Los Angeles 24-14 in a pro game.

Put Rocker Back In Family Parlor For Peace of Mind

Boston, Nov. 30—Put that old rocker back in the family "parlor" and presto! You can restore peace of mind to a harried generation—so says Milton Babcock, who is not a psychiatrist, but director of the Boston Antiques Exposition.

"Mental experts are puzzled by the soaring mental breakdowns of individuals, but they can look to the family parlor for a cause," he says.

"The rocker has disappeared. "The rocker is a terrific tonic for the mind. If you're mad you can blow off steam with accelerated rocking. If you're tired just sit back and forth slowly and it soothes your cares away."

Chicago Slickers Raise Hogs for Exhibition

Chicago, Nov. 30 — CP—Hal White, 28, and Bus Michels, 36, could be called city slickers but that didn't stop them from competing in what is termed a considerably different sort of a farmer show—the International Livestock Exposition.

White, a sporting goods salesman, and Michels, a night-club performer, have four Chester white hogs entered. The hogs were raised in the backyard of a home in Chicago's exclusive Beverly Hills district. Actually the city fellers aren't green hands. Last year they won a second-place award for their hogs.

TAKES TOP HONORS

Cornwall, Nov. 29 (CP)—William Brooks of Ault sville took top honors at the eastern Ontario export cheese show here yesterday. Mr. Brooks won three of the major trophies for the three highest scoring cheese in the show; the highest score of any two cheese and the highest for season's workmanship.

Find Flying Saucer (?) 3000 Years Old

London, Nov. 30—(Reuters)—Maybe we moderns aren't the only ones plagued with flying saucers.

It seems the ancients saw them, too.

British archaeologists on the site of Cyprus reported to London yesterday that they had unearthed a ruined temple. In the temple they found a small stone seal.

Expedition leader John Du Platt said one seal bore the replica of what was definitely a winged disk.

Age of this antique flying saucer? About 3,000 years.

Move to Acquire Indian Property Is Thwarted

Ottawa, Nov. 30 (CP) — An Indian Affairs official said today that a move by the city of Brantford to acquire 96.8 acres of Indian property within its boundaries has been thwarted because a sufficient number of eligible Indians failed to vote.

Known as the Glebe property, the land is owned by the Six Nations tribe located near Brantford. The city offered the tribe almost $100,000 for the property, which, with the exception of an old army drill hall, is not in use.

Of 1,694 eligible voters only about 255 Indians turned out when the vote was called Oct. 21, the official said. They voted 135-119 in favor of selling the land to the city, but because of an insufficient number of voters the government, as the Indians' guardian ruled that no sale could be made.

The official said he doubted whether a further vote would be called immediately, in view of the previous unenthusiastic response. However, he said the door is not closed, and the Indians could call another vote at any time.

US Cost-of-Living Index at 174.8 All-Time High

Washington, Nov. 30—(AP)—The United States government's cost-of living index today rose to an all-time high.

The new index, covering prices as of Oct. 15, was 174.8 per cent of the 1935-39 base—100—an increase of 6.6 per cent since Sept. 15.

It was 9.2 per cent higher than the previous peak of 174.8 in August and September, 1948.

Nearly 1,000,000 workers whose wag- contracts are tied to the rise and fall of the index will receive a pay increase of two to three cents an hour.

General Motors Corporation, first of the major auto manufacturers to adopt the cost-of-living formula for its workers, announced immediately 357,000 hourly-rated workers will receive an additional three cents an hour. The boost will be effective with the first pay period beginning after Dec. 1.

Approximately 80,000 G.M. salaried workers will receive an additional $15 as their allowance for the period between Dec. 1 and next March 1, to be paid at the close of the quarter next March.

WHAT ABOUT NATURAL GAS?

HOW WILL YOU VOTE?

What is natural gas?

It is the cheapest, cleanest, most efficient and most convenient fuel known today. It is "stored sunshine" which has been underground for millions of years waiting to be tapped by modern civilization. Today pipe lines can bring it thousands of miles from its source and it can be used for many home and industrial purposes.

How does natural gas compare with other fuels?

In addition to the above advantages it performs all the heating tasks of other fuels without the problems of storage and replenishment. At less than one-half the average price of manufactured gas it provides over twice the energy content.

What will natural gas mean to the housewife?

It is a faithful and dependable servant which will heat your home, do your cooking and provide a constant supply of hot water.

What will natural gas do for Belleville?

Most industrial processes involving the use of heat can be performed more efficiently and more cheaply with natural gas. It will mean new industries and greater employment. It will provide increased prosperity, greater opportunities for your young people and a better way of life for everyone.

What will natural gas cost your municipality?

Nothing! The entire cost of installing the mains will be at the expense of the distributing company, without any cost to the rate-payers.

• • •

Whether or not you intend to use natural gas in your own home, you cannot help but benefit by its introduction to your community. You can help make this possible by supporting the natural gas by-law at your forthcoming election.

WHAT IS THE STORY BEHIND THE FRANCHISE APPLICATION?

Natural gas, one of the latest additions to the list of Canada's vast wealth of natural resources, has been discovered in Alberta in quantities substantially in excess of the requirements of the consumers of that province. You may have read of the various proposals to get the surplus gas to market, particularly to the Northwest United States where there would be a critical fuel shortage in another national emergency. In exchange, American gas could be made available to Eastern Canada. By such a reciprocal agreement two pipe lines from Texas gas to Ontario and Quebec by way of a pipe line from Windsor to Montreal and Ottawa, tapping the line to supply important towns and cities en route.

This is a Canadian project designed to benefit Canadians. The availability of this "wonder fuel" in Eastern Ontario should not only relieve the present heavy load on our power facilities, but, it should also make possible an industrial development far beyond the present capacity. To get this tremendous project under way, we have applied for a franchise in your community, the granting of which is subject to the approval of the electors.

This franchise takes the form of an agreement between your Council and ourselves, permitting us, under certain terms and conditions, to enter upon your streets for the purpose of installing the mains. This agreement, which has been amended to best protect the interests of your community by your Municipal Solicitor upon the instructions of Council, has already appeared in this newspaper. However, the following highlight is of interest to the rate-payer:

The entire cost of installing the distribution system and the restoration of the areas disturbed to their previous condition will be solely at our company's expense and no work can be started until plans and specifications have been submitted to and approved by your Engineer. In this way it will be possible to co-ordinate a portion of our operations with the regular public works undertaken by your Municipality and thus minimize any inconvenience during the installation.

If you consider that natural gas will be of benefit to your Community, you can help to make this franchise possible at your forthcoming election.

It is said that the twentieth century belongs to Canada. We feel confident that the introduction of natural gas will contribute to the continued prosperity of this great country and if you share our enthusiasm, we urge you to give the project your support by marking your ballot "For the by-law".

Charge Brings Reply From Judge Cochrane

Brampton, Nov. 30—CP—A charge that the newly-appointed commission is using "silk glove tactics" in Windsor brought the reply yesterday that gambling and vice in the border city will be stamped out.

Walter Thomson, Ontario's new liberal leader, charged Tuesday night that the police commission was a "smoke screen set up by Premier Leslie Frost to cover up the big shots involved in the rackets."

Judge Archibald Cochrane of the three-man commission, replied: "The clean-up can't be done overnight. The situation in Windsor is serious and will take time to rectify. But it will be done."

Judge Cochrane was appointed chairman in a shake-up of the police commission last September after provincial police investigators reported that vice was widespread in Windsor with the apparent knowledge of the local police.

Mr. Thomson, speaking at a meeting of the Simcoe Centre Liberal Association at Midhurst, said:

"As far as Judge Cochrane is concerned he left Windsor because he was no politician and because he ran into something that couldn't be exposed but that had to be smothered to protect certain interests. The Judge got disgusted with the set-up and went back home to Brampton."

Judge Cochrane said "to put it bluntly, Mr. Thomson doesn't know what he is talking about. Nothing has been covered up or smothered by the commission in Windsor, nor will it be by any member of the commission in future."

Judge Cochrane said that restrictions placed on the release of police news, announced following yesterday's commission meeting, were made to bring Windsor's practice into line with other centres such as Toronto.

The commission ruled that no police force member without proper authority may disclose the contents of any police record or report to any person outside the force.

Judge Cochrane said the ruling was made because he discovered irregularities regarding police and press relations.

Old Hunter's Call Brings Deer

Yarmouth, N.S.—(CP)—When anyone speaks of hunting in Yarmouth, nearly everyone thinks of Watson Raynard.

A spry old man of 81, Raynard has developed the unusual ability to call deer. It all started about 20 years ago.

Tracking two deer, he lost them in a swamp. More in fun than in hope, he imitated the call he had heard from a doe. Within minutes the big buck walked out and was felled.

All summer he practised the three-note call, mostly at night.

His friends scoffed but he proved his claims. One call, one buck almost every time he entered the woods. Several times he called a buck, missed the shot, and then called him back.

Once, trifling on the trust of a kill, he gave the call and was answered with three buck from three directions.

The call, he says, is a cross between a sick goat and a spring frog.

Toronto Diver Out of Danger

Toronto, Nov. 30. (CP)—Harry Lee, real-estate dealer who became ill Sunday after eating a strange plant that brought death to his wife, Wednesday, was reported "out of danger".

He regained consciousness Tuesday and told his 14-year-old daughter, Nancy that he was given the plant by owners of a market garden in suburban Etobicoke township. He said the gardeners told him he could pick parsley and some cabbages.

Police and botanists planned to search the garden today for plants similar to the one eaten by Lee and his wife at the family supper table.

Ship's Lookout Has Lonely Job

Montreal—(CP)—The world is full of lonely professions but shipping men will tell you the loneliest at sea is the lookout who swings and sways in the crow's nest of a bounding liner in the teeth of a stiff Atlantic gale.

Typical of the men who are the "eyes" of the ship during the long Atlantic voyage is Gerard Widdows, who holds down one of the lofty watches on the Cunard liner Ascania.

A veteran of 14 years' service with the Royal Navy, Gerard says there are few lonelier jobs than that of the lookout whose only contact with the ship below is the telephone connection with the bridge.

"You get a bit of every type of weather up there," he explained. "In the summer you get the boiling heat and in the winter it's the ice, sleet and snow. Then when the ship starts to roll in bad weather the lookout has to hang on with his teeth."

However the job has it advantages, Gerard admits. "Up there all alone on a clear day or a starlit night it gives you plenty of time to think about things and to solve some of your problems you can't seem to straighten out down below. I find it very helpful that way."

THOMASBURG

Prayer Book Dedicated

Thomasburg — During the service at Christ Church on Sunday morning the Rev. L. Arthur Paige dedicated a new beautifully bound leather prayer book for use on the altar tabl, to the memory of a faithful church member, the late Mrs. Edward Carter, the gift being made by her mother, Mr. John Geen, who also is a member of this congregation.

In the United Church on Sunday evening Rev. Clerk Morley Clarke baptized the baby daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Phillips and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Preston, and the baby sons of Mr. and Mrs. Laurison Grills and Mr. and Mrs. Burton Maynes at the regular evening service.

Mrs. L. A. Paige was called to Quebec City recently owing to the death of her father which occurred their on Monday last.

Friends of Mr. Donald Geen will be pleased to learn that he has sufficiently recovered from his recent operation in Belleville hospital to return to his home.

Mrs. Wesley Morton has received word of the death of her cousin the late Miss Emma Isobel Knight at Kincardine General Hospital wher she had been a patient for three months. The late Miss Knight was born at Thomasburg seventy-six years ago.

No serious damage was done in this vicinity by the severe wind storm which swept this district on Saturday.

Congratulations to Mr. Lorne Mumby, of Moira, and Miss M. Carleton of Thomasburg, whose wedding took place in Christ Church, Thomasburg, on Saturday afternoon.

Growing Duties May Cause Duke to Leave Royal Navy

London (AP) —The Duke of Edinburgh, a born sailor who married into the Royal family three years ago, is hearing that for a man in his position it's about time to quit the sea and settle down.

The sea-going Duke resumed his duties in the Royal Navy soon after his marriage to Princess Elizabeth in Westminster Abbey on Nov. 20, 1947. This year, promoted to Lieutenant-Commander he took command of the frigate Magpie.

Prince Philip has been in Mediterranean waters most of the time since his marriage, returning to England only on leaves.

In the meantime royal responsibilities in London have been increasing and there is a feeling that as a prospective consort of a queen he should be drawn more closely into court affairs.

This feeling was expressed most frankly by The Times which observed: "It would seem that the Duke cannot much longer be spared, even to the Royal ties. The House of Edinburgh is becoming more and more indispensable as an individual social unit, mother, father and children."

If he does return to take up the "whole-time royal duties" The Times wants him to assume, the navy certainly will continue to be one of the 29-year-old Duke's major interests. It is taken for granted that in his privileged position the promotions will come regularly and that some day he will be an admiral real or honorary.

Real Sailor

But Prince Philip and his friends find satisfaction in that as far as he has come up to now, he has earned his own way. The Duke served through the grades all the allotted years and his attainments in naval schools have been creditable.

The frigate Magpie is a trim ship, operated with high efficiency. On board the Duke delegates none of his work or responsibility.

However, even as a destroyer lieutenant, the Duke carried out functions which fall into the category of being "royal" rather than naval. As the Chequers and the Magpie steamed about the Mediterranean on various assignments it was arranged to have the Duke step ashore for courtesy visits where Britain wished to keep relations warm.

Such calls were unofficial but made by the husband of Princess Elizabeth, they nevertheless had results which pleased the foreign and colonial offices.

On this round of visits the Duke went to Cyprus, where he attended a cricket match and got a lot of cheers.

In Turkey he visited President Bayar, and at Amman he called on King Abdullah of the Hashemite kingdom of Jordan. He paid his respects in Egypt and went to Athens aboard his own Magpie to see his cousin, King Paul of Greece.

A Lieutenant-Commander in a British frigate doesn't rate a cook, and his cabin is small, but he entertained King Paul and Queen Fredrika at dinner in his own quarters. It was an intimate occasion.

Re-Visits Greece

He visited Algiers and, on his wedding anniversary, he was preparing to fly to Gibraltar to open the colony's legislative council.

Next month he and Princess Elizabeth plan to make a visit to the king and queen of Greece, travelling in separate ships. The Princess' ship, the dispatch vessel Surprise, will be escorted by the Duke's frigate.

All these journeys are squeezed in between stretches of routine naval duty and a few swift dashes to England and Scotland. Highlight of the Duke's year, undoubtedly, was the birth of his first daughter, Princess Anne, Aug. 15. He came to London on a regular leave between the time he was relieved as lieutenant on the Chequers and the day he took over the Magpie.

The Duke has retained his interest in sports and he is extremely active, often at long distance, as president of the National Playing Fields Association.

Two Tail-Enders Show Some Life In National Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Hockey fans in New York and Boston apparently gave up on their National League teams just when both decided to show some life.

With the smallest crowds of the season on hand last night, both the Rangers and the Bruins came up with the brand of fireworks they'll have to win the customers back. Boston really went on the rampage, outscoring Detroit Red Wings 6-3. New York had to settle with 1-1 tie with Chicago Black Hawks but looked good doing it.

There were only 6,103 fans at New York, smallest crowd to attend an N. H. L. game in the 13,000-capacity Madison Square Gardens in 10 years. The 6,084 fans in Boston's 13,900-capacity garden was also the season's smallest.

There'll probably be more than those two totals combined at Montreal's forum tonight to watch the fourth-placed Canadiens tackle the league-leading Torontos Maple Leafs. Both Canadiens and Leafs won late last night.

Boston's victory pulled them into a tie with New York for fifth and last place in the standings. The Black Hawks took over third place all alone while Detroit remained seven points behind the Maple Leafs with two games in hand.

Highest of Season

The Bruins six-goal total was their highest of the season. They scored five of them in the third final period in which Detroit's coach Tommy Ivan was ejected for arguing with referee Hugh McLean.

Ivan's ire was roused when McLeish penalized Terry Sawchuk, Detroit goalie, for tripping Dunc Fisher. Forward George Gee served the penalty for the goalie.

Robbie Lorne Ferguson scored twice for Boston. Other marksmen were Woody Dumart, captain Milt Schmidt, Pete Horeck and Vic Lynn. Jimmy McFadden scored twice for Detroit and Bob Goldham netted the other.

It was only the fourth triumph in 20 games for Boston and their second of the home season.

At New York, the Rangers missed their third victory of the season when Jim Conacher's third-period goal wiped out their early lead. Hawk captain Cecil Stewart and Roy Conacher teamed up with Conacher, just out of Milwaukee, to produce the tally from close in.

The Rangers scored at 4:43 of the first period when defenceman Eddie Kullman converted Zellio Toppazzini's pass.

It was the ninth tie for the Rangers in 21 games.

MASS FUNERAL

Oshawa, Nov. 30 (CP)— A mass funeral will be held here Friday for the three children who died Tuesday in a fire that swept through an upstairs kitchen and their bedroom in a crowded rooming-house twice condemned by municipal authorities.

Why do men in Quebec and British Columbia favor underwear tops while the rest of the country does not? Why do Quebeckers favor double - breasted overcoats and Ontarians single-breasted?

Consider the plight of one particular Canadian knitting mill. It has a demand for checked coats on the prairies and nowhere else. The Maritimes take 80 per cent of its jumbo sweaters while it can market its spun-woollen coats only in the west. Its year is spent in setting up the machines for short runs here, short runs there and change again — all at terrific cost and, needless to say, all passed on to the consumer.

Mr. Campbell said no one is interested in trying to get women to shop on a particular day right across the country. However:

"Everyone would benefit, factory, trade and consumer, if tastes across Canada were sufficiently similar for mass production and long runs."

Industries wishing more uniformity in demand for their products can only get it, Mr. Campbell said, through collective effort rather than through individual attempts by one manufacturer or another.

HAVE ICE PLANT

Guelph, Nov. 30 — (CP) Plans for an artificial ice plant for Ontario Agricultural College Arena have been completed. The College and students have undertaken to raise $21,000 for the job. The rink will be used for hockey, skating, curling and figure skating.

KOREA-BOUND

Hundreds of wives, sweethearts and friends lined the jetty at the Halifax dockyard as the Canadian destroyer Nootka sailed for Korean waters. She will replace the destroyer Sioux as one of three Canadian warships in the war zone. Commanding the Nootka is Cmdr. A. B. Fraser-Harris of Halifax, former Fleet Air Arm pilot and first flier to command a Canadian warship. This is a Navy photo. (CP Photo.)

When It Comes to Shopping, It's the Locale that Counts

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Canadians apparently have different tastes in their shopping, according to the part of the country in which they live. This is expensive for both manufacturers and shoppers.

Robert M. Campbell, Toronto advertising executive, brought this out in an address to the Galt, Ont., Board of Trade. Said he:

In Ontario, British Columbia and Newfoundland housewives buy their groceries either Friday or Saturday. It's Friday in Quebec, and Saturday in the Maritimes and on the Prairies.

Chain stores and super-markets flourish in direct relation to their distance from the sea (reaching their peaks inland). But even this is not a uniform pattern. In Ottawa, for instance, 77 per cent of the French-speaking population favor independent stores while only 44 per cent of English-speaking people do.

The Maritimes buy twice as much of one kind of shortening per person as the Prairies. The Maritimes and Quebec use eight and five times respectively as much of one kind of coffee per person as does the rest of Canada.

British Columbia uses 23 per cent more unflavored gelatin; Quebec uses double the volume of indigestion remedies; blended cigarets sell best in Ontario, and so on.

Ducks Project Carries Name Of Cartoonist

Regina — (CP) — A great nesting ground for ducks has been completed near Wynyard, Sask., and named Lake Jay (Ding) Darling in honor of the noted cartoonist of the Des Moines (Iowa) Register.

The project was undertaken by Ducks Unlimited of Canada and financed by the Iowa unit of the organization. The nesting area of 10,500 acres, 80 miles northwest of Yorkton, is estimated to have cost $35,000 including maintenance.

It involved diversion of water from Duck Hunting Creek into seven small, deep basins where good food and nesting cover would develop. These are in the Quill Lakes region which in bygone years produced countless waterfowl, but which more recently have been avoided by ducks because the water had gone shallow and increased alkaline content stunted plant growth.

Dams were built and canals dug, and this year water was diverted into the project. There are 1,050 acres of water with more than 19 miles of shoreline, promising to develop into first-class duck breeding marshes. Mallards and pintails are the main types of ducks expected in this plan although canvasbacks and redheads are also being attracted. By 1952 it is expected to be the breeding ground of thousands of ducks.

Other Projects

The Iowa unit of Ducks Unlimited previously founded another wildfowl project near Kinistino, Sask., known as Lake Iowa.

A third profeft is being carried out in northern Saskatchewan, 50 miles west of the Pas, Man., by co-operation between the province of Saskatchewan and sportsmen from Wisconsin.

The Saskatchewan - Wisconsin project is costing $50,000 for diking marshland covering 22,000 acres, to make the area habitable for wildfowl and muskrats. This is an area where spring floods have several times destroyed nests, killing young birds.

Through Ducks Unlimited the Wisconsin sportsmen will share the costs with the Saskatchewan government. At a recent meeting here C. . Hogg, deputy minister of natural resources, said the plan is complete except for levelling the dikes.

Whale Catch In Newfoundland

St. John's, Nfld. — (CP) — A harvest of 485 whales was reaped in the waters off Newfoundland and Labrador this season, the two whaling companies here report.

At Williamsport, the Olsen Whaling and Sealing Co. accounted for 155 whales, while the Polar Whaling Co., operating out of Hawke's Harbor, had a catch of 330.

Both figures are slightly below those of last year when the total catch was 544.

Although it is seldom in the spotlight, whaling is an important Newfoundland industry. For an average season the earnings of a whaling man are from $300 to $1,000.

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

"What's going on?" A gruff voice in the dark behind her set the heart beating like a tomtom.

If a start of surprise were proof of a guilty conscience the man beside the roadster staring at her across the empty seat would justly rate her a criminal of the deepest dye, she had almost jumped out of her skin when he spoke. He snapped an electric torch. A State Police officer. The last perfect touch to this nightmarish situation.

"Why are you parking here? Why don't you answer? The officer leaned over the door and focused the beam of light on Pam's face. "Holy smoke, did he beat you up before he left you?"

"Beat me up! What do you mean suspicion?" He was a sergeant, but promotion might be up. Was there a law or rule against parking on a side road like this one? What explanation could she offer that he would accept?

"Are you dumb? Why don't you answer a civil question? You've got to be civil! If you don't get a move on."

"I've been wondering just how I could explain so you would understand Captain. My-my husband heard a noise horn in the road, thought it might be an SOS and drove in. See that shining black car ahead? He went to inquire if there was trouble, if he could help."

"Clib little storyteller, aren't you? I'll find out now what gave you a bloody face. Thought at first it was smeared lipstick, it's been done before, but I can see it isn't. What scratched you up like that?"

"It's a secret, Captain, and —"

"Cut out the old oil. You know I'm not a captain. Tell the truth if you can. You've been through a fight. It's my meat to pick up a guy like that."

"My—my husband did not play rough. You came through this road. You know how narrow it is and—" Indignation choked off her voice.

"Stop and get your breath, lady! Keep your hand away from your cheek. Each time you touch it you add a bloody smooch. I'm staying here till the guy comes back. Take your time."

"I don't need time to tell you this a branch caught my cheek and gave it a vicious dig. If you don't believe it, look." She released the wheel she had been clutching, slid into the other seat and offered her cheek for inspection. "I—I didn't tell my husband because it would worry him and he was anxious to see if the driver in front needed help." He focused his light on her face and then his head the better to see.

"Holy smoke, that was a ripsnorter. Looks to me as if a big thorn did it. Right, I can see the black thing—"

"What does? What goes?" inquired a grim voice.

"Myles. The headlights of the roadster played up the hard white ling about his mouth. Pam slipped back into the driver's seat. The free hand of the policeman slid to his holster, the other levelled his torch.

"Bou time you appear —the Lord love me if it isn't our long-and-be-damned Major." He saluted before he grasped the hand extended. "What are you doing in this back road sir?"

"Following the limousine ahead Sergeant. Bothered—"

"Your wife told me you thought you heard an SOS. Now that you have come I'll investigate the car. Was it a smash-up? Anyone hurt?"

"Not a sign of a person, not even a bag. Sergeant, if you need me to testify as to what you find, drop in at Shore Acres, see me anyway. If that's all, we'll be on our way."

"Okay, Major. Tell my man in the car to come. Continue on the road to drive in, will you! It's been great to see you again, and to meet the missus." He saluted. "Good night, Mrs. Jaffray. Better take care of—our Major."

"Need our lights, Sergeant?"

"No. I have this powerful torch. Back out. My man can't get in until you do. I'll be seeing you."

He delivered the message to the driver of the police car parked near the entrance to the road, waited till the tail light had disappeared before he announced:

"The sergeant was my prize jumper, but before he gets too far away to receive the beating he's due for his life, there are a few things I'd like to straighten out. Was he trying to kiss you?"

"Good heavens, no."

"He was suspiciously near."

"I—I would like to explain why I told him we were married when Myles—It seemed the simplest explanation of my presence on that back road. . . If you must know, he saw my cheek and jumped to the conclusion that either I had been beaten up or—"

"What's the matter with your cheek?" Hand under her chin he turned her face toward him. "Good Lord, what happened, Fryingy? Did you get out to follow me? Did you fall darling?"

"No. I obeyed orders. Remember? I saw that I was in I said a branch grabbed my shoulder! I knew you would stop if I told you it had gouged my face."

"Missed your eye, thank God. Hurts like hell to have it, doesn't it?" He shot the car ahead. "Here we go."

"You'd better drive me to the gallery. Mrs. Betsy will take care of my face. The sergeant said the thorn that tore it was still there."

"I'll take care of it. I saw the thorn. I don't want to touch it till we get home. I had to look my first aid and a lot more than first in my job. You have a date with the Jaffray scenarios. Haven't forgotten, have you?"

"As if I could. I adore jewels. Have they a history?"

"Yes. Jaffray, an English baronet brought some of them with him when he fled to this country after an altercation with his king. He was the first of his name to come. His descendants have added to them until now there is a sizable collection, rings, necklaces, bracelets, a tiara, small but effective, also topaz, sapphires and rubies. They are all set in diamonds, by the way. . . Warm enough, Franny?"

"Warm enough!" She marshalled a laugh to combat her crumply surrender to his tender inquiry. "Hasn't the State of Maine speed laws? Next time you are held up you may not meet an ex-buddy to smooth your path."

"I'm not breaking the speed law. . . Remember that I have something to tell you?"

"I do. I've been living for this moment."

"Rest your good cheek against my sleeve, it may ease the sting in the other. I must keep my voice low. Remember we thought someone had hung onto the back of the roadster the night we lost the blotters? Well, here's the story."

He told of the missing bicycle; of the note delivered to him at the Country Club; of Morrie Grove's message that he was off on the trail of the mysterious stranger; of the telephoned warning before they left the gallery.

"Myles!" You won't go to the summonous alone that?"

"Put your head back, I can't talk when you sit up straight and tense. It cramps my narrative style. That's better. There's a sequel. On the seat of the limousine we discovered I found a paper on which had been scribbled—"

"What, Myles? What?"

"Don't follow. Stop. Think. Where would you hide—"

"Myles go on!"

"—what you had stolen!"

Pram snapped on the bedside light. No use trying to sleep while her bruised cheek smarted and burned. Much better this hot night to sit on the balcony of the room than twist and turn in bed.

In a fairly cushioned wicker chair she folded her arms on top of the ornate wrought-iron grille which framed the balcony and looked down into the dusky garden. The air was still and sweet with the scent of drowsy flowers.

She rested her unscratched cheek against her bare arm. Not that she was sleepy, just unaccountably weary. The dressing of the ugly gouge had been painful but Myles had been so tender, so solicitous that she had clenched her teeth to keep back any expression of discomfort.

Tenderness appeared to be an outstanding characteristic of Natalie and her brother, a characteristic defined as one of the "sympathetic affections," an affection which had been lacking in her life since the loss of her parents. Aunt Becky had loved her but believed in repressing all expression of her love. Ken had brought her up in the Sure-I-Love-you-why-lak - about - it school. Perhaps one reason she had considered marrying Blake was because he noticed what she was wearing, was ready with "You're out of sight in that hat, sweetheart," or "You'll have the the stags queuing for a dance and how, tonight, dream girl." A slight and shaky plank in the platform of matrimony. Matrimony with him? Thank goodness that crazy possibility had been wiped out completely.

If she lathed just naturally lost her taste for him and his line his mysterious behavior? By yesterday would have put her on guard. Why had he gone to her apartment? His explanation to Betsy Digby that she had sent him for her dark glasses was a lie. Had he stopped the clock? Had he slipped the key to the Louis XV cabinet behind it after returning the enamel box?

The box. The night of Miss Tassle's party, while she and Myles had been talking on the seat above the cliff, she had decanted:

"They were trying to nail the theft on me. Why? Why? Because I'm the only one who knew the value of the box and could identify it. Why? Because I'm the only one who knew the value of the box and could identify it. Why? Because I'm the only one who knew the value of the box and could identify it.

Marty Marion Named Manager Of Cardinals

(By The Canadian Press)

Shortstop Marty Marion has been named manager of St. Louis Cardinals of the National League, Marion's appointment was announced at a news conference Wednesday by owner Fred Saigh.

The long, lanky shortstop has signed a contract for one year, Saigh said. Financial terms were not disclosed.

Twenty-five men had been interviewed for the job left open by the resignation of Eddie Dyer, who threw in the sponge in October after a dismal season. The redhead wound up the year in fifth place. It was the first time they had finished out of the first division since 1938.

Marion, who will be 33 years old in two days, will be the youngest manager in the major leagues. He has been the Cardinal organization 15 years, 11 of them with the St. Louis club. For the last several years the man known as "Mr. Shortstop" has been bothered with back and knee troubles.

Asked if he will continue to play, he said:

"I don't think I'm through as a player, but I'll play from the bench if necessary. A winter's rest might make a difference."

In Baltimore, the Colts dropped Frank Filchock from their national football league roster just three days after signing him. The 34-year-old Filchock previously had been barred from the league for failure to report a fix offer while a member of New York Giants. He then went to Canada and starred with Hamilton Tigers and Montreal Alouettes. With the Colts he played in only one game, quarter-backing the club on an injury.

And in Philadelphia promoter Herman Taylor announced he has signed lightweight champion Ike Williams and Rudy Cruz for a 10-round non-title fight Dec. 18. Cruz, a Californian who upset Arthur King of Toronto, British Empire lightweight champion, here Monday night, has won—and lost—to Williams once before.

Bobby Locke, the British Open Golf Champion, and Chandler Harper, the American P.G.A. champion, have announced plans for a series of exhibition matches next spring in the United States. Locke will arrive in the U.S. in mid-March and the matches will begin shortly thereafter.

Coach Al Murray of Galt Black Hawks announced yesterday a group of defencemen with Oshawa Generals.

Galt sends Pete Germaine from Timmins, Ont., to Oshawa in return for Larry Lenahan from Copper Cliff, Ont. The two players change their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A club today.

The Canadian Ladies' Golf Union announced acceptance of an invitation from the Ladies' Golf Union in Britain for a Canadian ladies' team to visit there in 1953.

The Canadians will be guests of the Union in Britain from the time of their arrival in England.

The University of Toronto "probably would buy a larpaulin for Varsity Stadium if it got a long-term contract guaranteeing use of the field for Grey Cup finals," Warren Stevens, athletic director of the University, said last night in Kitchener.

Stevens and coach Bob Masterson of the Varsity Blues addressed the Kitchener-Waterloo branch of the Varsity Alumni Association.

Johnny Keane, who piloted Rochester Red Wings to the International League pennant this year, will manage the club again in 1951. Keane reached an agreement by telephone on a one-year contract, officials said.

In Barrie, the trial of Jimmy Skinner, suspended coach of Windsor Spitfires of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, was postponed until Dec. 6. Skinner was charged with assaulting a Barrie amateur and a fan during a game with Barrie Flyers Nov. 17.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

AT LONG LAST!

There's nothing like picking your tips and spots for weekdays, holidays and game-winning goals. Take Peter Jones, mersel-topped centre of the Belleville Redmen Frinstance. Last night in Peterborough while the crowd was settling back in its collective seats with visions of another overtime session, young Marse Peter took matters in his own hands and, stifling a yawn politely poked the puck past the Peterborough Eagles goalie with exactly one second to go, in the third period.

* * *

And Peter's poke accomplished something that every team in this Senior "B" setup has been striving to do since the official piccolos sounded the "Open Fire". And that is to snatch the first feather from the tails of the high - flying Eagles who have reigned supreme undefeated at the top of the loop since hostilities started.

* * *

Well, it had to come some time, and we can think of no better team to knock off the Eagles than these domned upstarts from Belleville, who caused uplifted eyebrows and quizzical glances from the hockey wise up around Peterborough way when they had the audacity to hold the haughty Eagles to an overtime session here last Friday night.

* * *

And we can think of no better place to do it than in the Eagles backyard where the Peterborough faithful got an eyeful of a team that is slowly but surely being moulded into a whole that spells woe for the future. From accounts from the battleground the surging Redmen were full value for their win in a rugged struggle that saw the score tied three times before Peter's poke settled the argument.

* * *

Coach Walter Bent's experiments with the squad paid off handsomely at last. Doug Bastedo playing defence turned in a whale of a game, we are told, and his sole goal in the first minute of play sparked the redshirts to a blazing performance that culminated in victory. 'Red' King, a newcomer who centred one of the lines also turned in a fine trick but, as our private eye informs us, the entire redshirted crew played stellar hockey for the entire game and matched the proud Eagles throughout the sixty-minute joust.

* * *

The teams clash again on Friday night in Memorial Arena and the joust should pack Walt. Gerow's igloo to the rafters. The Eagles probably won't be feeling any too good after last night's setback, and the Redmen, proud of being the first to de-claw the Eagles, will be out there to prove to the home-town faithful that last night's sparkling win was no flash in the pan.

IN HIGH GEAR

Mebbe it was the return of the "Mayor" to his twined Town Hall. Mebbe it was the smooth scintillating play of Gerry Desjardins and again mebbe those Rockets dug out the kind of hockey they are capable of playing. That is as far as the mebbes go. Actually it looked from the press gondola that Smiley Meronek's charges showed results of the intensive drills they have been put through since their last public appearance.

* * *

Last night against the Oshawa Bees the Rockets were hotter than the south end of a firefly. As Bill Reason told us in the referees' dressing room afterwards they looked like an "A" squad, and for once we have to agree with an OHA official. The flying Rockets zoomed both ways at the same rate of speed and they made every move count. Their checking both fore and aft was a big factor in their 6-0 shutout over the undefeated Oshawans, while their passing plays inside the enemy blueline was at times an eye-pleasing spectacle.

* * *

Last night was the second time this corner has seen the Rockets in action and there was as much difference in their performance against Oshawa from that of the first time we saw them in action as day from night. Last night they kept their heads up. They made every pass count and they turned and matched stride for stride with the fleet Oshawa front lines. They were full value for their 6-0 shutout.

* * *

It was a fine exhibition of teamwork, and while Gerry Desjardins and Mayor Tripp stood out with fine efforts, the rest of the crew were not far behind. Every Rocket turned in a fine performance and if last night's show is a criterion of what they are capof, the Junior "B" trail is going to be plenty tough for the other teams in the group.

* * *

It looks as though Coach Smiley Meronek's efforts are beginning to pay dividends. With all-respect to his predecessors, the Rockets, as we saw them perform last night were the best-coached crew we have seen in a Rockets uniform for many a moon. Apparently the honorable Smiley didn't spare the horses during the practice grinds, and the kids came through handsomely.

* * *

But don't sell this Oshawa team short. They, too, are a well-coached crew with plenty of speed and ability. They threatened on several occasions but the honorable "Mayor" who makes an icicle resemble a bowl of chili con carne while under fire, coolly tickled, picked or rebuffed said their efforts. In fairness to the Oshawa kids, it must be said they travelled for 3½ hours in a bus on a slippery highway, and that is not funny for any team. Then too, they were up against a victory-hungry Rockets crew who tallied them closer than your next breath, and were breathing down their collective necks every time they made a sortie. The bumping was heavy at times, but clean with comparatively few penalties handed out by Referee "Squeak" Reason. It was Junior "B" hockey in a new setting — and a pleasing one at that.

* * *

By the way, the luck number prizes were won by those holding the following program numbers: No. 7975 (cigarettes 50), 8214 (cigarettes, 50), 9733 (suit dry-cleaned), 6541 (pair of tickets to next junior game) and 9800 (also pair tickets to next junior game). Vouchers for the above prizes may be picked up at Bill Cook's Cigar Emporium.

Brown Bomber Scores Decision Over Cesar Brion

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

Chicago, Nov. 30 (AP) —Joe Louis still is wearing boxing gloves but whether he'll ever use them again in a title bout is a big question today as ever.

A slim Chicago Stadium crowd of 6,656, which saw the former heavyweight champion score a methodical 10-round "comeback" victory over Cesar Brion last night, could agree with Joe's admission that "my timing was off."

Louis, as a matter of fact, isn't even talking about a return match with titleholder Ezzard Charles, who gave him a 15-round trimming at New York last Sept. 27.

"I want two or three more fights, and I want them right away," Louis said after his unanimous but plodding decision over the South American, 15 years younger than the no-longer-dreaded Brown Bomber. "I want to be in top-top condition before I even think about Charles."

The International Boxing Club which again took its lumps at the box office when Louis' bout was televised, was to confer today over Joe's next foe in his try for another shot at Charles.

Joe, 36 and weighing 216 pounds, was a shadow of his former stalking, slashing self in the 10th round. He hit Brion, at 196, in trouble with a furious barrage of lefts and rights.

Couldn't get Moving

But, as Joe mumbled in the dressing room, "I just couldn't get the combination going." And Erion is the type of fighter Joe used to get the combination going against with murderous precision in his hey-day.

Brion, who showed no fear of Louis from start to finish, conceded that Louis was his toughest opponent in 35 fights.

Brion's bobbing weaving style may have been the reason, but just as against Charles, Louis never was able to effectively explode his once-potent right hand.

The ringside concensus was that Joe was as fit last night as he'll ever be. But the sleeping pills are gone from his fists. When Joe held the title for 11 years, he registered 22 knockouts in 25 defences. That was his stock in trade. It isn't any more.

Against Charles, Louis faced a sharp, vicious boxer. But Brion was simply a courageous youngster, tough, but not particularly skilful and Joe couldn't put him away. In the seventh, Louis whistled a right to Brion's midsection that nearly crumbled the South American. But Joe couldn't move in for the kill.

Branch Rickey, Boss of Pirates, Calls the Signals

Pittsburgh, Nov. 30 (AP) Baseball's wonder mind, Branch Rickey vows he's going to give pennant-hungry Pittsburgh a championship National League club within a few years.

But there's only this certainty:

Branch Rickey is boss of the Pirates and will call the signals everywhere, although Billy Meyer is still manager, with a $40,000 contract running another year. Meyer will run along with it.

Rickey feted baseball writers last night and then gave them an eloquent rundown on the Pirate situation.

There was one definite pronouncement:

"I can't allow sentiment to weigh one iota."

Rickey wants a hustling, bustling team. He hasn't decided yet if Meyer is the man to do the job. But there's every indication that Meyer will stay as manager. The $40,000 contract looks big to Rickey, and after all Rickey will be running the club anyway.

Rockets in High Gear Swamp Undefeated Oshawa Squad 4-0 in Thrilling Contest

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Coach Smiley Meronek dug deep into his coaching bag last night and came up with a disciplined, energetic, victory-starved crew of Rockets that swept aside the undefeated Oshawa Generals 4-0 and sent them home tabbed with a 6-4 defeat.

Shoddily plainly the results of intensive drilling, the Rockets turned in the best performance seen in Junior "B" circles this season, and over the three periods of play were full value for their win, and four goals better than the score indicates.

Hard Checking

The game was a hard-checking affair, bordering on the ragged at times with the Rockets defence using their bodies to good advantage. The game was cleanly fought with only seven penalties handed out by Referee Bill Reason, of Kingston, four of them going to the Rockets.

The Rockets combined a sustained checking display with a sudden offensive thrust in the first period that netted them three goals, two of them coming within 47 seconds of one another. From that time on they were masters of the situation, and added a third period goal for good measure after the squads had settled through a scoreless second chukker.

It was fast clean hockey throughout with the Rockets content from lines hanging tenaciously to their checks and the defence covering like a blanket almost every time they came within shooting distance.

Held Their Positions

On offence the winners showed further evidence of hard drilling. They held their positions and at times their inside-the-blueline passing had the Oshawa defence going in circles.

The speedy Oshawa kids showed plenty of class but it was a case of too much Rocket tailing. The visitors were ragged with their shooting when close in and many of their shots went wide of the nets.

The Mayor Good

Maestro Bill Cook came up with a familiar face in the nets that of Cecil Tripp, who patrolled the goalmouth for the Rockets last year. Tripp hasn't lost any of the cunning that made him one of the best goalies in the group last season, and last night he turned in a fine performance to earn the shutout. He wasn't exactly overworked, but on occasions when the Oshawans exerted pressure, especially with manpower advantage, the "Mayor" coolly kicked everything aside.

Gerry Desjardins made his debut with the Rockets and came through with a plentiful performance. He engineered many Rocket forays and his solo goal in the first period was almost a picture. He grabbed the puck at his blue-line, ripped through the Oshawa team but fell when through the defence. He poked the puck ahead of him and the rubber slithered through the Oshawa goalies pads.

Peter Green opened the scoring after 13 minutes of play in the first period when he took Mason's pass to hit the rigging. Came Desjardins' effort, 42 seconds later and with a minute to go Harry Brown and Ray Carey roared through with the former stashing the rubber.

Scoreless Period

The teams battled through a scoreless second period with Oshawa valiantly striving to cut down the margin. They swept in on organized plays but the Rockets checking frustrated their efforts or they shot wildly at the Belleville net. They came close on not a few occasions, but Tripp kicked everything aside.

Midway through the third period Rose Mason and Chief Hawke combined for the Rockets fourth and final goal after a sustained Rocket pressure. Oshawa fought back gamely and never gave up trying but it was the Rocket night to howl—and howl they did.

Coach Wally Bem's Belleville Rockets, a new through handsomely with a last-second goal in Peterborough last night to hang the first defeat of the season on the league - leading Peterborough Eagles. Coach Bem tossed five forwards out there with three minutes to go and a goal-down. He strategy paid off when Peter Jones' goal climaxed the red-shirts' bid for victory.

Cleveland Barons Score 9-4 Win Over the Eagles

(By The Canadian Press)

Team captain Fly Butler led Cleveland Barons to a 9-4 victory over New Haven Eagles last night. The defence star scored three goals as the Barons, top team in the league's western division, bounced New Haven, low team in the eastern division.

Buffalo, Bisons; leaders in the eastern section, downed Indianapolis, cellar team in the western division 8-5.

St. Louis Flyers broke a six-game losing streak to best Springfield Indians 4-1. The victory put St. Louis in a third-place tie with Pittsburgh Hornets in the western division. The Hornets bowed 2-1 to Hershey Bears.

In Cleveland Wally Hergesheimer counted twice for the Barons while Roy Kelly, Les Douglas, Fred Thurier and Murdo Mackay got the others. Bill Summerhill, Buck Jones, Ernie Trigg and Wally Stefanjw scored for New Haven.

Don Ashbee was the best of the Buffaloes with two goals while Sid McMahon, Grant Warwick, Ab Demarco, Paul Meger, Billy Dea, Jim Graham and Gordie Pennell got the others.

Max McNab got three goals for Hershey Bears and Teddy Glover also scored another. Gordie Haidy rounded out the Indianapolis scoring.

Paul Gladu and Henry Backor got two goals apiece for St. Louis while George Ford got the sole Springfield counter.

Jerry Schetzel got the winner for Hershey in the third period after Jack McIntyre had scored the first and Bob Bollinger of Pittsburgh had evened things up.

Canadiens Will Sponsor Junior, Senior Team

Sudbury, Nov. 30 (CP) —The National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens will sponsor a junior and perhaps a senior team in Sudbury next season, Sudbury hockey club officials said Wednesday.

Frank Selke, Canadiens managing-director, completed arrangements during a visit to this Northern Ontario city Tuesday, they said.

Sudbury officials declined to disclose financial arrangements. Tentative plans call for player help for a strong junior club but the door was left open for Canadiens to provide help for a possible senior entry in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, they said.

With the new Sudbury arena nearing completion, it is expected a strong junior league will be operating next season with teams from Sudbury, Falconbridge, Copper Cliff, North Bay and Sault Ste. Marie.

Officials also announced that arrangements are being made for the Junior Sudbury Wolves to tour Western Canada later this winter to play other junior clubs in the Canadiens' farm chain.

Petes Defeat Queens 6-2

Peterborough Petes defeated the Queen's University Combines by a score of 6-2 in a scheduled Senior OHA fixture in Kingston last night.

Teams on Top Of Junior 'A, Fare Badly

(By The Canadian Press)

The teams at the top of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standing fared badly last night as eight of the 10 teams in the race set out action.

A tired crew of Barrie Flyers, playing their third game in three nights, missed a chance to extend their first-place lead by dropping a close one, 3-2 to Guelph Biltmores.

Toronto Marlboros, in second place, muffed a chance to overtake the leaders when Oshawa Generals beat them 8-6 in a wide open game at Oshawa.

And Windsor Spitfires, just two points out of second place, were beaten at home 4-3 by Galt Black Hawks who, while still in the cellar, gave only six points behind Barrie, an indication of how close the race is.

In the other junior game, St. Catharines Teepees kept pace with Oshawa, moving into a fourth-place tie with the idle Stratford Kroehlers by handing the winless Waterloo Hurricanes a 3-2 setback.

There was one game in the major series, Toronto Marlboros defeating Hamilton Tigers 7-1 at Hamilton. The result switched the standings of the two teams in the third and fourth spots of the four-team league. Toronto St. Michaels are still well in front with Kitchener-Waterloo second.

Return Meeting

The game at Barrie was a return meeting between Flyers and Biltmores. Guelph won the previous night at home 9-7.

If Barrie players are tired out after a trio of games in three nights, it's probably nothing to the fatigue they'll get after they get back from a northern exhibition trip in which they play four games before coming back to play St. Catharines in a scheduled game next Wednesday.

Biltmores had to come from behind to earn the victory. Chuck Wood had Barrie ahead 2-1 second-period lead after Ron Murphy had opened the scoring for Guelph and Doug Towers tied it up in the first. Ken Lauffman tied it up in the final frame and Murphy's second goal was the winner.

Sidelight of the hockey action was an accident which occurred when Guelph's Lawson almost choked on chewing gum which lodged in his windpipe. Prompt action of Pat Neil, Barrie defenceman dislodged the gum.

In Oshawa, Parker MacDonald got three goals for the losing Marlboros with Gus Kerryn, Ron Stewart and Hurst netting the others. Lou Jankowski and Alex Delvecchio score two apiece for the Generals. Ted O'Connor, Mike Delich, Bob Altersley, and Boniface were the other scorers.

Drive Fails, Short

At Waterloo a last-period drive fell short for the Hurricanes who dropped their 15th game with a win. Jim Robertson, Gord Lomas, and Orrin Gould scored for the Teepees. Murray Dunnette and Warren Godfrey tallied for Waterloo in the last period when Hurricanes removed their goalie in an attempt to get the tying goal.

At Windsor, the Spitfires scored three goals in the last period but fell one short of the Black Hawks who had taken a 4-0 lead. Two goals by Ken Wharram and singles by Pete Conacher and Don Hogan provided the Galt scoring. John Offidani got two for Windsor and Earl Johnson the other.

Hamilton defence and goaltending by Art Childs was off as Marlboros ran up a big margin in the major series game. Scotty Muir tallied two for Marlboros' seven goals, Don Rope, Bob Hassard, Bill Johnson and Howie Lee getting the others. Johnny Bluke scored for Hamilton.

Both leagues are idle until Friday when Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen play Marlboros at Toronto in the major loop, and Windsor meet St. Catharines while Oshawa are playing at Stratford in the junior league.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Chicago's Roy Conacher picked up an assist last night to elbow his way into the crowded first places of the National Hockey League's scoring race. This was the only change in the list.

Max Bentley of idle Toronto remained in first spot with 30 points including his pace-setting 21 assists. Team-mate Tod Sloan was second, six points behind Bentley. Sloan was top sniper with 13 goals.

The leaders:

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

An expert bridge player usually thinks he is twice as good as he really is. And if he is a loud mouth with it, what a revolting development. From afar came such a guy for a visit.

Before his wife could powder her nose he had rigged up a game. Three of our local best met him at their club to see that he got it. I dropped in for a few minutes to watch them in action.

He let it be known by word and gesture that he could play rings around the rest. If he could he was probably with his mouth because, the only deal I saw him handle was not up to par. See it here:

He became the declarer in south at five diamonds when he should have been in six. The opening lead from west was the trump jack. It was taken by the dummy diamond ace. So far, so good.

The dummy lone club was led and south went with the king in the hopes that it would hold. This was good reasoning. Because, the clubs must be taken care of in some way in the near future.

The west ace captured the south club king. West then led back the heart four. Dummy covered with heart eightspot and declarer let it win. A heart then led from dummy was ruffed by east.

Thus did he take his needed 11 tricks. He made a long speech as to his cleverness in pressing. His theme was that the loss of a heart trick was deliberate. It was the safest play, he said.

One of his opponents stopped him for a moment with: "Sam and I would have bid your hand differently and reached a small slam in the diamonds. So, it should be able to take 12 tricks."

Why they rope me into these things is something to consider. All I got out of it was the visitor's remark, which was: "Then you are both nuts." What do you think?

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 30 — (AP) — The dance that elicited gunfire is too hot for today's movie screen.

Hollywood is making the story of Little Egypt and is having a dickens of a time making it authentic. Little Egypt, for those whose memories don't go back that far, was the dance sensation of the gay nineties. Born in Cairo, she was part of a Syrian troupe that appeared on the midway at the Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893.

Little Egypt presented some manoeuvers never seen before in North America. Her hootchy-kootchy shocked the women and delighted the men.

Refined Grind

"I guess she was the forerunner of the present-day burlesque queen," reported Sheila Fleming, who is playing Little Egypt and has done some research on the dancer. "She did it all in an oriental and more refined way."

"She didn't move her feet much, but everything else moved, especially her stomach."

The Johnston office has strict rules about such movements, whether they are historical or not.

The bump, a forward motion of the hips, is verboten. Miss Fleming has to do it with a sideways movement.

Hidden Charms

The grind, which is a clock-like motion of the hips, is also banned. Miss Fleming can make only a semi-circular movement. That is, from one to six o'clock, rather than the full 12 hours.

Little Egypt's costume also couldn't pass the guardians of Hollywood morals. She was well covered above and below, but her midsection was bare.

"Surprisingly modest," Miss Fleming added, "it wasn't her bare stomach that seemed to cause the furor. It was the fact that her legs could be seen under her costume when she twirled. She wore tights that looked like long underwear."

There were many dancers who claimed to be Little Egypt, but the real one was named Fahreda Mahzar. She performed in the U.S. after the Chicago Fair, but never achieved as much fame again.

Ship Disabled On Lake Erie

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 30. (AP)— The Great Lakes freighter George H. Ingalls became disabled Wednesday as she neared port, but was reported safely riding out storm-swept Lake Erie waters.

Bound from Detroit to Buffalo with 500 new cars, the ship's steering engine became disabled as she neared Waverly Shoal, about two miles outside Buffalo harbor.

The ship was rolling heavily but her owners, the T. J. McCarthy Steamship Company, reported she has both her anchors down and is holding steady."

Jones' Last Minute Marker Defeats Peterborough Eagles For Their First Loss in Loop

Peterborough—Belleville Redmen pulled an upset here last night to earn a 6-5 senior puck victory at the expense of the league-leading Eagles. It was the first reverse of the season for Mack MacGee's men and Belleville broke the ice with but a second of play left in the game as Freddy Mortimer was serving a high-sticking penalty. More than a thousand fans waited for an hour before the game finally got under way. The Quinte crew arriving late and then the power line on the street failing and blacking out the arena for a space. Play was red hot over the route and quite even, the count being 2-2 in the first game, and 3-all going into the tight third chukker. The checking was rugged with a few high sticking penalties, but it was fairly clean hockey. Eagles drew five of the nine penalties.

Impressive Performance

Bastedo and Green scored two goals each with Mulvihill getting one and Jones sinking the winner just before the gong sounded. Mulvihill also had two assists in a fine showing, with Green, Jones and Wardhaugh helping once apiece. These players and goalie LeForte starred as the whole squad, coached by Wally Bent, turned in an impressive performance from start to finish. They hustled every minute on the ice.

Crowley was outstanding for the Eagles with two goals and an assist while Freddy Mortimer, Bob Parnall and Bert Hill tounted one each, and Burns and Milne had an assist apiece. The team tolled hard but played spotty hockey, particularly in a defensive role.

Belleville scored early with a high angle shot and Mulvihill made it 2-0 shortly on an in close drive from Green. Early in timer put Eagles back in the hunt in a scramble as the disk slipped by the sprawled goalie, and then Crowley took Milne's forward pass and blazed it into the hemp to tie the count. Jones was gated for boarding but no damage resulted during his sentence.

Goyer got the gate for holding Schmidt on the penalty he also play kept fast. He returned and Schmidt got it for boarding. He returned as Crowley beat LeForte with a slap shot at the goal mouth to give Eagles the lead. Mortimer drew the nod for interference and Green scored on a beautiful bit of combination with Mulvihill and Wardhaugh. Schmidt climbing the wall next for interference.

Green Ties it up

Hill was waved off to open the third for high sticking but was back when Parnall faked a pass and scored on the goalie to put Eagles ahead. Coombs went away for tripping with Schmidt going, too, for interference in the hot pace. They were back when Bastedo tallied for Jones in a scramble. Hill got it back on a backhander with Crowley's passout, but again Belleville tied it when Green cuffed home Mulvihill's rebound. It was sizzling hot then and, when Freddy Mortimer was gated for high sticking in the dying seconds of play, Bert Hill men poured in and Jones finally slapped home the big one in a close-in scramble with one second to go. That did it.

Belleville: Goal LeForte; defence Goyer and Schrieder; centre Wardhaugh; wings Green and Mulvihill; alternates Jones, Day, McDonald, King. Free, Bastedo, Schmidt and Gapp.

Eagles: Goal Nicholls; defence Smith and Godfrey; centre Hill; wings Vitarelli and Crowley; alternates, Parnall, Milne, Munroe, F. Mortimer, Coombs, Montgomery, G. Mortimer and Burns.

Referee—L. Heffering. Linesman, R. Oulmet.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, Nov. 3 —

March 21 to April 20 —(Aries) You will find facts not fancy are the important things today. Face tasks confidently and you will succeed not falter. How you advance is important, too. Steal hearts (ofc).

April 2 to May 20—(Taurus)— Some very good stroke in your favor. Be alerted, don't just don't just. Be wary, seek and you will have a chance for high achievement. Be careful in home, domestic, personal matters.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)— Certain amount of individualism and self-assertion bridges doubts and difficulties. But guiding or over-forcing means little to no advancement. Try honest, good deeds, friendly.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)— You can do all right by yourself if you follow the dictates of your best instincts and use your versatile talents to best advantage. The essence of things is quality. Have confidence.

July 24 to August 22— (Leo) — No silver lining today, but not as bad as it may appear at first. May entail some worry, some quick action (must be in time.) Better a big order! But it isn't for forward-minded Leoites.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Using your innate courage and natural vision you will find smoother sailing. Some corrections may be in order in money, investment affairs. Otherwise day benefic on whole.

September 24 to October 22 — (Libra)—Mostly mild for personal and business activities. Single out the vital issues, concentrate on what really means something, and don't feel ashamed to ask help or advice (from good source).

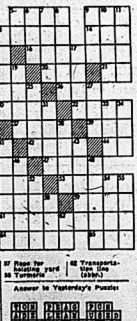
October 24 to November 22— (Scorpio) —The less you worry about things, the better off you will be mentally. Day may tax temper, bother you, so be wise, smile, and don't let anything or anyone get you down. Courage!

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius)—Much more relaxing day than you suppose. Stop and figure matters out, don't take first guess as conclusive. P.M. could be very happy for romance, family affairs.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn)—Show your keenest side today. Some obstacles likely (perhaps am.), could upset. Be solid, firm. Manufacturing, merchandising, general business could advance appreciably.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius)—A friendly day for your interests, home and business. Unusual changes of benefic nature may occur. Be more careful though in money transactions, investments. Enjoy romance.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces)—Hot, favorable and unfavorable may today, and how your day turns out depends mostly upon your ambitions and application, and whether you handle demands wisely. You can accomplish.



You born today: are a cheerful enterprising very capable somebody with a wealth of talent. Do not work with feverish anxiety or undertake more than you can reasonably do at one time. Opportunity often comes your way through your own will to achieve. Should be successful, happy once you find the field for which you have talent. Liking? Sympathy for humanity, trust personality and high ideals are inherent assets, pray God you w i always build them, and use t m rightly. Interesting, good m ths ahead.

Controlling Jet Liners

By CHARLES GARDNER
(U.K. Correspondent)

One of the top levels of priority among problems which have been referred to British research scientists is that of how to handle jet airliners.

It is a job which anxiety is one of its principal causes in early 1952, both British European Airways and BOAC) hope to be using jets on the routes they count, turbo-prop and B.O.A.C. the 600 m.p.h. Comet. Of the two, B.O.A.C.'s need is the greater. The Comet is intended for world wide use, and there will be no danger of her being held up by lack of ground facilities. The Viscount with its lower fuel consumption and shorter runway is less revolutionary and more elastic. But with the Comet, new approaches and new techniques are having to keep pace with a plane which flies twice as fast and twice as high as any now in service.

I have just been talking to a scientific engineer who says that this pace will be matched: a tip as it were from the "Dorsey's mouth") because this engineer is responsible for some of the key work now going on. He is Air Commodore Colin Cadell, head of operational research, the British counterpart to which so many countries go for advice and help on air control matters.

Basic Problem

Sitting in his large chandelier-hung office in a Medway perfectionist behind London's Park Lane, Air Commodore Cadell (pronounced Caddle) outlined to me basic problems which arise from operating a jet plane on world routes and then he sketched in the plans to defeat those problems.

Nearly all the biggest headaches, he said, are ones of communication either from aerodrome to aerodrome or from ground to plane aircraft itself to its next port of call. Even with 250 m.p.h. piston engined liners things have not been as they should be in the remoter parts of certain routes — but the 500-m.p.h. Comet will require considerable speeding up as a minimum requirement of its normal flying program.

It is a commonplace that any jet liner with its relatively high fuel consumption must have a snappy air traffic control system especially when it is ready to land. Delays and a long wait for a landing turn just cannot be accepted. To avoid this the airfield of arrival must know when such a liner is due and it must know when it has taken off so that necessary preparations can be made. After all at 500 m.p.h. there is little enough time to play with. So all airfields used by jet liners will have to be able to pass on to the next port of call not only the pilot's full flight plan but also an actual departure signal. To do this, teleprinter or radio teleprinter systems are needed especially at places where until now the quickest way to notify the next airfield of departure has been to send the message in an envelope inside the plane itself. Air Commodore Cadell hopes that the apparatus devised by International Aeradio and British Radio Industry will meet these needs. Typewriter keys pressed at aerodrome "A" will tap out immediate messages at aerodrome "B". The two machines being linked either by line or by wireless. This, of course, is the familiar teleprinter system now in use all over Europe and America but the new apparatus has the advantage of needing little maintenance for the user to end. It will have to work in so many places (and climates) where skilled radio mechanics are a rarity.

Assuming then that the aerodrome of destination knows that a jet liner is on its way and also its approximate time of arrival the next communication worry is that of controlling the machine on its landing approach.

Checking Weather

A plane like the Comet will cruise at 35,000 to 40,000 feet and the pilot may want to start his "let down" when still some 200 miles away. But before he does that he will want a final check that the weather is good and that there is nothing to hold him up. For a jet plane height is all important. It is at a high altitude that fuel consumption is least, and if there is to be a diversion or a hold up of any sort, the pilot wants to fill in his time or change his course while at this cruising height. The last thing he wants to do is to come down, only to find he has to go up again. The Comet is designed to carry enough fuel for these eventualities, but B.O.A.C. would not like such procedures to become frequent. So, from the latest information, we have a clear requirement for an airfield to be able to speak to the pilot while he is still more than 200 miles away. This has necessitated serious thoughts about the type of radio telephone to be used. The ordinary kind has a range only of 250 miles and after that the curvature of the earth gets in the way. So now the scientists are considering the use of a high frequency radio telephone of some 2,000 miles' range which will keep a jet plane pilot in touch throughout his whole journey. Ordinary morse code wireless could have done the same but by modern standards it is too slow and cumbersome.

Air Commodore Cadell hopes that by the time the Comet starts to carry passengers it will find all these facilities at every airfield it needs to use on its routes to Australia and South Africa. Behind them will be lots of research in many laboratories, private and governmental — work as necessary to the flight as fuel in the plane's tanks.

And what is going to happen when all airliners are jet and they are using big airports at the rate of one plane every few minutes?

I asked Air Commodore Cadell this and he replied "A lot of people are working on that now." My guess is that nearly all the "sorting out" will have to be done by automatic electronic devices while the pilots will have to have dialing telephones in their cockpits.

And by when will that be necessary?

Air Commodore Cadell would not guess — but my own forecast is by 1965 at the latest.

First Bottle Convinced Her Synfona Is Great Medicine

"Cleared Up Stomach Gas and Indigestion," Says This Woman. Nerves Relaxed, Free of Headaches, Backache and Rheumatic Pain.

MRS. HENE YTHOMAS

"For many months past I suffered with stomach disorders and general poor health, but the very first bottle of Syntona relieved me it is great medicine," said Mrs. Henry Thomas, 178 Gertrude St., Hamilton, Ont., in a recent statement.

"I was bothered very badly with indigestion and terrible belching of gas and sour acid risings. No matter what I ate I would get vomiting spells, awful heartburn, and a nauseated dull feeling. I suffered with constipation, dizziness, headaches. Rheumatic pains settled in my back and muscles, my nerves were so on edge I couldn't get my proper sleep, and I constantly felt fatigued and worn out.

"Syntona has done me more good in a short time than anything I ever used before. It cleared up the gas, sour acid risings, and relieved the nervous tension. I don't get those headaches that I used to and my appetite is greatly improved. Also, the backache and pains in my muscles are relieved, my nerves are more relaxed and I am getting proper sound, restful sleep. As a result I have far more strength and energy to do my work."

"Syntona produces these results without the aid of harsh drugs. Made only from selected herbs and roots long known for their outstanding medicinal value, it is pleasant to take and even after a few days the whole system takes on a feeling of renewed strength and vigor.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.

THE PRISONER WAS RIGHT

The moment was tense. This man had a fair trial, and many an Adams' apple did the Rhumba as the jury had filed back into the court room.

Finally the learned judge spoke: "Have you anything to say before I pass sentence for the nefarious crime you have committed?

This was it. The suspense was unbearable for everybody knew that usually words of wisdom come from a condemned man. What deep philosophy — what profound insights — what deep-rooted truths would emit from the mouth of this miserable wretch.

Then—

"Your Honor — just a word. I'd like to skip over to WEST END MOTORS and look over their swell selection of used cars. For instance, I can get a 1947 Ford, with radio and heater, for only $995. They'll even give me 18 months to pay.

To which the judge replied: "You are undoubtedly making lots of sense, but that would mean a reprieve for 18 months.

And the prisoner answered:

"Judge, you catch on quick."
